822. Premises used partly for business purposes.

A tenancy of premises which are occupied by the tenant partly for the purpose of a business carried on by him<sup>1</sup> cannot be a protected regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup>, but may become regulated if the tenant's business occupation ceases<sup>3</sup> as long as the tenancy is of a dwelling house let as a separate dwelling<sup>4</sup>. The test of whether a building used partly for business purposes constitutes a dwelling house within the meaning of the Rent Acts is not whether the residential part constitutes a substantial portion of the whole<sup>5</sup>; nor is it correct to consider what is the predominant use of the premises<sup>6</sup>. It would seem, however, that, where only a very small part of the premises is used for residential purposes, the whole premises would not constitute a dwelling house<sup>7</sup>. Whether a building is a dwelling house or not depends on the particular facts of each case<sup>8</sup>; but houses even a substantial part of which are used for business purposes may come within the meaning of the expression<sup>9</sup>.

1 ie a tenancy to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended) applies: see s 23 (as amended); and PARAS 706-708 ante.

2 See the Rent Act 1977 s 24(3); and PARA 880 post. Section 24(3) is without prejudice to the application of any other provision of the Act to a subtenancy of any part of the premises comprised in such a tenancy: s 24(3). For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 post. If the statutory tenant of a dwelling house (ie one whose contract of tenancy has come to an end) commences to occupy the house for a significant business purpose, it seems that he will remain a statutory regulated tenant (so long as he also occupies the house as his residence) because the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 23 (as amended) applies only to contractual tenancies, and so the Rent Act 1977 s 24(3) will not take the statutory tenancy out of the ambit of the Rent Act 1977.

3     le because the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended) will then cease to apply. The same is true if the tenant sublets the business part. Mixed residential and business premises such as flats above shops may fall within the scope of Pt II (as amended) but a subtenant may be afforded protection against the business tenant: see Wellcome Trust Ltd v Hamad, Ebied v Hopkins, Church Comrs for England v Baines [1998] QB 638, [1998] 1 All ER 657, CA.

823. The purpose of the letting.

The dwelling house must be let as a dwelling for there to be a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup>. This is a different question from that of whether the premises are a dwelling house<sup>2</sup>. In determining whether premises are let as a dwelling the following propositions apply<sup>3</sup>:

- 1613 (1) where the terms of a tenancy agreement provide for or contemplate the use of the premises for some particular purpose, then, subject to the qualification in head (2) below, that purpose is the essential factor in deciding the question whether or not the house can be said to have been let 'as a separate dwelling house' so as to fall within the Rent Acts<sup>4</sup>;
- 1614 (2) nevertheless, where the original tenancy agreement provided for or contemplated the use of the premises for some particular purpose but, by the time when the possession proceedings are begun, that agreement has been superseded by a subsequent contract providing for a different user, the subsequent contract may be looked at in deciding the latter question;
- 1615 (3) if a tenant changes the user of the premises and the fact of the change is fully known to, and accepted by, the landlord, it may be possible for the court to infer a subsequent contract to let them 'as a separate dwelling house' although this would be a contract different in essentials from the original tenancy agreement;
- 1616 (4) however, unless a contract of the last-mentioned nature can be spelt out, a mere unilateral change of user will not enable a tenant to claim the protection of the Rent Acts in a case where the terms of the tenancy agreement itself provide for and contemplate the use of the premises for some particular purpose which does not attract the protection of those Acts, for example as a shop or an agricultural holding<sup>5</sup>;

- 1617 (5) where the tenancy agreement itself does not provide for or contemplate the use of the premises for any particular purpose, actual subsequent user has to be looked at in determining whether a house is 'let as a separate dwelling house' so as to attract the protection of the Rent Acts<sup>6</sup>.

If the letting is of part business and part residential accommodation under a lease which provides that the business part is to be used for business purposes and the residential part for residential purposes, there is no letting of a dwelling house as a separate dwelling<sup>7</sup>. If the tenant ceases to occupy any part of the premises for business purposes and continues to reside in the premises, the tenancy cannot become a regulated tenancy under the Rent Act 1977<sup>8</sup> since there is no letting as a separate dwelling<sup>9</sup>. Similarly, if a dwelling house is let together with agricultural land so that the tenancy when granted is of an agricultural holding, the tenancy will not become a regulated tenancy if the tenant ceases all agricultural use since there was never a letting as a separate dwelling<sup>10</sup>.

If the agreement provides that premises are to be used only for business purposes, the tenant cannot bring himself within the protection of the Rent Acts by using the premises as a residence in breach of the terms of the agreement<sup>11</sup>. If, however, the facts show that by the consent of both parties the provision prohibiting residential use was relaxed so as to give rise to a new or modified letting, such a letting may amount to a letting for residential purposes<sup>12</sup>. The landlord's knowledge that the premises are being used as living accommodation may in some circumstances amount to consent to such user<sup>13</sup>.

The principle that a tenancy is not protected where its terms provide for the user of the premises for a particular purpose other than as a residence applies only if on its true construction the stipulation in question defines the whole purpose of the letting or precludes their use as a dwelling<sup>14</sup>. If part of the premises is designed for living in, the court will be reluctant to construe a term that the tenant will not use the premises otherwise than as a shop or for a particular business so as to prohibit him from living on the premises<sup>15</sup>. In construing the agreement in such a case the court must pay regard to the surrounding circumstances, in particular the subject matter of the letting<sup>16</sup>.

Residential use need not be the only use permitted or contemplated for premises to be let as a dwelling<sup>17</sup>. Protection is given not merely to single, identifiable, pure dwelling houses, but also to houses of a mixed character<sup>18</sup>.

Whereas more than one house or flat may be a dwelling house<sup>19</sup>, plural being read for singular<sup>20</sup>, it is settled that to be protected a tenancy must be of a house let as a single dwelling<sup>21</sup>. Accordingly a tenancy of a building which at the date of the letting contained several separate and self-contained flats is not protected<sup>22</sup>, although a tenancy of a building containing one flat and one shop may be<sup>23</sup>. A person may have two dwelling houses, each of which he occupies as his home, so that, if either of them is let to him, his tenancy of it is protected by the Rent Act 1977<sup>24</sup>.

If premises are let as a dwelling, the fact that, owing to damage, the tenant is prevented from living in them, even though he is able to use them as business premises, does not change the character of the letting<sup>25</sup>.

Where there has been a separate letting of each of the two parts of the premises, one part being residential and the other subject to business user, then, unless the transaction is a sham, and even though the leases may have been to the same tenant, the tenancy of the whole will not be protected, only that of the residential part<sup>26</sup>.

(C) SHARING OF ACCOMMODATION

824. Separate dwelling; sharing.

The requirement that, for a tenant to be protected, the premises must be let as a separate dwelling<sup>1</sup> does not make it necessary for each dwelling to be self-contained or partitioned off<sup>2</sup>. Special statutory provisions apply where a tenant shares accommodation with his landlord or with other persons<sup>3</sup>. Apart from those provisions, where an essential living room is shared, there is no separate dwelling and the premises are outside the scope of protection<sup>4</sup>. For this purpose, it has been held that a kitchen is an essential living room<sup>5</sup>, but that a bathroom or lavatory is not<sup>6</sup>. Each case must be decided on its own facts in the light of the whole arrangement and the surrounding circumstances, sharing being a matter of degree<sup>7</sup>. For there to be use in common there must be a right of simultaneous user by both parties<sup>8</sup>. The right of sharing must be clearly defined or the court will not give effect to it so as to exclude protection otherwise than under the special statutory provisions<sup>9</sup>.

A distinction can, however, be made between two situations. Where a landlord lets rooms without some essential living accommodation and then grants the tenant the right to use other essential accommodation in common with himself, the tenant has in fact no separate dwelling let to him. If, however, the landlord lets the whole of the premises to a tenant and then reserves to himself the right to utilise an essential living room, there has been a letting of a separate dwelling and the tenant is protected<sup>10</sup>. Similarly, if a tenant sublets and gives his subtenant a right to use his kitchen, the tenant does not thereby cease to have a separate dwelling and he remains protected as against the landlord; but there has been no letting of a separate dwelling to the subtenant and, apart from the special statutory provisions<sup>11</sup>, the subtenant will not be protected<sup>12</sup>. There is sufficient sharing to exclude protection otherwise than under those provisions even if the landlord has no need to use the shared accommodation and does not in fact utilise it<sup>13</sup>. A distinction must, however, be made between the sharing of an essential living room and a mere right of access which will not exclude protection even apart from the statutory provisions. Thus the right to draw water, or to use a gas stove once a week<sup>14</sup> will not be sufficient to constitute sharing.

825. Sharing with the landlord.

The principle that, where essential living accommodation is shared, a house is not let as a separate dwelling<sup>1</sup> has been modified by statute<sup>2</sup>. Where under any contract entered into before 15 January 1989:

- 1618 (1) a tenant<sup>3</sup> has the exclusive occupation of any accommodation; and
- 1619 (2) the terms on which he holds the accommodation include the use of other accommodation in common with his landlord<sup>4</sup> or in common with his landlord and other persons; and
- 1620 (3) by reason only of the circumstances mentioned in head (2) above, or by reason of those circumstances and the fact that the landlord resides in another part of the building<sup>5</sup>, the accommodation referred to in head (1) above is not a dwelling house let<sup>6</sup> on a protected tenancy<sup>7</sup>, the contract is a restricted contract<sup>8</sup>, notwithstanding that the rent does not include payment for the use of furniture or for services<sup>9</sup>.

The fact that the landlord has the right at the date proceedings are brought<sup>10</sup> to share some of the accommodation, even if he does not exercise the right, is sufficient to prevent the tenancy being a protected tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to this principle see PARA 824 ante.

2 Ie by the Rent Act 1977 s 21 (repealed by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(2), Sch 18 save in respect of a tenancy or contract entered into before 15 January 1989 (ie the date when Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) came into force: see s 141(3)) or in respect of a transitional case governed by s 36, Sch 18 para 1: see the text and notes 3-11 infra; and PARAS 985 et seq, 1014 post.

3 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

5 The presence of a resident landlord will in some circumstances suffice on its own to make a tenancy a restricted contract and not a protected tenancy: see the Rent Act 1977 s 12 (as amended); and PARA 875 post.

6 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 820 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

8 Restricted contracts enjoy a system of rent restriction and security of tenure different from that enjoyed by protected tenancies: see PARA 985 et seq post. There is no similar protection afforded under the Housing Act 1988 in respect of accommodation shared with the landlord: see PARA 1035 post.

9 Rent Act 1977 s 21 (repealed with savings: see note 2 supra). There is a sharing with the landlord where some accommodation was originally shared between tenants but one of them has become the landlord: Tovey v Tyack [1955] 1 QB 57, [1954] 3 All ER 210, CA. Where one tenant vacates the premises, it is a question of construction of the terms of the agreement whether the landlord has a right to share: Lockwood v Lowe [1954] 2 QB 267, [1954] 1 All ER 472, CA; Isaacs v Titus [1954] 1 All ER 470, [1954] 1 WLR 398, CA.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/A. PROTECTED TENANCIES/(C) Sharing of Accommodation/826. Sharing between tenants.

826. Sharing between tenants.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> has the exclusive occupation<sup>2</sup> of any accommodation ('the separate accommodation') and:

- 1621 (1) the terms as between the tenant and his landlord<sup>3</sup> on which the tenant holds that accommodation include the use of other accommodation ('the shared accommodation') in common with another person or other persons not being or including the landlord<sup>4</sup>; and the separate accommodation is deemed to be a dwelling house let on a protected tenancy or, as the case may be, subject to a statutory tenancy and the following provisions have effect<sup>8</sup>.
- 1622 (2) by reason only of the circumstances mentioned in head (1) above, the separate accommodation would not otherwise be a dwelling house let<sup>5</sup> on or subject to a protected<sup>6</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup>,

While the tenant is in possession of the separate accommodation, whether as a protected or statutory tenant, any term or condition of the contract of tenancy terminating or modifying, or providing for the termination or modification of, his right to the use of any of the shared accommodation which is living accommodation<sup>9</sup> is of no effect<sup>10</sup>. Where, however, the terms and conditions of the contract of tenancy are such that at any time during the tenancy the persons in common with whom the tenant is entitled to the use of the shared accommodation could be varied, or their number could be increased, nothing in the above provisions prevents those terms and conditions from having effect so far as they relate to any such variation or increase<sup>11</sup>.

Without prejudice to the enforcement of any order made by a county court<sup>12</sup>, while the tenant is in possession of the separate accommodation no order may be made for possession of any of the shared accommodation, whether on the application of the immediate landlord of the tenant or on the application of any person under whom that landlord derives title, unless a like order has been made, or is made at the same time, in respect of the separate accommodation<sup>13</sup>. The statutory provisions<sup>14</sup> which restrict the landlord's right to possession of a dwelling house let on a protected tenancy or subject to a statutory tenancy apply accordingly<sup>15</sup>. On the landlord's application, the county court may, however, make such order as it thinks just for:

- 1623 (a) terminating the tenant's right to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation other than living accommodation; or
- 1624 (b) modifying the tenant's right to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation, whether by varying the persons or increasing the number of persons entitled to the use of that accommodation or otherwise<sup>16</sup>.

No such order may be made so as to effect any termination or modification of rights of the tenant which could not otherwise<sup>17</sup> be effected by or under the terms of the contract of tenancy<sup>18</sup>.

3 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

4 Terms by a landlord who did not live on the premises that a tenant renting a room could share the house with 'whosoever I choose' were not sufficiently specific to show that he was reserving the right to live there himself and did not therefore operate to deprive the tenant of protection under the Rent Act 1977 s 22 (see the text and notes 1-3 supra, 5-18 infra): Gray v Brown (1992) 25 HLR 144, [1993] 1 EGLR 119, CA.

6 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARA 831 post.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 22(1). Where, for the purpose of determining the rateable value of the separate accommodation, it is necessary to make an apportionment under s 25(1) (see PARA 859 post), regard must be had to the circumstances mentioned in s 22(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text): s 22(2). As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

9 For these purposes, 'living accommodation' means accommodation of such a nature that the fact that it constitutes or is included in the shared accommodation is (or, if the tenancy has ended, was) sufficient, apart from ibid s 22, to prevent the tenancy from constituting a protected tenancy of a dwelling house: s 22(8). ### 827. Sharing with a subtenant.

Where the tenant<sup>1</sup> of any premises, consisting of a house or part of a house, has sublet a part, but not the whole, of the premises, no part of the premises is, as against his landlord<sup>2</sup> or any superior landlord, to be treated as not being a dwelling house let on or subject to a protected<sup>3</sup> or statutory<sup>4</sup> tenancy by reason only that:

- 1625 (1) the terms on which any person claiming under the tenant holds any part of the premises include the use of accommodation in common with other persons; or
- 1626 (2) part of the premises is let to any such person at a rent which includes payments in respect of board or attendance<sup>5</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions affects the rights against, and liabilities to, each other of the tenant and any person claiming under him, or of any two such persons<sup>6</sup>.

If, therefore, the subtenant shares with the tenant, he will not be protected as against the tenant, although the tenant is protected as against the head landlord. If the head landlord obtains possession against the tenant, the subtenant is not protected<sup>7</sup>.

(D) IMPLIED TERMS

828. Access for repairs.

It is a condition of a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house that the tenant<sup>2</sup> shall afford to the landlord<sup>3</sup> access to the dwelling house and all reasonable facilities for executing therein any repairs which the landlord is entitled to execute<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/A. PROTECTED TENANCIES/(D) Implied Terms/829. Sublettings.

829. Sublettings.

If the tenant<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house let on or subject to a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> sublets any part of the dwelling house on a protected tenancy, he must supply his landlord<sup>3</sup> within 14 days after the subletting with a statement in writing of the subletting, giving particulars of occupancy, including the rent charged<sup>4</sup>. This provision does not, however, require the supply of such a statement in relation to a subletting of any part of a dwelling house if the particulars which would be required to be included would be the same as in the last statement so supplied with respect to a previous subletting of that part<sup>5</sup>. A tenant who is so required to supply a statement and who, without reasonable excuse, fails to supply a statement or supplies one which is false in any material particular is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

2 For this purpose 'protected tenancy' includes a protected occupancy under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 (see PARAS 1144-1145 post): Rent Act 1977 s 139(4)(a).

830. Improvements.

It is a term of every protected and statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> that the tenant will not make any improvement<sup>2</sup> without the written consent of the landlord<sup>3</sup>, which consent is not to be unreasonably withheld and, if unreasonably withheld, is to be treated as given<sup>4</sup>. These provisions are discussed in more detail below in the context of statutory tenancies<sup>5</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'protected tenancy' and 'statutory tenancy' have the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see PARA 818 ante, PARA 831 post): Housing Act 1980 ss 85(1), 150. For cases in which the provisions set out in the text do not apply see s 81(4); and PARA 838 note 1 post.

2 For the meaning of 'improvement' for these purposes see ibid s 81(5); and PARA 838 note 2 post.

3 Ibid s 81(2). The Landlord and Tenant Act 1927 s 19(2) (see PARA 470 ante) is expressly excluded in such cases: Housing Act 1980 s 81(1) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 3, Sch 1). As to the application of these provisions see PARA 838 note 3 post.

B. STATUTORY TENANCIES

(A) DEFINITION AND CREATION

831. Meaning of 'statutory tenancy'.

After the termination<sup>1</sup> of a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> of a dwelling house the person<sup>3</sup> who, immediately before that termination, was the protected tenant of the dwelling house is, if and so long as he occupies the dwelling house as his residence<sup>4</sup>, the statutory tenant of it<sup>5</sup>. A dwelling house is referred to as subject to a statutory tenancy when there is a statutory tenant of it<sup>6</sup>. All statutory tenancies are now regulated tenancies<sup>7</sup>.

A statutory tenant may not be evicted without a court order<sup>8</sup>; and the court is precluded from making an order for possession unless one of the grounds set out in the Rent Act 1977 is satisfied<sup>9</sup>.

Where a tenant is or may be entitled to hold over as a statutory tenant after the expiry of his contractual term, the fact that he does so and that rent is paid and accepted will not of itself give rise to the inference that it was the intention of the parties to create a new contractual tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

1    Ie after the contractual term has been duly determined by effluxion of time, notice to quit or forfeiture. In one instance a statutory tenancy can arise even though the contractual tenancy subsists: see Moodie v Hosegood [1952] AC 61, [1951] 2 All ER 582, HL; and PARA 847 post. The court will be cautious about inferring a statutory tenancy where no evidence is produced as to the termination of the contractual tenancy: see Thomas Pocklington's Gift Trustees v Hill [1989] 2 EGLR 97 at 99, CA, per Bingham LJ.

2    For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3    Where there are joint tenants, each of the joint tenants who remain in occupation after the termination of the contractual term becomes a statutory tenant, even though they do not all so remain: Lloyd v Sadler [1978] QB 774, [1978] 2 All ER 529, CA, applied in de Rothschild v Bell (a bankrupt) [2000] QB 33, [1999] 2 All ER 722, CA (a case on the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq post)). Cf McIntyre v Hardcastle [1948] 2 KB 82, [1948] 1 All ER 696, CA; Tilling v Whiteman [1980] AC 1, [1979] 1 All ER 737, HL (cases on the provisions now contained in the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1), (2), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 9 (as amended) (see PARA 956 post) and Sch 15 Pt II, Case 11 (as amended) (see PARA 963 post)).

4    The phrase 'if and so long as he occupies the dwelling house as his residence' is to be construed as it was under the Rent Act 1968 s 3(2) (repealed): Rent Act 1977 s 2(3). Case law has given an extended scope to the concept of occupation: see PARA 833 post. See also PARA 875 note 7 post.

5    Ibid s 2(1)(a). If the court makes an order for rescission of a protected tenancy, the statutory tenancy which has arisen on the termination of the protected tenancy will also be brought to an end: Killick v Roberts [1991] 4 All ER 289, [1991] 1 WLR 1146, CA. Where a mortgagor after the execution of the mortgage grants a lease of the mortgaged premises without the consent of the mortgagee, on the expiry of the lease the tenant does not become a statutory tenant as against the mortgagee: Britannia Building Society v Earl [1990] 2 All ER 469, [1990] 1 WLR 422, CA. A person who becomes a statutory tenant of a dwelling house as mentioned in the Rent Act 1977 s 2(1)(a) is referred to as a statutory tenant by virtue of his previous protected tenancy: s 2(4). As to statutory tenants by succession see PARA 842 et seq post.

6    Ibid s 2(2). 'Statutory tenant' and 'statutory tenancy' are to be construed in accordance with s 2 (as amended): s 152(1).

7    See PARA 854 post. As to the ultimate conversion of all controlled tenancies to regulated tenancies see PARA 848 post.

8 See the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 ss 1, 2 (as amended); CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 608-609; and PARA 653 ante.

9 See the Rent Act 1977 s 98 (as amended); Cruise v Terrell [1922] 1 KB 664, CA; and PARA 949 et seq post. ## (B) NATURE OF STATUTORY TENANCY

832. In general.

A statutory tenant has no estate or property as tenant, but merely a personal right to retain possession of the property<sup>1</sup> which has been described as a status of irremovability<sup>2</sup>. It follows that:

- 1627 (1) a limited company, not being capable of personal residence, cannot be a statutory tenant<sup>3</sup>, although it may enjoy the benefit of the financial provisions of the Rent Acts during the contractual term as a protected tenant<sup>4</sup>;
- 1628 (2) a statutory tenant has no interest to assign<sup>5</sup> or to transmit by will<sup>6</sup> or to his trustee in bankruptcy<sup>7</sup>;
- 1629 (3) a purported subletting of the whole of the premises by a statutory tenant is a nullity (save that as between tenant and subtenant there would be a tenancy by estoppel), but it has been held that a statutory tenant may sublet part of the premises so as to give the subtenant protection against the head landlord<sup>8</sup>;
- 1630 (4) there cannot be a statutory tenancy where residence is not possible because the dwelling house has been destroyed or so damaged as substantially to have ceased to exist<sup>9</sup>; and
- 1631 (5) there cannot be a statutory tenancy unless at the time when the contractual tenancy comes to an end the person in whom the tenancy is vested<sup>10</sup> is residing in the dwelling house<sup>11</sup> except where the absence is purely temporary<sup>12</sup> or the tenant has always intended to return<sup>13</sup>.

Where the assignee of a lease lost the right to a statutory tenancy because of negligent legal advice, she could recover damages against the solicitors responsible: see Murray v Lloyd [1990] 2 All ER 92, [1989] 1 WLR 1060. A statutory tenant has standing to apply to have a lease vested in him under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 181; but, where he declines to accept a vesting order under s 181, s 182(4) does not apply to deprive him of his status as a statutory tenant: Re Vedmay Ltd (1993) 69 P & CR 247, [1994] 1 BCLC 676. The fact that premises are temporarily unusable for a dwelling house but are used by the tenant for business purposes is not sufficient to deprive the tenant of his right: Morleys (Birmingham) Ltd v Slater [1950] 1 KB 506, [1950] 1 All ER 331, CA. However, after a long absence by the tenant from the premises the onus may be on him to show an intention to return: Bushford v Falco [1954] 1 All ER 957, [1954] 1 WLR 672, CA. Cf the position where premises are restored before the contractual tenancy is ended: Simper v Coombs [1948] 1 All ER 306; Denman v Brise [1949] 1 KB 22, [1948] 2 All ER 141, CA. If a statutory tenant was forced to leave the premises owing to a closing order, and the order was subsequently revoked after the premises had been rendered fit for human habitation, the question whether the statutory tenancy continued was held to depend upon whether the premises had lost their original identity in the course of the reconstruction: see Ferguson v Pittman 1958 SLT 18 (Sh Ct) at 21. As to prohibition orders (which have replaced closing orders) and the right of an owner to obtain possession where such an order has been made see the Housing Act 2004 s 33; para 944 post; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 399.

833. Effect of tenant's absence.

A statutory tenant will lose the benefit of the Rent Acts if he abandons the premises without any intention of returning<sup>1</sup> or in circumstances such that the prospect of his returning is remote<sup>2</sup>. The onus of proving that the tenant has gone out of residence<sup>3</sup> is, in the first place, on the landlord<sup>4</sup>; but, where the tenant's absence is sufficiently long or continuous to raise the inference that he has ceased to occupy the premises as his residence, the onus shifts to the tenant to rebut this inference by showing both:

- 1632 (1) that he had throughout an intention to return<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1633 (2) some outward and visible sign of that intention<sup>6</sup>, for example occupation by a caretaker or licensee or the presence of the tenant's furniture<sup>7</sup>.

Thus a tenant who for business or other reasons is away from the premises, but who uses them as a residence for his immediate family and intends ultimately to occupy them himself, is entitled to the benefit of the Rent Acts<sup>8</sup>; but a tenant who has no intention of living on the premises does not retain such entitlement by leaving a licensee, whether a relative or not, on the premises<sup>9</sup>, except in the special case of a deserted spouse or civil partner<sup>10</sup>. A tenant may retain the benefit of the Rent Acts even though his absence is very prolonged, provided he genuinely intends to return<sup>11</sup>. A statutory tenant may maintain a claim for trespass<sup>12</sup> but a person who has lost his statutory rights by reason of his absence from the premises may not<sup>13</sup>.

1 If a tenant is forced to leave his house owing to the lack of repairs, he should have little difficulty in proving that his departure was an unwelcome and temporary removal: see Bushford v Falco [1954] 1 All ER 957 at 960, [1954] 1 WLR 672, CA (where, however, the fact that the departure of the tenant was attributable to disrepair did not avail him after a long absence in establishing an intention to return).

2 The absence of the tenant due to illness which is probably but not certainly incurable may produce a borderline case as in Tickner v Hearne [1961] 1 All ER 65, [1960] 1 WLR 1406, CA.

3 As to the distinction between possession, occupation and residence see Poland v Earl Cadogan [1980] 3 All ER 544, (1980) 40 P & CR 321, CA (decided under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 1389 post).

4 Roland House Gardens Ltd v Cravitz (1974) 29 P & CR 432, 119 Sol Jo 167, CA.

5 If the contingencies attached to a tenant's intention to return are too remote, there will be insufficient intention to retain the protection of a statutory tenancy: Robert Thackray's Estates Ltd v Kaye (1988) 21 HLR 160, [1989] 1 EGLR 127, CA.

6 Where the tenant slept elsewhere and used the premises as a storehouse for his furniture, he was held to have lost his statutory rights: Parkin v Scott (1965) 196 Estates Gazette 989, CA. An ineffective purported transfer of a statutory tenancy will not as a matter of law destroy the tenant's statutory rights in a case where as a matter of fact the tenant intends to return: Atyeo v Fardoe (1979) 37 P & CR 494, CA. It may, however, be evidence relevant to the question whether the purported assignor has, in fact, retained the necessary intention.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/B. STATUTORY TENANCIES/(B) Nature of Statutory Tenancy/834. Effect of subletting on statutory tenancy.

834. Effect of subletting on statutory tenancy.

If a statutory tenant sublets parts of the premises as dwellings and uses the part he retains as business premises, he has ceased to occupy the premises as his residence and an order for possession may be made against him<sup>1</sup>. The same is the case if he sublets the whole of the premises<sup>2</sup>. The fact that part of the premises has been sublet does not necessarily imply that the tenant has abandoned possession and does not intend to return to that part<sup>3</sup>. If, however, it is established that he has no intention of occupying or reoccupying that part, he loses his statutory right to remain and an order for possession may be made in respect of the part sublet<sup>4</sup>. Such an order may also be made if the tenant has granted a licence for the use of part of the premises for business purposes<sup>5</sup>.

These principles apply only to statutory tenants. A contractual tenancy does not cease to be protected because the tenant sublets the whole or part of the premises, even if the sublettings are themselves not protected tenancies<sup>6</sup>.

1 Haskins v Lewis [1931] 2 KB 1, CA (where the court held, dissenting on this point from Gidden v Mills [1925] 2 KB 713, DC, that an order for possession could be made against the tenant of the whole of the premises, notwithstanding that the subtenants were protected); John M Brown Ltd v Bestwick [1951] 1 KB 21, [1950] 2 All ER 338, CA.

2 See Ujima Housing Association v Ansah (1997) 30 HLR 831, [1997] NPC 144, CA (decided under the Housing Act 1988 s 1(1): see PARA 1018 post). In theory even a tenant who sublets the whole could have an intention to return, but it is submitted that, where the subtenancy is protected, it will be possible for the tenant to establish such an intention only if he has served the appropriate notices under the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11-14 (as amended) (see PARAS 963-965 post). See also Poland v Earl Cadogan [1980] 3 All ER 544, (198) 40 P & CR 321, CA (where it was held that, for the purposes of the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 1389 post), a tenant who sublets the whole house ceases to occupy it as his residence during, at any rate, the intended period of the subletting). It is questionable, however, whether a statutory tenant who does not intend to reoccupy is capable of granting an effective subtenancy of the whole of the demised premises: Trustees of Henry Smith's Charity v Wilson [1983] QB 316, [1983] 1 All ER 73, CA; and see RC Glaze Properties Ltd v Alabdinboni (1992) 25 HLR 150, [1992] EGCS 141, CA (where the point was left undecided). A statutory tenant who permitted part of the premises to be used by members of his wider family was not in breach of a covenant not to sublet: Blanway Investments Ltd v Lynch [1993] EGCS 8, CA. Cf the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 10(1), (2), Sch 5 para 7(2) whereby it is a condition of a statutory tenancy under that Act that the tenant will not assign, sublet or part with possession of the dwelling house, or any part of it: see PARA 1151 post.

In Murgatroyd v Tresarden supra, however, the point that the premises as a whole were not protected because they were not 'let as a dwelling' was not argued: see Horford Investments Ltd v Lambert [1976] Ch 39 at 48, [1974] 1 All ER 131 at 136, CA, per Russell LJ. Crowhurst v Maidment supra was applied in Baron v Phillips (1978) 38 P & CR 91, 247 Estates Gazette 1079, CA, which was decided under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 but turned on whether the tenant would have been a statutory tenant of the whole of the demised premises or only part, had the tenancy not been at a low rent.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/B. STATUTORY TENANCIES/(B) Nature of Statutory Tenancy/835. Effect of tenant having another house.

835. Effect of tenant having another house.

The fact that the tenant has another house elsewhere<sup>1</sup> does not preclude his becoming or remaining a statutory tenant so long as he genuinely occupies each set of premises as a home<sup>2</sup>, as where business requires him to maintain a second residence<sup>3</sup> or where he is in the process of moving<sup>4</sup>. This principle is, however, to be applied with some reserve<sup>5</sup>, although relatively brief periods of actual occupation by the tenant may suffice<sup>6</sup>. A mere holiday house is not a home for this purpose<sup>7</sup>.

Where a person is a tenant of two different parts of the same house under different lettings by the same landlord, and carries on some of his living activities in one part of the house and the rest of them in the other part, neither tenancy will normally be protected<sup>8</sup>. If, however, the true view of the facts is that there is, in substance, a single combined or composite letting of the two parts of the house as a whole, then the tenancies of both parts together will, or may, be protected<sup>9</sup>.

1 There is no requirement in the Rent Act 1977 s 2 that the premises be the tenant's only or main residence; cf the Housing Act 1985 s 81 (see PARA 1300 post); the Housing Act 1988 s 1(1)(b) (see PARA 1018 post).

2 It is a question of fact and degree whether the tenant occupies each premises as a home: Hampstead Way Investments Ltd v Lewis-Weare [1985] 1 All ER 564, [1985] 1 WLR 164, HL.

836. Family homes.

Cases decided before 1968 established that occupation of the matrimonial home by a tenant's wife after the tenant had left counted as occupation by the tenant so as to preserve the statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> for as long as the marriage itself subsisted<sup>2</sup>. In those circumstances the landlord could not properly be granted an order for possession against the husband unless there were available grounds for possession against both husband and wife<sup>3</sup>. The tenant could not abandon his rights while his wife remained; nor could the landlord evict the wife even if the tenant consented or purported to surrender his statutory tenancy.

The present position between husband and wife and between civil partners<sup>4</sup> is governed by the Family Law Act 1996. Where one spouse<sup>5</sup> or civil partner ('A') is entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a beneficial estate or interest or contract or any enactment giving that spouse or partner the right to remain in occupation, the spouse or civil partner not so entitled ('B') has the following rights ('home rights'):

1634 (1) if in occupation, a right not to be evicted or excluded from the dwelling house or any part of it by A except with the leave of the court given by an order under the relevant statutory provisions<sup>6</sup>;

1635 (2) if not in occupation, a right with the leave of the court so given to enter into and occupy the dwelling house<sup>7</sup>.

B's occupation by virtue of these statutory provisions is to be treated, for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977, other than those provisions of that Act relating to restricted contracts<sup>8</sup>, and also for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>9</sup> as occupation by A as A's residence<sup>10</sup>. These provisions do not, however, apply to a dwelling house which:

1636 (a) in the case of spouses, has at no time been, and was at no time intended by them to be, a matrimonial home of theirs; and

1637 (b) in the case of civil partners, has at no time been, and was at no time intended by them to be, a civil partnership home of theirs<sup>11</sup>.

Cohabitants have more limited rights of occupation. If:

- 1638 (i) one cohabitant or former cohabitant is entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a beneficial estate or interest or contract or by virtue of any enactment giving him the right to remain in occupation;
- 1639 (ii) the other cohabitant or former cohabitant is not so entitled; and
- 1640 (iii) that dwelling house is the home in which they cohabit or a home in which they at any time cohabited or intended to cohabit,

the cohabitant or former cohabitant not so entitled may apply to the court for an order against the other cohabitant or former cohabitant ('the respondent') containing provision:

- 1641 (A) if the applicant is in occupation, giving him the right not to be evicted or excluded from the dwelling house or any part of it by the respondent for the period specified in the order and prohibiting the respondent from evicting or excluding the applicant during that period;
- 1642 (B) if the applicant is not in occupation, giving him the right to enter into and occupy the dwelling house for the period specified in the order and requiring the respondent to permit the exercise of that right<sup>12</sup>.

Other specified matters may be included in such an order<sup>13</sup>. An order so made may not be made after the death of either of the parties and ceases to have effect on the death of either of them<sup>14</sup>. It must be limited so as to have effect for a specified period not exceeding six months, but may be extended on one occasion for a further specified period not exceeding six months<sup>15</sup>. So long as the order remains in force, the applicant's occupation by virtue of these statutory provisions is to be treated, for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977, other than those provisions of that Act relating to restricted contracts<sup>16</sup>, and also for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>17</sup> as occupation by the respondent as the respondent's residence<sup>18</sup>.

If one spouse or civil partner is entitled, either in his own right or jointly with the other spouse or civil partner, to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy<sup>19</sup>, the court may make an order transferring the tenancy from one of them to the other<sup>20</sup> on granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter<sup>21</sup>, or at any time when it has power to make a property adjustment order<sup>22</sup> with respect to the civil partnership<sup>23</sup>. Similarly, if one cohabitant is entitled, either in his own right or jointly with the other cohabitant, to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy, then if the cohabitants cease to cohabit, the court may make an order transferring the tenancy from one of them to the other<sup>24</sup>. Such an order may not be made, however, unless the dwelling house is or was a matrimonial home, a civil partnership home, or a home in which the cohabitants cohabited, as the case may be<sup>25</sup>.

Rights of occupation in respect of family homes are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>26</sup>.

If a spouse, civil partner or cohabitant is entitled to occupy the dwelling house by virtue of a protected tenancy within the meaning of the Rent Act 1977, the court may by order direct that, as from such date as may be specified in the order, there is, by virtue of the order and without further assurance, to be transferred to, and vested in, the other spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: (1) the estate or interest which the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled had in the dwelling house immediately before that date by virtue of the lease or agreement creating the tenancy and any assignment of that lease or agreement, with all rights, privileges and appurtenances attaching to that estate or interest but subject to all covenants, obligations, liabilities and incumbrances to which it is subject; and (2) where the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled is an assignee of such lease or agreement, the liability of that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant under any covenant of indemnity by the assignee express or implied in the assignment of the lease or agreement to that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(1) (amended for these purposes by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9, Pt 1 para 16(1), (8)). If an order is so made, any liability or obligation to which the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled is subject under any covenant having reference to the dwelling house in the lease or agreement, being a liability or obligation falling due to be discharged or performed on or after the date so specified, is not to be enforceable against that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(2) (as so amended). References in Schedule 7 Pt II (as amended) to a spouse, a civil partner or a cohabitant being entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy apply whether that entitlement is in his own right or jointly with the other spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Sch 7 para 6 (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9 Pt 1 para 16(1), (7)).

If the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant is entitled to occupy the dwelling house by virtue of a statutory tenancy within the meaning of the Rent Act 1977, the court may by order direct that, as from the date specified in the order (a) that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant is to cease to be entitled to occupy the dwelling house; and (b) the other spouse, civil partner or cohabitant is to be deemed to be the tenant or, as the case may be, the sole tenant under that statutory tenancy: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 8(1) (Sch 7 para 8 amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9 Pt 1 para 16(1), (12)). The question whether the provisions of the Rent Act 1977 Sch 1 paras 1-3 (as amended), or (as the case may be) Sch 1 paras 5-7 (as amended) (see PARA 843 et seq post), as to the succession by the surviving spouse or surviving civil partner of a deceased tenant, or by a member of the deceased tenant's family, to the right to retain possession are capable of having effect in the event of the death of the person deemed by such an order to be the tenant or sole tenant under the statutory tenancy is to be determined according as those provisions have or have not already had effect in relation to the statutory tenancy: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 8(2) (as so amended). For similar provisions in relation to statutory tenancies within the meaning of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 see the Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 9 (as amended).

837. Terms of statutory tenancies.

So long as he retains possession, a statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> must observe and is entitled to the benefit of all the terms and conditions<sup>2</sup> of the original contract of tenancy<sup>3</sup>, so far as they are consistent with the provisions of the Rent Act 1977<sup>4</sup>. Thus he has a right to quiet enjoyment of the premises<sup>5</sup> together with any ancillary rights, such as the right to a supply of hot water or electricity<sup>6</sup>, which may have been included in the tenancy, expressly or by implication<sup>7</sup>, and a right to the benefit of such terms as were implied in the tenancy by statute<sup>8</sup>. An option for renewal may be carried into a statutory tenancy<sup>9</sup> but not, it seems, an option to buy the freehold<sup>10</sup>. An option for payment of a sum in lieu of dilapidations at the end of the tenancy may be incorporated in a statutory tenancy<sup>11</sup> but not a covenant to reinstate alterations<sup>12</sup>. Provisions setting or reducing the rent below the permitted limit are not consistent with the provisions of the Act<sup>13</sup>. After the end of the contractual period rent may be increased on account of an increase in the rates, notwithstanding that the tenancy contained a covenant by the landlord to pay the rates<sup>14</sup>.

It is a condition of a statutory tenancy of a dwelling house that the statutory tenant shall afford to the landlord<sup>15</sup> access to the dwelling house and all reasonable facilities for executing in it any repairs which the landlord is entitled to execute<sup>16</sup>.

A statutory tenant of a dwelling house is entitled to give up possession of the dwelling house if, and only if, he gives such notice as would have been required under the provisions of the original contract of tenancy (subject to the statutory minimum requirement of four weeks' notice<sup>17</sup>) or, if no notice would have been so required, on giving not less than three months' notice<sup>18</sup>. Notwithstanding anything in the contract of tenancy, a landlord who obtains an order for possession of a dwelling house as against a statutory tenant is not required to give to the statutory tenant any notice to quit<sup>19</sup>. He may not, however, forcibly evict the tenant himself but must apply for a warrant for possession to be executed by the court bailiff<sup>20</sup>.

If the tenant of a dwelling house let on or subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>21</sup> sublets any part of the dwelling house on a protected tenancy<sup>22</sup>, he must supply his landlord within 14 days after the subletting with a statement in writing of the subletting, giving particulars of occupancy, including the rent charged<sup>23</sup>. This provision does not, however, require the supply of such a statement in relation to a subletting of any part of a dwelling house if the particulars which would be required to be included would be the same as in the last statement so supplied with respect to a previous subletting of that part<sup>24</sup>. A tenant who is so required to supply a statement and who, without reasonable excuse, fails to supply a statement or supplies one which is false in any material particular is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale<sup>25</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/B. STATUTORY TENANCIES/(B) Nature of Statutory Tenancy/838. Terms as to improvements.

838. Terms as to improvements.

It is a term of every protected and statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> that the tenant will not make any improvement<sup>2</sup> without the written consent of the landlord<sup>3</sup>, which consent is not to be unreasonably withheld and, if unreasonably withheld, is to be treated as given<sup>4</sup>. If any question arises whether the withholding of a consent so required was unreasonable, it is for the landlord to show that it was not<sup>5</sup>. In determining the question, the court<sup>6</sup> must have regard, in particular, to the extent to which the improvement would be likely:

- 1643 (1) to make the dwelling house or any other premises less safe for occupiers;
- 1644 (2) to cause the landlord to incur expenditure which he would be unlikely to incur if the improvement were not made; or
- 1645 (3) to reduce the price which the dwelling house would fetch if sold on the open market or the rent which the landlord would be able to charge on letting the dwelling house<sup>7</sup>.

Such a consent may be validly given notwithstanding that it follows, instead of preceding, the action requiring it and may be given subject to a condition<sup>8</sup>.

Where the tenant has applied in writing for consent to make an improvement, then:

- 1646 (a) if the landlord refuses to give his consent, he must give to the tenant a written statement of his reasons why the consent was refused; and
- 1647 (b) if the landlord neither gives nor refuses to give his consent within a reasonable time, the consent is to be taken to have been withheld; and, if the landlord consents but subject to an unreasonable condition, his consent is to be taken to have been unreasonably withheld<sup>9</sup>.

If any question arises whether a condition attached to a consent was reasonable, it is for the landlord to show that it was<sup>10</sup>.

Any failure by a protected or statutory tenant to satisfy a reasonable condition imposed by the landlord in giving consent to an improvement which the tenant proposes to make, or has made, is to be treated<sup>11</sup> as a breach by the tenant of an obligation of his tenancy or, as the case may be, of an obligation of the previous protected tenancy which is applicable to the statutory tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

The above provisions do not apply in relation to certain specified<sup>13</sup> housing associations<sup>14</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'protected tenancy' and 'statutory tenancy' have the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see PARAS 818, 831 ante): Housing Act 1980 ss 85(1), 150. Section 81(1)-(3) (see the text and notes 2-4 infra) does not apply in any case where the tenant has been given a notice that possession may be recovered under the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11-18 (as amended) (see PARAS 963-969 post) or Sch 15 Pt II, Case 20 (as added) (see PARA 971 post), or a notice that a tenancy is to be a protected shorthold tenancy under the Housing Act 1980 s 52(1)(b) (repealed with savings: see PARA 1009 post), unless the tenant proves that, at the time when the landlord gave the notice, it was unreasonable for the landlord to expect to be able in due course to recover possession of the dwelling house under the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11-20 (as amended): Housing Act 1980 s 81(4). Where this exception applies, the tenancy will be governed by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1927 s 19(2): see PARA 470 ante. For these purposes, 'landlord' and 'tenant' have the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see PARA 816 notes 2-3 ante): Housing Act 1980 s 85(1).

2 For these purposes, 'improvement' means any alteration in, or addition to, a dwelling house and includes: (1) any addition to, or alteration in, landlord's fixtures and fittings and any addition or alteration connected with the provision of any services to a dwelling house; (2) the erection of any wireless or television aerial; and (3) the carrying out of external decoration; but head (3) supra does not apply in relation to a protected or statutory tenancy if the landlord is under an obligation to carry out external decoration or to keep the exterior of the dwelling house in repair (as eg he will be where the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 11 (as amended) (see PARA 416 et seq ante) applies): Housing Act 1980 s 81(5).

3 Ibid s 81(2). The Landlord and Tenant Act 1927 s 19(2) (see PARA 470 ante) is expressly excluded in such cases: Housing Act 1980 s 81(1) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 3, Sch 1). The Housing Act 1980 s 81 (as amended) came into force on 3 October 1980 and applies to tenancies granted before as well as after that date: ss 85(2), 153(4); Housing Act 1980 (Commencement No 1) Order 1980, SI 1980/1406.

5 See ibid s 82(1).

6 A county court has jurisdiction to determine any question arising under ibid Pt III (ss 81-85) (as amended) and to entertain any proceedings brought thereunder; and the jurisdiction so conferred includes jurisdiction to entertain proceedings on any question whether any consent required by s 81 (as amended) was withheld or unreasonably withheld, notwithstanding that no other relief is sought than a declaration: s 86(1), (2) (substituted by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 44(1), (2)).

839. Tenant's consent to works.

Where a dwelling house is subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> and the landlord<sup>2</sup> wishes to carry out works which cannot be carried out without the tenant's<sup>3</sup> consent the following provisions apply<sup>4</sup>. If the tenant is unwilling to give his consent, then, if either of the specified conditions<sup>5</sup> is satisfied, the county court, on the landlord's application<sup>6</sup>, may make an order empowering him to enter and carry out the works<sup>7</sup>. The specified conditions are:

- 1648 (1) that the works were specified in an application for a grant under the relevant provisions of the Housing Grants, Construction and Regeneration Act 1996<sup>8</sup> and the application has been approved<sup>9</sup>; or
- 1649 (2) that assistance was or is to be provided in relation to the carrying out of the works under the relevant provision<sup>10</sup> of the Regulatory Reform (Housing Assistance) (England and Wales) Order 2002<sup>11</sup>.

An order may be made subject to such conditions as to the time at which the works are to be carried out and as to any provision to be made for the accommodation of the tenant and his household whilst they are carried out as the court may think fit<sup>12</sup>. In determining whether to make such an order and, if it is made, what conditions, if any, it should be subject to, the court must have regard to all the circumstances and, in particular, to:

- 1650 (a) any disadvantage to the tenant that might be expected to result from the works;
- 1651 (b) the accommodation that might be available for him whilst the works are carried out; and
- 1652 (c) the tenant's age and health;

but the court may not take into account the tenant's means or resources<sup>13</sup>.

(C) TERMINATION AND SUCCESSION

840. Termination of statutory tenancy.

A statutory tenancy comes to an end if:

- 1653 (1) the dwelling house ceases to exist<sup>1</sup>; or
- 1654 (2) an order for possession<sup>2</sup> is made; or
- 1655 (3) the tenant permanently ceases to occupy the house as his residence<sup>3</sup>; or
- 1656 (4) the tenant gives up possession by agreement<sup>4</sup> or consents to somebody else becoming tenant<sup>5</sup>; or
- 1657 (5) the tenant changes the character of his occupation<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1658 (6) the tenant enters into a new contractual tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

Mere payment of rent, if it can be referred to the statutory tenancy, does not give rise to the inference of a new contractual tenancy<sup>8</sup>; nor did an agreement varying the method of paying the rates<sup>9</sup>. It is unlawful for a statutory tenant to ask or receive any payment or other consideration from any person other than the landlord as a condition of giving up possession<sup>10</sup>.

If the court makes an order for rescission of a protected tenancy, the statutory tenancy which has sprung from it will also come to an end<sup>11</sup>.

1 See PARA 832 note 9 ante.

2 A suspended order for possession probably does not determine a statutory tenancy: see Mills v Allen [1953] 2 QB 341, [1953] 2 All ER 534, CA; and PARA 973 post.

3 See PARAS 833-836 ante. A statutory tenant loses his status of irremovability by ceasing to reside, but his obligation to pay the rent continues unless he has given the appropriate notice: see PARA 837 note 18 ante.

4 Brown v Draper [1944] KB 309, [1944] 1 All ER 246, CA. Handing over the keys and vacating the property for 24 hours was held to constitute a sufficient delivery of possession in Bolnore Properties Ltd v Cobb (1996) 75 P & CR 127, 29 HLR 202, CA, so that the new tenancy subsequently entered into by the same parties was not protected.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) Definitions and Classes/B. STATUTORY TENANCIES/(C) Termination and Succession/841. Transfer of statutory tenancy.

841. Transfer of statutory tenancy.

A statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> cannot be assigned<sup>2</sup>. Where, however, it is so agreed in writing between the statutory tenant ('the outgoing tenant') and a person proposing to occupy the dwelling<sup>3</sup> ('the incoming tenant'), the incoming tenant is deemed to be the statutory tenant of the dwelling as from such date as may be specified in the agreement ('the transfer date')<sup>4</sup>. Such an agreement does not have effect unless the landlord<sup>5</sup> is a party thereto and, if the consent of any superior landlord would have been required to an assignment of the previous contractual tenancy, unless the superior landlord is a party to the agreement<sup>6</sup>.

The rules for determining whether there can be a succession to the statutory tenancy by the widow of the incoming tenant or a member of his family are as follows:

- 1659 (1) the incoming tenant steps into the shoes of the outgoing tenant and is treated accordingly as a statutory tenant by virtue of a protected tenancy or a first or second successor, as the case may be<sup>7</sup>;
- 1660 (2) if the outgoing tenant is a statutory tenant by succession, the agreement may provide that the Rent Act 1977 is nevertheless to have effect as if the incoming tenant had become the statutory tenant by virtue of a previous protected tenancy<sup>8</sup>;
- 1661 (3) where a person becomes a statutory tenant by virtue of these provisions<sup>9</sup>, there can be only one succession to his statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

It is unlawful to require a pecuniary consideration for entering into such an agreement, but the outgoing tenant may charge the incoming tenant for apportioned outgoings, improvements and goodwill<sup>11</sup>.

2 See Keeves v Dean, Nunn v Pellegrini [1924] 1 KB 685, CA; and PARA 832 ante. As to the transfer of a statutory tenancy on separation, divorce etc see PARA 836 ante.

842. Succession to a statutory tenancy; in general.

On the death of a protected<sup>1</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> there may be a transmission to a person<sup>3</sup> who becomes a statutory or assured tenant by succession. The provisions which apply differ according to whether:

- 1662 (1) the tenant or first successor, as the case may be, died on or before 15 January 1989<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1663 (2) the death occurred after that date; and 1664 (3) in the case of a death falling within head (2) above, whether the reforms introduced by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 were in force at the date of that death<sup>5</sup>.

Succession where relevant death occurred on or before 15 January 1989.

843. Succession where relevant death occurred on or before 15 January 1989.

The following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup> for the purpose of determining who is the statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> of a dwelling house by succession after the death of the person ('the original tenant') who died on or before 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> and who, immediately before his death, was a protected tenant<sup>4</sup> of the dwelling house or the statutory tenant of it by virtue of his previous protected tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

The surviving spouse<sup>6</sup>, if any, of the original tenant, if residing<sup>7</sup> in the dwelling house immediately before the death of the original tenant, became the statutory tenant after the death if and so long as he or she occupied the dwelling house as his or her residence<sup>8</sup>.

If the original tenant left no such surviving spouse, a person who was a member of his or her family<sup>9</sup> and was residing with him or her at the time of and for six months immediately before the death became the statutory tenant if and so long as he occupied the dwelling house as his residence<sup>10</sup>. If there was more than one qualifying member of the deceased's family, the question of who was to be the statutory tenant was to be decided by agreement<sup>11</sup> between the members of the family or in default of agreement by the county court<sup>12</sup>. A person who became the statutory tenant by virtue of these provisions is called 'the first successor'<sup>13</sup>.

If immediately before his death the first successor was still a statutory tenant, then, subject to certain exceptions<sup>14</sup>, the surviving spouse, if any, of the first successor or, if the first successor leaves no such surviving spouse, a member of his or her family<sup>15</sup> becomes the statutory tenant after his death subject to the same conditions, but no further succession is possible thereafter<sup>16</sup>. If a person became a statutory tenant by a second succession to a controlled tenancy<sup>17</sup>, his tenancy became a regulated tenancy<sup>18</sup>.

Where after a succession<sup>19</sup> the successor becomes the tenant of the dwelling house by the grant to him of another tenancy, 'the original tenant' and 'the first successor' in relation to that other tenancy mean the persons who were respectively the original tenant and the first successor at the time of the succession, and accordingly:

1665 (1) if the successor was the first successor, and immediately before his death he was still the tenant, whether protected or statutory, the provisions relating to a second succession<sup>20</sup> apply on his death; but

1666 (2) if he was not the first successor, no person may become a statutory tenant by succession on his death<sup>21</sup>;

and this applies even if a successor enters into more than one other tenancy of the dwelling house and even if both the first successor and the successor on his death enter into other tenancies of the dwelling house<sup>22</sup>.

The statutory tenancy which passes to a successor is subject to the same limitations as affected it before the death of the deceased tenant<sup>23</sup>. If a person whose right to succeed to a statutory tenancy is in doubt is allowed to remain for a time on the premises and pays rent, it is a question of fact whether a new contractual tenancy arises and no inference that a new tenancy has been granted is to be drawn merely from the fact that the tenant has held over<sup>24</sup>.

7    If the original tenant died before 28 November 1980, the widow must have been 'residing with' the tenant at his death in order to succeed to his statutory tenancy: Rent Act 1977 Sch 1 para 2 (as originally enacted). If, however, the death occurred after that date, the spouse must have been 'residing in the dwelling house' immediately before the death in order to succeed to the statutory tenancy: Sch 1 para 2 (as substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 76(1)). In order for a member of the original tenant's family to succeed, he or she must have been 'residing with' the original tenant for the relevant period: Rent Act 1977 Sch 1 para 3 (as originally enacted). A person may 'reside' at a house even though absent on business or for other reasons for most of the time: see Middleton v Bull [1951] 2 TLR 1010, CA; and PARA 833 ante. Cf Greenway v Rawlings (1952) 102 L Jo 360. A person may reside with another even though they lead separate lives, if there is no subletting: Collier v Stoneman [1957] 3 All ER 20, [1957] 1 WLR 1108, CA, distinguishing Edmunds v Jones (1952) [1957] 3 All ER 23n, [1957] 1 WLR 1118n, CA. A member of the tenant's family who makes regular visits three or four nights a week to nurse the sick tenant while retaining a home of her own is not 'residing with' the tenant: Swanbrae Ltd v Elliott (1986) 19 HLR 86, [1987] 1 EGLR 99, CA. Cf Hildebrand v Moon (1989) 22 HLR 1, [1989] 2 EGLR 100, CA (daughter who had dwelt continuously with the tenant for the last nine months of her life, nursing her, held to have been 'residing with' her, despite retaining her own flat which she contemplated selling). A person may 'reside with' the tenant notwithstanding that the tenant is absent for a temporary period: Hedgedale Ltd v Hards (1990) 23 HLR 158, [1991] 1 EGLR 118, CA. In the case of a surviving spouse it is expressly provided that he or she must have resided in the dwelling house but there is no similar provision in relation to a member of the tenant's family. It seems that a member of the tenant's family need not have resided in the dwelling house for the relevant period as well as residing with the tenant: see Waltham Forest London Borough Council v Thomas [1992] 2 AC 198, [1992] 3 All ER 244, HL (decided under the Housing Act 1985 s 87). For the meaning of 'if and so long as he occupies the dwelling house as his residence' see the Rent Act 1977 s 2(3); and PARA 831 note 4 ante. Succession where relevant death occurs after 15 January 1989.

844. Succession where relevant death occurs after 15 January 1989.

The following provisions have effect<sup>1</sup> for the purpose of determining who is the statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> of a dwelling house by succession after the death of the person ('the original tenant') who died after 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> and who, immediately before his death, was a protected tenant<sup>4</sup> of the dwelling house or the statutory tenant of it by virtue of his previous protected tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

The surviving spouse or surviving civil partner, if any, of the original tenant, if residing<sup>6</sup> in the dwelling house immediately before the death of the original tenant, becomes the statutory tenant after the death if and so long as he or she occupies the dwelling house as his or her residence<sup>7</sup>; and for these purposes:

- 1667 (1) a person who was living with the original tenant as his or her wife or husband is treated as the spouse of the original tenant; and
- 1668 (2) a person who was living with the original tenant as if they were civil partners is treated as the civil partner of the original tenant<sup>8</sup>.

If, immediately after the death of the original tenant, there is, by virtue of heads (1) and (2) above, more than one person who fulfils the statutory conditions, such one of them as may be decided by agreement<sup>9</sup> or, in default of agreement, by the county court is to be treated (according to whether that one of them is of the opposite sex to, or of the same sex as, the original tenant) as the surviving spouse or the surviving civil partner<sup>10</sup>. A person who becomes the statutory tenant by virtue of these provisions is referred to as 'the first successor'<sup>11</sup>.

If the original tenant leaves no such surviving spouse or surviving civil partner, a person who was a member of the original tenant's family<sup>12</sup> and was residing with him in the dwelling house at the time of and for the period of two years<sup>13</sup> immediately before his death becomes entitled to an assured tenancy<sup>14</sup> of the dwelling house by succession<sup>15</sup>. If there is more than one qualifying member of the original tenant's family, the question as to who is to be entitled to an assured tenancy of the dwelling house by succession is to be decided by agreement<sup>16</sup> or in default of agreement by the county court<sup>17</sup>.

If the first successor dies and immediately before his death he was still a statutory tenant, the person who was a member of the original tenant's family immediately before that tenant's death and was a member of the first successor's family immediately before the first successor's death and who was residing in the dwelling house at the time of, and for the period of two years<sup>18</sup> immediately before the first successor's death becomes entitled to an assured tenancy of the dwelling house by succession<sup>19</sup>. If there is more than one such person, the question as to who is to be entitled to an assured tenancy by succession is to be decided by agreement<sup>20</sup> or in default of agreement by the county court<sup>21</sup>.

Where after a succession<sup>22</sup> the successor becomes the tenant of the dwelling house by the grant to him of another tenancy, 'the original tenant' and 'the first successor' in relation to that other tenancy mean the persons who were respectively the original tenant and the first successor at the time of the succession, and accordingly:

- 1669 (a) if the successor was the first successor, and immediately before his death he was still the tenant, whether protected or statutory, the provisions relating to a second succession<sup>23</sup> apply on his death; but
- 1670 (b) if he was not the first successor, no person may become a statutory tenant by succession on his death<sup>24</sup>, and this applies even if a successor enters into more than one other tenancy of the dwelling house and even if both the first successor and the successor on his death enter into other tenancies of the dwelling house<sup>25</sup>.

845. Second succession excluded.

A person cannot become a statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> or an assured tenant<sup>2</sup> by a second succession<sup>3</sup> if:

- 1671 (1) there has been a change of the statutory tenancy by agreement<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1672 (2) the statutory tenancy of the original tenant arose by virtue of certain specified<sup>5</sup> statutory provisions<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1673 (3) the tenancy of the original tenant was granted on or after 1 January 1977<sup>7</sup> and both that tenancy and the statutory tenancy of the first successor would have been a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 had they been tenancies at a low rent<sup>8</sup>; or
- 1674 (4) the first successor died before 8 December 1965<sup>9</sup>.

7 I.e. the operative date within the meaning of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976: see s 1(6); and PARA 1134 post. For forestry workers the operative date is 1 October 1977: see s 1(7), Sch 3 para 8; and PARA 1134 post. If the tenants under both the relevant tenancies were forestry workers to whom s 40(3), Sch 9 para 7 applies, 1 October 1977 is to be substituted for 1 January 1977: Rent Act 1977 Sch 1 para 11(2).

8 I.e. both the tenancies were tenancies to which ibid s 99 (see PARA 943 post) applies: Sch 1 para 11(1). For the meaning of 'protected occupancy' see PARAS 1144-1145 post; and for the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' for these purposes see PARAS 1146-1149 post.

The rule in Brown v Conway supra may still be important for establishing that a person holding over after the death of a first successor before 8 December 1965 did so as a new contractual tenant and not as a second successor.

846. Meaning of 'member of the tenant's family'.

The expression 'member of the tenant's family' is broadly construed, the test being whether an ordinary person would answer affirmatively the question whether the relevant person was a member of the tenant's family<sup>1</sup>. The test is to be applied as at the date of the tenant's death<sup>2</sup>.

The following persons have been held not to be members of the tenant's family: a man who had cohabited with the tenant for three years<sup>12</sup>, an unrelated younger housekeeper<sup>13</sup>, a younger man who had lived with the elderly lady tenant for 18 years on affectionate but platonic terms<sup>14</sup>, and first cousins of the same age<sup>15</sup>. Persons unconnected to the tenant by blood, affinity, adoption<sup>16</sup> or regular sexual intercourse<sup>17</sup> cannot establish artificially a familial nexus by their behaviour<sup>18</sup>. Only one person can succeed to the statutory tenancy; it cannot be transmitted to a number of persons jointly<sup>19</sup>.

17 Homosexual or lesbian partners who lived together were formerly unable to establish a familial nexus (see eg Harrogate Borough Council v Simpson [1986] 2 FLR 91, 17 HLR 205, CA (decided on the differently worded provisions of the Housing Act 1980 ss 30, 50(3) (repealed)) but this position was reversed by Fitzpatrick v Sterling Housing Association Ltd [2001] 1 AC 27, [1999] 4 All ER 705, HL (where, however, the court rejected the applicant's contention that he should be treated as a surviving 'spouse'). Succession where the contractual tenancy still subsists.

847. Succession where the contractual tenancy still subsists.

'Tenant' includes any person deriving title under the original tenant<sup>1</sup>. Thus, if a personal representative of a deceased tenant is residing in the house when the contractual tenancy vested in him is determined, he is entitled to remain as a statutory tenant<sup>2</sup>. It is otherwise if the contractual tenancy vested in the Public Trustee<sup>3</sup> on the death of a tenant intestate and the landlord serves a notice to quit which expires before the grant of letters of administration<sup>4</sup>.

The provisions as to succession apply whether the tenant was a protected (that is contractual) tenant or a statutory tenant at the time of his death<sup>5</sup>. Where the tenancy was contractual, the right of the statutory successor will take precedence over that of the person on whom the contractual tenancy devolves, the contractual tenancy being suspended<sup>6</sup>. If a person entitled to a tenancy by succession remains in possession and pays rent, it is a question of fact whether he does so in right of the contractual tenancy or as statutory tenant<sup>7</sup>.

C. FORMER CONTROLLED TENANCIES

848. Conversion of controlled tenancies to regulated tenancies.

On 28 November 1980<sup>1</sup> every controlled tenancy<sup>2</sup> ceased to be a controlled tenancy and became a regulated tenancy<sup>3</sup>. The only exception is where the demised premises subject to the controlled tenancy were occupied wholly or in part by the tenant for the purpose or partly for the purpose of a business carried on by him<sup>4</sup>, in which case from the conversion date the tenancy is treated as a tenancy continuing by virtue of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>5</sup> after the expiry of a term of years certain<sup>6</sup>.

Whether a tenancy was previously controlled is, however, of importance in determining whether it is to be treated as a tenancy at a low rent<sup>7</sup> and in connection with certain transitional arrangements relating to the phasing of rent increases<sup>8</sup>.

As to the conversion of some controlled tenancies by previous statutes see PARA 849 note 13 post.

4     Ie the controlled tenancy was one to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46 (as amended)) (see PARA 701 et seq ante) would apply, apart from the Rent Act 1977 s 24(2) (repealed), or would so apply if it were a tenancy within the meaning of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 (see PARAS 706-708 ante): Housing Act 1980 s 64(2).

849. Meaning of 'controlled tenancy'.

Before 28 November 1980, a protected<sup>1</sup> or statutory<sup>2</sup> tenancy of a dwelling house was a controlled tenancy unless:

- 1675 (1) the rateable value of the dwelling house on 7 November 1956<sup>3</sup> exceeded £30 or, if the house was in the metropolitan police district<sup>4</sup> or the City of London, £40<sup>5</sup>; or
- 1676 (2) the contractual tenancy was created by a lease or agreement coming into operation on or after 6 July 1957 or was a renewal of such a tenancy<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1677 (3) the contractual tenancy was a long tenancy<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1678 (4) the dwelling house consisted only of premises which were erected after 29 August 1954<sup>8</sup> or were separate<sup>9</sup> and self-contained premises produced by conversion<sup>10</sup> after that date of other premises<sup>11</sup>; or
- 1679 (5) the tenancy was a protected or statutory furnished tenancy<sup>12</sup>; or
- 1680 (6) the tenancy had become converted into a regulated tenancy<sup>13</sup>.

A tenancy was a controlled tenancy and not a tenancy at a low rent<sup>14</sup> if, notwithstanding that the rent was less than two-thirds of the rateable value of the dwelling house on the appropriate day<sup>15</sup>, the rent payable under the tenancy was not less than two-thirds of the 1939 rateable value<sup>16</sup> and the tenancy otherwise qualified as controlled<sup>17</sup>.

<sup>5</sup> Rent Act 1977 s 17(1)(a) (repealed: see PARA 848 note 3 ante). Moreover, if the house was within those rateable value limits, the tenancy was controlled despite the fact that the house was not within the 1965 rateable value limits: see s 155(1), Sch 22 para 4 (repealed); and PARA 855 post. As to the general rateable value limits for protected tenancies see PARA 855 post; as to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

<sup>7</sup> Ibid s 17(7)(a) (repealed). For these purposes, 'long tenancy' means a tenancy granted for a term of years certain exceeding 21 years, whether or not subsequently extended by act of the parties or by any enactment: s 152(1).

<sup>8</sup> Premises were to be treated as converted or erected after 29 August 1954 if the conversion or erection was completed after that date, notwithstanding that it might have been begun on or before that date: ibid s 17(9) (repealed).

9 For premises to be 'separate' they had to be distinct but not necessarily partitioned or cut off from other premises: Smith v Prime (1923) 129 LT 441; Darrell v Whitaker (1923) 92 LJB 882, DC (both decided under the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act 1920 s 12(9) (repealed)).

10 A dwelling was not 'produced by conversion of other premises' unless the conversion was so substantial as to change the identity of the premises: Higgins v Silverston [1956] 2 QB 525, [1956] 2 All ER 893, CA (decided under the similar wording of the Housing Repairs and Rent Act 1954 s 35(1) (repealed)).

11 Rent Act 1977 s 17(7)(b), (8) (repealed). Such premises were not excluded from control if they consisted of a dwelling house provided by works in respect of which a grant became payable under the Housing Act 1949 s 20 (repealed) or the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act 1958 s 30 (repealed), both of which related to improvement grants: Rent Act 1977 s 17(8) (repealed).

12 Ibid s 17(7)(c) (repealed). 'Protected furnished tenancy', 'statutory furnished tenancy' and 'regulated furnished tenancy' mean a protected or, as the case may be, a statutory or regulated tenancy under which the dwelling house concerned is bona fide let at a rent which includes payments in respect of furniture, and in respect of which the amount of rent which is fairly attributable to the use of furniture, having regard to the value of that use to the tenant, forms a substantial part of the whole rent: s 152(1). Until the passing of the Rent Act 1974 furnished tenancies were not protected and they were never capable of being controlled. See further PARA 869 et seq post.

13 See the Rent Act 1977 s 17(7)(d)-(f) (repealed). A tenancy might have become converted (1) on the issue of a certificate under s 108 (repealed); (2) on a second succession by virtue of s 18(3) (repealed); or (3) by reference to rateable value under the Housing Finance Act 1972 s 36 (repealed).

850. Provisions as to renewals.

There are two exceptions to the general rule<sup>1</sup> that tenancies created on or after 6 July 1957 could not be controlled:

1681 (1) where a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> was granted to a person who, immediately before it was granted, was the tenant<sup>3</sup> of any premises under a controlled tenancy and the premises comprised in that tenancy and those comprised in the new tenancy were the same or one of them consisted of or included part of the other, the new tenancy was a controlled tenancy<sup>4</sup>;

1682 (2) where a controlled tenancy came to an end on the landlord recovering possession<sup>5</sup> by virtue of the dwelling house being overcrowded, the first protected tenancy thereafter created of the whole or any part of the premises comprised in the previous controlled tenancy was a controlled tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

851. The 1956 rateable value.

For the purpose of determining whether a tenancy was a controlled tenancy<sup>1</sup> the rateable value of a dwelling house on 7 November 1956 meant:

- 1683 (1) if the dwelling house was a hereditament for which a rateable value was then shown in the valuation list<sup>2</sup>, that value or, if different, the net annual value<sup>3</sup>;
- 1684 (2) if the house formed part only of such a hereditament, such proportion of the figure for rateable or net annual value shown in the list as might be or might have been agreed<sup>4</sup> in writing between the landlord and tenant or determined by the county court<sup>5</sup>;
- 1685 (3) if the house consisted of or formed part of more than one such hereditament, the aggregate of the rateable values of those hereditaments or parts ascertained in accordance with heads (1) and (2) above<sup>6</sup>.

Where, after 7 November 1956, the valuation list was altered with effect from a date not later than that date in pursuance of a proposal made before 1 April 1957, the rateable value on 7 November 1956 of any dwelling house consisting of or wholly or partly comprised in that hereditament was to be ascertained as if the amount of the rateable or net annual value then shown in the list had been the amount shown in the list as altered<sup>7</sup>. Where, however, such a proposal for the reduction of the rateable value was still pending on 6 July 1957 and the rateable value on 31 March 1956 was such that, if it had remained unaltered, the rateable value on 7 November 1956 would have exceeded the specified limits<sup>8</sup>, any alteration made pursuant to the proposal was to be disregarded<sup>9</sup>.

Where a controlled tenancy was current on 6 July 1957<sup>10</sup> and the tenant or any previous tenant had made on the premises comprised in the tenancy an improvement, or contributed to the cost of an improvement, consisting of the execution before 7 November 1956 of works amounting to structural alteration, extension or addition, then not later than six weeks after 6 July 1957 the tenant might serve notice on the landlord requiring him to agree to a reduction of the rateable value<sup>11</sup>. It was then open to the parties to agree the reduction or have it determined by a procedure involving the county court and the valuation officer<sup>12</sup>. Where the amount of such a reduction had been agreed or determined, the rateable value of the premises was to be taken as being reduced by that amount<sup>13</sup>.

852. The 1939 rateable value.

It was necessary to ascertain the 1939 rateable value in order to determine whether a tenancy was a controlled tenancy or a tenancy at a low rent<sup>1</sup>. The 1939 rateable value of a dwelling house meant the rateable value (or net annual value, if different) shown in the valuation list on 6 April 1939 if the premises were in the then administrative county of London, or on 1 April 1939 if they were elsewhere<sup>2</sup>. If a house was first assessed after those dates, the 1939 rateable value meant the rateable value (or net annual value, if different) shown in the list on the day the house was first assessed<sup>3</sup>. A county court had power on application by either party to make such apportionment as seemed just of the 1939 rateable value of the property in which the dwelling was comprised; and the decision of the county court was final<sup>4</sup>.

853. Modifications of the Rent Act 1977 for converted tenancies.

In relation to controlled tenancies converted into regulated tenancies by statute<sup>1</sup>, certain provisions of the Rent Act 1977 are modified as follows<sup>2</sup>:

- 1686 (1) in relation to any rental period<sup>3</sup> beginning after the conversion<sup>4</sup>, the provisions as to the rent limit during statutory periods<sup>5</sup> have effect as if references therein to the last contractual period were references to the last rental period beginning before the conversion<sup>6</sup>;
- 1687 (2) the exclusion from protection of tenancies at a low rent<sup>7</sup> does not apply to the converted tenancy after the conversion<sup>8</sup>;
- 1688 (3) the provisions relating to the determination of a fair rent<sup>9</sup> apply in relation to the converted tenancy as if certain references<sup>10</sup> therein to the tenant under the regulated tenancy included references to the tenant under the tenancy before the conversion<sup>11</sup>;
- 1689 (4) the provisions converting the tenancies<sup>12</sup> do not affect any court proceedings instituted under the Rent Act 1977 before the conversion which may affect the recoverable rent before the conversion, or the rent under the regulated tenancy after the conversion so far as that depends on the previous rent<sup>13</sup>;
- 1690 (5) a tenant is entitled to deduct overpayments of rent from current rent<sup>14</sup> after the conversion to the same extent as he could have done so before<sup>15</sup>.

Special provisions apply for the protection of tenants having security of tenure who enter into rent agreements after conversion<sup>16</sup>.

D. REGULATED TENANCIES

854. Meaning of 'regulated tenancy'.

For the purposes of the Rent Act 1977, a 'regulated tenancy' is a protected or statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup>. Where a regulated tenancy is followed by a statutory tenancy of the same dwelling house, the two are to be treated for the purposes of that Act as together constituting one regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup>. These provisions are subject:

- 1691 (1) to the rule<sup>3</sup> that a tenancy cannot be regulated if it is a business tenancy<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1692 (2) to the power of the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> or, in relation to Wales, of the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>6</sup> to provide by order<sup>7</sup> that no dwelling house:
  - 1. (a) exceeding a specified rateable value<sup>8</sup>, or
  - 2. (b) of any class or description,
  - 3
- 1693 in an area in which he or the Assembly or minister is satisfied that there is no substantial excess of demand for such houses over supply, is to be the subject of a regulated tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

The rateable value limits; in general.

(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases

A. CERTAIN TENANCIES WHERE RATEABLE VALUE EXCEEDS SPECIFIED LIMITS

855. The rateable value limits; in general.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is entered into before 1 April 1990<sup>2</sup>, or, where the dwelling house had a rateable value on 31 March 1990<sup>3</sup>, is entered into on or after 1 April 1990 in pursuance of a contract made before that date, is not a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup> if the dwelling house falls within one of the specified<sup>5</sup> classes<sup>6</sup>.

The reason for the complexity of the provisions relating to rateable values is historical. The limits imposed by the Rent Act 1965 and the Rent Act 1968 were simply £400 for Greater London<sup>7</sup> and £200 elsewhere<sup>8</sup>. These were amended by the Counter-Inflation Act 1973<sup>9</sup> for two purposes: firstly, to meet the new rateable values which came into effect on 1 April 1973 by reason of the general rating reassessment<sup>10</sup>, and secondly to increase the limits in real terms<sup>11</sup> so as to bring a class of more valuable properties into the ambit of the Rent Acts<sup>12</sup>.

No account is to be taken of the provisions relating to rateable values in determining whether a dwelling house was let on or subject to a controlled tenancy<sup>13</sup> if the rateable value on 23 March 1965 exceeded £400 in Greater London or £200 elsewhere but on 7 November 1956 did not exceed £40 in the metropolitan police district<sup>14</sup> or the City of London or £30 elsewhere<sup>15</sup>.

If any question arises in any proceedings<sup>16</sup> whether a dwelling house falls within one of the specified classes by virtue of its rateable value at any time, it is deemed not to fall within that class<sup>17</sup> unless the contrary is shown<sup>18</sup>.

- 5 Ie one of the classes set out in the Rent Act 1977 s 4(2): see PARAS 856-858 post.
- 6 Ibid s 4(1) (amended by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 15). As to the rateable value limits for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) (assured tenancies) see PARA 1027 post.
- 7 As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.
- 8 See the Rent Act 1965 s 1(1) (repealed); the Rent Act 1968 s 1(1)(a) (repealed).
- 9 Ie by the Counter-Inflation Act 1973 s 14 (repealed).
- 10 Ie under the General Rate Act 1967 Pt V (ss 67-95) (repealed).
- 11 The 1973 rating reassessment increased rateable values by about two and one-half times on average; thus a £600 or £300 rateable value before 1 April 1973 was approximately equivalent to a £1,500 or £750 rateable value on and after that date.
- 12 Where the contractual tenancy of a dwelling house had come to an end before 22 March 1973 and the tenancy would have been a regulated tenancy if the Counter-Inflation Act 1973 s 14 (repealed) had been in force, a tenant who retained possession is deemed to have done so under a statutory tenancy under the terms of the previous tenancy subject to the power of the High Court or a county court to vary those terms in any way appearing to be just and equitable: see the Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 5.
- 13 For the meaning of 'controlled tenancy' see PARA 849 ante.
- 14 For the meaning of 'metropolitan police district' see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 137.
- 15 Rent Act 1977 s 155(1), Sch 22 para 4 (repealed). Thus tenancies already controlled and not decontrolled by the Rent Act 1957 were not excluded from protection by the rateable value limits introduced by the Rent Act 1965. As to determining the 1956 rateable value see PARA 851 ante. As to the conversion of all controlled tenancies to regulated tenancies on 28 November 1980 see PARA 848 ante.
- 16 For these purposes, 'proceedings' includes any proceedings of a legal nature even though they do not take place in a court of law; thus, if an application to register a fair rent is made to a rent officer and no separate rateable value is shown in the valuation list for the house in question, he is entitled to rely on the statutory presumption and assume jurisdiction: R v Westminster (City) London Borough Council Rent Officer, ex p Rendall [1973] QB 959, [1973] 3 All ER 119, CA.
- 17 Ie deemed to be within the rateable value limits and therefore within the operation of the Rent Act 1977.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/A. CERTAIN TENANCIES WHERE RATEABLE VALUE EXCEEDS SPECIFIED LIMITS/859. Meaning of 'rateable value' and 'the appropriate day'.

859. Meaning of 'rateable value' and 'the appropriate day'.

Except where otherwise provided, for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 the rateable value of a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> on any day is the rateable value then shown in the valuation list<sup>2</sup>. If, however, the dwelling house forms part only of a hereditament, or consists of or forms part of more than one hereditament, its rateable value is to be taken to be such value as is found by a proper apportionment or aggregation of the rateable value or values so shown<sup>3</sup>. Any question arising<sup>4</sup> as to the proper apportionment or aggregation of any value or values must be determined by the county court, whose decision is final<sup>5</sup>.

In the Rent Act 1977 'the appropriate day' means 23 March 1965<sup>6</sup> in the case of any dwelling house which was or formed part of a hereditament, or more than one hereditament, for which a rateable value was shown in the valuation list then in force<sup>7</sup>; in the case of any other house it means the date on which a rateable value was first shown in the valuation list<sup>8</sup>.

Where, after the date which is the appropriate day in relation to any dwelling house, the valuation list was altered so as to vary the rateable value of the relevant hereditament with effect from a date not later than the appropriate day, the rateable value on the appropriate day is to be ascertained as if the value then shown in the valuation list had been the value shown in the list as altered<sup>9</sup>.

The above provisions apply in relation to any other land as they apply in relation to a dwelling house<sup>10</sup>.

- 1 The Rent Act 1977 s 25 also applies to land: see the text to note 10 infra.
- 2 Ibid s 25(1)(a). For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'rateable value' is to be construed in accordance with s 25: s 152(1). As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

B. CERTAIN TENANCIES AT A HIGH RENT

860. Tenancies at a high rent entered into on or after 1 April 1990.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> if:

- 1699 (1) it is entered into on or after 1 April 1990<sup>3</sup>, otherwise than, where the dwelling house had a rateable value<sup>4</sup> on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990; and 1700 (2) under it the rent<sup>5</sup> payable for the time being is payable at a rate exceeding £25,000 a year<sup>6</sup>.

If any question arises in any proceedings whether a tenancy is so precluded from being a protected tenancy, the tenancy is deemed to be a protected tenancy unless the contrary is shown<sup>7</sup>.

In practice there will be few tenancies affected by these provisions, since no new protected tenancies can be created after 15 January 1989<sup>8</sup> except in certain transitional cases<sup>9</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3 I.e. the date when the domestic rating system was replaced by the community charge, itself now replaced by the council tax: see PARA 521 ante. High-quality rented accommodation was previously precluded from protection by reference to rateable values: see PARA 855 et seq ante.

4 For the meaning of 'rateable value' see PARA 859 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value where no entry appears on the valuation list at the date at which the domestic rating system was abolished see PARA 523 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'rent' does not include any sum payable by the tenant as is expressed, in whatever terms, to be payable in respect of rates, council tax, services, repairs, maintenance or insurance, unless it could not have been regarded by the parties as a sum so payable: Rent Act 1977 s 4(5) (s 4(4)-(7) added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 16; the Rent Act 1977 s 4(5) amended by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 3).

6 Rent Act 1977 s 4(4) (as added: see note 5 supra). The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order replace the amount referred to in the Rent Act 1977 s 4(4) (as so added) by an amount specified in the order; and such an order must be made by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 4(7) (as so added). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

C. TENANCIES AT A LOW RENT

861. Meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent'; tenancies where no rent is payable.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> if:

- 1701 (1) under the tenancy for the time being no rent<sup>3</sup> is payable<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1702 (2) it is a tenancy at a low rent<sup>5</sup>, that is a tenancy which:

3. (a) was entered into before 1 April 1990<sup>6</sup> or, where the dwelling house under the tenancy had a rateable value<sup>7</sup> on 31 March 1990, is entered into on or after 1 April 1990 in pursuance of a contract made before that date; and
4. (b) under which the rent payable is less than two-thirds of the rateable value which is or was the rateable value of the dwelling house on the appropriate day<sup>8</sup>; or
- 1703 (3) it is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the dwelling house under the tenancy had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, and the rent is payable at a rate of £1,000<sup>9</sup> or less a year if the dwelling house is in Greater London and £250<sup>9</sup> or less a year if it is elsewhere<sup>10</sup>.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 5(1) (as amended: see note 4 supra). For the meaning of 'the appropriate day' see PARA 859 ante. Where a tenancy has been converted from a controlled tenancy to a regulated tenancy, the above rule does not apply after conversion: see the Rent Act 1977 s 18A (as added), Sch 17 para 5; the Housing Act 1980 s 152(2), Sch 25 para 75. As to the conversion of controlled tenancies to regulated tenancies see PARA 848 ante. Where the appropriate day in relation to a dwelling house fell before 22 March 1973 and the dwelling house had on the appropriate day a rateable value exceeding, if it is in Greater London, £400 or, if it is elsewhere, £200, the Rent Act 1977 s 5(1) (as amended) applies in relation to the dwelling house as if the reference to the appropriate day were a reference to 22 March 1973: s 5(2). Where a tenancy granted before 28 November 1980 becomes, or would but for its low rent become, a protected tenancy by virtue of the Housing Act 1980 s 73 (as amended) (Crown property: see PARA 883 post), the Rent Act 1977 s 5 (as amended) applies as if in relation to the dwelling house the appropriate day were 28 November 1980: Housing Act 1980 s 73(5), Sch 8 para 1. As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

9 The Rent Act 1977 s 4(7) (as added) (see PARA 860 note 6 ante) applies to any amount referred to in s 5(2A) (as added) (see the text and note 10 infra) as it applies to the amount referred to in s 4(7) (as so added): s 5(2B) (s 5(2A), (2B) added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 18).

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/C. TENANCIES AT A LOW RENT/862. Meaning of 'rent'.

862. Meaning of 'rent'.

Where the sum expressed in a lease to be payable as rent is less than two-thirds of the rateable value but, as consideration for the grant of the lease, the tenant has paid to the landlord a lump sum which, on a true view of the transaction, is to be treated as commuted rent, the tenancy is protected if the rent, taking the lump sum into account, exceeds two-thirds of the rateable value<sup>7</sup>.

In the Rent Acts 'rent' means pecuniary rent; thus a tenancy under which rent is payable not in money but by way of goods or services is not protected<sup>8</sup> unless the parties have by agreement quantified the rent in terms of money<sup>9</sup>.

It is the rent payable when the exemption from protection is sought to be applied which is material<sup>10</sup>. It would appear to follow that a tenancy may move into and out of protection where there is a variable rent<sup>11</sup>.

3 For these purposes, 'long tenancy' means a tenancy granted for a term certain exceeding 21 years, other than a tenancy which is, or may become, terminable before the end of that term by notice given to the tenant: Rent Act 1977 s 5(5).

4 For the meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent' see PARA 861 ante.

5 In the Rent Act 1977, except where the context otherwise requires, 'rates' includes water rates and charges but does not include an owner's drainage rate as defined in the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 63(2)(a) (repealed in relation to financial years beginning after 1992 by the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 ss 2(2), 3(1), Sch 2 para 15(1), Sch 3 Pt I: see now the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 40; and WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARA 627); Rent Act 1977 s 152(1).

11 This seems to be implicit in the alternative ratio decidendi in Woozley v Woodall Smith [1950] 1 KB 325 at 334, [1949] 2 All ER 1055 at 1059, CA, construing the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act 1920 s 12(7) (repealed), where the words 'where the rent payable ... is less than two-thirds' etc were read as meaning 'if and so long as the rent payable' etc. Moreover the cases cited in notes 1-2 supra all involved rents which were variable and could, at least in theory, have fallen below two-thirds of the rateable value if the rates or service charge element had been sufficiently small. It is implicit in the decision in O'Connor v Hume [1954] 2 All ER 301, [1954] 1 WLR 824, CA (assuming that a lump sum payment was to be treated as rent for the first year only) that a tenancy may cease to be protected by reason of a fall in the rent.

D. CERTAIN SHARED OWNERSHIP LEASES

863. Meaning of 'qualifying shared ownership lease'.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> if it is a qualifying shared ownership lease, that is a lease<sup>3</sup>:

- 1704 (1) granted in pursuance of the former right to be granted a shared ownership lease under the Housing Act 1985<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1705 (2) a lease granted by a housing association<sup>5</sup> and which complies with the statutory conditions<sup>6</sup>.

The statutory conditions are that the lease:

- 1706 (a) was granted for a term of 99 years or more and is not, and cannot become, terminable except in pursuance of a provision for re-entry or forfeiture;
- 1707 (b) was granted at a premium, calculated by reference to the value of the dwelling house<sup>7</sup> or the cost of providing it, of not less 25%, or such other percentage as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>, of the figure by reference to which it was calculated;
- 1708 (c) provides for the tenant<sup>9</sup> to acquire additional shares in the dwelling house on terms specified in the lease and complying with such requirements as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>;
- 1709 (d) does not restrict the tenant's powers to assign, mortgage or charge his interest in the dwelling house;
- 1710 (e) if it enables the landlord<sup>11</sup> to require payment for outstanding shares in the dwelling house, does so only in such circumstances as may be prescribed<sup>12</sup>;

1711 (f) provides, in the case of a house, for the tenant to acquire the landlord's interest on terms specified in the lease and complying with such requirements as may be prescribed<sup>13</sup>; and 1712 (g) states the landlord's opinion that by virtue of these provisions the lease is excluded from the operation of the Rent Act 1977<sup>14</sup>.

In any proceedings the court may, if of opinion that it is just and equitable to do so, treat a lease as a qualifying shared ownership lease notwithstanding that the condition specified in head (g) above is not satisfied<sup>15</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 818 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'lease' includes an agreement for a lease and references to the grant of a lease are to be construed accordingly: Rent Act 1977 s 5A(6) (s 5A added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 18, Sch 4 paras 1(2), 11(1)).

4 Under the Housing Act 1985 Pt V (ss 118-188) (as amended): see s 143 (as originally enacted). As to the abolition of the statutory right to be granted a shared ownership lease see PARA 1795 post.

5 For these purposes, 'housing association' means a society, body of trustees or company (1) which is established for the purpose of, or amongst whose objects or powers are included those of, providing, constructing, improving or managing, or facilitating or encouraging the construction or improvement of, housing accommodation; and (2) which does not trade for profit or whose constitution or rules prohibit the issue of capital with interest or dividend exceeding such rate as may be prescribed by the Treasury, whether with or without differentiation as between share and loan capital: Housing Associations Act 1985 s 1(1) (applied by the Rent Act 1977 s 5A(6) (as added: see note 3 supra)).

6 Rent Act 1977 s 5A(1) (as added: see note 3 supra).

7 For these purposes, 'house' has the same meaning as in the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 Pt I (ss 1-37) (as amended) (see PARA 1390 post): ibid s 5A(6) (as added: see note 3 supra).

8 The Secretary of State (see PARA 27 note 3 ante) or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister (see PARA 27 note 4 ante) may by regulations prescribe anything requiring to be prescribed for the purposes of ibid s 5A(2) (as added: see note 3 supra); and the regulations may (1) make different provision for different cases or descriptions of case, including different provision for different areas; and (2) contain such incidental, supplementary or transitional provisions as the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister considers appropriate, and must, if made by the Secretary of State, be made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 5A(3), (4) (as so added). In exercise of the power so conferred, and prior to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales, the Secretary of State made the Housing Association Shared Ownership Leases (Exclusion from Leasehold Reform Act 1967 and Rent Act 1977) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1940, which came into force on 11 December 1987: reg 1. The regulations do not prescribe any percentage for these purposes.

11 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

Prescribed requirements relating to acquisition of additional shares by the tenant.

864. Prescribed requirements relating to acquisition of additional shares by the tenant.

The requirements<sup>1</sup> as to the provision for the tenant to acquire additional shares in the dwelling house are that:

1713 (1) the tenant is to be entitled to acquire additional shares up to a maximum of 100%, in instalments of 25% or such lesser percentage, if any, as may be specified in the lease;

1714 (2) the tenant is to be able to exercise this entitlement by serving notice in writing on the landlord at any time during the term of the lease, stating the additional shares he proposes to acquire;

1715 (3) the price for the additional shares is to be an amount no greater than the same percentage of the market value price<sup>2</sup> at the date of service of the tenant's notice under head (2) above, as the percentage of the additional shares;

1716 (4) the rent payable by the tenant under the lease, excluding any amount payable, directly or indirectly, for services, repairs, maintenance, insurance or management costs, is to be reduced, upon the purchase of any additional shares, in the same proportion as the reduction in the percentage of shares remaining unpurchased by the tenant<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> For these purposes, 'market value price' means the amount agreed between or determined in a manner agreed between the parties or, in default of such agreement or determination, determined by an independent expert agreed between the parties or, in default of agreement, appointed on the application of either party by or on behalf of the President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors, as the amount which the interest of the tenant would fetch, if sold on the open market by a willing vendor, on the assumption that the tenant had previously purchased 100% of the shares in the dwelling house, disregarding the following matters: (1) any mortgage of the tenant's interest; (2) any interest in or right over the dwelling house created by the tenant; (3) any improvement made by the tenant or any predecessor in title of his; (4) any failure by the tenant or any predecessor in title to carry out any repairing obligations under the lease: Housing Association Shared Ownership Leases (Exclusion from Leasehold Reform Act 1967 and Rent Act 1977) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1940, reg 2, Sch 1 para 1.

865. Prescribed circumstances relating to payment for outstanding shares.

If the lease enables the landlord to require payment for the outstanding shares in the dwelling house, the circumstances in which the landlord is entitled to do so<sup>1</sup> are that:

- 1717 (1) there has been a disposal, other than an exempt disposal<sup>2</sup>, of any interest in the dwelling house by the tenant;
- 1718 (2) the amount payable by the tenant is an amount no greater than the same percentage of the market value price<sup>3</sup> at the date of the disposal as the percentage of the shares in the dwelling house remaining unpurchased by the tenant<sup>4</sup>.

2    For these purposes, 'exempt disposal' means: (1) a disposal under a will or intestacy; (2) a disposal under the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973 s 24 (as originally enacted or as prospectively substituted) (see MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW vol 72 (2009) PARA 498 et seq) or the Inheritance (Provision for Family and Dependents) Act 1975 s 2 (as amended) (see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 691 et seq); (3) a grant of a subtenancy in respect of which a notice has been given under the Housing Act 1980 s 52(1)(b) (repealed with savings) (notice that a tenancy is to be a protected shorthold tenancy: see PARA 1009 post) or of a kind mentioned in any of the Rent Act 1977 s 98, Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11-18 (as amended) (see PARAS 963-969 post) or Sch 15 Pt II, Case 20 (as added) (see PARA 971 post); (4) a grant of a subtenancy of part of the dwelling house, if any other part of the dwelling house remains in the possession of the tenant; (5) a grant of a mortgage: Housing Association Shared Ownership Leases (Exclusion from Leasehold Reform Act 1967 and Rent Act 1977) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1940, reg 2, Sch 1 para 3(2).

866. Prescribed requirements relating to tenant's acquisition of landlord's interest.

The provision in the lease of a house for the tenant to acquire the landlord's interest must<sup>1</sup>:

- 1719 (1) be exercisable at any time by the tenant by giving notice in writing, to take effect not before he has acquired 100% of the shares in the dwelling house;
- 1720 (2) require the landlord's interest to be transferred, as soon as practicable after the coming into effect of that notice, to the tenant or to such other person as the tenant may direct;
- 1721 (3) not entitle the landlord to make any charge for the conveyance or assignment of his interest<sup>2</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/E. HOUSES LET WITH OTHER LAND/867. Land and premises let with dwelling house.

E. HOUSES LET WITH OTHER LAND

867. Land and premises let with dwelling house.

Any land or premises let together with a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> is treated as part of the dwelling house unless the land or premises so let consists of agricultural land<sup>2</sup> exceeding two acres<sup>3</sup> in extent<sup>4</sup>. There need not be a single letting or comprehensive rent for the dwelling and the other land to be let together<sup>5</sup>; nor need the hereditaments be contiguous<sup>6</sup>; nor will severance of the reversion prevent land being let together with the house<sup>7</sup>.

Subject to the above rule, a tenancy<sup>8</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>9</sup> if the dwelling house which is subject to the tenancy is let together with land other than the site of the dwelling house<sup>10</sup>. Whether the rule or the exclusion applies depends on whether the land is, or premises let are, an adjunct to the dwelling house or vice versa. If the house is an adjunct to the land, the whole entity is not protected; thus, if a factory or a business is the main object of the letting and the dwelling is merely an adjunct to it, the tenancy is not protected<sup>11</sup>. Where, however, the premises let are a single structure, part of which is used as living accommodation, no question of predominant user arises; the only question is whether there is a dwelling house let as a dwelling<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the purpose of applying the Rent Act 1977 ss 6, 26 (see the text and notes 2-12 infra), the relevant date at which the use of the land must be considered is either the date of the application or the date of the hearing: Mann v Merrill [1945] 1 All ER 708, CA; Bradshaw v Smith [1980] 2 EGLR 89, (1980) 255 Estates Gazette 699, CA; Russell v Booker [1982] 2 EGLR 86, (1982) 263 Estates Gazette 513, CA (where the point was left open).

2 For these purposes, 'agricultural land' means any land used as arable meadow or pasture ground only, land used for a plantation or a wood or for the growth of saleable underwood, land exceeding 0.10 hectare used for the purposes of poultry farming, cottage gardens exceeding 0.10 hectare, market gardens, nursery grounds, orchards or allotments, including allotment gardens within the meaning of the Allotments Act 1922, but does not include land occupied together with a house as a park, gardens, other than as aforesaid, pleasure grounds, or land kept or preserved mainly or exclusively for purposes of sport or recreation, or land used as a racecourse; and, for these purposes, the expression 'cottage garden' means a garden attached to a house occupied as a dwelling by a person of the labouring classes: General Rate Act 1967 s 26(3)(a) (amended by the Rating Enactments (Agricultural Land and Agricultural Buildings) (Amendment) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/318; applied by the Rent Act 1977 s 26(2)). The General Rate Act 1967 s 26(3)(a) (as so amended) continues to have effect after 31 March 1990 for these purposes as if the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 117(1) (now as amended) (rates and precepts; abolition) had not been enacted: References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 3.

868. Houses in agricultural holdings etc.

1722 (1) the dwelling house is comprised<sup>2</sup> in an agricultural holding<sup>3</sup> and is occupied by the person responsible for the control (whether as tenant or as servant or agent of the tenant) of the farming of the holding; or 1723 (2) the dwelling house is comprised in the holding held under a farm business tenancy<sup>4</sup> and is occupied by the person responsible for the control (whether as tenant or as servant or agent of the tenant) of the management of the holding<sup>5</sup>.

It has been held that head (1) above does not prevent a subtenant of a purely residential part of the holding comprised in the head tenancy from being protected as against his immediate landlord<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

2 A dwelling house does not cease to be 'comprised in' an agricultural holding merely because, without the landlord's consent, the holding is partitioned between the tenants, one taking the dwelling and the other the land: Lester v Ridd [1990] 2 QB 430, [1989] 1 All ER 1111, CA (decided under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 1(3)(b) (as amended): see PARA 1415 post).

3 For these purposes, 'agricultural holding' means any agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 held under a tenancy in relation to which that Act applies: Rent Act 1977 s 10(2) (s 10 substituted by the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 s 40, Schedule para 27). As to such agricultural holdings see PARA 806 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 323.

4 For these purposes, 'farm business tenancy', and 'holding' in relation to such a tenancy, have the same meaning as in the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995: Rent Act 1977 s 10(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). As to such tenancies and holdings see PARA 807 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 302.

F. HOUSES LET WITH BOARD OR ATTENDANCE

869. Exclusion from protection.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> if under the tenancy the dwelling house is bona fide let<sup>3</sup> at a rent<sup>4</sup> which includes payments in respect of board or attendance<sup>5</sup>. A dwelling house is not to be taken to be bona fide let at a rent which includes payments in respect of attendance unless the amount of the rent which is fairly attributable to attendance, having regard to the value of the attendance to the tenant<sup>6</sup>, forms a substantial part of the whole rent<sup>7</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3 'Bona fide' in the context of 'bona fide let' means genuinely as opposed to a merely colourable use of words which do not correspond to what is really provided: Palser v Grinling, Property Holding Co Ltd v Mischeff [1948] AC 291 at 310, [1948] 1 All ER 1 at 7, HL. See Furnival Properties Ltd v Edwards (1950) 94 Sol Jo 578, CA (agreement by the landlords to hire furniture from the tenant's wife in order to prevent the tenancy from being protected at a time when furnished tenancies were excluded from protection (see PARA 870 post) held to be a colourable transaction).

4 'Rent' in this context is not confined to rent in the strict sense but covers other payments under the instrument of letting, even though in the instrument such payments are provided for separately from the rent: see LH Woods & Co Ltd v City and West End Properties Ltd (1921) 38 TLR 98; Wilkes v Goodwin [1923] 2 KB 86 at 105-106, CA; Nadler v Wilson (1924) 40 TLR 639; Artillery Mansions Ltd v Mabartney [1947] KB 594, [1947] 1 All ER 686 (affd sub nom Artillery Mansions Ltd v Macartney [1949] 1 KB 164, [1948] 2 All ER 875, CA); Property Holding Co Ltd v Clark [1948] 1 KB 630 at 642-648, [1948] 1 All ER 165 at 170-173, CA, per Asquith LJ and at 649 and 173-174 per Evershed LJ; Alliance Property Co Ltd v Shaffer [1949] 1 KB 367, [1949] 1 All ER 312, CA.

5 Rent Act 1977 s 7(1). For the meaning of 'board' and 'attendance' see PARA 871 post.

6 'Tenant' means the actual tenant, not a hypothetical normal or average tenant, or an assignee of the original tenant: Palser v Grinling, Property Holding Co Ltd v Mischeff [1948] AC 291 at 309, 314, [1948] 1 All ER 1 at 5, 9-10, HL; Artillery Mansions Ltd v Macartney [1949] 1 KB 164, [1948] 2 All ER 875, CA.

7 Rent Act 1977 s 7(2). For a tenancy to have been a furnished tenancy the same test as to the amount of rent which is fairly attributable to the use of furniture applied: see s 152(1); and PARAS 870, 872-873 post.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/F. HOUSES LET WITH BOARD OR ATTENDANCE/870. Furnished tenancies.

870. Furnished tenancies.

Until 14 August 1974<sup>1</sup> tenancies under which a dwelling was bona fide let at a rent which included payments in respect of the use of furniture were excluded from protection<sup>2</sup>. It remains important to be able to distinguish between furnished<sup>3</sup> and unfurnished tenancies:

- 1724 (1) for the purposes of deciding whether a tenancy was controlled or regulated<sup>4</sup>; and 1725 (2) in connection with the exclusion from protection of tenancies granted before 14 August 1974 where there is a resident landlord<sup>5</sup>.

As the tests as to good faith and the amount of attributable rent are the same in relation to use of furniture and to board and attendance<sup>6</sup>, it is convenient to treat furnished tenancies together with board and attendance provided that it is borne in mind that furnished tenancies are no longer excluded from protection.

1 The date of commencement of the Rent Act 1974: see s 17(5) (repealed).

2 See the Rent Act 1968 s 2(1)(b) (repealed), which was amended by the Rent Act 1974 s 1(4)(a) so as to delete the words 'or use of furniture'.

3 'Furnished tenancy' means a tenancy under which the dwelling house concerned is bona fide let at a rent which includes payments in respect of furniture and in respect of which the amount of rent which is fairly attributable to the use of furniture, having regard to the value of that use to the tenant, forms a substantial part of the whole rent: see the Rent Act 1977 s 152(1); and PARA 849 note 12 ante. For the meaning of 'furniture' see PARA 872 post.

4 A furnished tenancy could not be controlled: see ibid s 17(7)(c) (repealed); and PARA 849 ante. As to regulated tenancies see PARA 854 ante.

5 See PARA 875 post.

6 Cf the Rent Act 1977 s 7 (see PARA 869 ante) and s 152(1) (see note 3 supra). As to the tests see PARAS 871-873 post.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/F. HOUSES LET WITH BOARD OR ATTENDANCE/871. Meaning of 'board' and 'attendance'.

871. Meaning of 'board' and 'attendance'.

'Board' includes any board provided and is not confined to full board, but it may be that the items alleged to constitute board are so small that they will be ignored, for example, an early morning cup of tea<sup>1</sup>.

'Attendance' means service personal to the tenant<sup>2</sup> provided by the landlord in accordance with the contract for the use of the premises<sup>3</sup>. Services which are not for the tenant's exclusive benefit, such as the heating of the communal water supply of a block of flats, or the cleaning of the common passages and hallways, cannot amount to attendance<sup>4</sup>. Where, however, the services, although of the same nature as those supplied to other tenants, have some personal element, they will amount to attendance, as, for example, the carrying of fuel to an individual flat<sup>5</sup> or the taking away of dirty linen and supply linen of clean linen<sup>6</sup>.

Where attendance is given by an employee of the landlord, in order to value that service the employee's wages must be apportioned among the tenants to whom the service is given, after the deduction of any part of the wages which is not paid in respect of attendance<sup>7</sup>.

1 See Wilkes v Goodwin [1923] 2 KB 86 at 110, CA (where the Oxford English Dictionary definition of 'board' was cited, namely 'daily meals provided in a boarding house according to stipulation; the supply of daily provisions'). The bona fide provision by the landlord of a daily continental breakfast with bread rolls, butter and jam or marmalade and unlimited tea or coffee with sugar and milk is more than de minimis and constitutes 'board': Otter v Norman [1989] AC 129, [1988] 2 All ER 897, HL.

872. Meaning of 'furniture'.

'Furniture' means articles which are commonly and currently regarded as furniture, irrespective of how they may be described in a contract of tenancy<sup>1</sup>. Furniture provided in the hall or common staircases of a block of flats was not to be considered in deciding whether any individual flat was furnished or not<sup>2</sup>.

Where the letting included furniture which the landlord had no right to remove, there was a presumption that the rent included some element attributable to that furniture and that the furniture was of some value to the tenant<sup>3</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/F. HOUSES LET WITH BOARD OR ATTENDANCE/873. Meaning of 'substantial portion of whole rent'.

873. Meaning of 'substantial portion of whole rent'.

In estimating whether a substantial portion of the whole rent is fairly attributable to furniture or attendance<sup>1</sup>, the test is prima facie the position existing when the lease was originally made<sup>2</sup>. The burden of showing that the amount is substantial rests upon the landlord<sup>3</sup>. Although there is no fixed percentage which can be taken as a rule as to what constitutes a substantial proportion, something considerable and solid is required<sup>4</sup>.

Where the lease makes a genuine pre-estimate of the value of the furniture or the value of the attendance, this will normally be accepted by the courts<sup>5</sup>.

874. Student and holiday lettings.

- 1726 (1) granted to a person who is pursuing, or intends to pursue, a course of study provided by a specified<sup>2</sup> educational institution<sup>3</sup> and so granted either by that institution or by another specified institution or body of persons; or 1727 (2) the purpose of which is to confer on the tenant the right to occupy the dwelling house for a holiday<sup>4</sup>;

is not a protected tenancy<sup>5</sup>. These provisions are now of little practical effect as such tenancies are, by their nature, normally granted for short periods of time only and no such tenancy granted since 15 January 1989 is in any case capable of being a protected tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 818 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'specified' means specified, or of a class specified, for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 8 by regulations made by statutory instrument by the Secretary of State (see PARA 27 note 3 ante) or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister (see PARA 27 note 4 ante): see s 8(2). A statutory instrument containing any such regulations is subject, if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 8(3). In exercise of the power so conferred, and prior to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales, the Secretary of State made the Assured and Protected Tenancies (Lettings to Students) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1967, which came into force on 1 September 1998: reg 1.

3 The following institutions are specified as educational institutions for these purposes and for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 8 (see PARA 1033 post): (1) any university or university college and any constituent college, school or hall or other institution of a university; (2) any other institution which provides further education or higher education or both and which is publicly funded; (3) the David Game Tutorial College, London: Assured and Protected Tenancies (Lettings to Students) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1967, regs 2, 3. For these purposes, 'further education' has the meaning assigned to it by the Education Act 1996 s 2(3), (5); 'higher education' means education provided by means of a course of any description mentioned in the Education Reform Act 1988 s 120(1), Sch 6; 'publicly funded' means that the relevant institution is (a) provided or assisted by a local education authority; (b) in receipt of grant under regulations made under the Education Act 1996 s 485; (c) within the higher education sector within the meaning of the Further and Higher Education Act 1992 s 91(5), other than a university; or (d) within the further education sector within the meaning of s 91(3); and 'assisted' has the same meaning as in the Education Act 1996 s 579(5), (6): Assured and Protected Tenancies (Lettings to Students) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1967, reg 2.

4 It seems, however, that a tenancy of a house which a tenant chose to use as a holiday house over a period was protected but that the tenant would not have become a statutory tenant when the contractual period ended: Walker v Ogilvy (1974) 28 P & CR 288, CA.

5 Rent Act 1977 ss 8(1), 9. Similarly, a right to occupy for a holiday could not have been a restricted contract: see the Rent Act 1977 s 19(7) (repealed with savings) and PARAS 986-987 post. Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 9; and PARA 1034 post. For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

With regard to student lettings cf the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 14, which provides a landlord who lets to students with a mandatory ground for possession against persons to whom the premises are let during vacations: see PARA 965 post. The following bodies of persons, whether unincorporated or bodies corporate, are specified as bodies for the purposes of head (1) in the text and for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 8: (1) the governing body of any educational institution specified in the Assured and Protected Tenancies (Lettings to Students) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/1967, reg 3 (see note 3 supra); (2) the body, other than a local education authority, providing any such educational institution; and (3) a body listed in Sch 1, ie International Students House and the London Goodenough Trust for Overseas Graduates: reg 4, Sch 1. Moreover, a letting to an educational institution the terms of which contemplate the subletting to students of separate bed-sitting rooms in the building was not protected because the building was not let as a separate dwelling: St Catherine's College v Dorling [1979] 3 All ER 250, [1978] 1 WLR 66, CA, following Harford Investments v Lambert [1976] Ch 39, [1974] 1 All ER 131, CA. See also PARA 823 ante.

With regard to holiday lettings, if the tenancy agreement states the purpose of the tenancy, the burden is on the tenant to prove that statement a sham: Buchmann v May [1978] 2 All ER 993, CA (explained in R v Rent Officer for London Borough of Camden, ex p Plant (1980) 7 HLR 15, [1981] 1 EGLR 73); McHale v Daneham (1979) 249 Estates Gazette 969. As to what constitutes a 'sham' see Snook v London and West Riding Investments Ltd [1967] 2 QB 786 at 802, [1967] 1 All ER 518 at 528, CA, per Diplock LJ. Out of season lettings may be protected, but there is a mandatory ground for possession available to landlords who have let to holiday makers: see the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 13; and PARA 965 post.

6 See PARA 1011 post.

H. RESIDENT LANDLORDS

875. The resident landlord exemption.

A tenancy of a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> granted on or after 14 August 1974<sup>2</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup> at any time if:

- 1728 (1) the dwelling house forms part only of a building<sup>4</sup> which is not a purpose-built block of flats<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1729 (2) the tenancy was granted by a person<sup>6</sup> who, at the time when he granted it, occupied as his residence<sup>7</sup> another dwelling house which also forms part of that building<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1730 (3) at all times<sup>9</sup> since the tenancy was granted the interest of the landlord<sup>10</sup> under the tenancy has belonged to a person who, at the time he owned that interest occupied as his residence another dwelling house which also formed part of the building<sup>11</sup>.

Tenancies of parts of flats in purpose-built blocks granted on or after 28 November 1980<sup>12</sup> are also excluded from being protected tenancies provided that the landlord was at the date of grant and continued to be resident in another part of the flat<sup>13</sup>.

The exemption does not apply to a tenancy of a dwelling house which forms part of a building if the tenancy is granted to a person who, immediately before it was granted, was a protected or statutory tenant<sup>14</sup> of that dwelling house or of any other dwelling house in that building<sup>15</sup>.

1 A dwelling house let under a protected tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 may be a house or part of a house: see s 1; and PARA 818 ante. For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 818 note 1 ante.

2 I.e. the commencement date of the Rent Act 1974 which introduced the resident landlord exemption at the same time as making furnished tenancies protected. As to tenancies granted before 14 August 1974 see PARA 879 post.

3 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

4 'Building' is not defined in the Rent Act 1977 and its meaning is a question of fact; the word is to be construed in the light of the mischief at which the resident landlord exemption is aimed, namely the social embarrassment arising from a close proximity of landlord and tenant which the landlord had accepted in the belief that he could bring it to an end at any time allowed by the contract of tenancy: Bardrick v Haycock (1976) 31 P & CR 420 at 424, CA, per Scarman LJ. Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 10; and PARA 1035 post. For examples of cases where the tenant's dwelling house has been held to form part of the same building as is occupied by the landlord see Griffiths v English (1981) 2 HLR 126, [1982] 1 EGLR 86, CA; Wolff v Waddington (1989) 22 HLR 72, [1989] 2 EGLR 108, CA; Lewis-Graham v Conacher (1991) 24 HLR 132, [1992] 1 EGLR 111, CA.

5 Rent Act 1977 s 12(1)(a) (s 12(1)(a)-(c) substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 65(1)). See also text and notes 12-13 infra. For these purposes, a building is a purpose-built block of flats if as constructed it contained, and it contains, two or more flats; and for this purpose 'flat' means a dwelling house which (1) forms part only of a building; and (2) is separated horizontally from another dwelling house which forms part of the same building: Rent Act 1977 s 12(4), Sch 2 para 4. It is necessary to consider the nature of the building as it was originally designed and built; if it was constructed as a single private dwelling house, it does not become a purpose-built block of flats by being converted into several flats: Barnes v Gorsuch (1982) 43 P & CR 294, 263 Estates Gazette 253, CA. As to 'separated horizontally' cf the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 2(1); Peck v Anicar Properties Ltd [1971] 1 All ER 517, (1970) 21 P & CR 919, CA; and PARA 1390 post.

6 Where the tenancy is granted by joint landlords, residence by only one of them is sufficient: Cooper v Tait (1984) 48 P & CR 460, 271 Estates Gazette 105, CA.

7 For these purposes, a person is treated as occupying a dwelling house as his residence if, so far as the nature of the case allows, he fulfils the same conditions as, by virtue of the Rent Act 1977 s 2(3) (see PARA 831 ante), are required to be fulfilled by a statutory tenant of a dwelling house: Sch 2 para 5. The landlord must accordingly occupy as his residence another dwelling house which also forms part of the building. As to what constitutes sufficient occupation see PARAS 833-836 ante; and Lyons v Caffery (1982) 5 HLR 63, [1983] 1 EGLR 102, CA; Jackson v Pekic (1989) 22 HLR 9, [1989] 2 EGLR 104, CA; Wolff v Waddington (1989) 22 HLR 72, [1989] 2 EGLR 108, CA; Palmer v McNamara (1990) 23 HLR 168, [1991] 1 EGLR 121, CA. Where a landlord intends to occupy new premises with a tenant and the tenant moves into those premises shortly before the landlord, the landlord still 'occupies' for these purposes: see Barnett v O'Sullivan [1994] 1 WLR 1667, [1995] 1 EGLR 93, CA.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 12(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). See also text and notes 12-13 infra.

9 This requirement is subject to ibid Sch 2 para 1 (as amended), which enables certain periods when a landlord is not resident to be disregarded: see PARA 876 post.

10 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

11 Rent Act 1977 s 12(1)(c) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). See also text and notes 12-13 infra. As to the periods of non-residence to be disregarded for this purpose see PARA 876 post.

12 As to the date of commencement of the Housing Act 1980 s 65: see s 153(4); the Housing Act 1980 (Commencement No 5) Order 1980, SI 1980/1706.

13 See the Rent Act 1977 s 12(1) (as amended: see note 5 supra).

14 For the meaning of 'statutory tenant' see PARA 831 ante.

15 Rent Act 1977 s 12(2) (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 69(4) with effect from 28 November 1980). The Rent Act 1977 s 12(2) (as so substituted) re-enacts the former s 12(2)(a). Before 28 November 1980, the resident landlord exemption also did not apply if the tenancy was for a term of years certain and was granted to a person who, immediately before it was granted, was the tenant under an earlier tenancy of any dwelling house in the same building which was not protected by reason of the resident landlord exemption: see s 12(2)(b) (as originally enacted). Where, immediately before 28 November 1980, a tenancy was by virtue of s 12(2)(b) a protected tenancy and not a restricted contract (see PARA 986 post), the Rent Act 1977 continues to apply in relation to that tenancy as if the Housing Act 1980 s 69(4) had not been enacted: s 152(2), Sch 25 para 67. The purpose of the Rent Act 1977 s 12(2)(b) (as originally enacted) was to prevent resident landlords depriving their tenants of the limited security of tenure then available to periodic tenants under restricted contracts (see PARAS 1002-1007 post) by granting a succession of terms certain. Section 12(2) (as originally enacted) did not apply to furnished tenancies already existing on 14 August 1974 to which the resident landlord exemption applied by virtue of s 155(3), Sch 24 para 6(1): see Sch 24 para 6(2); and PARA 879 post.

A fixed period of less than a year is a term of years certain: Re Land and Premises at Liss, Hants [1971] Ch 986, [1971] 3 All ER 380 (decided under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 38 (as amended): see PARAS 709-710 ante). For the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 12(2) as originally enacted, a tenancy was to be treated as being for a term of years certain notwithstanding that it was liable to determination by re-entry or on the happening of any event other than the giving of notice by the landlord to determine the term: s 12(3) (as originally enacted).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(2) PROTECTED AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Exceptions and Special Cases/H. RESIDENT LANDLORDS/876. Periods of non-residence to be disregarded.

876. Periods of non-residence to be disregarded.

In determining whether the requirement that the landlord should be resident in the same building constantly since the date of grant of the tenancy<sup>1</sup> is fulfilled, the following periods are to be disregarded:

1731 (1) any period of not more than 28 days beginning with the date on which the landlord's interest under the tenancy becomes vested at law and in equity in an individual who, during that period, does not occupy as his residence another dwelling house which forms part of the building or, as the case may be, flat concerned<sup>2</sup>;

1732 (2) if, within a period falling within head (1) above, the individual concerned notifies the tenant<sup>3</sup> in writing of his intention to occupy as his residence another dwelling house in the building or, as the case may be, flat concerned, the period beginning with the date on which the interest of the landlord under the tenancy becomes vested as mentioned in head (1) above and ending:

5. (a) at the expiry of a period of six months beginning on that date; or

6. (b) on the date on which that interest ceases to be so vested; or

7. (c) on the date on which the landlord's interest again belongs to a person who, at the time he owns that interest, occupies as his residence another dwelling house forming part of the building or flat concerned,

1733 whichever is the earlier<sup>4</sup>; and

1734 (3) any period of not more than two years beginning with the date on which the landlord's interest under the tenancy becomes, and during which it remains, vested in trustees as such<sup>5</sup> or in the Probate Judge or the Public Trustee<sup>6</sup>.

Throughout any period which falls to be so disregarded, no order may be made for possession of the dwelling house other than an order which might be made if the tenancy were or, as the case may be, had been a regulated tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

The effect of the determination of the contractual term during a period of disregard is that the tenant becomes a person holding over without any right to do so against whom an order for possession cannot, temporarily and by virtue of statute, be made; and at the end of the period he does not become a statutory tenant and may be evicted<sup>8</sup>.

Subject to the Housing Act 1980 s 65(7) (see PARA 877 note 9 post), the amendments made to the Rent Act 1977 Sch 2 by the Housing Act 1980 s 65(2)-(5) apply to tenancies granted before as well as those granted after 28 November 1980: s 65(6). ### 877. Deemed fulfilment of landlord's residence condition.

During any period when:

- 1735 (1) the interest of the landlord<sup>1</sup> under the tenancy<sup>2</sup> is vested in trustees as such; and
- 1736 (2) that interest is held on trust for any person<sup>3</sup> who occupies as his residence a dwelling house which forms part of the building or, as the case may be, flat in question, the landlord's residence requirement<sup>4</sup> is deemed to be fulfilled and, accordingly, no part of that period is to be disregarded<sup>5</sup>.

If the interest of the landlord under the tenancy becomes vested in the personal representatives (acting in that capacity)<sup>6</sup> of a person who dies on or after 28 November 1980<sup>7</sup>, the residence requirement<sup>8</sup> is deemed to be fulfilled for any period, beginning with the date on which the interest becomes vested in the personal representatives and not exceeding two years, during which the landlord's interest remains so vested<sup>9</sup>.

2 I.e. the tenancy referred to in the Rent Act 1977 s 12(1) (as amended): see PARA 875 ante. For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 818 note 1 ante.

3 Occupation by one of several beneficiaries will probably suffice: see Cooper v Tait (1984) 48 P & CR 460, CA.

4 I.e. the requirement contained in the Rent Act 1977 s 12(1)(c) (as substituted): see PARA 875 ante.

5 Ibid s 12(4), Sch 2 para 2 (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 65(2), (4); the Trusts of Land and Appointment of Trustees Act 1996 s 25(2), Sch 4). This applies to tenancies granted before as well as after 28 November 1980: see PARA 876 note 2 ante. As to the periods which are to be disregarded see generally para 876 ante.

6 If a personal representative takes up occupation of the house in the course of the period of disregard, it does not matter that he has not executed a vesting assent in his own favour: Beebe v Mason [1980] 1 EGLR 81, (1980) 254 Estates Gazette 987, CA. Despite the warning in the judgments that the decision was limited to a case of a solvent administered estate where the personal representative was absolutely beneficially entitled to the property, the principle would seem to apply wherever the owner of the legal estate (eg a trustee) goes into occupation in time.

7 I.e. the date of commencement of the Housing Act 1980 s 65: see PARA 875 note 12 ante.

8 See note 4 supra.

9 Rent Act 1977 Sch 2 para 2A(1), (2) (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 65(5)). See also PARA 876 note 2 ante. In any case where the landlord's interest under a tenancy vested in the personal representatives (acting in that capacity) of a person who died before 28 November 1980, the Rent Act 1977 Sch 2 (now as amended) applies as if Sch 2 para 2A had not been added and Sch 2 para 1(c)(i) had not been repealed: Housing Act 1980 s 65(7). Section 65 does, however, have some retrospective effect: see Williams v Mate (1983) 46 P & CR 43, CA; Caldwell v McAteer (1983) 14 HLR 38, 269 Estates Gazette 1039, CA. The effect of the Rent Act 1977 Sch 2 para 1(c)(i) (repealed) was the same as that of Sch 2 para 2A (as so added) but there was a restriction on the making of orders for possession during the period in question (ie Sch 2 para 3 applied: see PARA 876 ante).

878. Exemption ceasing to apply.

If and so long as a tenancy was precluded from being a protected tenancy by virtue only of the resident landlord exemption<sup>1</sup>, it was to be treated as a restricted contract<sup>2</sup> notwithstanding that the rent might not include payment for the use of furniture or for services<sup>3</sup>, and so might be referred to a rent tribunal for the registration of a reasonable rent<sup>4</sup>. If a rent was registered by a rent tribunal for such a tenancy and subsequently the tenancy became a protected tenancy, the amount so registered was deemed to be registered under Part IV of the Rent Act 1977<sup>5</sup> as from the day the tenancy became protected<sup>6</sup>. If, before the date on which such a tenancy became protected, a notice to quit had been served and the period at the end of which it was to take effect had been extended<sup>7</sup> and that period had not expired, the notice was to take effect on the day following that on which the tenancy became protected and, accordingly, the protected tenancy then became a statutory tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

879. Tenancies granted before 14 August 1974.

The Rent Act 1977 applies, if:

- 1737 (1) before 14 August 1974<sup>1</sup> a dwelling was subject to a furnished tenancy which was not protected<sup>2</sup>; and
- 1738 (2) the dwelling forms part only of a building and that building is not a purpose-built block of flats<sup>3</sup>; and
- 1739 (3) on that date the lessor's interest under the tenancy belonged to a person who occupied as his residence another dwelling which also formed part of that building, or was vested in trustees as such and was or, if it was held on trust for sale, the proceeds of its sale were, held on trust for a person who occupied as his residence another dwelling which also formed part of that building; and
- 1740 (4) the tenancy would otherwise<sup>4</sup> have become a protected furnished tenancy, as if the tenancy had been granted on 14 August 1974 and as if the grantor was resident in the building<sup>5</sup> at the date of the grant<sup>6</sup>. In other words, a landlord who resided in another part of the building in question on 14 August 1974 may rely upon the residence exemption in the case of a pre-existing tenancy if, but only if, that tenancy was previously not protected because the dwelling house was bona fide let at a rent which included payments in respect of the use of furniture which formed a substantial part of the whole rent<sup>7</sup>.

If on 14 August 1974 the interest of the lessor was vested in the personal representatives of a deceased person acting in that capacity or in the Probate Judge<sup>8</sup> or in trustees as such, then, if the deceased immediately before his death or, as the case may be, the settlor immediately before the creation of the trust occupied as his residence another part of the building, the above provisions apply as if the condition set out in head (3) above were fulfilled<sup>9</sup>, and the period of up to 12 months' non-residence which falls to be disregarded<sup>10</sup> is calculated from 14 August 1974 instead of the date of vesting<sup>11</sup>.

I. BUSINESS AND LICENSED PREMISES

880. Business premises.

Tenancies of business premises may be excluded from the protection of the Rent Act 1977 for several separate reasons. Firstly, the premises themselves may not be a dwelling house<sup>1</sup>. Secondly, the premises may not as a matter of construction of the tenancy agreement or in all the circumstances be let as a dwelling<sup>2</sup>. In both of those cases the tenancy is not a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup>. Thirdly, if the tenancy remains contractual, the tenant may occupy the let property or part of it for the purposes of a business carried on by him or for those and other purposes, in which case the tenancy falls within the legislation relating to business tenancies<sup>4</sup> and cannot be a protected regulated tenancy<sup>5</sup>. If, however, the tenant does not commence business use until after the tenancy has become a statutory tenancy, the tenancy will remain a statutory tenancy<sup>6</sup> so that the Rent Act 1977 will still apply provided that the tenant continues to live in the premises<sup>7</sup>.

The fact that part of the let premises comprised in a dwelling house was used as a shop or office or for business, trade or professional purposes did not prevent the dwelling house from being let on or subject to a controlled tenancy<sup>8</sup>. If a tenancy was a controlled tenancy or would have been such a tenancy if it were not a tenancy at a low rent<sup>9</sup>, the legislation relating to business premises did not apply<sup>10</sup>.

3 See the Rent Act 1977 s 1; and PARA 818 ante.

5 See the Rent Act 1977 s 24(3); and PARA 822 note 2 ante. Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 4; and PARA 1029 post.

6 This result follows from the method adopted by the Rent Act 1977 s 24(3) to exclude business tenancies, which is to exclude only those which are 'a tenancy to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended) applies'; those provisions apply only to tenancies (ie terms of years) and not to the mere status of irremovability of a statutory tenant.

7 It may be that, if living in the premises becomes merely a subsidiary purpose of the tenant's occupation of them, the same result will follow.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 24(1) (repealed). Section 24(1) (repealed) was subject to s 11 (now as amended) (licensed premises: see PARA 881 post): s 24(1) (repealed). As to the conversion of controlled tenancies on 28 November 1980 see PARA 848 ante. Upon such conversion tenancies of 'mixed premises' (ie containing residential and business premises) were deemed to be tenancies continued by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended); see the Housing Act 1980 s 64(2); and PARA 848 note 4 ante. For the meaning of 'controlled tenancy' see PARA 849 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent' see PARA 861 ante.

10 Rent Act 1977 s 24(2) (repealed). Such tenancies subsisting on 28 November 1980 are treated as continuing by virtue of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 after the expiry of a term of years certain: see PARA 848 ante.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house which consists of or comprises premises which, by virtue of a premises licence under the Licensing Act 2003, may be used for the supply of alcohol<sup>2</sup> for consumption on<sup>3</sup> the premises is not a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup>, nor can such a dwelling house be the subject of a statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

If a tenancy of an off-licence was controlled, acts jeopardising the licence gave the landlord grounds for possession: see the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 7 (repealed).

J. PARSONAGE HOUSES

882. Parsonage houses.

Where a dwelling house belongs to an ecclesiastical benefice<sup>1</sup> for the occupation of the incumbent, the premises are outside the Rent Acts. There is no statutory provision giving effect to this exemption but it has been held that owing to the special legislation to which such dwellings are subject the Rent Acts must be excluded as they conflict with the special legislation<sup>2</sup>.

Once it has been decided that a parsonage house is outside the Rent Acts, it is immaterial for what purpose possession is sought. Thus, even if the incumbent does not require it for his own occupation but intends to relet it at a higher rental, this will not prevent him from regaining possession<sup>3</sup>. It may be, however, that the dwelling for which the title of parsonage house is claimed is not one which is primarily and continuously used as a residence of the incumbent, as, for example, where a diocesan trust has a house bequeathed to it with a term that the trustees may allow the curate to live there or not in their unfettered discretion<sup>4</sup>. In such cases the exemption will not apply. The exemption extends not only to the residence but also to the buildings, gardens, orchards or appurtenances necessary for the convenient occupation of the parsonage house<sup>5</sup>. Whether a building is necessary for such occupation is a question of fact in each case<sup>6</sup>.

1 This only applies to the Church of England (Forbes v Partick Congregational Church 1949 64 Sh Ct Rep 184); but, where a house is held for the purpose of being available for occupation by a minister of religion, of whatever denomination, as a residence and certain other conditions are also satisfied, there is a mandatory ground for possession (see the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 15; and PARA 966 post).

K. CROWN PROPERTY

883. Crown property.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> is not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> at any time when the interest of the landlord<sup>3</sup> under the tenancy belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown<sup>4</sup> or to a government department<sup>5</sup> or is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department<sup>6</sup>. A person is not at any time a statutory tenant<sup>7</sup> of a dwelling house if the interest of his immediate landlord would at that time so belong or be so held<sup>8</sup>. An interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown does not, however, prevent a tenancy from being a protected tenancy or a person from being a statutory tenant if the interest is under the management of the Crown Estate Commissioners<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions, the Rent Act 1977 applies in relation to premises in which there subsists, or at any material time subsisted, a Crown interest<sup>10</sup> as it applies in relation to premises in which no such interest subsists or ever subsisted<sup>11</sup>. Accordingly, a subtenancy may be protected even though the head landlord is the Crown, and the tenancy itself may become protected if the reversion is transferred by the Crown. The immunity of Crown property extends to property held for the public purposes of the country by a servant or agent of the Crown<sup>12</sup>.

- 1741 (1) the council of a county or county borough<sup>6</sup>;
- 1742 (2) the council of a district<sup>7</sup> or, in so far as the Rent Act 1977 applies to the Isles of Scilly<sup>8</sup>, the Council of the Isles of Scilly;
- 1743 (3) the Broads Authority<sup>9</sup>;
- 1744 (4) a National Park authority<sup>10</sup>;
- 1745 (5) the council of a London borough or the Common Council of the City of London<sup>11</sup>;

- 1746 (6) a police authority<sup>12</sup>;
- 1747 (7) a joint authority established by Part IV of the Local Government Act 1985<sup>13</sup>;
- 1748 (8) the London Fire and Emergency Planning Authority<sup>14</sup>;
- 1749 (9) the Commission for the New Towns<sup>15</sup>;
- 1750 (10) a development corporation established by an order made, or having effect as if made, under the New Towns Act 1981<sup>16</sup>;
- 1751 (11) an urban development corporation<sup>17</sup>; or
- 1752 (12) a housing action trust<sup>18</sup>;

nor is a person at any time a statutory tenant<sup>19</sup> of a dwelling house if the interest of his immediate landlord would belong at that time to any of those bodies<sup>20</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 818 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3 If, therefore, the immediate reversion upon a particular protected tenancy is acquired or disposed of by an exempt body, the tenancy may respectively cease to be or become a protected tenancy. If premises subject to a statutory tenancy (see PARA 831 ante) are acquired by an exempt body, the statutory tenant becomes a trespasser. It seems that a tenancy becoming protected upon disposal by an exempt body before 15 January 1989 was always regulated: see the Rent Act 1977 s 18(1) (as amended); and PARA 854 ante. As to disposal after that date see PARA 1015 post. Cf s 92(1) (as amended) in relation to housing associations: see PARA 886 post.

4 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

5 The exemption applies only to a tenancy held directly from an exempt body. Subtenants, although not protected against the exempt body when the head tenancy comes to an end, are not deprived of protection against their immediate landlord merely because the head landlord is an exempt body.

There is no requirement that the property of the exempt body is to be in any particular area or held for any particular purpose. The only fetters on the powers of such bodies would appear to be (1) the existence of a separate code of protection for secure tenants of certain public bodies (see PARA 889 post); (2) that local authorities are required to charge 'reasonable' rents (see the Housing Act 1985 s 24(1); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 255); and (3) that such bodies may not act ultra vires (Cannock Chase District Council v Kelly [1978] 1 All ER 152, [1978] 1 WLR 1, CA; Associated Provincial Picture House Ltd v Wednesbury Corp'n [1948] 1 KB 223, [1947] 2 All ER 680, CA).

885. Housing associations.

- 1753 (1) is a registered social landlord<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1754 (2) is a co-operative housing association<sup>8</sup>;

nor is a person at any time a statutory tenant<sup>9</sup> of a dwelling house if the interest of his immediate landlord would belong at that time to such a housing association<sup>10</sup>.

Although a housing association tenancy may not be protected, the rents of houses let under such tenancies are registrable in the same way as rents under regulated tenancies and there are limits on the rent which is recoverable from the tenant<sup>11</sup>.

Conversion of housing association tenancies into regulated tenancies.

886. Conversion of housing association tenancies into regulated tenancies.

If at any time a tenancy<sup>1</sup> becomes a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> because the landlord housing association<sup>3</sup> ceases to satisfy the conditions for exemption<sup>4</sup>, the tenancy is a regulated tenancy<sup>5</sup> and the housing association which is the landlord<sup>6</sup> under the tenancy must give notice in writing to the tenant<sup>7</sup> informing him that his tenancy is no longer excluded from protection<sup>8</sup>. If the housing association fails, without reasonable excuse, to give such notice within the period of 21 days beginning on the day on which the tenancy becomes protected, the association is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>9</sup>. Where such an offence is committed by a body corporate and is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager or secretary or any similar officer of that body or any person purporting to act in that capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>10</sup>.

If a tenancy under which the landlord's interest belonged to a housing association came to an end before 1 April 1975 and was, when it came to an end, excluded from protection<sup>11</sup> but would have been a protected tenancy if it had come to an end on that date<sup>12</sup>, certain persons who duly retained possession<sup>13</sup> on that date are deemed to have done so as to statutory tenants<sup>14</sup>. If the tenant under the determined tenancy duly retained possession, he is deemed to have done so as a statutory tenant on the termination of a protected tenancy under which he was the tenant<sup>15</sup>. If the tenant or any lawful subtenant of the whole or part of the house had died and, if the deceased had been a protected or statutory tenant<sup>16</sup>, the person duly retaining possession would have been entitled to a statutory tenancy as a first or second successor<sup>17</sup>, he is deemed to have retained possession as the statutory tenant under a regulated tenancy and as a first or second successor, as the case may be<sup>18</sup>. The High Court or the county court may vary all or any of the terms of a statutory tenancy so imposed in any way appearing to the court to be just and equitable<sup>19</sup>. Subject thereto, the statutory tenant holds upon the terms of the original housing association letting<sup>20</sup>.

1755 (1) is required by the terms of its constituent instrument to use the whole of its funds, including any surplus which may arise from its operations, for the purpose of providing housing accommodation; or

1756 (2) is required by the terms of its constituent instrument to devote the whole, or substantially the whole, of its funds to charitable purposes and in fact uses the whole, or substantially the whole, of its funds for the purpose of providing housing accommodation<sup>10</sup>.

As with housing association tenancies, however, the rent under tenancies excluded from protection by these provisions is registrable and the rent recoverable from the tenant is limited<sup>11</sup>.

Although a tenancy is incapable of being a protected tenancy at any time when the landlord's interest belongs to a local authority or certain other public bodies<sup>1</sup>, certain housing associations<sup>2</sup>, the Housing Corporation or a housing trust<sup>3</sup> or a housing co-operative<sup>4</sup>, in those circumstances the tenancy, if granted before 15 January 1989<sup>5</sup>, will generally be a secure tenancy<sup>6</sup> provided that the tenant or one of the tenants occupies the dwelling house as his only or principal home<sup>7</sup>. Housing associations, the Housing Corporation and housing trusts cannot generally grant secure tenancies after that date although other public bodies may continue to do so<sup>8</sup>.

Secure tenants enjoy security of tenure under a code separate from but in some respects similar to that applicable to protected tenants<sup>9</sup>, and a secure tenancy is capable of one statutory succession on death<sup>10</sup>. Secure tenants may also have the right to buy the dwelling house at a discount<sup>11</sup>.

Exemption from protection of old-style assured tenancies.

M. OLD-STYLE ASSURED TENANCIES

890. Exemption from protection of old-style assured tenancies.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> was not a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> at any time when it was an assured tenancy within the meaning of the Housing Act 1980<sup>3</sup>. Under the Housing Act 1988, old-style assured tenancies were, subject to certain transitional provisions<sup>4</sup>, converted into assured tenancies for the purposes of that Act<sup>5</sup> and no new 1980 Act tenancies may now be created<sup>6</sup>. The repealed provisions of the 1980 Act<sup>7</sup> may, however, still be relevant in some circumstances in order to ascertain the status of a tenancy created before 15 January 1989<sup>8</sup>.

Instead of enacting new detailed statutory provisions to govern the concept of the assured tenancy, the 1980 Act applied Part II of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>9</sup> with certain alterations necessitated by the fact that the subject matter of the tenancy was residential premises, as opposed to business premises which would ordinarily be the case where Part II of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 was applied<sup>10</sup>.

A tenancy under which a dwelling house<sup>11</sup> was let as a separate dwelling<sup>12</sup> and which otherwise would have been either a protected tenancy or a housing association tenancy<sup>13</sup> was instead an assured tenancy under the 1980 Act if the interest of the landlord had, since the creation of the tenancy, belonged to an approved body<sup>14</sup> and either set of statutory conditions was fulfilled<sup>15</sup>. The first set of statutory conditions was that:

- 1757 (1) the dwelling house was, or formed part of, a building which was erected, and on which construction work first began, on or after 8 August 1980<sup>16</sup>; and 1758 (2) before the tenant first occupied the dwelling house under the tenancy, no part of it had been occupied by any person as his residence except under an assured tenancy<sup>17</sup>.

The second set of statutory conditions was that:

- 1759 (a) qualifying works<sup>18</sup> had been carried out<sup>19</sup>;
 1760 (b) the dwelling house was fit for human habitation<sup>20</sup> at the relevant date<sup>21</sup>; and 1761 (c) since the qualifying works were carried out, no part of the dwelling house had been occupied by any person as his residence except under an assured tenancy, and, in the case of the first relevant tenancy<sup>22</sup>, that the person or persons to whom the tenancy was granted was not, or did not include, a person who was a secure occupier<sup>23</sup> of the dwelling house before the works were carried out<sup>24</sup>.

If all the conditions for the grant of an assured tenancy were satisfied but the approved landlord did not wish the tenancy to be an assured tenancy, the landlord could prevent its being one only by giving to the tenant before the grant of the tenancy a valid notice<sup>25</sup> in the prescribed form<sup>26</sup> stating that the tenancy was instead to be a protected tenancy or a housing association tenancy and not an assured tenancy<sup>27</sup>. For there to be an assured tenancy the rateable value of the premises had to be within the relevant limits<sup>28</sup> applying under the Rent Act 1977<sup>29</sup>.

The ability to contract out of the protection of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 which the Housing Act 1980 originally contemplated<sup>30</sup> was subsequently removed<sup>31</sup>.

9 Ie the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended): see PARA 701 et seq ante.

10 As to the protection enjoyed by business tenants see PARA 701 et seq ante. The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt II (as amended) and Pt IV ss 51-70 (as amended) applied to assured tenancies with modifications: see the Housing Act 1980 s 58, Sch 5 (amended by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 13(5); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). Thus the tenancy would have continued indefinitely unless determined in accordance with the 1954 Act, and the tenant might then have applied to the court for an order for the grant by the landlord of a new assured tenancy. Such a new tenancy was at a full market rent, save that that rent was to be assessed subject to the like 'disregards' as applied in respect of business tenancies. During the assured tenancy the tenant enjoyed no greater security of occupation than a business tenant or a tenant who was unprotected by any statute, and after the forfeiture of an assured tenancy, the tenant would not have become a statutory tenant of the premises, and the landlord did not have to establish a ground under the Rent Act 1977 or any other ground in order to obtain an order for possession. The Protection from Eviction Act 1977 would, however, have applied: see PARAS 215, 653 ante; and CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 608-609.

In relation to an assured tenancy the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 was modified in its application so that 'the holding' meant the property comprised in the tenancy: Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 3 (as so repealed). It follows that, provided that the dwelling house was 'let as a separate dwelling', the tenant remained entitled to renew the tenancy as to the whole of the demised premises, notwithstanding that the tenant might have sublet part or might not have been in occupation of the whole of the premises when the current assured tenancy came to an end. As property remained 'comprised in a tenancy' even though it was sublet, on a literal construction of Sch 5 para 3 (as so repealed), premises which were wholly sublet remained within 'the holding' and the tenant would have remained entitled to renew the tenancy; but this is so plainly contrary to the purposes of the legislation that it seems likely that a purposive construction would have been applied to Sch 5 (as so repealed) to defeat such a claim, perhaps by inferring from the reference in s 56A(b) (as added and so repealed) (see head (2) in the text) to the period 'before the tenant first occupied the dwelling house under the tenancy' that in order to have remained entitled to renew the tenancy the tenant must still have been in occupation. Subtenants of assured tenants would have been protected as against their immediate landlords (ie the assured tenants) by the Rent Act 1977. As to the position under that Act of a subtenant in respect of a superior landlord after the expiry of the intermediate landlord's unprotected tenancy see PARA 976 post. Cf the position under the Housing Act 1988 where the landlord is a subtenant: see PARA 1085 post.

The landlord was entitled to oppose the renewal of an assured tenancy in like manner and on like grounds as in respect of a business tenancy, save that, instead of offering 'alternative accommodation', the landlord must have offered and have been willing to provide or secure the provision of suitable alternative accommodation: see the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 30 (as originally enacted; modified by the Housing Act 1980 s 58(1), Sch 5 para 4(1) (as so repealed)). The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 30(4)-(7) (added, in relation to assured tenancies, by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 4(2) (as so repealed)), defined 'suitable alternative accommodation' in detail, closely imitating the Rent Act 1977 s 98(4), Sch 15 Pt IV paras 4-6 (as amended) (see PARA 947 post), but permitting other premises let on an assured tenancy to qualify as 'suitable'. As with business tenancies, the 'five-year rule' applied so as to prevent a landlord, who would, in any case, have also to have been an approved body, from relying on its intention itself to occupy or to reside in the premises where the landlord had become landlord by purchase within the previous five years: see the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 30(2) (as originally enacted).

If the tenant under an assured tenancy applied to the court for an order for a new tenancy and the court was precluded from making an order only by reason of one of the grounds of opposition set out in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 30(1)(e)-(g) (see PARAS 740-741, 745 ante), the tenant was entitled on quitting the premises to compensation of the amount of the product of the appropriate multiplier and the rateable value of the holding: see s 37(2) (substituted, in relation to assured tenancies, by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 7 (as so amended and repealed)).

11 There was no statutory definition of 'dwelling house' for these purposes; cf the Housing Act 1988; and PARA 1012 note 4 post. For the purposes of the Housing Act 1980 Pt I (ss 1-50) (repealed: see now the Housing Act 1985 Pt IV (ss 79-117) (as amended) and Pt V (ss 118-188) (as amended)), all dwelling houses were classified as either 'houses' or 'flats': see s 3 (repealed; replaced by the Housing Act 1985 s 183).

12 For the meaning of 'let as a separate dwelling' in the context of the Rent Act 1977 see PARA 819 et seq ante.

13 For these purposes, 'housing association tenancy' means a housing association tenancy within the meaning of the Rent Act 1977 s 86 (as amended) (see PARA 905 post): Housing Act 1980 s 56(1) (repealed with savings: see note 7 supra).

14 For these purposes, 'approved body' means a body, or one of a description of bodies, for the time being specified for the purposes of ibid Pt II (ss 51-79) (as amended) in an order made by the Secretary of State: s 56(4) (repealed with savings: see note 7 supra). Numerous bodies were approved from time to time by statutory instrument for these purposes: see eg the Assured Tenancies (Approved Body) (No 1) Order 1980, SI 1980/1694; the Assured Tenancies (Approved Bodies) (No 4) Order 1988, SI 1988/2018.

If the landlord under an assured tenancy ceased to be an approved body by reason only of a variation in the bodies or descriptions of bodies for the time specified, then in relation to: (1) that tenancy; and (2) any further tenancy granted by the landlord to the person who immediately before the grant was in possession of the dwelling house as an assured tenant, the landlord was to be treated for the purposes of head (2) in the text as if it had remained an approved body: Housing Act 1980 s 57(1) (amended by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(3); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). The tenancy thus remained an assured tenancy. If, however, the landlord's interest ceased to belong to an approved body for any other reason, such as the sale of the reversion by an approved landlord to a non-approved landlord, the tenancy after three months became either a protected tenancy or a housing association tenancy, according to the status of the new landlord; but, if during the three months after the landlord's interest ceased to belong to an approved body that interest once again became held by an approved body, whether by the new landlord becoming 'approved' or by a further transfer or conveyance of the reversion, the tenancy continued as an assured tenancy: see s 57(2) (as so amended and repealed). The special provisions of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 applying in respect of government departments and modifying the protection afforded by the Act where certain public bodies are landlord did not apply in respect of assured tenancies: see the Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 2 (as so repealed). Cf the position under the Housing Act 1988 where Crown tenancies and certain public body tenancies cannot be assured tenancies for the purposes of that Act: see PARAS 1039-1040 post.

15 Housing Act 1980 s 56(1) (amended by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(1); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). In the Housing Act 1980 Pt II (ss 51-79) (as amended), 'assured tenant' meant the tenant under an assured tenancy: s 56(2) (as so repealed).

16 Ie the date of the passing of the Housing Act 1980.

17 Ibid s 56A (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(2); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)).

18 For these purposes, 'qualifying works' meant works involving expenditure attributable to the dwelling house of not less than the prescribed amount which were carried out within the period of two years preceding the relevant date at a time when the premises constituting the dwelling house at the relevant date either were not a dwelling house or no part of them was occupied by a person as his residence: Housing Act 1980 s 56B(2) (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(2); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). Expenditure was attributable to a dwelling house if it was incurred on works carried out to the premises constituting the dwelling house at the relevant date or to other land or buildings let with the dwelling house under the first relevant tenancy; and, where the dwelling house was a flat, there was also attributable to the dwelling house a proportion of any expenditure incurred on works carried out to the structure, exterior or common parts of, or to common facilities in, the building of which the dwelling house formed part, the proportion so attributable being taken to be the amount produced by dividing the total amount of such expenditure by the number of units of occupation in the building at the relevant date: Housing Act 1980 s 56B(3)-(5) (as so added and repealed).

For these purposes, 'flat' meant a separate set of premises, whether or not on the same floor, which formed part of a building and was divided horizontally from some other part of the building; 'the relevant date' meant the date of the grant of the first relevant tenancy; and 'the prescribed amount' meant the amount which at the relevant date was prescribed for these purposes by order of the Secretary of State: s 56B(6) (as so added and repealed). For the meaning of 'the first relevant tenancy' see note 22 infra. The prescribed amounts, as from 25 February 1987, were: (1) in the case of a dwelling house in Greater London, £7,000; and (2) in the case of a dwelling house elsewhere in England and Wales, £5,000: Assured Tenancies (Prescribed Amount) Order 1987, SI 1987/122, art 2. As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

19 Ie whether before or after the commencement of the Housing Act 1980 s 56B (as added and repealed) ie 7 January 1987.

20 In determining for these purposes whether a dwelling house was, or would be, fit for human habitation, regard was to be had to its condition in respect of repair, stability, freedom from damp, internal arrangement, natural lighting, ventilation, water supply, drainage and sanitary conveniences, and facilities for the preparation and cooking of food and the disposal of waste water, and the dwelling house was deemed to be unfit only if it was, or would be, so far defective in one or more of those matters as to be not reasonably suitable for occupation in that condition: ibid s 56D (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(2); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)).

21 An approved body having an interest in a dwelling house which it proposed to let on an assured tenancy might apply in writing to the local housing authority for a certificate that the dwelling house was fit for human habitation, or submit to the local housing authority a list of works which it proposed to carry out to the dwelling house with a request in writing for the authority's opinion whether the dwelling house would, after the execution of the works, be fit for human habitation; and the authority was to take the matter into consideration as soon as might be after receiving the application or request and upon payment of such reasonable fee as it might determine: Housing Act 1980 s 56C(1) (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(2); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). If the authority was of opinion that the dwelling house was fit for human habitation, the authority was to give the approved authority a certificate to that effect; if of opinion that it would be so fit after the execution of the proposed works, the authority was so to inform the approved body; and in any other case, the authority was to give the approved body a list of the works which in its opinion were required to make the dwelling house so fit: Housing Act 1980 s 56C(2)-(4) (as so added and repealed). Where the authority responded in accordance with s 56C(3) or (4) (as so added and repealed) and the works in question had been executed to its satisfaction, the authority was, if the approved body applied in writing and on payment of such reasonable fee as the authority might determine, to give that body a certificate that the dwelling house was fit for human habitation: s 56C(5) (as so added and repealed). For the purposes of determining whether the condition in s 56B(1)(b) (as so added and repealed) (see head (b) in the text) was satisfied, but not for any other purpose, a certificate given under s 56C (as added and repealed) was conclusive evidence that the dwelling house was fit for human habitation on the date on which the certificate was given: s 56C(6) (as so added and repealed). For these purposes, 'local housing authority' had the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Housing Act 1980 s 56C(7) (as so added and repealed).

22 For these purposes, 'the first relevant tenancy' meant the first tenancy after the carrying out of the qualifying works under which a person was entitled to occupy the dwelling house as his residence: ibid s 56B(6) (as added and repealed: see note 18 supra).

23 For these purposes, 'secure occupier' meant a person who, whether alone or jointly with others, occupied or was entitled to occupy the dwelling house as (1) a protected or statutory tenant within the meaning of the Rent Act 1977 (see PARAS 818, 831 ante); (2) a secure tenant within the meaning of the Housing Act 1985 Pt IV (ss 79-117) (as amended) (see PARA 1300 post); or (3) a protected occupier or statutory tenant within the meaning of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 (see PARA 1144 et seq post): Housing Act 1980 s 56B(6) (as added and repealed: see note 18 supra).

24 Ibid s 56B(1) (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 12(2); repealed with savings: see note 7 supra).

25 A notice was not valid for these purposes unless it complied with the requirements of regulations made by the Secretary of State: Housing Act 1980 s 56(7) (repealed with savings: see note 7 supra).

26 For the prescribed form of notice see the Assured Tenancies (Notice to Tenant) Regulations 1981, SI 1981/591, reg 2, Schedule. A form substantially to the like effect might be used: reg 2.

27 See the Housing Act 1980 s 56(6) (repealed with savings: see note 7 supra).

28 Ie the limits set out in the Rent Act 1977 s 4 (as amended): see PARAS 855-859 ante.

29 This was because the premises had to be such that, but for the Housing Act 1980 s 56 (as amended and repealed with savings), the tenancy would be a protected tenancy or housing association tenancy. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante.

30 The Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 8 in its original form modified the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 38 (as amended) (see PARAS 709-710 ante) in its application to assured tenancies; but the changes which were made adapted the business tenancy rules to the new concept of assured tenancies without making significant substantive alterations. The modification of s 38 (as amended) in its application to assured tenancies was undesirably obscure. Technically an intending landlord and intending tenant could have applied under s 38(4) (as added and now repealed) to the court for an order authorising the exclusion from the tenancy of those sections of the 1954 Act which, as applied to assured tenancies, conferred security of tenure.

31 See the Housing Act 1980 Sch 5 para 8 (substituted by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 13(7); repealed with savings (see note 7 supra)). Thereafter the only contracting out permitted in relation to an assured tenancy was that permitted by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 38(2) (as originally enacted but read as if the words from the beginning of s 38(2) to the end of s 38(2)(b) were omitted).

(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES

(i) Rent Limits during Contractual and Statutory Periods

891. Contractual period where no rent is registered.

Where a regulated tenancy<sup>1</sup> is already in existence, the landlord<sup>2</sup> may not agree with the tenant<sup>3</sup> to increase the rent under that tenancy, nor effectively provide for a higher rent in a new regulated tenancy whether granted to that tenant or to someone who might succeed him on his death as a statutory tenant<sup>4</sup>, except by entering into a 'rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure'<sup>5</sup>; otherwise the excess of the new increased rent over the previously agreed rent is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>6</sup>. Special rules apply for certain regulated tenancies granted before 1 January 1973<sup>7</sup> and for tenancies which became regulated tenancies by virtue of the increase in the rateable value eligibility limits<sup>8</sup> in 1973<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

4 I.e. under the provisions of the Rent Act 1977 ss 2, 3, Sch 1 (as amended). As to succession on the death of a regulated tenant see PARAS 842-847 ante.

5 See ibid s 51 (as amended), s 52 (as substituted), s 54 (as amended) and PARAS 898-900 post. For the meaning of 'rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure' see PARA 898 post.

6 See ibid s 54(1)-(3) (as amended); and PARA 899 post.

7 The Rent Act 1968 ss 20(3), 21 previously laid down a rent limit by reference to the rent recoverable under a previous tenancy. Those provisions were repealed by the Housing Finance Act 1972 ss 42(1), 108(4), Sch 11 (repealed), but by s 42(2) (repealed) this repeal was not effective in the case of a tenancy granted before 1 January 1973 if the rent under the tenancy (as varied by any agreement made before that date) exceeded the rent limit; and this saving is now re-enacted in the Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 27(1)(a), (2). These special provisions are of limited scope and cease to apply either if the landlord and tenant enter into a rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure or if they enter into a formal agreement complying with s 51(4) (as amended) (see PARA 898 post) that Sch 24 para 27 is to cease to apply: Sch 24 para 27(3).

8 I.e. increases from £400 to £600 and then to £1,500 in the case of Greater London and from £200 to £300 and then to £750 elsewhere: see the Counter-Inflation Act 1973 s 14 (repealed). As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT VOL 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

9 See the Rent Act 1977 s 44(4), Sch 7 (as amended). The relevant tenancies are those granted before 8 March 1973 which would not have been regulated but for the increase in rateable value eligibility limits: Sch 7 para 1(1). The rent limit for such a tenancy is the rent payable under it on 22 March 1973 or as further reduced by the Counter-Inflation (Rents) (England and Wales) Order 1972, SI 1972/1851, art 10 (spent): Rent Act 1977 Sch 7 paras 1(2), 2. The recoverable rent for any contractual period of such a tenancy may not exceed this limit and the amount of any excess is irrecoverable from the tenant: Sch 7 para 1(2). The limit is subject to adjustment for repairs, services or rates which, in the event of an increase in the limit, does not require the service of a notice of increase: see Sch 7 para 3. Any question whether or by what amount the limit is increased or decreased is determined by the county court: Sch 7 para 3(7). This special rent limit ceases to apply if the landlord and tenant so agree in accordance with the formal requirements of s 51(4) (as amended): Sch 7 para 1(4).

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(i) Rent Limits during Contractual and Statutory Periods/892. Contractual period where rent is registered.

892. Contractual period where rent is registered.

Where a rent for a dwelling house is registered<sup>1</sup>, the rent recoverable for any contractual period<sup>2</sup> of a regulated tenancy of the dwelling house is limited<sup>3</sup> to the rent so registered<sup>4</sup>; and, where a limit is so imposed, the amount by which the rent payable under the tenancy exceeds that limit is<sup>5</sup> irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>6</sup>.

Where any rates<sup>7</sup> in respect of the dwelling house are borne by the landlord<sup>8</sup> or a superior landlord, the amount of the rates for any rental period<sup>9</sup> must be added to the above limit and is recoverable from the tenant as far as the contract of tenancy allows<sup>10</sup>.

In many cases prior to 4 May 1987<sup>11</sup>, and in limited circumstances thereafter<sup>12</sup>, the rent payable could not be immediately increased to the contractual rent limit but the increases were to be phased<sup>13</sup>.

1     le under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended): see PARA 909 et seq post. A registration under Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) is deemed to exist in the case of a furnished letting which became a protected or statutory tenancy by virtue of the Rent Act 1974 where any rent registered under the Rent Act 1968 Pt VI (ss 68-84) (repealed) (the predecessor of the restricted contract provisions) is deemed to be registered under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) with effect from 14 August 1974: see s 155(3), Sch 24 paras 7(3), 8(1). If the amount registered under the Rent Act 1968 Pt VI (ss 68-84) (repealed) included rates, the landlord cannot recover these rates twice by treating the deemed registration under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) as exclusive of rates: Dominal Securities Ltd v McLeod (1978) 37 P & CR 411, CA. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante.

2     For these purposes, 'contractual period' means a rental period of a regulated tenancy which is a period beginning before the expiry or termination of the protected tenancy: Rent Act 1977 s 61(1). For the meaning of 'rental period' see PARA 853 note 3 ante; for the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante; and for the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

3     This limitation is additional to any limitations in the contract of tenancy.

4     Rent Act 1977 s 44(1). This limit is called 'the contractual rent limit': ss 44(3), 61(1). Exceptionally, the rent limit may be higher than the registered rent for tenancies which became regulated by virtue of the Counter-Inflation Act 1973 s 14 (repealed). As to the limit for such tenancies see PARA 891 note 9 ante. This special limit applies where the registered rent is less than the limit: Rent Act 1977 s 44(4), Sch 7 para 1(3), (5). Prior to 1 April 2006, the rent limit might in any case be increased above the registered rent by an order under the Fire Precautions Act 1971 s 28(3)(b) (now repealed and replaced by provisions of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005, SI 2005/1541) (see PARA 473 ante) in respect of the cost of fire precautions work borne by the landlord: see the Rent Act 1977 ss 44(1), 140, Sch 20 para 3(1), (2)(a), (4) (as amended and repealed).

5     le notwithstanding anything in any agreement.

6     Rent Act 1977 s 44(2). Once a fair rent is registered for particular premises, that rent remains the recoverable rent for the dwelling house in respect of which the rent was payable until either the demised premises undergo such a change in their structure as to render them no longer the dwelling house referred to in s 44 (as amended) or there is a cancellation of the registration under s 73 (as amended) (see PARA 924 post) or a new registration consequent on a fresh application pursuant to s 67(3) (as amended) (see PARA 915 post): Rakhit v Carty [1990] 2 QB 315, [1990] 2 All ER 202, CA (not following Kent v Millmead Properties Ltd (1982) 44 P & CR 353, CA, and Cheniston Investments Ltd v Waddock (1988) 20 HLR 652, [1988] 2 EGLR 136, CA).

7     For the meaning of 'rates' for these purposes see PARA 895 note 2 post. The amount of the rates must be ascertained in the accordance with the Rent Act 1977 s 71(3) (as amended), Sch 5 (see PARA 896 post): s 71(3).

8     For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

9     In ascertaining for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 Pt III (ss 44-61) (as amended) whether there is any difference with respect to rents or rates between one rental period and another, whether of the same tenancy or not, or the amount of any difference, any necessary adjustments must be made to take account of periods of different lengths: s 59. For the purposes of such an adjustment, a period of one month is to be treated as equivalent to one-twelfth of a year and a period of one week as equivalent to one-fifty-second of a year: s 59.

10    See ibid ss 44(1), 71(2), (3) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(3), Sch 26; the Rent (Relief from Phasing) Order 1987, SI 1987/264, Sch 1 paras 1, 4).

11    le the date when the Rent (Relief from Phasing) Order 1987, SI 1987/264, came into force: see art 1.

12    le in the circumstances set out in ibid art 3, Sch 2.

13    As to the operation of phasing see the Rent Act 1977 Sch 8 (repealed).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(i) Rent Limits during Contractual and Statutory Periods/893. Statutory period where no rent is registered.

893. Statutory period where no rent is registered.

Where the rent payable for any statutory period<sup>1</sup> of a regulated tenancy of a dwelling house would exceed the rent recoverable<sup>2</sup> for the last contractual period<sup>3</sup> of the regulated tenancy, the amount of the excess is<sup>4</sup>, notwithstanding anything in any agreement, irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>5</sup>. Where, however, no rent for the dwelling house is registered<sup>6</sup>, certain adjustments are permitted<sup>7</sup> with respect to the rent recoverable for any statutory period under a regulated tenancy of the dwelling house<sup>8</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'statutory period' means any rental period of a regulated tenancy which is not a contractual period: Rent Act 1977 s 61(1). For the meaning of 'rental period' see PARA 853 note 3 ante; for the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante; and for the meaning of 'contractual period' see PARA 892 note 2 ante.

2 The rent recoverable for the last contractual period may be less than the rent limit for that period (see PARA 891 ante) if the provisions of the contract of tenancy did not allow an increase in recoverable rent up to the rent limit. In such a case it is the lower figure which is the rent limit for the statutory period prior to registration.

3 Exceptionally for the reference in the Rent Act 1977 s 45(1) to 'the last contractual period' there is substituted a reference to another rental period. Thus, in the case of a statutory tenancy of formerly requisitioned premises converted into a regulated tenancy by the Rent Act 1965 s 10 (repealed), the relevant rental period is the last one before 31 March 1966 and the rent recoverable for that period is treated as including any sum payable by the local authority to the landlord under the Requisitioned Houses and Housing (Amendment) Act 1955 s 4(4) (repealed): see the Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 9. Further, where a controlled tenancy was converted into a regulated tenancy by virtue of the Rent Act 1968 s 7(1), Sch 2 para 5 (repealed), or the Housing Act 1969 Pt III (ss 43-57) (repealed), or the Housing Finance Act 1972 Pt III (ss 27-34) (repealed) or s 35 (repealed), the relevant rental period is the last one before the tenancy became a regulated tenancy: see the Rent Act 1977 s 18A (as added), s 155(3), Sch 17 para 2, Sch 24 para 28(1), (4).

4 Ie except as otherwise provided by the Rent Act 1977: see the text and notes 5-8 infra.

5 Ibid s 45(1). Section 45(1) does not apply to a statutory regulated tenancy brought into existence under the provisions of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq post), which has its own provisions relating to rent: see the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 39(1), (2), Sch 5 para 3(1), (2)(b) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 46); and PARA 1217 post. It is apprehended that by the reference in the Rent Act 1977 Sch 23 para 46(b) to s 45(2) is meant a reference to s 45(1).

6 Ie under ibid Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended): see PARA 909 et seq post.

7 Ie ibid s 46 (see PARA 895 post) and s 47 (see PARA 897 post) have effect.

8 Ibid s 45(4) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 37).

894. Statutory period where rent is registered.

Where a rent for a dwelling house is registered<sup>1</sup>, the following provisions apply with respect to the rent for any statutory period<sup>2</sup> of a regulated tenancy<sup>3</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup>. If the rent payable<sup>5</sup> for any statutory period would exceed the amount so registered, the amount of the excess is, notwithstanding anything in any agreement, irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>6</sup>; but, if the rent payable<sup>7</sup> for any statutory period would be less than the rent so registered, it may be increased up to the amount of that registered rent by a notice of increase<sup>8</sup> served by the landlord<sup>9</sup> on the tenant and specifying the date from which the increase is to take effect<sup>10</sup>, subject in certain limited circumstances<sup>11</sup> to phasing of the increases<sup>12</sup>. The recoverable rent may be increased above the registered rent on account of rates<sup>13</sup> without the service of any notice of increase<sup>14</sup>.

5     The rent payable may be limited as set out in PARA 893 ante.

6     Rent Act 1977 s 45(2)(a). For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante. Exceptionally, the rent limit may be higher than the registered rent for tenancies which became regulated by virtue of the Counter-Inflation Act 1973 s 14 (repealed): see the Rent Act 1977 s 45(2), Sch 7 para 1(3); and PARA 892 note 4 ante. Schedule 7 para 1(3) does not, however, apply to a statutory tenancy arising under s 155(3), Sch 24 para 5(2) (see PARA 855 note 12 ante): Sch 24 para 5(5). Prior to 1 April 2006, the rent limit might in any case be increased above the registered rent by an order under the Fire Precautions Act 1971 s 28(3)(b) (now repealed and replaced by provisions of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005, SI 2005/1541) (see PARA 473 ante) in respect of the cost of fire precautions work borne by the landlord: see the Rent Act 1977 ss 45(2), 140, Sch 20 para 3(1), (2)(b), (4) (as amended and repealed).

895. Adjustment with respect to rates.

Where no rent for a dwelling house is registered<sup>1</sup> and any rates<sup>2</sup> in respect of it are, or were during the last contractual period<sup>3</sup>, borne by the landlord or a superior landlord, then, for any statutory period<sup>4</sup> for which the amount of the rates<sup>5</sup> differs from the amount of the rates for the last contractual period, the recoverable rent<sup>6</sup> is increased or decreased by the amount of the difference<sup>7</sup>.

Where the amount of the recoverable rent is so increased, the increase does not take effect except in pursuance of a notice of increase<sup>8</sup> served by the landlord on the tenant specifying the increase and the date from which it is to take effect<sup>9</sup>. The date so specified must not be earlier than six weeks before the service of the notice and, if it is earlier than the date of service of the notice, any unpaid increase in rent becomes due on the day after service of the notice<sup>10</sup>.

896. Calculation of rates.

For the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 the amount of rates<sup>1</sup> for any rental period<sup>2</sup> was normally an amount which bore to the total rates payable during the relevant rating period<sup>3</sup> the same proportion as the length of the rental period bore to the length of that rating period<sup>4</sup>.

As respects any rental period which preceded the making, by the authority levying the rates, of its first demand for, or for an instalment of, the rates for the relevant rating period, the amount was calculated on the basis that the rates for that period would be the same as for the last preceding rating period<sup>5</sup>. On the making by that authority of its first such demand, and on the making by it of any subsequent such demand, the amount was, if necessary, to be recalculated on the basis that the rates for the relevant rating period would be such as appeared from the information given in the demand and any previous demands<sup>6</sup>. Any such recalculation did not affect the ascertainment of the rates for any rental period beginning more than six weeks before the date of the service of the demand giving rise to the recalculation<sup>7</sup>. If, as a result of the settlement of a proposal<sup>8</sup>, the rates payable for any rating period were decreased, the amount was to be recalculated so as to give effect to the decrease; but any such recalculation did not affect the ascertainment of the rates for any rental period beginning more than six weeks before the date of the settlement<sup>9</sup> of the proposal<sup>10</sup>. In computing the rates for any rental period for these purposes, any discount and any allowance made under any of the enactments relating to allowances where rates were paid by the owner instead of by the occupier<sup>11</sup>, were to be left out of account and accordingly the rates were to be computed as if no such discount and no such allowances had fallen to be, or had been, allowed or made<sup>12</sup>.

The rating period was, in practice, a year or a half-year: see the General Rate Act 1967 s 115(1) (repealed).

11 In general the liability to pay rates fell upon the person who had beneficial occupation of the dwelling house, namely the tenant. Adjustment with respect to services and furniture.

897. Adjustment with respect to services and furniture.

Where no rent for a dwelling house is registered<sup>1</sup> and for any statutory period<sup>2</sup> there is, with respect to the provision of services<sup>3</sup> for the tenant<sup>4</sup> by the landlord<sup>5</sup> or a superior landlord, or with respect to the use of furniture by the tenant or with respect to any circumstances relating thereto, any difference, in comparison with the last contractual period<sup>6</sup>, such as to affect the amount of rent which it is reasonable to charge, the recoverable rent<sup>7</sup> for the statutory period is to be increased or decreased by an appropriate amount<sup>8</sup>.

Any question whether, or by what amount, the recoverable rent for any period is so increased or decreased is determinable by agreement in writing between the landlord and the tenant or by the county court; and any such determination may be made so as to relate to past statutory periods and has effect with respect to statutory periods subsequent to the periods to which it relates until revoked or varied by a fresh agreement or by the county court<sup>9</sup>.

No notice of increase is necessary.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(iii) Rent Agreements with Tenants having Security of Tenure/898. Protection of tenants with security of tenure.

(iii) Rent Agreements with Tenants having Security of Tenure

898. Protection of tenants with security of tenure.

A 'rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure' means:

- 1762 (1) an agreement increasing the rent payable under a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is a regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup>; or
- 1763 (2) the grant to the tenant under a regulated tenancy, or to any person who might succeed him as a statutory tenant<sup>3</sup>, of another regulated tenancy of the dwelling house at a rent exceeding the rent under the previous tenancy<sup>4</sup>.

Where any rates<sup>5</sup> in respect of the dwelling house are borne by the landlord<sup>6</sup> or a superior landlord, any increase of rent is disregarded for the purposes of heads (1) and (2) above if the increase is no more than one corresponding to an increase in the rates so borne in respect of the dwelling house<sup>7</sup>.

If a rent agreement was made at a time when no rent is registered<sup>8</sup>, the following requirements must be observed as respects the agreement<sup>9</sup>:

- 1764 (a) the agreement must be in writing signed by the landlord and the tenant<sup>10</sup>; and
  - 1765 (b) the document containing the agreement must contain a statement, in characters not less conspicuous<sup>11</sup> than those used in any other part of the agreement:
  - 8. (i) that the tenant's security of tenure under the Rent Act 1977 will not be affected if he refuses to enter into the agreement<sup>12</sup>; and
  - 9. (ii) that the entry into the agreement will not deprive the tenant or landlord of the right to apply at any time to the rent officer for the registration<sup>13</sup> of a fair rent<sup>14</sup>;
  - 1766 or words to that effect<sup>15</sup>; and
  - 1767 (c) the statement mentioned in head (b) above must be set out at the head of the document containing the agreement<sup>16</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante. A corporate body can be a protected tenant; accordingly, although a corporate body cannot have 'security of tenure' as a statutory tenant, this part of the definition of 'rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure' can apply to an agreement made with a protected tenant which is a corporate body. The definition of 'rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure' does not expressly deal with an agreement increasing the rent payable under a statutory tenancy; it seems to assume that such agreement will be the grant of another contractual regulated tenancy within the second part of the definition. For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

Where phasing of rent increases still applies by virtue of art 3, Sch 2, there is an additional requirement that the document must contain a statement that, if the agreement were not made but instead a rent were registered under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended), then part only of any increase over the rent previously recoverable by the landlord would be payable by the tenant during the first year: s 51(4)(b)(ia) (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 68(1); repealed with savings by the Rent (Relief from Phasing) Order 1987, SI 1987/264, Sch 1 para 3).

If, in the case of the variation of the terms of a regulated tenancy<sup>1</sup>, there is a failure to observe any of the statutory requirements<sup>2</sup>, any excess of the rent payable under the terms as varied over the terms without the variation is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>3</sup>. If, in the case of the grant of a tenancy, there is a failure to observe any of those requirements, any excess of the rent payable under the tenancy so granted for any contractual<sup>4</sup> or any statutory period<sup>5</sup> of the tenancy over the previous limit<sup>6</sup> is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>7</sup>.

requirements of the Housing Finance Act 1972 ss 43, 44(5) or s 45 (repealed) as it applies in relation to a failure to observe any of the corresponding requirements of the Rent Act 1977 s 51 (as amended) or s 52(6) (as substituted) (see PARA 900 post): s 155(3), Sch 24 para 18.

4 For the meaning of 'contractual period' see PARA 892 note 2 ante.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(iii) Rent Agreements with Tenants having Security of Tenure/900. Protection following conversion to regulated tenancy.

900. Protection following conversion to regulated tenancy.

The following provisions apply to an agreement with a tenant having security of tenure<sup>1</sup> which is entered into on or after 28 November 1980<sup>2</sup> if the tenancy<sup>3</sup> has become or, as the case may be, the previous tenancy became a regulated tenancy<sup>4</sup> by conversion<sup>5</sup>.

Any such agreement which purports to increase the rent payable under a protected tenancy<sup>6</sup> is void if entered into at a time when no rent is registered<sup>7</sup> for the dwelling house<sup>8</sup>.

If any such agreement constitutes a grant of a regulated tenancy and is made at a time when no rent is so registered<sup>9</sup>, any excess of the rent payable under the tenancy so granted for any contractual<sup>10</sup> or statutory period<sup>11</sup> of the tenancy over the rent limit applicable to the previous tenancy is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>12</sup>.

The above provisions<sup>13</sup> do not apply:

1768 (1) to any agreement where the tenant is neither the person who, at the time of the conversion, was the tenant nor a person who might succeed the tenant at that time as a statutory tenant<sup>14</sup>; and

1769 (2) to the agreement submitted to the rent officer in connection with the cancellation, where a rent is registered for the dwelling house and the registration is subsequently cancelled, nor to any agreement made so as to take effect after the cancellation<sup>15</sup>.

These provisions were, however, previously enacted in the Rent Act 1977 s 52 (as originally enacted), which applied to agreements taking effect on or after 29 August 1977, and before that in the Housing Finance Act 1972 s 44 (repealed), in respect of agreements taking effect after 1 January 1973. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(iv) Notices of Increase/901. Service of notice of increase.

(iv) Notices of Increase

901. Service of notice of increase.

A notice of increase<sup>1</sup> must be in the prescribed form<sup>2</sup>. Notwithstanding that such a notice relates to statutory periods<sup>3</sup>, it may be served during a contractual period<sup>4</sup>. Where a notice of increase is served during a contractual period and the protected tenancy<sup>5</sup> could, by a notice to quit served by the landlord<sup>6</sup> at the same time, be brought to an end before the date specified in the notice of increase, the notice of increase operates to convert the protected tenancy into a statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup> as from that date<sup>8</sup>.

There are no express provisions as to the mode of service of notices of increase in respect of regulated tenancies<sup>9</sup>; nor is there any penalty for false or misleading notices.

1 For these purposes, any reference to a notice of increase is a reference to a notice of increase under the Rent Act 1977 s 45(2) (as amended) (increase of rent for statutory period up to registered rent: see PARA 894 ante) or s 46(2) (increase of rent for statutory period, before registration, on account of rates: see PARA 895 ante); s 49(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 38). The Rent Act 1977 s 45(2) (as amended) does not require that the notice of increase must specify a date upon which the rent falls due to be paid (Avenue v Properties (St John's Wood) Ltd v Aisinzon [1977] QB 628, [1976] 2 All ER 177, CA); nor is there any such requirement in the Rent Act 1977 s 46(2).

2 Ibid s 49(2). For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations under s 60 (see PARA 815 ante) and references to a prescribed form include references to a form substantially to the same effect as the prescribed form: s 61(1). For the form of notice of increase appropriate in the cases referred to in note 1 supra see PARAS 894 note 8, 895 note 8 respectively ante. The notice must be correct in substance although some technical defects will not invalidate it: Clydebank Investments Co Ltd v Marshall 1927 SC 860, Ct of Sess; Fredco Estates Ltd v Bryant [1961] 1 All ER 34, [1961] 1 WLR 76, CA, distinguishing Penfold v Newman [1922] 1 KB 645, DC and Bourne v Litton [1924] 2 KB 10, CA. As to the amendment of notices see PARA 902 post.

If an increase of rent for which a notice of increase is necessary has been paid for a long time, the court may infer that a valid notice of increase has been validly served unless the facts are sufficiently clear to prevent the inference being drawn; and, where the current rent is an odd amount, the court may infer that a valid notice of increase has at some time been served: Brock v Wollams [1949] 2 KB 388, [1949] 1 All ER 715, CA. See also Summers v Donohue [1945] KB 376, [1945] 1 All ER 599, CA; Solomon v Orwell [1954] 1 All ER 874, [1954] 1 WLR 629, CA; Brownlow v Whelan (1958) 171 Estates Gazette 133, CA. This inference has been drawn on slight evidence: Marcroft Wagons Ltd v Smith [1951] 2 KB 496, [1951] 2 All ER 271, CA. Where the landlord sued for rent at the higher rate on the basis of a valid notice of increase, he could not thereafter deny that a statutory tenancy had arisen: Baxter v Eckersley [1950] 1 KB 480, [1950] 1 All ER 139, CA. Cf, however, Thomas Pocklington's Gift Trustees v Hill (1989) 21 HLR 391, [1989] 2 EGLR 97, CA.

5 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARA 831 ante.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 49(4). Although stated in this way, it is thought that no statutory tenancy will arise if the tenant is not resident at the date specified in the notice of increase. Where the notice of increase gave notice of two increases because the provisions relating to phasing (ie the Rent Act 1977 s 55, Sch 8 (repealed): see PARA 848 the text and note 8 ante) still applied, s 49(4) might operate in relation to the second date specified: see Thomas Pocklington's Gift Trustees v Hill [1989] 2 EGLR 97, CA.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(iv) Notices of Increase/902. Amendment of notice of increase.

902. Amendment of notice of increase.

If the county court is satisfied that any error or omission in a notice of increase<sup>1</sup> is due to a bona fide mistake on the part of the landlord<sup>2</sup>, the court may by order amend the notice by correcting any errors or supplying any omission therein which, if not corrected or supplied, would render the notice invalid and, if the court so directs, the notice as so amended has effect and is deemed to have had effect as a valid notice<sup>3</sup>.

Any such amendment may be made on such terms and conditions with respect to arrears of rent or otherwise as appear to the court to be just and reasonable<sup>4</sup>.

No increase of rent which becomes payable by reason of any such amendment is recoverable in respect of any statutory period<sup>5</sup> which ended more than six months before the date of the order making the amendment<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'notice of increase' see PARA 901 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

3 Rent Act 1977 s 49(5). If the tenant treats the notice as valid or otherwise acts upon it, he may be estopped from challenging its validity: Re Swanson's Agreement, Hill v Swanson [1946] 2 All ER 628; Wallis v Semark [1951] 2 TLR 222, CA; Edwards v Edwards [1952] EGD 328, CA; but see Aristocrat Property Investments Ltd v Harounoff (1982) 43 P & CR 284, CA. See also the saving provision on the registration of a rent in the Rent Act 1977 s 72(6) (as substituted): see PARA 923 post.

4 Ibid s 49(6). The court is likely to make an order where the conditions of s 49 (as amended) are complied with and the tenant is aware of the true position and has not been deprived of essential knowledge: see Jackson v Croucher [1956] 1 QB 394, [1956] 1 All ER 170, CA; London Hospital Board of Governors v Jacobs [1956] 2 All ER 603, [1956] 1 WLR 662, CA. Both these cases were decided on corresponding provisions in the Housing Repairs and Rents Act 1954 s 25(4) (repealed). The object of the power of amendment is not confined to correcting clerical errors; it is to do substantial justice: Higgins v Warren [1927] IR 558.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(v) Recovery of Overpayments/903. Right to recover overpayments.

(v) Recovery of Overpayments

903. Right to recover overpayments.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> has paid on account of rent any amount which is irrecoverable by the landlord<sup>2</sup>, the tenant who paid it<sup>3</sup> is entitled to recover that amount from the landlord who received it<sup>4</sup> or his personal representatives<sup>5</sup>. Any such amount may, without prejudice to any other method of recovery, be deducted by the tenant from any rent payable by him to the landlord<sup>6</sup>. No such amount is, however, recoverable at any time after the expiry of two years from the date of overpayment<sup>7</sup> or, in the case of an amount which is irrecoverable because of failure to comply with the provisions for the protection of tenants<sup>8</sup>, one year<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

2 I.e. irrecoverable by virtue of the Rent Act 1977 Pt III (ss 44-61) (as amended), for regulated tenancies. Virtually identical provisions apply for rent made irrecoverable by Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) for housing association tenancies (see s 94(1)-(3)), the only difference being in s 94(3) (see note 7 infra). As to the restrictions on rent for housing association tenancies see PARA 905 et seq post; and as to the phasing out of the special regime for such tenancies see PARA 1013 post. For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

It is for the tenant to establish that the rent which he has paid was in excess of the rent which the landlord could legitimately recover, and to do this he may tender evidence from which the court can infer what was the rent legitimately chargeable; if the tenant establishes a prima facie case as to the recoverable rent, the onus shifts to the landlord to disprove it: Keane v Clarke [1951] 2 KB 732, [1951] 2 All ER 187, CA (letting in 1944 prima facie evidence of standard rent of premises subject to 1939 control, in the absence of evidence of letting on or before 1 September 1939). A sum may be recovered which has been paid under an invalid notice of increase: Smith v Lloyd (1923) 92 LJB 877, DC. Even though the county court has retrospectively amended an invalid notice of increase (see PARA 902 ante), the tenant may recover from the landlord any increase of rent paid in respect of a rental period ending more than six months before the court order: Williams v Britannic Merthyr Steam Coal Co Ltd [1924] 2 KB 334. Where the standard rent had been determined by apportionment in the county court, the Court of Appeal could not on an appeal against an order for recovery of overpayments go behind the apportionment: Field v Gover [1944] KB 200, sub nom Gover v Field [1944] 1 All ER 151, 417n, CA. See also Kimm v Cohen (1923) 40 TLR 123, DC, where the tenant was entitled to recover rent paid before the date of the apportionment. The tenant may exercise this right notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary and, generally, he may not be estopped from exercising it: see Baxter v Eckersley [1950] 1 KB 480, [1950] 1 All ER 139, CA. However, he may not be able to exercise his right if the landlord has obtained judgment against the tenant for the arrears of rent: Adams v Garratt [1923] EGD 246, DC; Edwards v Rimmer [1925] EGD 362, DC (the point was left open in Griffiths v Davies [1943] KB 618, [1943] 2 All ER 209, CA). The tenant may be able to have any such judgment set aside. The right to recover may be exercised by a tenant who is no longer in possession and has ceased to have any interest in the premises: Terry v Molloy (1939) 73 ILT 77; Johnson v Tabrum [1940] EGD 212.

3 The right to recover overpayments is exercisable by the tenant's personal representatives: Dean v Wiesengrund [1955] 2 QB 120, [1955] 2 All ER 432, CA.

4 The right to recover overpayments may be exercised against the trustee in bankruptcy of the landlord who received the overpayment: Bradley-Hole v Cusen [1953] 1 QB 300, sub nom Hole v Cusen [1953] 1 All ER 87, CA. It has been held in Ireland that a tenant was not entitled to deduct from rent due to his present landlord sums alleged to have been overpaid to the landlord's predecessor (Murray v Webb (1925) 59 ILT 41), but this point was left open in Bradley-Hole v Cusen supra at 302 and at 88. See further Reeves v Pope [1914] 2 KB 284, CA.

6 Ibid s 57(2). As to the corresponding provisions relating to housing association tenancies see s 94(2); and PARA 906 post. It seems that, if a non-payment of rent is to be treated as a deduction for these purposes, the money must be consciously withheld: Catling v Sowden [1924] EGD 369, DC; Littman v Goldman [1955] EGD 149.

As to the corresponding provisions relating to housing association tenancies see the Rent Act 1977 s 94(3) (under which the two-year limit applies in all cases); and PARA 906 post. In computing the period of the time limit the day of overpayment is, it seems, excluded: Truss v Oliver (1924) 40 TLR 588, DC. In the case of recovery of overpayments by legal proceedings, the proceedings must be commenced within the period of the time limit, and it is immaterial that judgment is not delivered until the period has elapsed: Lewis v McKay [1924] 2 KB 136, DC; Diment v Roberts [1925] 1 KB 9, CA. Where there is an irregularity in the commencement of proceedings and the landlord subsequently waives it, the period is computed from the commencement of the proceedings and not from the date of waiver: Pringle v Hales [1925] 1 KB 573, CA. The point that a tenant's claim to recover overpayments is made outside the time limit may be raised on appeal even though it has not been raised below; it is the duty of the court to take the point if the landlord does not raise it: Phillips v Copping [1935] 1 KB 15 at 20-21, CA. The time limit applies to recovery by deduction as well as recovery by legal proceedings: Bayley v Walker [1925] 1 KB 447, DC. #### 904. Entries in rent books.

Any person who makes an entry in any rent book or similar document showing or purporting to show any tenant<sup>1</sup> as being in arrears in respect of any sum on account of rent which is irrecoverable by statute<sup>2</sup> is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale unless he proves that at the time of the making of the entry the landlord<sup>3</sup> had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>4</sup>.

If, where any such entry has been made by or on behalf of any landlord, the landlord, on being requested by or on behalf of the tenant to do so, refuses or neglects to cause the entry to be deleted within seven days, the landlord is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale unless he proves that, at the time of the neglect or refusal to cause the entry to be deleted, he had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>5</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(vi) Certain Housing Association Tenancies/905. Meaning of 'housing association tenancy'.

(vi) Certain Housing Association Tenancies

905. Meaning of 'housing association tenancy'.

For the purposes of the provisions about rent limits set out in the following paragraphs<sup>1</sup>, 'housing association tenancy' means a tenancy, other than a co-ownership tenancy<sup>2</sup>, where:

- 1770 (1) the interest of the landlord under the tenancy belongs to a housing association<sup>3</sup> or housing trust<sup>4</sup> or to the Housing Corporation<sup>5</sup> (or to the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> where that interest belongs to him as the result of the exercise by him of functions under Part III of the Housing Associations Act 1985<sup>7</sup>); and
- 1771 (2) the tenancy would be a protected tenancy<sup>8</sup> but for its express statutory exclusion<sup>9</sup> and is not a business<sup>10</sup> tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

An old-style assured tenancy could not be a housing association tenancy<sup>12</sup>; and a tenancy which is entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>13</sup> cannot be a housing association tenancy except in certain transitional cases<sup>14</sup>.

1 I.e. for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended): see the text and notes 2-14 infra; and PARA 906 et seq post.

2 For these purposes, a tenancy is a co-ownership tenancy if (1) it was granted by a housing association which is a co-operative housing association within the meaning of the Housing Associations Act 1985 (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 11); and (2) the tenant or his personal representative will, under the terms of the tenancy agreement or the agreement under which he became a member of the association, be entitled, on his ceasing to be a member and subject to any conditions stated in either agreement, to a sum calculated by reference directly or indirectly to the value of the dwelling house: Rent Act 1977 s 86(3A) (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 77, Sch 10 para 1(1), (4); amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 35(1), (5)).

3 For these purposes, 'housing association' has the same meaning as in the Housing Associations Act 1985 (see PARA 863 note 5 ante): Rent Act 1977 s 86(3) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(1), (5)). In the Rent Act 1977 Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) (see PARA 906 et seq post), 'housing association' has the meaning assigned to it by s 86 (as so amended): s 97(1).

4 For these purposes, 'housing trust' has the same meaning as in ibid s 15 (as amended) (see PARA 887 ante): s 86(4) (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 10 para 1(5)). In the Rent Act 1977 Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended), 'housing trust' has the meaning assigned to it by s 86 (as so amended): s 97(1).

5 As to the Housing Corporation see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 18. 'Housing association tenancy' also included a tenancy where the landlord's interest belonged to the former Housing for Wales.

6 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; as to the exercise of functions under the Housing Associations Act 1985 Pt III (ss 74-102) (as amended) by the 'relevant authority' see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 5; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

11 Rent Act 1977 s 86(1), (2) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 10 para 1(2); the Housing Act 1988 s 140(1), Sch 17 Pt II para 100; the Government of Wales Act 1998 ss 141, 152, Sch 18 Pt VI; and by the Government of Wales Act 1998 (Housing) (Amendments) Order 1999, SI 1999/61, art 2, Schedule para 1). In the Rent Act 1977 Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended), 'tenancy' means a housing association tenancy; and 'housing association tenancy' has the meaning assigned to it by s 86 (as so amended): s 97(1).

UPDATE

905 Meaning of 'housing association tenancy'

TEXT AND NOTE 5--Reference to Housing Corporation treated as reference to the Regulator of Social Housing: Transfer of Housing Corporation Functions (Modifications and Transitional Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/2839.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(3) RENT UNDER REGULATED TENANCIES/(vi) Certain Housing Association Tenancies/906. Rent limit for housing association tenancy.

906. Rent limit for housing association tenancy.

- 1772 (1) if the lease or agreement creating the tenancy was made before 1 January 1973, the rent limit is the rent recoverable under the tenancy, as varied by any agreement<sup>3</sup> made before that date, but not as varied by any later agreement<sup>4</sup>;
- 1773 (2) if head (1) above does not apply, and not more than two years before the tenancy began the dwelling house was subject to another tenancy<sup>5</sup>, whether before 1973 or later, the rent limit is the rent recoverable under that other tenancy, or, if there was more than one, the last of them, for the last rental period<sup>6</sup> thereof;
- 1774 (3) if neither head (1) nor head (2) above applies, the rent limit is the rent payable under the terms of the lease or agreement creating the tenancy, and not the rent so payable under those terms as varied by any subsequent agreement<sup>8</sup>.

Where for any period there is a difference between the amount, if any, of the rates<sup>9</sup> borne by the landlord or a superior landlord in respect of the dwelling house and the amount, if any, so borne in the rental period on which the rent limit is based, the rent limit is increased or decreased by the amount of the difference<sup>10</sup>.

Where a rent for the dwelling house is registered, then, subject to the provisions relating to phasing where these still apply<sup>11</sup>, the rent limit is the rent so registered<sup>12</sup>; but, where any rates in respect of the dwelling house are borne by the landlord or a superior landlord, the amount of those rates<sup>13</sup> must be added to the limit so imposed<sup>14</sup>. Where the rent payable under a housing association tenancy would exceed the rent limit<sup>15</sup>, the amount of the excess is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>16</sup>.

A county court has jurisdiction<sup>17</sup> to determine any question as to the rent limit or as to any matter which is or may become material for determining any such question<sup>18</sup>. Where a tenant has paid on account of rent any amount which is irrecoverable by the landlord<sup>19</sup>, the tenant who paid it is entitled to recover that amount from the landlord who received it or his personal representatives<sup>20</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'housing association tenancy' see for these purposes para 905 ante.

2 For these purposes, references to registration are references to registration pursuant to the Rent Act 1977 s 87 (as amended) (see PARAS 914-915 post): s 97(2).

3 For these purposes, references to the variation by agreement of the rent recoverable include references to a variation under ibid s 93 (as amended) (ie a notice of increase by the landlord accepted by the tenant: see PARA 907 post): s 93(5).

4 Ibid s 88(4)(a).

5 For these purposes, the reference to another tenancy includes, in addition to a housing association tenancy, a regulated tenancy which subsisted at any time after 1 April 1975 and under which, immediately before it came to an end, the landlord's interest belonged to a housing association: ibid s 88(5). For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante; and for the meaning of 'housing association' see PARA 905 note 3 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'rental period' see PARA 853 note 3 ante.

7 Rent Act 1977 s 88(4)(b) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 40). A tenancy commencing, whether before, on or after 29 August 1977, while there is in operation a condition imposed under any of the following enactments: (1) the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act 1924 s 2 (repealed); (2) the Housing Act 1985 s 438, Sch 16 para 2 or any corresponding earlier enactment; (3) the Housing Act 1949 s 23 (repealed); and (4) the Housing Act 1985 s 33 or any corresponding earlier enactment, which imposes a rent limit in respect of the dwelling house, must be disregarded for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 88(4)(b) (as so amended) in determining the rent limit under any subsequent tenancy of the dwelling house: s 88(7) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 35(1), (6)).

Where the rent payable under a tenancy is subject to the rent limit specified in the Rent Act 1977 s 88(4)(b) (as so amended), the landlord, on being so requested in writing by the tenant, must supply him with a written statement of the rent which was payable for the last rental period of the other tenancy referred to in s 88(4) (as amended): s 95(1). If, without reasonable excuse, a landlord who has received such a request fails to supply the written statement within 21 days of receiving the request, or supplies a statement which is false in any material particular, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: s 95(2) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 38, 46); Rent Act 1977 s 150(1). Proceedings may be instituted by a local authority: see s 150(2) (as amended); and PARA 816 ante. Where such an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager or secretary or other similar officer of the body or any person who was purporting to act in such a capacity, he as well as the body is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 95(3). As to the standard scale see PARA 52 note 6 ante; for the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

8 Ibid s 88(4)(c).

9 For the meaning of 'rates' see PARA 862 note 5 ante. Presumably the rates are ascertained in accordance with ibid s 27 (repealed), Sch 5 (see PARA 896 ante): cf s 88(3) (see note 13 infra). As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante.

10 Ibid s 88(6). In ascertaining for the purposes of Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) whether there is any difference with respect to rent or rates between one rental period and another, whether of the same tenancy or not, or the amount of any such difference, any necessary adjustments must be made to take account of periods of different lengths: s 96(4). For the purposes of such an adjustment, a period of one month is treated as equivalent to one-twelfth of a year and a period of one week is treated as equivalent to one-fifty-second of a year: s 96(5).

12 Rent Act 1977 s 88(2) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 25 para 40; the Housing Act 1988 Sch 17 para 24, Sch 18).

13 The rates must be ascertained in accordance with the Rent Act 1977 Sch 5 (see PARA 896 ante): s 88(3).

14 Ibid s 88(3). References in Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) to the amount of the registered rent include any amount added in this way: s 88(3).

15 Ie as determined in accordance with the above provisions.

16 Rent Act 1977 ss 88(1), 97(1).

17 This jurisdiction is exercisable either in the course of any proceedings relating to a dwelling house or on an application made for that purpose by the landlord or by the tenant: ibid s 96(3).

18 Ibid s 96(3). As to applications to the county court generally see PARA 980 et seq post.

19 Ie which is irrecoverable by virtue of ibid Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended). As to the treatment of erroneous entries in a rent book see s 94(4), (5) (as amended); and PARA 904 ante. The court has no power to correct erroneous entries: cf s 58; and PARA 983 post.

20 Ibid s 94(1). Without prejudice to any other method of recovery, any amount which a tenant is so entitled to recover may be deducted by the tenant from any rent payable by him to the landlord (s 94(2)); but no such amount is recoverable at any time after the expiry of two years from the date of payment (s 94(3)). See also PARA 903 ante.

907. Increase of rent under housing association tenancy without notice to quit.

Where a housing association tenancy<sup>1</sup> is a weekly or other periodical tenancy, the rent payable to the landlord<sup>2</sup> may, without the tenancy being terminated, be increased with effect from the beginning of any rental period<sup>3</sup> by a written notice of increase<sup>4</sup>, specifying the date on which the increase is to take effect and given by the landlord to the tenant<sup>5</sup> not later than four weeks before that date<sup>6</sup>.

Where such a notice of increase is given and, before the date specified in it, the tenant gives a valid notice to quit, the notice of increase does not take effect unless the tenant, with the landlord's written agreement, withdraws his notice to quit before that date<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'housing association tenancy' for these purposes see PARA 905 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'the landlord' means the housing association or, as the case may be, the housing trust or the Housing Corporation or the Secretary of State: Rent Act 1977 s 93(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(1), Sch 17 para 100; the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 152, Sch 18, Pt VI; and by the Government of Wales Act 1998 (Housing) (Amendments) Order 1999, SI 1999/61, art 2, Schedule para 1). For the meaning of 'housing trust' see PARA 905 note 4 ante. As to the Housing Corporation see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 18 et seq; as to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'rental period' see PARA 853 note 3 ante.

4 As to notices of increase see PARA 901 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

6 Rent Act 1977 s 93(1) (as amended (see note 2 supra); further amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 77, Sch 10 para 5(1), (2) which applies to notices of increase given on or after 28 November 1980 (Sch 10 para 5(5)).

The Rent Act 1977 s 93 (as amended) applies to a tenancy notwithstanding that the letting took place before the coming into force of that Act: s 93(4). This provision was in fact previously contained in the Housing Finance Act 1972 s 87 (repealed). Nothing in the Rent Act 1977 s 93 (as amended) authorises any rent to be increased above the rent limit: s 93(5). In the absence of a contractual rent review provision, the contract of tenancy will normally impose a limit on the rent payable to the landlord. Accordingly, without s 93 (as amended) it would be necessary, in order to increase the rent payable up to the rent limit, for the landlord to serve a notice to quit and then to offer a new contract of tenancy to the tenant; thus s 93 (as amended) allows the rent to be increased without terminating the tenancy. Where the landlord is a housing association, a housing trust, the Housing Corporation or the Secretary of State, so that the rent restriction provisions of Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) apply, the tenant can never be a statutory tenant but must always remain a contractual tenant: see s 13 (as substituted), ss 15, 16 (as amended) and PARA 883 et seq ante. Substantially similar provisions apply to local authority tenancies: see the Housing Act 1985 s 25 (as amended); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 256. See further Greater London Council v Connolly [1970] 2 QB 100, [1970] 1 All ER 870, CA.

7 Rent Act 1977 s 93(2) (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 10 para 5(3)). As to the termination of a periodical tenancy by notice to quit see PARA 213 ante.

A. REGISTRATION AREAS AND RENT ASSESSMENT COMMITTEES

909. Registration areas.

Except so far as different provision is made by an order under the Local Government Act 1992<sup>1</sup>, the registration areas in England for the purposes of the statutory provisions relating to registration of rents under regulated tenancies<sup>2</sup> are counties and county boroughs, London boroughs and the City of London<sup>3</sup>. The City of London is deemed to include the Inner Temple and the Middle Temple<sup>4</sup>.

Wales is a registration area<sup>5</sup>, as are the Isles of Scilly<sup>6</sup>; and the Council of the Isles of Scilly is the local authority for the latter registration area<sup>7</sup>.

If the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> is of the opinion:

- 1775 (1) that there is at any time insufficient work in two or more registration areas to justify the existence of a separate service of rent officers<sup>9</sup> for each area; or
- 1776 (2) that it would at any time be beneficial for the efficient administration of the service provided by rent officers in two or more registration areas, he may, after consultation<sup>10</sup> with the local authorities concerned, make a scheme<sup>11</sup> designating as an amalgamated registration area the areas of those authorities and making provision accordingly for that amalgamated area<sup>12</sup>. A scheme so made for an amalgamated registration area may contain such incidental, transitional and supplementary provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient<sup>13</sup>; and such a scheme:

- 1777 (a) must confer on the proper officer of one of the constituent authorities all or any of the functions which fall<sup>14</sup> to be exercisable by the proper officer of the local authority for the registration area;
- 1778 (b) may provide that any rent officer previously appointed for the area of any one of the constituent authorities shall be treated for such purposes as may be specified in the scheme as a rent officer appointed for the amalgamated registration area; and
- 1779 (c) must make such provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be appropriate for the payment by one or more of the constituent authorities of the remuneration, allowances and other expenditure which is to be paid<sup>15</sup> by the local authority for the area<sup>16</sup>.

The appointment and remuneration of rent officers is, however, no longer a function of local authorities<sup>17</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTE 3--1977 Act s 62(1) further amended: Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 Sch 1 para 13.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(i) Administration; in general/A. REGISTRATION AREAS AND RENT ASSESSMENT COMMITTEES/910. Rent assessment committees.

910. Rent assessment committees.

The Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>3</sup> must draw up and from time to time revise panels of persons to act as chairmen and other members of rent assessment committees for such areas, comprising together every registration area<sup>4</sup>, as he or the Assembly or minister may from time to time determine<sup>5</sup>. Each panel must consist of a number of persons appointed by the Lord Chancellor<sup>6</sup> and a number of persons appointed by the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister<sup>7</sup>; and the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister must nominate one of the persons appointed by the Lord Chancellor to act as president of the panel and one or more such persons to act as vice-president or vice-presidents<sup>8</sup>.

The number of rent assessment committees to act for an area and the constitution of those committees must be determined<sup>9</sup> by the president of the panel formed for that area or, in the case of his absence or incapacity, by the vice-president or, as the case may be, one of the vice-presidents<sup>10</sup>. Each rent assessment committee must consist<sup>11</sup> of a chairman and one or two other members, and the chairman must be either the president or vice-president or, as the case may be, one of the vice-presidents, of the panel or one of the other members appointed by the Lord Chancellor<sup>12</sup>. The president of the panel may, if he thinks fit, direct that, when dealing with such cases or dealing with a case in such circumstances as may be specified in the direction, the chairman sitting alone may, with the consent of the parties, exercise the functions of a rent assessment committee<sup>13</sup>; and, when dealing with an application for deregistration of a rent<sup>14</sup>, a rent assessment committee carrying out the functions of a rent tribunal must consist of the chairman of the committee sitting alone<sup>15</sup>. There must be paid to members of panels such remuneration and allowances as the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister may determine<sup>16</sup>.

The president of the panel may appoint, with the approval of the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister as to numbers, such clerks and other officers and servants of rent assessment committees as he thinks fit<sup>17</sup>.

Administration; in general/B. APPOINTMENT OF RENT OFFICERS/911. Appointment of rent officers; in general.

B. APPOINTMENT OF RENT OFFICERS

911. Appointment of rent officers; in general.

The Rent Act 1977 contains provisions requiring the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>2</sup>, after consultation<sup>3</sup> with the local authority<sup>4</sup>, to make for every registration area<sup>5</sup> a scheme providing for the appointment by the proper officer of the local authority of such number of rent officers<sup>6</sup> for the area as might be determined by or in accordance with the scheme<sup>7</sup>. Default powers are also conferred on the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister if a local authority<sup>8</sup> or its proper officer has failed to carry out any function or functions conferred on it or on him by such a scheme<sup>9</sup>.

All schemes made under these provisions in respect of England which were in existence immediately before 1 October 1999 ceased, however, to have effect from that date<sup>10</sup> and no new schemes are to be created<sup>11</sup>. Rent officers in England are now appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>12</sup>. Anyone who was a rent officer immediately before that date and who was appointed in pursuance of a scheme so made continues to be a rent officer<sup>13</sup> and other transitional provisions apply<sup>14</sup>. Similarly, all such schemes made in respect of Wales which were in existence immediately before 1 June 2003 ceased to have effect from that date<sup>15</sup> and no new schemes are to be created<sup>16</sup>. Rent officers and administrative staff employed in the provision of the rent officer service are now employees of the National Assembly for Wales<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante.

2 As to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'consultation' see PARA 909 note 10 ante.

4 As to the appropriate local authorities see PARA 909 ante. In the case of a registration area in respect of which there is more than one local authority, the Rent Act 1977 s 63 (as amended) (see the text and notes 1-3 supra, 5-9 infra) applies as if: (1) the first reference to 'the local authority' in s 63(1) (as amended) were a reference to each of those local authorities which is (a) the county council for a county in England; or (b) the council for a district in England which is not in a county having a county council; and (2) the second reference to 'the local authority' in s 63(1) (as amended), the references to 'the local authority' in s 63(2) (as amended) and s 63(2A)(c) (as added), the reference to 'a local authority' in s 63(2A)(g) (as added) and the reference to 'the local authority for whose area the scheme is made' in s 63(3) (as amended) (see note 7 infra) were references to such one of those authorities as has been designated by the scheme: s 63(9) (added by the Local Government Act 1985 s 16, Sch 8 para 13; substituted by the Local Government Changes (Rent Act) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/2451, reg 4). See further note 7 infra.

5 For the meaning of 'registration area' see PARA 909 ante.

6 In the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) 'the rent officer' means (1) in relation to any area not specified in an order made under s 64B (as added) (see PARA 912 post), any rent officer appointed for the area who is authorised to act in accordance with a scheme under s 63 (as amended); (2) in relation to any area or areas so specified, any rent officer appointed by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, any rent officer appointed by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister: s 63(4) (substituted by the Administration of the Rent Officer Service (England) Order 1999, SI 1999/2403, art 7(a); amended by the Administration of the Rent Officer Service (Wales) Order 2003, SI 2003/973, art 11).

7 Rent Act 1977 s 63(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 ss 120, 140(2), Sch 14 Pt I para 1, Sch 18). Such a scheme might be varied or revoked by a subsequent scheme so made: see the Rent Act 1977 s 63(5). For the provisions which such a scheme was to contain see s 63(2) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 14 Pt I para 2, Sch 18); and for the provisions which it might contain see the Rent Act 1977 s 63(2A) (added by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 14 Pt I para 3).

For the purposes of any local Act scheme within the meaning of the Superannuation Act 1972 s 8, rent officers appointed in pursuance of a scheme under the Rent Act 1977 s 63 (as amended) are deemed to be officers in the employment of the local authority for whose area the scheme is made; and they are deemed to be in that employment under a contract of service for the purposes of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt III (ss 7-68) (as amended), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt II (ss 20-62) (as amended) and the Social Security Administration Act 1992: Rent Act 1977 s 63(3) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 14 Pt I para 3, Sch 18; the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 10); Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(4).

The Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister must, in respect of each financial year, make to any local authority incurring expenditure which is of a specified kind, a grant equal to that expenditure: Rent Act 1977 s 63(6). The expenditure so specified is any expenditure (a) attributable to s 63 (as amended) or an order under the Housing Act 1996 s 122 (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 157); or (b) incurred in respect of pensions, allowances or gratuities payable to or in respect of rent officers appointed in pursuance of a scheme under the Rent Act 1977 s 63 (as amended) by virtue of regulations under the Superannuation Act 1972 s 7 or s 24 (as amended); or (c) incurred in respect of increases of pensions payable to or in respect of rent officers so appointed by virtue of the Pensions (Increase) Act 1971: Rent Act 1977 s 63(7) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 121(3), Sch 14 Pt I para 5, Sch 18; the Housing Act 1996 s 123, Sch 13 para 1). Any expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State by virtue of the Rent Act 1977 s 63(6) must be paid out of money provided by Parliament: s 63(8).

911 Appointment of rent officers; in general

912. New basis for administration of rent officer service.

If, with respect to registration areas<sup>1</sup> generally or any particular registration area or areas, it appears to the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or, in relation to Wales, to the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>3</sup> that it is no longer appropriate for the appointment, remuneration and administration of rent officers<sup>4</sup> to be a function of local authorities, he or the Assembly or minister may by order:

- 1780 (1) provide that no scheme<sup>5</sup> is to be made for the area or areas specified in the order; and
- 1781 (2) make, with respect to the area or areas so specified, such provision as appears to him or to the Assembly or minister to be appropriate with respect to the appointment, remuneration and administration of rent officers and the payment of pensions, allowances or gratuities to or in respect of them<sup>6</sup>.

An order so made must make provision for any expenditure attributable to the provisions of the order to be met by the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister in such manner as may be specified in the order, whether by way of grant, reimbursement or otherwise; and any expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State by virtue of this provision must be paid out of money provided by Parliament<sup>7</sup>.

These powers have been exercised in relation to England by the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> and in relation to Wales by the Assembly<sup>9</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(i) Administration; in general/B. APPOINTMENT OF RENT OFFICERS/913. Current arrangements for the administration of the rent officer service.

913. Current arrangements for the administration of the rent officer service.

Subject to transitional provisions<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> must appoint such number of rent officers<sup>3</sup> for all the registration areas in England ('the specified areas') as he considers necessary<sup>4</sup>. He may appoint rent officers for fixed periods and may suspend or dismiss them<sup>5</sup>. He must remunerate rent officers and must determine the amounts of their remuneration having regard to any representations from such persons as he accepts as being representative of rent officers<sup>6</sup>.

The Secretary of State must:

- 1782 (1) provide office accommodation and clerical and other assistance for rent officers;
- 1783 (2) allocate work as between rent officers; and
- 1784 (3) supervise the conduct of rent officers<sup>7</sup>;

but rent officers must discharge such of the Secretary of State's functions under heads (1) to (3) above as he may direct either generally or as respects particular rent officers<sup>8</sup>. The Secretary of State may direct a rent officer to carry out the functions of a rent officer within such registration area as the Secretary of State may specify<sup>9</sup>.

A local authority may, by arrangement with the Secretary of State (which may include terms as to payment) and in connection with his statutory functions<sup>10</sup>:

- 1785 (a) provide goods or materials, or administrative, professional or technical services to the Secretary of State;
- 1786 (b) allow the Secretary of State to use any vehicle, plant or apparatus belonging to the local authority and, without prejudice to head (a) above, place at his disposal any person employed in connection with the vehicle or other property in question; or
- 1787 (c) carry out works of maintenance, including minor renewals, minor improvements and minor extensions, in connection with land or buildings for the maintenance of which the Secretary of State is responsible<sup>11</sup>;

but nothing in heads (a) and (b) above authorises a local authority to construct any buildings or works<sup>12</sup>.

Any expenditure which is of a specified kind<sup>13</sup> must be met by the Secretary of State by grant, reimbursement or otherwise<sup>14</sup>.

In relation to Wales, on 1 June 2003 the contracts of employment of rent officers and the administrative staff employed in the rent officer service were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales<sup>15</sup>, as were the property (not including interests in land or buildings) held and the rights and liabilities to which the relevant bodies<sup>16</sup> were entitled or subject, in connection with the rent officer service<sup>17</sup>. As from that date, the Assembly or the relevant minister must:

- 1788 (i) appoint and remunerate rent officers;
- 1789 (ii) determine the amounts of rent officers' remuneration having regard to any representations from such persons as it accepts as being a representative of rent officers; and
- 1790 (iii) pay, or as appropriate secure the payment of, such pensions, allowances and gratuities to or in respect of rent officers in accordance with their status as civil servants<sup>18</sup> appointed by the Assembly or minister<sup>19</sup>.

The Assembly or minister must:

- 1791 (A) provide office accommodation and clerical and other assistance for rent officers;
- 1792 (B) allocate work as between rent officers; and
- 1793 (C) supervise the conduct of rent officers<sup>20</sup>; and rent officers are to discharge such rent officer duties as the Assembly or minister may direct<sup>21</sup>.

Any expenditure which is of a specified kind<sup>22</sup> is to be met by the Assembly or minister by way of grant, reimbursement or otherwise<sup>23</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(i) Administration; in general/C. REGISTER OF RENTS/914. Register of rents.

C. REGISTER OF RENTS

914. Register of rents.

For each registration area<sup>1</sup>, a register for the statutory purposes<sup>2</sup> must be prepared and kept up to date by the rent officer<sup>3</sup>. The rent officer must make the register available for inspection in such place or places and in such manner as the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> or in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>5</sup>, may direct, if the area is specified in an order<sup>6</sup> made for the administration of the rent officer service on a new basis<sup>7</sup>. If the area is not so specified, then the register must be made available for inspection in the place or places and manner provided by the scheme<sup>8</sup> made for the area<sup>9</sup>; but at the date at which this title states the law there are no such schemes in existence and no such schemes may be made<sup>10</sup>.

The register must contain, in addition to the rent payable under a regulated tenancy<sup>11</sup> of a dwelling house, the prescribed particulars<sup>12</sup> with regard to the tenancy and a specification of the dwelling house<sup>13</sup>. There must be a part of the register in which rents may be registered for dwelling houses which are let, or are, or are to be, available for letting under a housing association tenancy<sup>14</sup>.

A copy of an entry in the register certified under the hand of the rent officer or any person duly authorised by him is receivable in evidence in any court and in any proceedings<sup>15</sup>; and a person requiring such a certified copy is entitled to obtain it on payment of the prescribed fee<sup>16</sup>.

In relation to Wales, references in the Rent Act 1977 s 66 (as amended) to the rent officer are to the rent officer or rent officers designated for these purposes by the National Assembly for Wales: s 66(5) (added by the Administration of the Rent Officer Service (Wales) Order 2003, SI 2003/973, art 12(b)). 8 Is under the Rent Act 1977 s 63 (as amended): see PARA 911 ante.

9 Ibid s 66(1A)(a) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

11 For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

12 For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations under the Rent Act 1977 s 74 (as amended) (see PARA 815 ante); and references to a prescribed form include references to a form substantially to the same effect as the prescribed form: s 75(1). The prescribed particulars are: (1) address of premises; (2) names and addresses of landlord and tenant; (3) if granted for a term, date of commencement of the tenancy and length of term; (4) the rental period; (5) allocation between landlord and tenant of liabilities for repairs; (6) details of services provided by the landlord or a superior landlord; (7) details of furniture provided by the landlord or a superior landlord; (8) in the case of a statutory tenancy which has arisen by virtue of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq post), details of the initial repairs; (9) liability for payment of council tax for the accommodation let to the tenant; and (10) any other terms of the tenancy taken into consideration in determining the fair rent: Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 5, Sch 2 (amended by SI 1993/655). A billing authority must, if so requested in writing by a rent officer, inform him whether or not a particular dwelling is or was at any time an exempt dwelling for council tax purposes: see the Housing Act 1988 s 41B (as added) cited in PARA 1092 note 5 post.

Where the rent is not registered as variable in accordance with the Rent Act 1977 s 71(4) (see PARA 922 post), the amount, if any, attributable to services and the amount of the service element must be noted in the register: see Sch 8 para 2(1) (repealed with savings). See also s 72A (as added); and PARA 922 post. The rent officer should note in the register the fact and result of a reference to a rent assessment committee: see s 67(7) (as amended), Sch 11 paras 6(2), 9(3).

13 Ibid s 66(2). It is important to know precisely what premises are the subject of the registration; there is no provision for apportionment and accordingly a registered rent would not appear to be applicable to a letting of part of the premises: see Gluchowska v Tottenham Borough Council [1954] 1 QB 438, [1954] 1 All ER 408, DC (decided under the predecessor of the rent registration provision for restricted contracts in the Rent Act 1977 Pt V (ss 77-85) (as amended): see PARA 996 et seq post). As to the circumstances in which a registered rent will no longer apply see Rakhit v Carty [1990] 2 QB 315, [1990] 2 All ER 202, CA; and PARA 892 note 6 ante.

14 Rent Act 1977 s 87(1). For the meaning of 'housing association tenancy' see PARA 905 ante. In relation to that part of the register the following, and no other, provisions of the Rent Act 1977, ie s 67 (as amended) (see PARA 915 post), s 67A (as added) (see PARA 915 note 10 post), s 70 (as amended) (see PARA 921 post), s 70A (as added) (see PARA 915 note 10 post), s 71 (as amended) except s 71(3) (as amended) (see PARA 922 post), s 72 (as substituted) (see PARA 923 post) and s 67(7), Sch 11 (as amended) (see PARA 917 post) apply in relation to housing association tenancies, and in their application to such tenancies have effect as if for any reference in those provisions to a regulated tenancy there were substituted a reference to a housing association tenancy: s 87(2) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 ss 61(3)(a), (8), 152(3), Sch 26; the Housing Act 1988 s 140, Sch 18; the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(2), Sch 2 para 6). A rent registered in any part of the register for a dwelling house which becomes, or ceases to be, one subject to a housing association tenancy is as effective as if it were registered in any other part of the register: Rent Act 1977 s 87(6).

A rent registered under the Rent Act 1968 Pt IV (ss 39-51) (repealed) on a local authority application before 2 December 1974 is effective for the purposes of a housing association tenancy: see the Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 10. See also Sch 24 para 31.

16 Ibid s 66(4). The prescribed fee is £1: Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 6 (amended by SI 1984/1391).

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(ii) Applications for Registration/915. Application for registration of rent.

(ii) Applications for Registration

915. Application for registration of rent.

An application for the registration of a rent for a dwelling house may be made to the rent officer<sup>1</sup> by the landlord<sup>2</sup> or the tenant<sup>3</sup>, or jointly by the landlord and the tenant, under a regulated tenancy<sup>4</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup>. Any such application must be in the prescribed form<sup>6</sup> and must:

- 1794 (1) specify the rent which it is sought to register<sup>7</sup>;
- 1795 (2) where the rent includes any sum payable by the tenant to the landlord for services and the application is made by the landlord, specify that sum and be accompanied by details of the expenditure incurred by the landlord in providing those services; and
- 1796 (3) contain such other particulars as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>.

Where a rent for a dwelling house has been registered<sup>9</sup>, no application by the tenant alone or by the landlord alone for the registration of a different rent for that dwelling house may<sup>10</sup> be entertained before the expiry of two years from the relevant date<sup>11</sup>, except on the ground that, since that date, there has been such a change in:

- 1797 (a) the condition of the dwelling house, including the making of any improvement<sup>12</sup> therein;
- 1798 (b) the terms of the tenancy;
- 1799 (c) the quantity, quality or condition of any furniture provided for use under the tenancy, deterioration by fair wear and tear excluded; or
- 1800 (d) any other circumstances taken into consideration when the rent was registered or confirmed<sup>13</sup>, as to make the registered rent no longer a fair rent<sup>14</sup>.

An application which is made by the landlord alone and is so made within the last three months of the two-year period may, however, be entertained<sup>15</sup> notwithstanding that that period has not expired<sup>16</sup>.

Where a certificate of fair rent had been issued in respect of a dwelling house pursuant to an application made before 15 January 1989<sup>17</sup>, an application for the registration of a rent for the dwelling house in accordance with that certificate might be made within two years<sup>18</sup> of the date of the certificate by the landlord under such a regulated tenancy of the dwelling house as was specified in the certificate<sup>19</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'rent officer' see PARA 911 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante. It appears that all joint tenants must join in the application: Turley v Panton (1975) 29 P & CR 397, DC; cf Lloyd v Sadler [1978] QB 774, [1978] 2 All ER 529, CA. If, however, not all joint tenants sign the application, it is a question of fact whether the application is made with the authority of all of them: see R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Braq Investments Ltd [1969] 2 All ER 1012, [1969] 1 WLR 970, DC (application validly made by a tenants' association because it was possible to infer that, when the application was made in respect of a particular dwelling house, it was made on behalf of and with the authority of the particular tenant). See also R v Rent Officer for the London Borough of Camden, ex p Felix (1988) 21 HLR 34, [1988] 2 EGLR 132. A tenant under a protected tenancy may apply for the registration of a rent even though he is not a resident and would not later become a statutory tenant: Feather Supplies Ltd v Ingham [1971] 2 QB 348, [1971] 3 All ER 556, CA.

4 For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

5 Rent Act 1977 s 67(1). As to the application of s 67 (as amended) to a housing association tenancy see PARA 914 note 14 ante. Prior to 15 January 1989 there was also a right for a local authority to apply for a rent to be registered in respect of a dwelling house within the authority's area: see s 68 (repealed).

6 The prescribed forms are: (1) where a statutory tenancy arises at the end of a long tenancy under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq post), the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 3(2)(a)(i), Sch 1, Form 6 (Sch 1, Forms 5-7 substituted by SI 1984/1319 and amended by SI 1993/655); (2) where the dwelling house is subject to a statutory tenancy as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 (see PARAS 1146-1149 post), the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 3(2)(a)(ii), Sch 1, Form 7 (as so substituted and amended); and (3) reg 3(2)(a)(iii), Sch 1, Form 5 (as so substituted by SI 1984/1319 and amended). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 914 note 12 ante; and for the corresponding forms in Welsh see the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) (Welsh Forms and Particulars) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1511, reg 2, Schedule, Forms 6, 7, 5 respectively. Forms substantially to the like effect may be used: see reg 3.

7 Failure to specify a rent which the applicant seeks to have registered makes the application, and any purported registration pursuant to that application, a nullity; the defect cannot be waived: Chapman v Earl [1968] 2 All ER 1214, [1968] 1 WLR 1315, DC (applicant had written 'rent officer to determine fair rent'; application held to be defective). The proposed rent need not, however, be set out as a settled figure; it is sufficient if words are used from which the rent can be calculated with certainty: R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Braq Investments Ltd [1969] 2 All ER 1012, [1969] 1 WLR 970, DC (applicant had written that the rent was to be an annual sum per square foot; application held to be valid). An application to re-register the existing rent is invalid: R v Chief Rent Officer for Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, ex p Moberley (1986) 18 HLR 189, [1986] 1 EGLR 168, CA.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 67(2) (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 59(2)). See also Druid Development Co (Bingley) Ltd v Kay (1982) 44 P & CR 76, CA (the prescribed particulars are directory not mandatory; technical defect did not invalidate tenant's application); R (on the application of Hartley) v Rent Officer of the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea [2001] EWHC 291 (Admin), [2001] All ER (D) 186 (Mar).

9 Ie under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended): see PARA 909 et seq ante, PARA 916 et seq post.

10 Ie subject to ibid s 67(4) (as amended) (see the text and notes 15-16 infra) and ss 67A, 70A (as added): s 67(3) (as amended: see note 14 infra). Under s 67A (added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(2), Sch 2 para 3), an application might be made before 1 April 1994 by the landlord or the tenant, or jointly by them both, for the registration under the Rent Act 1977 s 70A (as added) of an increased rent where (1) the landlord or a superior landlord was liable under the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-69) (as amended) to pay council tax in respect of the dwelling house; (2) under the terms of the tenancy, or an agreement collateral to the tenancy, the tenant was liable to make payments to the landlord in respect of council tax; (3) the case fell within the Rent Act 1977 s 67A(2) or (3) (as so added) (time limits etc); and (4) no previous application has been so made in relation to the dwelling house: see s 67A(1), (4) (as so added). Where an application was so made: (a) the rent officer was to determine the amount by which, having regard to the provisions of s 70(3A) (as added) (see PARA 921 post), the existing registered rent might reasonably be increased to take account of the tenant's liability to make payments to the landlord in respect of council tax; and (b) the amount to be registered as the rent of the dwelling house was to be the existing registered rent plus the amount referred to in head (a) supra: see s 70A(1) (s 70A added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, Sch 2 para 4). As to the joint determination of an application under the Rent Act 1977 s 67 (as amended) and s 67A (as added) see s 70A(2) (as so added).

11 For these purposes, 'relevant date', in relation to a rent which has been registered under ibid Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended), means the date from which the registration took effect or, in the case of a registered rent which has been confirmed, the date from which the confirmation or, where there have been two or more successive confirmations, the last of them, took effect; but any registration or confirmation by virtue of s 70A

(as added) (see note 10 supra) is to be disregarded: s 67(5) (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 61(5); amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(2), Sch 18; the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, Sch 2 para 2(b)). A case where the rent officer did not register a rent on an application under the Rent Act 1977 s 68 (repealed) was not to be treated as a confirmation of a rent already registered: see s 68(5) (repealed).

12 For these purposes, 'improvement' includes structural alteration, extension or addition and the provision of additional fixtures or fittings, but does not include anything done by way of decoration or repair: ibid s 75(1). If the work which is done is the provision of something new for the benefit of the occupier, it is an improvement; if it is only the replacement, even by a modern equivalent, of something already there which has become dilapidated or worn out, it is a repair and not an improvement: Morcom v Campbell-Johnson [1956] 1 QB 106 at 115, [1955] 3 All ER 264 at 266, CA, approved in Mackie v Gallagher 1967 SC 59. See also Strood Estates Co Ltd v Gregory [1936] 2 KB 605, [1936] 2 All ER 355, CA (affd [1938] AC 118, [1937] 3 All ER 656, HL) (old-fashioned privy replaced by a modern water closet held to be an improvement); Wates v Rowland [1952] 2 QB 12, [1952] 1 All ER 470, CA (wooden floor replaced by a tiled floor held to be a repair). As to the different attitudes to the installation of a gas boiler see London Housing and Commercial Properties Ltd v Cowan [1977] QB 148, [1976] 2 All ER 385, DC.

Repairs may, however, effect a change a 'change in conditions' within the scope of the Rent Act 1977 s 67(3) (a); the mere fact that repairs are not within the meaning of 'improvement' does not take them out of s 67(3): see R (on the application of Haysport Properties Ltd) v West Sussex Rent Officer [2001] EWCA Civ 237, [2001] 21 EG 168, [2001] All ER (D) 238 (Jan). As to expenditure incurred by the landlord before 1 April 2006 in taking a step mentioned in a fire precaution notice see the Rent Act 1977 s 140, Sch 20 para 1 (repealed).

13 If the dwelling house forms part of a hereditament in respect of which the landlord or a superior landlord is, or was on the relevant date, liable under the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (as amended) to pay council tax, then, in determining for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 67(3) (as amended) whether since the relevant date there has been such a change falling within s 67(3)(d) as to make the registered rent no longer a fair rent, any change in the amount of council tax payable in respect of the hereditament is to be disregarded unless it is attributable to: (1) the fact that the hereditament has become, or has ceased to be, an exempt dwelling; (2) an alteration, in accordance with regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 24 (as amended) (alteration of lists: see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 273), of the valuation band shown in a valuation list as applicable to the hereditament; or (3) the compilation of a new valuation list in consequence of an order of the Secretary of State or the National Assembly for Wales under s 5(4)(b) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 244): Rent Act 1977 s 67(3A) (s 67(3A), (3B) added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 5). For these purposes, 'hereditament' means a dwelling within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (as amended) and, subject thereto, expressions used in Pt I (as amended) and in the Rent Act 1977 s 67(3A) (as so added) have the same meaning in s 67(3A) (as so added) as in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (as amended): Rent Act 1977 s 67(3B) (as so added). For transitional provisions see the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 1(2)(a).

14 Rent Act 1977 s 67(3) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 60(1), (2); the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, Sch 2 para 2(a)). See Rakhit v Carty [1990] 2 QB 315, [1990] 2 All ER 202, CA. This prohibition does not apply to a deemed registration under the Rent Act 1974 (repealed): see the Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 8(2); and PARA 892 note 1 ante. Nor does it apply to certain applications made by virtue of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976: see s 13(7) (as amended); and PARA 1162 note 11 post. 'Fair rent' is not defined but the method of determining it is laid down in the Rent Act 1977 s 70 (as amended): see PARA 921 post. The rent officer may well be required to consider whether in fact the applicant can rely upon s 67(3) (as so amended) to apply within the two year period; it appears that, if the rent officer decides that he has jurisdiction and increases the rent and the matter is referred to a rent assessment committee, that committee should not investigate the rent officer's decision on s 67(3) (as so amended): London Housing and Commercial Properties Ltd v Cowan [1977] QB 148, [1976] 2 All ER 385, DC; and see PARA 916 post. On such a valid application, the rent should be determined in the normal way: London Housing and Commercial Properties Ltd v Cowan supra, distinguishing R v Fulham, Hammersmith and Kensington Rent Tribunal, ex p Hierowski [1953] 2 QB 147, [1953] 2 All ER 4, DC. See also Kovats v Trinity House Corp'n (1981) 262 Estates Gazette 445.

15 In notwithstanding anything in the Rent Act 1977 s 67(3) (as amended: see note 14 supra).

16 Ibid s 67(4) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 60(1), (2)). This provision will prevent prejudice to the landlord through delay in the rent being registered. For the effective date of a registration pursuant to such an application see the Rent Act 1977 s 72(3) (as substituted); and PARA 923 post. A joint application by both landlord and tenant may be made at any time where a tenancy which by virtue of s 12 (as amended) (resident landlord: see PARA 875 ante) was precluded from being a protected tenancy ceases to be so precluded and becomes a protected tenancy, and, before it does so, a rent was registered for the dwelling concerned under the provisions relating to restricted contracts (see PARA 996 et seq post) and the amount which is so registered is deemed to be registered under Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) as the rent for the dwelling house which is let on that tenancy; the registration is deemed to take effect on the date the tenancy becomes a protected tenancy and the two year limitation does not apply: see s 12(4), Sch 2 para 6(1), (2); and PARA 878 ante. The provisions in Sch 24 para 8(1), (2) transitional from the Rent Act 1974 appear to have already been obsolete by the date of the coming into force of the Rent Act 1977.

17     le the date when the Housing Act 1988 s 140, Sch 18 (which repealed the Rent Act 1977 s 69, Sch 12) came into force: see s 141(3). Before that date, where a person intended to provide a dwelling house by the erection or conversion of any premises or to make any improvements in a dwelling house, or where he intended to let on a regulated tenancy a dwelling house which was not for the time being subject to such a tenancy and where no rent was registered, he might apply to the rent officer for a certificate of fair rent, specifying a rent which in the opinion of the rent officer would be a fair rent under a regulated tenancy of the dwelling house on the terms specified in the application and subject to certain statutory assumptions: see the Rent Act 1977 s 69(1), (2) (repealed).

18     The period was three years where, on the determination or confirmation of a rent by the rent officer, the rent determined by him was registered, or his confirmation was noted on the register, before 28 November 1980: Rent Act 1977 s 69(4) (as originally enacted); Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 40.

19     See the Rent Act 1977 s 69(4) (repealed). As to the procedure on such an application see Sch 11 paras 10-12 (repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 17 para 22, Sch 18).

NOTE 6--SI 1980/1697 further amended: SI 2008/2831. See also Transfer of Housing Corporation Functions (Modifications and Transitional Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/2839.

916. Determination of jurisdiction.

Before he proceeds to determine and register a fair rent, the rent officer<sup>1</sup> has a duty to inquire and decide whether he has jurisdiction to do so; and he is normally entitled to decide a preliminary issue on which his jurisdiction depends<sup>2</sup>. The county court, however, normally provides an alternative forum for determining whether the application is within the jurisdiction of the rent officer<sup>3</sup>. The rent officer has a discretion<sup>4</sup> whether to decide the preliminary issue himself or whether to adjourn the application for the registration of a rent in order that an application may be made to the county court to determine the preliminary issue. In exercising his discretion, the rent officer should look at all the circumstances, including the wishes of the parties<sup>5</sup>. Where the nature of the preliminary issue requires disclosure, evidence and cross-examination, the rent officer should normally adjourn the application for the registration of a rent<sup>6</sup>; but, where the parties decline an invitation to apply to the county court, it is correct for the rent officer to proceed to determine the issue of his jurisdiction<sup>7</sup>.

A rent assessment committee has only a limited jurisdiction to hear and determine matters referred to it by a rent officer. The rent officer cannot refer to it any question of jurisdiction but only his determination of the fair rent<sup>8</sup>. The rent assessment committee may be concerned to see that a matter has been properly referred to it, namely that there has been an objection by one of the parties and that the matter has been referred to it consequent upon that objection<sup>9</sup>. A decision by the rent officer or the rent assessment committee as to jurisdiction is not conclusive, and may be put in issue in further proceedings<sup>10</sup>.

2 R v Fulham, Hammersmith and Kensington Rent Tribunal, ex p Zerek [1951] 2 KB 1, [1951] 1 All ER 482, DC, applied in R v Kensington and Chelsea Rent Officer, ex p Noel [1978] QB 1, [1977] 1 All ER 356, DC; R v Rent Officer for Camden, ex p Ebiri [1981] 1 All ER 950, [1981] 1 WLR 881, DC. The rent officer does not have jurisdiction and the county court has exclusive jurisdiction to determine any question arising under the Rent Act 1977 s 25 as to the proper apportionment or aggregation of rateable value in order to determine the appropriate rateable value for the subject premises: see s 25(2); and PARA 859 ante. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante. If the rent officer has doubts as to whether the dwelling house is over or under the rateable value limits, or if the landlord objects, or if there is a challenge to the rent officer's jurisdiction, there is a 'question arising' within s 25(2) which must be determined by a county court: R v Westminster (City) London Borough Council Rent Officer, ex p Rendall [1973] QB 959, [1973] 3 All ER 119, CA. The relevant date for the grant of jurisdiction is the date of the application; and the jurisdiction continues to exist even if the tenancy comes to an end: R v Lambeth Rent Officer, ex p Fox (1977) 35 P & CR 65, DC, applying R v West London Rent Tribunal, ex p Napper [1967] 1 QB 169, [1965] 3 All ER 734, DC.

3 See the Rent Act 1977 s 141 (as amended); and PARA 981 post. Section 141 (as amended) does not, however, cover all the issues on which the jurisdiction of a rent officer may arise: see London Housing and Commercial Properties Ltd v Cowan [1977] QB 148, [1976] 2 All ER 385, DC. The issue of jurisdiction may also be raised in High Court proceedings for an appropriate declaration; and for an exceptional case where the High Court granted a mandatory order against the rent officer and declared the applicant to be a protected tenant see R v Rent Officer for London Borough of Camden, ex p Plant (1980) 7 HLR 15, [1981] 1 EGLR 73, DC.

4 This is subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the county court under the Rent Act 1977 s 25(2): see note 2 supra.

7 See note 5 supra.

8 R v Brent London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Ganatra [1976] QB 576, [1976] 1 All ER 849, DC.

9 See the Rent Act 1977 s 67(7), Sch 11 paras 6, 9 (as amended); and PARAS 917-918 post; R v Bristol Rent Assessment Committee, ex p Dunsworth (1987) 19 HLR 351, [1987] 1 EGLR 102. The circumstances in which a rent assessment committee would be justified in ignoring the existence of the Rent Act 1977 s 141 (as amended) and in embarking into a question of jurisdiction or into any other matter not referred to it by the rent officer must be very rare: see R v Brent London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Ganatra [1976] QB 576 at 584, [1976] 1 All ER 849 at 855, DC, per Park J.

10 R v Judge Pugh, ex p Graham [1951] 2 KB 623, [1951] 2 All ER 307, DC; R v Fulham, Hammersmith and Kensington Rent Tribunal, ex p Zerek [1951] 2 KB 1, [1951] 1 All ER 482, DC; R v Brent London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Ganatra [1976] QB 576 at 583, [1976] 1 All ER 849 at 854, DC. An aggrieved landlord may therefore prefer to claim for the contractual rent, possession or a declaration, as the case may be, in the county court, rather than go by way of appeal or for judicial review in the High Court.

917. Procedure on application to rent officer.

On receiving any application for the registration of a rent<sup>1</sup>, the rent officer<sup>2</sup> may, by notice in writing served on the landlord<sup>3</sup> or the tenant<sup>4</sup>, whether or not the applicant or one of the applicants, require him to give to the rent officer, within such period of not less than seven days from the service of the notice as may be specified in the notice, such information as he may reasonably require<sup>5</sup> regarding the particulars contained in the application as may be specified in the notice<sup>6</sup>.

Where the application is made jointly by the landlord and the tenant and it appears to the rent officer, after making such inquiry, if any, as he thinks fit and considering any information supplied to him<sup>7</sup>, that the rent specified in the application is a fair rent<sup>8</sup>, he may register that rent without further proceedings<sup>9</sup>. Where the rent officer so registers a rent, he must notify the landlord and tenant accordingly<sup>10</sup>.

In the case of any other application<sup>11</sup>, the rent officer must serve on the landlord and on the tenant a notice<sup>12</sup> inviting the person on whom the notice is served to state in writing, within a period of not less than seven days after the service of the notice<sup>13</sup>, whether he wishes the rent officer to consider, in consultation with the landlord and the tenant, what rent ought to be registered for the dwelling house<sup>14</sup>. If, after service of such a notice by the rent officer, no request in writing is made within the period specified in the notice for the rent to be so considered, the rent officer, after considering what rent ought to be registered or, as the case may be, whether a different rent ought to be registered, may:

- 1801 (1) determine a fair rent and register it as the rent for the dwelling house; or
- 1802 (2) confirm the rent for the time being registered and note the confirmation in the register; or
- 1803 (3) serve a notice on the landlord and on the tenant informing them that the rent officer proposes, at a time<sup>15</sup> and place specified in the notice, to consider in consultation<sup>16</sup> with the landlord and the tenant, or such of them as may appear at that time and place, what rent ought to be registered for the dwelling house or, as the case may be, whether a different rent ought to be so registered<sup>17</sup>.

Where, however, in response to a notice of invitation served by the rent officer<sup>18</sup>, the landlord or the tenant states in writing that he wishes the rent to be considered<sup>19</sup>, the rent officer must serve a notice under head (3) above<sup>20</sup>.

After considering<sup>21</sup> what rent ought to be registered or, as the case may be, whether a different rent ought to be registered, the rent officer must, as the case may require, determine a fair rent and register it as the rent for the dwelling house, or confirm the rent for the time being registered and note the confirmation in the register<sup>22</sup>.

Where a rent has been registered or confirmed by the rent officer<sup>23</sup>, he must notify the landlord and the tenant accordingly by a notice stating that, if within 28 days of the service of the notice or such longer period as he or a rent assessment committee<sup>24</sup> may allow, an objection in writing is received by the rent officer from the landlord or the tenant, the matter will be referred to a rent assessment committee<sup>25</sup>. If such an objection is received, then:

- 1804 (a) if it is received within the specified period<sup>26</sup> or a rent assessment committee so directs, the rent officer must refer the matter to a rent assessment committee;
- 1805 (b) if it is received after the expiry of that period, the rent officer may either refer the matter to a rent assessment committee or seek the directions of a rent assessment committee whether so to refer it<sup>27</sup>; and the rent officer must indicate in the register whether the matter has been referred to a rent assessment committee<sup>28</sup>.

1 le under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended): see PARA 909 et seq ante, PARA 918 et seq post. As the registration of a rent involves a matter of public interest, the rent officer appears to be able to withhold his consent to the withdrawal of an application: R v Lambeth Rent Officer, ex p Fox (1977) 35 P & CR 65 at 68, DC, applying dicta in Hanson v Church Comrs for England [1978] QB 823, [1977] 3 All ER 404, CA. The relevant date for the grant of jurisdiction to a rent officer is the date of the application, and the jurisdiction continues even if the tenancy comes to an end: R v Lambeth Rent Officer, ex p Fox supra, applying R v West London Rent Tribunal, ex p Napper [1967] 1 QB 169, [1965] 3 All ER 734, DC.

5 It appears that the information must be possible, relevant and necessary: see Watney Mann Ltd v Langley [1966] 1 QB 457, [1963] 3 All ER 967 (decided on a similar provision in the Local Government Act 1948 s 58 (repealed)).

7 Ie in pursuance of ibid Sch 11 para 1.

8 For these purposes, references to a fair rent in relation to an application under ibid s 67A (as added) (see PARA 915 note 10 ante) are references to the amount to be registered under s 70A(1)(b) (as added) (see PARA 915 note 10 ante): Sch 11 para 9A (added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(2), Sch 2 para 7).

The Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 (as amended) has effect subject to the Rent Acts (Maximum Fair Rent) Order 1999, SI 1999/6, art 2 (see PARA 921 post); and accordingly the rent officer, in considering what rent ought to be registered, must consider whether art 2 applies: Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 para 9B(a) (added by the Rent Acts (Maximum Fair Rent) Order 1999, SI 1999/6, art 3, Schedule).

9 Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 para 2(1) (Sch 11 paras 2-3A substituted by the Regulated Tenancies (Procedure) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1696, reg 2, Sch 1 para 1).

10 Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 para 2(2) (as substituted: see note 9 supra).

11 Ie an application not falling within ibid Sch 11 para 2 (as substituted).

12 A notice so served on the person who did not make the application must be accompanied by: (1) a copy of the application; and (2) where, in pursuance of ibid s 67(2)(b) (as substituted) (see PARA 915 ante), the application was accompanied by details of the landlord's expenditure in connection with the provision of services, by a copy of those details: Sch 11 para 3(2) (as substituted: see note 9 supra). For forms of notice see (a) in a case falling under head (2) supra, the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 3(3) (amended by SI 1993/655), Sch 1, Form 13; (b) in the case of an application made under the Rent Act 1977 s 67A (as added), the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 3(3A), Sch 1, Forms 12A (added by SI 1993/655); and (c) in any other case, the Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, Sch 1, Form 12. A form substantially to the like effect may be used: see reg 3.

13 It appears that a quashing order will be made if a party is given less than seven days' notice and is deprived of the opportunity of being heard: R v Devon and Cornwall Rent Tribunal, ex p West (1975) 29 P & CR 316, DC (a decision concerning a rent tribunal hearing). 16 An important function of the consultation is to enable the rent officer to approach the determination of the rent with the knowledge that he has heard what the parties want to say about it; he should not have made a firm decision beforehand on which comparables he will rely, and is not obliged to disclose any comparables to the parties: R v Brighton Rent Officers, ex p Elliott (1975) 29 P & CR 456 at 460, DC per Lord Widgery CJ. At the consultation the landlord and the tenant may each be represented by a person authorised by him in that behalf, whether or not that person is of counsel or a solicitor: Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 para 4(3). ## UPDATE

NOTE 12--See Transfer of Housing Corporation Functions (Modifications and Transitional Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/2839.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(ii) Applications for Registration/918. Reference to a rent assessment committee.

918. Reference to a rent assessment committee.

The rent assessment committee<sup>1</sup> to which a matter is referred<sup>2</sup> may by notice in the prescribed form<sup>3</sup> served on the landlord or the tenant<sup>4</sup> require him to give to the committee, within such period of not less than 14 days from the service of the notice as may be specified in the notice, such further information<sup>5</sup> as it may reasonably require<sup>6</sup>. If any person fails without reasonable cause to comply with any such notice served on him, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>7</sup>. The rent assessment committee must serve on the landlord and on the tenant<sup>8</sup> a notice specifying a period<sup>9</sup> during which either written representations or a request to make oral representations may be made by the landlord or the tenant to the committee<sup>10</sup>. Where, within that specified period or such further period as the committee may allow, the landlord or the tenant requests to make oral representations, the committee must give him an opportunity to be heard<sup>11</sup>.

As the determination of a fair rent involves a matter of public interest, there is no unilateral, unqualified right to withdraw an objection to a rent officer's determination on which the reference to the rent assessment committee is based; but, if the rent assessment committee is satisfied that it is proper to do so, it may permit an objection to be withdrawn on the agreement of both landlord and tenant<sup>12</sup>.

If it appears to the committee<sup>13</sup> that the rent registered or confirmed by the rent officer is a fair rent, it must confirm that rent<sup>14</sup> but, if not, it must determine a fair rent for the dwelling house<sup>15</sup> and, in each case, must notify the landlord, the tenant and the rent officer of the decision and of the date on which it was made<sup>16</sup>. On receiving the notification, the rent officer must, as the case may be, either indicate in the register that the rent has been confirmed or register the rent determined by the committee as the rent for the dwelling house<sup>17</sup>.

918 Reference to a rent assessment committee

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(ii) Applications for Registration/919. Procedure before a rent assessment committee.

919. Procedure before a rent assessment committee.

A hearing<sup>1</sup> by a rent assessment committee<sup>2</sup> must be in public unless, for special reasons, the committee otherwise decides<sup>3</sup>, and must be on such date and at such time as the committee appoints<sup>4</sup>, not less than ten days' notice<sup>5</sup> of which must be given to the landlord and the tenant<sup>6</sup> by the committee<sup>7</sup>. At the hearing the parties<sup>8</sup> must be heard in such order as the committee determines<sup>9</sup>; and a party may call witnesses, give evidence and cross-examine witnesses called by the other party<sup>10</sup>.

Where the reference<sup>11</sup> is to be subject to a hearing, the committee must take all reasonable steps to ensure that there is supplied to each of the parties before the date of the hearing:

- 1806 (1) a copy of, or sufficient extracts from or particulars of, any document relevant to the reference which has been received from the rent officer or from a party, other than a document which is in the possession of such party, or of which he has previously been supplied with a copy by the rent officer; and
- 1807 (2) a copy of any document which embodies the results of any inquiries made by or for the committee for the purposes of that reference, or which contains relevant information<sup>12</sup> in relation to fair rents previously determined for other dwelling houses, which has been prepared for the committee for the purposes of that reference<sup>13</sup>; and, where at any hearing a document relevant to the reference is not in the possession of a party present at that hearing, and that party has not been supplied with a copy of, or sufficient extracts from or particulars of, that document by the rent officer or by the committee<sup>14</sup>, then, unless that party consents to the continuation of the hearing, or the committee considers that that party has a sufficient opportunity of dealing with that document without an adjournment of the hearing, the committee must adjourn the hearing for a period which it considers will afford that party a sufficient opportunity of dealing with that document<sup>15</sup>.

Where the reference is not to be subject to a hearing, the committee must supply to each of the parties a copy of, or sufficient extracts from or particulars of, any such document as is mentioned in head (1) above<sup>16</sup> and a copy of any such document as is mentioned in head (2) above, and the committee must not reach its decision until it is satisfied that each party has been given a sufficient opportunity of commenting upon any document of which a copy, or from which extracts or of which particulars, has or have been so supplied, and upon the other's case<sup>17</sup>.

Subject to any necessary consent being obtained, the committee may of its own motion, and must at the request of one of the parties, inspect the dwelling house which is the subject of the reference<sup>18</sup>. Such an inspection may be made before, during or after the close of the hearing<sup>19</sup>, or at such stage in relation to the consideration of the written representations as the committee decides, and it must give to the parties and their representatives an opportunity to attend<sup>20</sup>.

The committee's decision on a reference must be recorded in a document signed by the chairman<sup>21</sup>, which must contain no reference to the decision being by a majority, if that is the case, or to any opinion of a minority<sup>22</sup>. A copy of the document and of any certificate under the chairman's hand<sup>23</sup> correcting any clerical or accidental error or omission in it<sup>24</sup> must be sent by the committee to the parties and to the rent officer<sup>25</sup>. Where the committee is requested, on or before the giving or notification of the decision, to state the reasons for the decision, those reasons must be recorded in a document<sup>26</sup> to which the above provisions<sup>27</sup> apply<sup>28</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'hearing' means the meeting or meetings of a rent assessment committee to hear oral representations made in relation to a reference: Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 2(2). For the meaning of 'reference' see note 11 infra.

2 For these purposes, 'committee' means a rent assessment committee constituted under the Rent Act 1977 s 65, Sch 10 (as amended) (see PARA 910 ante) to which a reference is made, but does not include a rent assessment committee carrying out the functions conferred on it by: (1) the Housing Act 1980 s 72 (functions of rent tribunals: see PARA 988 post) or s 142 (as amended) (leasehold valuation tribunals: see PARA 1530 post); or (2) by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 31A (as added and repealed) (jurisdiction of leasehold valuation tribunal); or (3) by the Landlord and Tenant Act 1987 s 13 (as substituted) (determination of questions by leasehold valuation tribunal: see PARA 1776 post) or s 24A (as added and repealed) (jurisdiction of leasehold valuation tribunal) or s 31 (as amended) (determination of terms by leasehold valuation tribunal: see PARA 1789 post) or (4) by the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993 s 75 (as amended) (see PARA 1504 post), s 88 (as amended) (see PARA 1531 post) or s 91 (as amended) (jurisdiction of leasehold valuation tribunals: see PARA 1743 post): Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 2(2) (definition substituted by SI 1997/1854).

Rent assessment committees, residential property tribunals and leasehold valuation tribunals have now been brought together under one umbrella service, known as the Residential Property Tribunal Service. As to residential property tribunals see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 187-188.

3 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 3(1). Nothing in the regulations prevents a member of the Council on Tribunals in that capacity from attending any hearing: reg 3(1). As to the Council on Tribunals see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 55 et seq.

4 Ibid reg 3(2). The committee at its discretion may of its own motion, or at the request of the parties, or one of them, at any time and from time to time postpone or adjourn a hearing; but it may not do so at the request of one party only unless, having regard to the grounds on which and the time at which such request is made and to the convenience of the parties, it deems it reasonable to do so: reg 8. Such notice of any postponed or adjourned hearing as is reasonable in the circumstances must be given to the parties by the committee: reg 8. As to the giving of notice see note 7 infra. See also R v Rent Assessment Committee for London, ex p Ellis-Rees (1982) 262 Estates Gazette 1298 (tenants' request for adjournment in order to enable them to be represented by counsel of their choice was refused; not an improper exercise of the committee's discretion); Malekout v London Rent Assessment Committee [2006] EWHC 884 (Admin), [2006] All ER (D) 309 (Mar) (domiciliary hearing offered to claimant as a solution to his alleged inability to attend the hearing and the site inspection on the same day because of ill health, but he rejected that offer because he did not want the hearing to take place; accordingly, the committee was entitled to refuse to grant a further adjournment).

5 The notice may be given not less than seven days before the date of the hearing if that date has been referred to in the notice given under the Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 para 7(1)(b) (as amended) (see PARA 918 ante) or under Sch 12 para 9(1) (repealed) or the Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 2A(2) (as added and amended) (see PARAS 1088, 1256 post) as the date when the hearing would be held if a request to make oral representations were to be made: reg 3(4) (added by SI 1981/1783; amended by SI 1988/2200).

6 Where the reference was an application for a certificate of fair rent under the Rent Act 1977 Sch 12 para 7 (repealed), the notice was to be given to the applicant and, in a case to which Sch 12 para 11 (repealed) applied, to the tenant; and, where the reference was an application supported by certificate of fair rent referred pursuant to Sch 11 para 11 (repealed with savings), the notice was to be given to the applicant: Rent Assessment Committee (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 3(3)(a), (b) (substituted by SI 1980/1699). As to the former right to apply for a certificate of fair rent see PARA 915 the text and notes 17-19 ante.

7 Rent Assessment Committee (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 3(3) (substituted by SI 1980/1699; amended by SI 1981/1783). Where any notice or other written matter is required under the provisions of the Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065 (as amended) to be given or supplied by the committee, including any such matter to be supplied to a party for the purposes of a reference to which reg 6 applies, it is sufficient compliance with those regulations if such notice or matter is sent by post in a prepaid letter and addressed to the party for whom it is intended at his usual or last known address, or, if that party has appointed an agent to act on his behalf in relation to the reference, to that agent at the address of the agent supplied to the committee: reg 11. See Dundon v Kenna (1981) 261 Estates Gazette 367. For the meaning of 'reference' see note 11 infra.

8 For these purposes, 'party' means, where a reference is subject to a hearing, any person who is entitled under the Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 3(3) (as substituted and amended) to notice of the hearing, and, in a case where a reference is not to be subject to a hearing, any person entitled to make written representations to the committee: reg 2(2). For the purpose of any provision relating to procedure at a hearing, any reference to a party is to be construed as including a reference to a person authorised by a party to make oral representations on his behalf: see reg 2(3) (amended by SI 1988/2200).

9 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 4(a). If a party does not appear at a hearing, the committee, on being satisfied that the statutory requirements regarding the giving of notice of hearings have been duly complied with, may proceed to deal with the reference upon the representations of any party present and upon the documents and information which it may properly consider: reg 9. See Dundon v Kenna (1981) 261 Estates Gazette 367.

10 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 4(b). Subject to the provisions of the Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065 (as amended), the procedure is such as the committee may determine: reg 4(a).

11 For these purposes, 'reference' means a matter or application, as the case may be, which is referred by a rent officer to a rent assessment committee under the Rent Act 1977 Sch 11 (as amended) or was so referred under Sch 12 (repealed) or which is referred or made under the Housing Act 1988 s 6 (see PARAS 1069-1070 post), s 13 (as amended) (see PARA 1091 post), s 14A (as added) (certain interim increases before 1 April 1994) or s 22 (as amended) (see PARAS 1096-1098 post), or which is referred under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 6(2) (see PARA 1253 post) or Sch 10 para 10(2) (see PARA 1255 post): Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 2(2) (definition amended by SI 1988/2200; SI 1990/427; SI 1993/653); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(a).

12 I.e. including information in relation to the terms, including rent, of assured tenancies or assured agricultural occupancies of other dwelling houses where such tenancies or occupancies have been the subject of a reference to the committee. For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 post; and for the meaning of 'assured agricultural occupancy' see PARA 1183 post.

13 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 5(1) (amended by SI 1988/2200).

14 I.e. in accordance with the Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 5(1) (as amended).

15 Ibid reg 5(2).

18 Ibid reg 7(1). Notice of the inspection must be given as though it were a notice of hearing, save that the requirements for notice may be dispensed with or relaxed in so far as the committee is satisfied that the parties have received sufficient notice: reg 7(3).

19 Where an inspection is made after the close of a hearing, the committee must, if it considers it expedient to do so on account of any matter arising from the inspection, reopen the hearing; and, if the hearing is to be reopened ibid reg 3(3) (as substituted and amended) applies as it applies to the original hearing save in so far as its requirements may be dispensed with or relaxed with the consent of the parties: reg 7(4). The practice varies from one committee to another as to whether it inspects before or after any hearing.

20 Ibid reg 7(2). See also R v Bristol Rent Assessment Committee, ex p Dunworth (1987) 19 HLR 351, [1987] 1 EGLR 102.

21 In the event of the chairman's absence or incapacity, the document may be signed by another member of the committee: Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) Regulations 1971, SI 1971/1065, reg 10(1).

22 Ibid reg 10(1) (amended by SI 1981/1783). The committee's determination may be a majority decision: Picea Holdings Ltd v London Rent Assessment Panel [1971] 2 QB 216, [1971] 2 All ER 805, DC.

23 Or, in the event of his absence or incapacity, under the hand of either of the other members of the committee.

919 Procedure before a rent assessment committee

TEXT AND NOTE 3--SI 1974/1065 reg 3(1) amended: SI 2008/2683.

920. Judicial review and appeals.

Judicial review will lie against a rent officer or a rent assessment committee in appropriate cases<sup>1</sup>; and the rules of natural justice apply to hearings before a rent assessment committee<sup>2</sup>. The committee is, however, entitled to take into account matters within its own knowledge, as distinct from specific evidential material, without putting those matters to the parties for comment, and in such a case there will be no breach of the rules of natural justice<sup>3</sup>.

If any party to proceedings before such a committee is dissatisfied in point of law with its decision, he may appeal from it to the High Court<sup>4</sup> or require the committee to state a case for the opinion of the High Court<sup>5</sup>. It is the duty of a rent assessment committee to furnish a statement, either written or oral, of the reasons for its decision if requested, on or before the giving or notification of the decision, to do so<sup>6</sup>.

1 For examples of orders sought against rent officers see Regis Property Co Ltd v Camden Rent Officer [1967] EGD 752 (see PARA 917 note 13 ante); R v Westminster (City) London Borough Council Rent Officer, ex p Rendall [1973] QB 959, [1973] 3 All ER 119, CA (see PARA 916 note 2 ante); R v Brighton Rent Officers, ex p Elliott (1975) 29 P & CR 456, DC (see PARA 917 note 16 ante); R v Brent London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Ganatra [1976] QB 576, [1976] 1 All ER 849, DC (see PARA 916 notes 6, 8-10 ante); R v Kensington and Chelsea (Royal) London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Noel [1978] QB 1, [1977] 1 All ER 356, DC (see PARA 916 note 2 ante); R v Lambeth Rent Officer, ex p Fox (1977) 35 P & CR 65, DC (see PARA 917 note 1 ante); R v Rent Officer for Camden, ex p Ebiri [1981] 1 All ER 950 [1981] 1 WLR 881, DC; R v Rent Officer for London Borough of Camden, ex p Plant (1980) 7 HLR 15, [1981] 1 EGLR 73, DC (see PARA 916 note 3 ante); R v Rent Officer of the Nottinghamshire Registration Area, ex p Allen (1985) 52 P & CR 41, 17 HLR 481 (see PARA 821 note 14 ante); R v Chief Rent Officer for Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea, ex p Moberley (1986) 18 HLR 189, [1986] 1 EGLR 168, CA (see PARA 915 note 7 ante).

The court to which matters of jurisdiction should be referred when the rent officer finds them too difficult or is ordered to take them to court is the county court; the Divisional Court may be stricter in the application of the rules affecting judicial review if the court gets too much work which is really appropriate to county courts: see R v Kensington and Chelsea (Royal) London Borough Rent Officer, ex p Noel supra at 10 and at 363 per Lord Widgery CJ. The procedure on an application for judicial review is now governed by CPR Pt 54; as to the caution to be exercised in applying pre-CPR authorities see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 33. The fact that the county court has no power to order deletion of entries in the rent register should not encourage applications to the High Court; the solution is prompt challenge to the rent officer's findings before the entries are made; registration can then be delayed until the question can be determined in the county court: R v Rent Officer of the Nottinghamshire Registration Area, ex p Allen supra. Otherwise, the practice is to allow the entry to remain on the register with the rent officer's indorsement against it that there is no jurisdiction to act on it: see R v Rent Officer of the Nottinghamshire Registration Area, ex p Allen supra. For examples of orders sought against rent assessment committees see the cases cited in PARA 921 post. See also PARA 993 post; and as to judicial review see JUDICIAL REVIEW.

The test for bias in a member of a rent assessment committee is, irrespective of actual bias, whether there could be any reasonable suspicion of bias on his part: R v London Rent Assessment Panel Committee, ex p Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd supra.

As to the procedure see CPR Sch 1 RSC Ord 94 r 8; and as to statutory appeals see generally CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1684. An appeal under the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 is an alternative to a challenge of a decision of a rent assessment committee by way of judicial review. As to the advantages of the latter see Ellis & Sons Fourth Amalgamated Properties Ltd v Southern Rent Assessment Panel (1984) 270 Estates Gazette 39 at 40 per Mann J; cf R v Rent Officer for the London Borough of Camden, ex p Felix (1988) 21 HLR 34, [1988] 2 EGLR 132; R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Chelmsford Building Co Ltd [1986] 1 EGLR 175.

Proper adequate reasons must be given; these must be intelligible and deal with the substantial points that have been raised, although they are not necessarily deficient merely because every process of reasoning is not set out or merely because they fail to deal with every point raised before the committee at the hearing: see Re Poyser and Mills' Arbitration [1964] 2 QB 467, [1963] 1 All ER 612; Mountview Court Properties Ltd v Devlin (1970) 21 P & CR 689, DC; Guppys Properties Ltd v Knott (No 3) (1981) 1 HLR 30, 258 Estates Gazette 1083. It has been held to be sufficient if the committee states that, in the exercise of its skill and judgment, it prefers one method of valuation to another; it does not have to say why it has this preference: Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Laufer (1974) 29 P & CR 172, DC; Guppys Properties Ltd v Knott, Guppys Properties Ltd v Strutt (1977) 245 Estates Gazette 1023, DC; Wareing v White supra; R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Chelmsford Building Co Ltd supra. The committee should, however, make clear its decision; it is less than helpful for it merely to say that it was reached after full consideration of all the factors involved: see Albyn Properties Ltd v Knox 1977 SC

921. Determination of fair rent.

- 1808 (1) the age, character<sup>6</sup>, locality<sup>7</sup> and state of repair<sup>8</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>9</sup>;
- 1809 (2) if any furniture is provided for use under the tenancy, the quantity, quality and condition of the furniture<sup>10</sup>; and
- 1810 (3) any premium<sup>11</sup>, or sum in the nature of a premium, which has been or may be lawfully required or received on the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of the tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

In any case where the landlord<sup>13</sup> or a superior landlord is liable<sup>14</sup> to pay council tax in respect of a hereditament<sup>15</sup> ('the relevant hereditament') of which the dwelling house forms part, regard must also be had to the amount of council tax which, as at the date on which the application to the rent officer was made, was set by the billing authority<sup>16</sup> for the financial year in which that application was made and for the category of dwellings<sup>17</sup> within which the relevant hereditament fell on that date<sup>18</sup>.

The rent officer and the rent assessment committee may consider registered rents for comparable properties, the capital value of the dwelling house with vacant possession and all other facts which are relevant according to the general principles of valuation<sup>19</sup>. In determining a fair rent, it must be assumed that the number of persons seeking to become tenants of similar dwelling houses in the locality<sup>20</sup> on the terms of the regulated tenancy<sup>21</sup> is not substantially greater than the number of such dwelling houses in the locality which are available for letting on such terms<sup>22</sup>.

There must be disregarded in the determination:

- 1811 (a) any disrepair or other defect attributable to a failure by the tenant<sup>23</sup> or any predecessor in title of his<sup>24</sup> under the regulated tenancy to comply with its terms<sup>25</sup>;
- 1812 (b) any improvement<sup>26</sup> carried out otherwise than in pursuance of the terms of the tenancy by the tenant or any predecessor in title of his<sup>27</sup> under the regulated tenancy<sup>28</sup>; and
- 1813 (c) if any furniture is provided for use under the regulated tenancy, any improvement to the furniture by the tenant or any predecessor in title of his<sup>29</sup> under the regulated tenancy or, as the case may be, any deterioration in the condition of the furniture due to any ill-treatment by the tenant, any person residing or lodging with him, or any subtenant of his<sup>30</sup>.

Any discount or other reduction affecting the amount of council tax payable must also be<sup>31</sup> disregarded<sup>32</sup>.

1 These words presumably refer to a future regulated tenancy when the application was for a certificate of fair rent under the Rent Act 1977 s 69 (repealed). As to the former right to apply for a certificate of fair rent see PARA 915 the text and notes 17-19 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante. The provisions of ibid s 70 (as amended) also apply to housing association tenancies and references in s 70 (as amended) to regulated tenancies have effect also as references to housing association tenancies: see s 87(2) (as amended); and PARA 914 note 14 ante. For the meaning of 'housing association tenancy' see PARA 905 ante. As to the application of s 70 (as amended) to previously controlled tenancies converted to regulated tenancies by statute see s 18A (as added), Sch 17 para 6; and PARA 853 ante.

3 These provisions apply to both rent officers and rent assessment committees. For the meaning of 'rent officer' see PARA 911 note 6 ante; and as to rent assessment committees see PARA 910 ante.

4 Where the dwelling house is the subject of a housing association tenancy, the fact that the tenant has no legal security of tenure is not a relevant consideration: Palmer v Peabody Trust [1975] QB 604, [1974] 3 All ER 355, DC. If scarcity of housing is to be disregarded under the Rent Act 1977 s 70(2) (see the text and notes 20-21 infra), so too is security of tenure: Palmer v Peabody Trust supra. The terms of the tenancy are clearly relevant: see the Rent Act 1977 ss 66(2)(a), 67(3)(b); and PARAS 914-915 ante. The quantity and quality of the services provided by the landlord for the tenant are also relevant: see ss 47(1)(a), 71(1), (4)(a) (as amended); and PARA 897 ante, PARA 922 post. It is the estimated value to the tenant and not the actual cost to the landlord which should be taken into account: Metropolitan Properties Co Ltd v Noble [1968] 2 All ER 313, [1968] 1 WLR 838, DC (value to the tenant less than the cost to the landlord of inefficient central heating and a rental of a porter's flat). It appears that there should be an allowance for depreciation in respect of machinery and equipment necessary for the provision of the services, not being fixtures or fittings in the demised premises: Regis Property Co Ltd v Dudley [1958] 1 QB 346, [1958] 1 All ER 510, CA; affd [1959] AC 370, [1958] 3 All ER 491, HL. The landlord may be allowed a profit on the provision of services: Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd v Lannon [1968] 1 All ER 354, [1968] 1 WLR 815, DC (revsd on another ground sub nom R v London Rent Assessment Panel Committee, ex p Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd [1969] 1 QB 577, sub nom Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd v Lannon [1968] 3 All ER 304, CA). For a useful illustration of how a rent assessment committee approaches this problem see De Caewe v Northern and London Investment Trust Ltd (the 'St Stephens Close case') (1967) 202 Estates Gazette 473. See also Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd v Good (1981) 260 Estates Gazette 67; R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Cliftyville Properties Ltd [1983] 1 EGLR 100, (1983) 266 Estates Gazette 44. A rent assessment committee may calculate installation costs of machinery from its own experience: Property Holding and Investment Trust Ltd v Lewis (1969) 20 P & CR 808, DC. The committee is not obliged in every case to take into account inflation during the period the rent will be registered, but it may be reflected in the treatment of previous registered rents as comparables: Metropolitan Properties Co (FGC) Ltd v Lannon supra; Guppy's (Bridport) Ltd v Carpenter (1973) 228 Estates Gazette 1919, DC; Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Laufer (1974) 29 P & CR 172, DC; Palmer v Peabody Trust supra. The general level of wages may be a relevant circumstance: Guppy's (Birdport) Ltd v Carpenter supra. The effect of phasing under the Rent Act 1977 s 55 (repealed with savings) was to be disregarded in determining a fair rent: Midanbury Properties (Southampton) Ltd v Houghton, T Clark & Son Ltd v Heathfield (1981) 259 Estates Gazette 565.

5 Rent Act 1977 s 70(1). The tenant's right to possession as a statutory tenant is a personal circumstance and, therefore, the relevant capital value of the premises is their value with vacant possession: Mason v Skilling [1974] 3 All ER 977, [1974] 1 WLR 1437, HL. The receipt of grant aid by a landlord is also a personal circumstance which must be disregarded: Royal British Legion Housing Association Ltd v East Midlands Rent Assessment Panel (1989) 21 HLR 482, [1989] 1 EGLR 131.

6 The correct approach is to have regard to the actual use of the house at the time of consideration: Stephens v Rowland (1974) 231 Estates Gazette 1415, DC.

7 In Palmer v Peabody Trust [1975] QB 604, [1974] 3 All ER 355, DC, the court declined to lay down criteria for 'the locality', and held that the committee could have regard to comparables in whatever area it regarded helpful. The test for scarcity under the Rent Act 1977 s 70(2) is to be applied over 'a really large area': Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Finegold [1975] 1 All ER 389, [1975] 1 WLR 349, DC.

8 See note 24 infra. The fact that a closing order had been made under the Housing Act 1985 did not mean that a nil or nominal rent should be registered but was a relevant circumstance: Williams v Khan (1981) 258 Estates Gazette 554, CA (a decision concerning the Rent Act 1977 s 72 (as originally enacted)). Closing orders have now been replaced by prohibition orders under the Housing Act 2004 s 33: see PARA 944 post; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 399.

9 Rent Act 1977 s 70(1)(a) (amended by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 24(3), Sch 12 Pt I).

10 Rent Act 1977 s 70(1)(b). In determining a fair rent for furnished premises a rent assessment committee need not first determine a fair rent for the premises unfurnished and then secondly add a sum in respect of furniture; it may determine one rent taking all the circumstances into account: Campbell v Gardner (1976) 238 Estates Gazette 115, DC. Furniture may be provided for use under the tenancy notwithstanding that at the tenant's request the furniture is not physically on the premises: R v London Rent Assessment Panel, ex p Mota (1987) 20 HLR 159, [1988] 1 EGLR 89.

11 For these purposes, 'premium' has the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 Pt IX (ss 119-128) (as amended) (see PARA 926 post); and 'sum in the nature of a premium' means (1) any such loan as is mentioned in s 119 (as amended) (see PARA 931 post) or s 120 (as amended) (see PARA 928 post); (2) any such excess over the reasonable price of furniture as is mentioned in s 123 (see PARA 927 post); and (3) any such advance payment of rent as is mentioned in s 126 (as amended) (see PARA 935 post): s 70(4A) (added by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 17(3)).

12 Rent Act 1977 s 70(1)(c) (added by Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 17(2)). The Rent Act 1977 s 70(1)(c) (as so added) applies to any decision made by a rent officer or rent assessment committee after 7 January 1987 notwithstanding that the application was made prior to that date. In the case of a decision of the rent assessment committee this provision applies notwithstanding that the rent officer's decision was made before 7 January 1987: see the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 17(4).

13 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

14 Ie under the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-69) (as amended): see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX.

15 For these purposes, 'hereditament' means a dwelling within the meaning of ibid Pt I (ss 1-69) (as amended) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 232): Rent Act 1977 s 70(3B)(a) (s 70(3A), (3B) added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 6).

16 For these purposes, 'billing authority' has the same meaning as in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (as amended) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 229): Rent Act 1977 s 70(3B)(b) (as added: see note 15 supra).

17 For these purposes, 'category of dwellings' has the same meaning as in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 30(1), (2) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 260): Rent Act 1977 s 70(3B)(c) (as added: see note 15 supra).

18 Ibid s 70(3A) (as added: see note 15 supra). For transitional provisions see the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993 art 1(2)(a).

19 Mason v Skilling [1974] 3 All ER 977, [1974] 1 WLR 1437, HL. A fair rent must be fair to the landlord as well as fair to the tenant, and it may be regarded as fair to the landlord that he should have a fair return on his capital: Mason v Skilling supra. Any appreciation in the capital value of the landlord's investment in the property should not, however, be taken into account in determining a fair rent: Midanbury Properties (Southampton) Ltd v Houghton, T Clark & Son Ltd v Heathfield (1981) 259 Estates Gazette 565. For illustrations of and discussion of various valuation methods see R v Brighton and Area Rent Tribunal, ex p Marine Parade Estates (1936) Ltd [1950] 2 KB 410, [1950] 1 All ER 946, DC (rent based on capital value not conclusive; a rent tribunal case); Crofton Investment Trust Ltd v Greater London Rent Assessment Committee [1967] 2 QB 955, [1967] 2 All ER 1103, DC (use of contractor's method of valuation of modern site cost plus cost of construction); Anglo-Italian Properties Ltd v London Rent Assessment Panel [1969] 2 All ER 1128, [1969] 1 WLR 730, DC (rent to be 10% of cost of purchasing premises plus cost of conversion: an acceptable but novel approach); Tormes Property Co Ltd v Landau [1971] 1 QB 261, [1970] 3 All ER 653, DC (committee's preference for use of comparables not wrong); see also Learmonth Property Investment Co Ltd v Aitken [1971] RVR 689. The committee should act on the evidence before it; it may act on its own knowledge and experience and is entitled to take a broad overall picture; it may reject unchallenged expert evidence before it and determine a rent in the light of its own knowledge and experience: Cubes Ltd v Heaps (1970) 215 Estates Gazette 579, DC. the identification of a market rent as a starting point, there is normally no need to refer to registered fair rent comparables at all); Northumberland and Durham Property Trust Ltd v Chairman of London Rent Assessment Committee and Bullock (1998) 30 HLR 1091, sub nom Northumberland and Durham Property Trust Ltd v Chairman of London Rent Assessment Committee (No 2) [1998] 2 EGLR 99; Spath Holme Ltd v Chairman of the North Western Rent Assessment Committee [2001] EWHC Admin 541, [2003] HLR 133, [2001] All ER (D) 138 (Jul) (hypothetical market is an open market in regulated tenancies, and a landlord, in such a market, will face voids and letting costs to a similar extent as for assured tenancies).

20 A 'locality' is a really large or substantial area: Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Finegold [1975] 1 All ER 389, [1975] 1 WLR 349, DC. The identification of the area is a matter for the rent assessment committee and, while having regard to the parties' submissions, it should determine the area for itself: Northumberland and Durham Property Trust Ltd v Chairman of London Rent Assessment Committee and Bullock (1998) 30 HLR 1091, sub nom Northumberland and Durham Property Trust Ltd v London Rent Assessment Committee (No 2) [1998] 2 EGLR 99. Although the concept of locality is elusive, it will generally be a much larger area for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 70(2) than that appropriate and relevant to the assessment of market rent under s 70(1); it must be sufficiently large to give effect to the statutory purpose: Queensway Housing Association Ltd v Chiltern, Thames and Eastern Rent Assessment Committee (1998) 31 HLR 945, [1998] All ER (D) 543.

21 le other than those relating to rent.

22 Rent Act 1977 s 70(2). This provision is designed to eliminate any element in the fair rent based on an increase in rents due to a housing shortage: Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Finegold [1975] 1 All ER 389, [1975] 1 WLR 349, DC. The committee need not quantify any element of scarcity value which it has deducted: Metropolitan Property Holdings Ltd v Laufer (1974) 29 P & CR 172, DC. Certain methods of valuation do not leave any room for a deduction for scarcity: Anglo-Italian Properties Ltd v London Rent Assessment Panel [1969] 2 All ER 1128, [1969] 1 WLR 730, DC (cited in note 19 supra). See also Batt v London City and Westcliff Properties Ltd (1967) 111 Sol Jo 684; Western Heritable Investment Co Ltd v Husband [1983] 2 AC 849, [1983] 3 All ER 65, HL; Queensway Housing Association Ltd v Chiltern, Thames and Eastern Rent Assessment Committee (1998) 31 HLR 945, [1998] All ER (D) 543; Yeoman's Row Management Ltd v London Rent Assessment Committee [2002] EWHC 835 (Admin), [2002] All ER (D) 148 (Apr). Local housing authority lists are not totally irrelevant in determining scarcity since a high demand for public sector housing may have an indirect effect on the private market, but they should be used with caution: Forebury Estates Ltd v Chairwoman of the Chiltern Thames and Eastern Rent Assessment Panel (2000) 33 HLR 718, (2000) Times, 11 July.

23 In relation to a controlled tenancy converted into a regulated tenancy by statute, this reference to the tenant includes references to the tenant under the tenancy before the conversion: see PARA 853 ante at head (3) in the text.

25 Rent Act 1977 s 70(3)(a). There is authority for saying that the state of repair in s 70(1) (as amended) should be judged at the effective date of registration of the rent: Nicoll v First National Developments Ltd (1972) 226 Estates Gazette 301, DC. The terms of the tenancy must be regarded even though the landlord may be in breach of a repairing covenant: see R v Hampstead and St Pancras Furnished Houses Rent Tribunal, ex p Ascot Lodge Ltd [1947] KB 973, [1947] 2 All ER 12, DC. The landlord's failure to enforce the tenant's repairing covenants should not be taken into account against the landlord: Metropolitan Properties Co Ltd v Wooldridge (1969) 20 P & CR 64, DC. There must be evidence of breach of covenant or negligence by the tenant: McGee v London Rent Assessment Panel Committee (1969) 113 Sol Jo 384, DC. Conversely any enhancement in the condition of the premises by the tenant which is not an improvement within the Rent Act 1977 s 70(3)(b) must be regarded: see Mackie v Gallagher 1967 SC 59, Ct of Sess. In the application of the Rent Act 1977 s 70 (as amended) in relation to a housing association tenancy converted into a regulated tenancy by statute or a statutory tenancy imposed by virtue of s 92(4), Sch 14 para 1 (see PARA 886 ante), the reference in s 70(3)(a), (b) to a failure to comply with any terms of a regulated tenancy or to carrying out an improvement includes a reference to a failure occurring or an improvement carried out before the tenancy became a regulated tenancy or, as the case may be, before the statutory tenancy was imposed: Sch 14 para 7.

26 For these purposes, 'improvement' includes the replacement of any fixture and fitting: ibid s 70(4). See also s 75(1); and PARA 915 note 12 ante. This overrules the actual decision in Mackie v Gallagher 1967 SC 59, Ct of Sess.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(iii) Registration; Effect and Cancellation/922. Amount to be registered as rent.

(iii) Registration; Effect and Cancellation

922. Amount to be registered as rent.

Where an application for the registration of a new rent in respect of a dwelling house is made after 1 February 1999<sup>1</sup> and, on the date of that application, there is an existing registered rent<sup>2</sup> in respect of that dwelling house, then, subject to the prescribed exceptions<sup>3</sup>, the amount to be registered as the rent of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> must not exceed the maximum fair rent calculated in accordance with the prescribed formula<sup>5</sup>. In applying this restriction, however, no account is to be taken of any variable sum to be included in the registered rent in accordance with the provisions as to services, maintenance and repair<sup>6</sup> set out below<sup>7</sup>; and the restriction does not apply in respect of a dwelling house if because of a change in the condition of the dwelling house or the common parts<sup>8</sup> as a result of repairs or improvements<sup>9</sup> carried out by the landlord or a superior landlord, the rent that is determined in response to an application for registration of a new rent<sup>10</sup> exceeds by at least 15% the previous rent registered or confirmed<sup>11</sup>.

The amount to be registered as the rent of a dwelling house must include any sums payable by the tenant<sup>12</sup> to the landlord<sup>13</sup> in respect of council tax or for use of furniture or for services, whether or not those sums are separate from the sums payable for the occupation of the dwelling house or are payable under separate agreements<sup>14</sup>. In order to assist authorities to give effect to the housing benefit scheme<sup>15</sup> where a rent is registered, there must be noted on the register the amount, if any, of the registered rent which, in the opinion of the rent officer<sup>16</sup> or rent assessment committee<sup>17</sup>, is fairly attributable to the provision of services, except any amount which is negligible in the opinion of the officer or, as the case may be, the committee<sup>18</sup>.

Where any rates<sup>19</sup> in respect of a dwelling house<sup>20</sup> are borne by the landlord or a superior landlord, the amount to be registered as the rent of the dwelling house is the same as if the rates were not so borne; but the fact they are so borne must be noted on the register<sup>21</sup>. In such a case the amount of the rates for any rental period<sup>22</sup> must be added to the rent limit<sup>23</sup>; and, if the rental period is a statutory period<sup>24</sup>, the rates are recoverable without service of a notice of increase in addition to the sums otherwise recoverable from the tenant<sup>25</sup>.

Where, under a regulated tenancy<sup>26</sup>, the sums payable by the tenant to the landlord include any sums varying according to the cost from time to time of any services provided by the landlord or a superior landlord, or any works of maintenance or repair carried out by the landlord or a superior landlord, the amount to be registered as rent may, if the rent officer or, as the case may be, the rent assessment committee is satisfied that the terms as to the variation are reasonable, be entered as an amount variable in accordance with those terms<sup>27</sup>.

923. Effect of registration of rent.

If the rent for the time being registered is confirmed by the rent officer, the confirmation takes effect from the date when it is noted in the register<sup>5</sup>; and, if it is confirmed by the rent assessment committee, the confirmation takes effect from the date when the committee makes its decision<sup>6</sup>. If, however, the landlord applies<sup>7</sup> within the last three months of the two-year period from the relevant date<sup>8</sup> and the resulting registration of a rent for the dwelling house, or confirmation of the rent for the time being registered, would otherwise take effect before the expiry of that period, it takes effect on the expiry of that period<sup>9</sup>.

The date from which the registration or confirmation of a rent takes effect must be entered in the register<sup>10</sup>; and as from the date on which the registration of a rent takes effect any previous registration of a rent for the dwelling house ceases to have effect<sup>11</sup>.

Where a valid notice of increase<sup>12</sup> has been served on a tenant<sup>13</sup> and, in consequence of the registration of a rent, part but not the whole of the increase specified in the notice becomes irrecoverable from the tenant, the registration does not invalidate the notice, but the notice has effect, as from the date from which the registration takes effect, as if it specified such part only of the increase as has not become irrecoverable<sup>14</sup>.

A registered rent operates in relation to the property rather than in relation to the particular tenant<sup>15</sup>.

1 The Rent Act 1977 s 72 (substituted by the Housing Act 1980 s 61(1)) also applies to housing association tenancies: see the Rent Act 1977 s 87(2) (as amended); and PARA 914 note 14 ante. There is, however, a special provision for housing association tenancies for a registration before 1 January 1973; in these circumstances the registration takes effect from that date: s 155(3), Sch 24 para 11. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(4) REGISTRATION OF RENT/(iii) Registration; Effect and Cancellation/924. Cancellation of registration of rent.

924. Cancellation of registration of rent.

An application for the cancellation of the registration<sup>1</sup> of a rent for a dwelling house may be made either:

1814 (1) where a rent agreement<sup>2</sup> as respects the dwelling house takes effect, or is to take effect, after the expiration of the period of two years<sup>3</sup> beginning with the relevant date<sup>4</sup>, and the period for which the tenancy has effect cannot end, or be brought to an end<sup>5</sup> by the landlord<sup>6</sup>, earlier than 12 months after the date of the application<sup>7</sup>, and the application is made jointly by the landlord and the tenant<sup>8</sup> under the rent agreement<sup>9</sup>; or

1815 (2) where not less than two years have elapsed since the relevant date<sup>10</sup>, and the dwelling house is not for the time being subject to a regulated tenancy<sup>11</sup>, and the application is made by the person who would be the landlord if the dwelling house were let on such a tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

The rent agreement may be one providing that the agreement is not to take effect unless the application for the cancellation of registration is granted<sup>13</sup>.

The application must be in the prescribed form<sup>14</sup> and must contain the prescribed particulars<sup>15</sup>, and, in the case of an application under head (1) above, must be accompanied by a copy of the rent agreement<sup>16</sup>.

If the application is made under head (1) above and the rent officer is satisfied<sup>17</sup> that the rent<sup>18</sup> payable under the rent agreement does not exceed a fair rent<sup>19</sup> for the dwelling house, he must cancel the registration, and he must also cancel the registration if the application is made under head (2) above<sup>20</sup>.

A cancellation made in pursuance of an application under head (1) above does not take effect until the date when the agreement takes effect; and, if the cancellation is registered before that date, the date on which it is to take effect must be noted on the register<sup>21</sup>.

The rent officer must notify the applicants of his decision to grant or refuse an application for cancellation<sup>22</sup>. Any cancellation is without prejudice to a further registration of a rent at any time after cancellation<sup>23</sup>.

1     Ie a registration under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended): see PARA 905 et seq ante. Section 73 (as amended) does not apply to a housing association tenancy: see s 87(2) (as amended); and PARA 914 note 14 ante. For the meaning of 'housing association tenancy' see PARA 905 ante.

2     For these purposes, 'rent agreement' means an agreement increasing the rent payable under a protected tenancy which is a regulated tenancy, or, where a regulated tenancy is terminated and a new regulated tenancy is granted at a rent exceeding the rent under the previous tenancy, the grant of the new tenancy: ibid s 73(9). This is not the same as 'a rent agreement with a tenant having security of tenure': see PARA 898 ante. For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante; and for the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

3     Where, on the determination or confirmation of a rent by the rent officer, the rent determined by him was registered, or his confirmation was noted in the register, before 28 November 1980 the period was three years: ibid s 73(1)(a) (as originally enacted); Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 40.

17    If, after making such inquiry, if any, as he thinks fit and considering any information supplied to him, the rent officer is not so satisfied, he must serve a notice on the landlord and on the tenant informing them that he proposes, at a specified time (not less than seven days after the service of the notice) and place, to consider in consultation with them, or such of them as appear, whether the registration of the rent for the dwelling house should be cancelled: Rent Regulation (Cancellation of Registration of Rent) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1698, regs 3, 4(1). At any such consultation the landlord and the tenant may each be represented by a person authorised by him in that behalf, whether or not of counsel or a solicitor: reg 4(2). The rent officer may not reach his decision until after such consideration: reg 4(3). Where he considers it appropriate, he may arrange for consultation in respect of more than one such application to be held together with consultations in respect of one or more other applications: reg 4(4). As to the service of notices see note 22 infra.

19 As to the determination of a fair rent see ibid s 70 (as amended), s 70A (as added); and PARA 921 ante. Where the application is made under s 73(1) (as amended) and under the terms of the rent agreement the sums payable by the tenant to the landlord include any sums varying according to the cost from time to time of any services provided by the landlord or a superior landlord, or of any works of maintenance or repair carried out by the landlord or a superior landlord, the rent officer must not cancel the registration unless he is satisfied that those terms are reasonable: s 73(5) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 62(5)). ## (5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS

(i) Nature and Scope of the Restrictions

925. In general.

Rent regulation would be of little value to tenants if they could be required to pay capital sums, however disguised, for their tenancies in addition to the rent; and it would no more accord with the policy of the Rent Acts if outgoing tenants could profit from rent restriction by charging a premium to an incoming tenant<sup>1</sup>. The following conduct is, therefore, prohibited:

- 1816 (1) the requiring of a premium or loan as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup>;
- 1817 (2) the receiving of a premium in connection with any such transaction<sup>3</sup>;
- 1818 (3) the offering of furniture for sale at an excessive price in connection with any such transaction<sup>4</sup>;

- 1819 (4) the requiring of a premium as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of rights under a restricted contract where the rent is registered<sup>5</sup>;
- 1820 (5) the requirement of payment of rent too far in advance<sup>6</sup>;
- 1821 (6) the requiring or receiving from anybody but the landlord of any sum by a statutory tenant for giving up possession<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1822 (7) the requiring of any pecuniary consideration for entering into an agreement for the transfer of a statutory tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

It is an offence to do any of these prohibited acts, and money received in contravention of these provisions is recoverable by the payer<sup>9</sup>.

Certain long tenancies are, however, excluded from the operation of these provisions<sup>10</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(i) Nature and Scope of the Restrictions/926. Meaning of 'premium'.

926. Meaning of 'premium'.

'Premium' includes:

- 1823 (1) any fine or other like sum<sup>1</sup>;
- 1824 (2) any other pecuniary consideration in addition to rent<sup>2</sup>; and
- 1825 (3) any sum paid by way of a deposit<sup>3</sup>, other than one which does not exceed one-sixth of the annual rent and is reasonable in relation to the potential liability in respect of which it is paid<sup>4</sup>.

'Premium' has been judicially defined as a cash payment made to the landlord and representing, or supposed to represent, the capital value of the difference between the actual rent and the best rent that might otherwise be obtained<sup>5</sup>. It is now settled, however, that a payment made to a third person to the order of the landlord is a premium for these purposes<sup>6</sup>. 'Pecuniary consideration' includes any consideration sounding or expressed in terms of money by which there is a benefit to the landlord or a detriment to the tenant; but the particular means adopted of passing the consideration is not significant<sup>7</sup>. It would seem that a requirement by a landlord that a tenant should contribute to repairs for which the tenant is not responsible or that he should buy the goodwill of a business would constitute a premium<sup>8</sup>. It is sometimes difficult to distinguish between a payment of a premium and a payment of rent in advance. Each case must be decided on its own facts and the substance of the transaction must be regarded, not the name given to the payment<sup>9</sup>.

PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(i) Nature and Scope of the Restrictions/927. Excessive price for furniture etc.

927. Excessive price for furniture etc.

Where the purchase of any furniture<sup>1</sup> is required as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of a protected tenancy<sup>2</sup> or of rights under a restricted contract<sup>3</sup> which relates to premises<sup>4</sup> for which a rent is registered, then, if the price exceeds the reasonable price of the furniture, the excess is to be treated<sup>5</sup> as if it were a premium required to be paid as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of the protected tenancy or, as the case may be, the rights under the restricted contract<sup>6</sup>.

Where a statutory tenant<sup>7</sup> of a dwelling house requires that furniture or other articles be purchased as a condition of his giving up possession of the dwelling house, the price demanded must, at the request of the person on whom the demand is made, be stated in writing and, if the price exceeds the reasonable price of the articles, the excess is to be treated<sup>8</sup> as a sum asked to be paid as a condition of giving up possession<sup>9</sup>. The reasonable price is the price that it would be reasonable to expect a willing incoming tenant to pay to a willing outgoing tenant. It is not necessarily the market value, but the desire of the incoming tenant to obtain the tenancy cannot be taken into account<sup>10</sup>.

928. Loans.

The statutory provisions which prohibit the requiring of a premium as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of a tenancy<sup>1</sup> and the provision relating to the punishment of persons contravening the prohibitions<sup>2</sup>, apply to requiring the making of any loan, whether secured or unsecured, as they apply to requiring the payment of a premium in addition to rent<sup>3</sup>. Nothing in those provisions, however, invalidates any agreement for the making of a loan, or any security issued in pursuance of such an agreement, but any sum lent in circumstances involving a contravention of the prohibition is, notwithstanding anything in the agreement for the loan, repayable to the lender on demand<sup>4</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(i) Nature and Scope of the Restrictions/929. Exclusion of certain long tenancies.

929. Exclusion of certain long tenancies.

Where a tenancy<sup>1</sup> is both a long tenancy<sup>2</sup> and a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup> and the following conditions are satisfied, the provisions as to the prohibition of premiums and similar transactions<sup>4</sup> do not apply and are deemed never to have applied to the tenancy<sup>5</sup>. If the premium is received or required to be paid, or the loan is required to be made, after 15 January 1989<sup>6</sup>, the conditions which must be satisfied are that:

1826 (1) the landlord<sup>7</sup> has no power to determine the tenancy<sup>8</sup> at any time within 20 years beginning on the date on which it was granted<sup>9</sup>; and 1827 (2) the terms of the tenancy do not inhibit both the assignment and the underletting of the whole of the premises comprised in the tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

If, however, the premium was received or required to be paid, or the loan was required to be made, on or before that date, the conditions which must be satisfied are that:

1828 (a) the tenancy is not, and cannot become, terminable within 20 years of the date when it was granted by notice given to the tenant<sup>11</sup>;

1829 (b) unless the tenancy was granted before 25 July 1969 or was granted under statutory provisions as to extension of long leaseholds<sup>12</sup>, the sums payable by the tenant otherwise than in respect of rates<sup>13</sup>, service, repairs, maintenance or insurance are not, under the terms of the tenancy, varied or liable to be varied within 20 years of the date when it was granted, except in certain circumstances<sup>14</sup>, nor thereafter, more than once in any 21 years<sup>15</sup>; and 1830 (c) the terms of the tenancy do not inhibit both the assignment and the underletting of the whole of the premises comprised in the tenancy<sup>16</sup>.

If any of these conditions is not satisfied, certain other provisions<sup>17</sup> as to the permissible amount of premium apply<sup>18</sup>.

In the case of premiums or loans paid before 15 January 1989 in respect of tenancies granted after 15 July 1980 which satisfy the following conditions more frequent rent reviews are permitted<sup>19</sup>. The conditions are:

- 1831 (i) that at the time when it was granted the tenancy was at a low rent<sup>20</sup>; and
- 1832 (ii) that its terms ensure that any variation of the sums payable by the tenant otherwise than in respect of rates, services, repairs or maintenance cannot lead to those sums exceeding an annual rate of two-thirds of the rateable value<sup>21</sup> of the dwelling house at the date when the variation is made<sup>22</sup>.

An unprotected tenancy granted before 1 April 1990 in consideration of a low rent and a premium may become a protected tenancy by reason of the operation of a rent review clause. This is because, in order to determine whether the rent is 'low', the rent for the time being (which may vary) has to be compared with the rateable value on 'the appropriate day' (which is fixed): see PARAS 861, 862 note 11 ante.

For the purposes of this condition there is to be disregarded any term of the tenancy which inhibits assignment and underletting only during a period which is or falls within the final seven years of the term for which the tenancy was granted: s 127(2) (as so substituted). The terms of a tenancy inhibit an assignment or underletting if they (1) preclude it; or (2) permit it subject to a consent but exclude the Law of Property Act 1925 s 144 (no payment in nature of fine: see PARA 485 ante); or (3) permit it subject to a consent but require in connection with a request for consent the making of an offer to surrender the tenancy: Rent Act 1977 s 127(5) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 78(1), (3); the Housing Act 1988 s 115(1), (3)).

In such cases the Rent Act 1977 s 127 (as amended) has effect as if, in relation to that tenancy, for the words '20 years' and '21 years' in s 127(2)(b), (3) (as originally enacted: see notes 15, 14 respectively supra) there were substituted, respectively, the words 'six years' and 'seven years': s 127(3C) (as so added and repealed).

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(i) Nature and Scope of the Restrictions/930. Exclusion of certain tenancies granted at a premium before 16 July 1980.

930. Exclusion of certain tenancies granted at a premium before 16 July 1980.

If the following conditions are satisfied in respect of a tenancy<sup>1</sup>, the provisions relating to the prohibition of premiums and similar transactions<sup>2</sup> do not apply and are deemed never to have applied to it<sup>3</sup>. The conditions are that:

- 1833 (1) the tenancy was granted before 16 July 1980<sup>4</sup>;
- 1834 (2) a premium<sup>5</sup> was lawfully required and paid on the grant<sup>6</sup> of the tenancy<sup>7</sup>;
- 1835 (3) the tenancy was, at the time when it was granted, a tenancy at a low rent<sup>8</sup>;
- 1836 (4) the terms of the tenancy do not inhibit<sup>9</sup> both the assignment and the underletting of the whole of the premises comprised in the tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

The object of this provision is to remedy a widespread injustice caused by conveyancers having overlooked the fact that a tenancy which reserved a low rent at the date of the grant could nevertheless become a protected tenancy<sup>11</sup> at a later date by virtue of either the operation of a provision enabling the ground rent to be reviewed or, in the case of a short tenancy, by virtue of a rise in the service charge<sup>12</sup>.

(ii) Prohibitions, Penalties and Recovery

931. Premiums on grant, renewal or continuance of protected tenancy.

Any person<sup>1</sup> who either:

- 1837 (1) as a condition of the grant, renewal or continuance<sup>2</sup> of a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup>, requires<sup>4</sup>, in addition to the rent, the payment<sup>5</sup> of any premium<sup>6</sup> or the making of any loan, whether secured or unsecured<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1838 (2) in connection with the grant, renewal or continuance of a protected tenancy, receives any premium in addition to the rent<sup>8</sup>,

is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>9</sup>. The court by which a person is convicted of such an offence relating to requiring or receiving any premium may order the amount of the premium to be repaid to the person by whom it was paid<sup>10</sup>.

A landlord will not be criminally liable in respect of a premium demanded by an agent acting outside the scope of his express or implied authority<sup>11</sup>, but will be liable to repay any premium (as opposed to a bribe destined for the agent's own pocket) taken by his agent acting in the course of his employment<sup>12</sup>. A tenancy is not void for illegality merely because an unlawful premium is taken<sup>13</sup> and specific performance may be ordered of a contract to grant or assign a lease at an unlawful premium without the payment of the premium by the purchaser<sup>14</sup>. The prohibition applies whether or not the house in question was already subject to a protected tenancy at the time when the premium was required<sup>15</sup>.

1 The words 'any person' are wide enough to include not only landlords and potential landlords but also outgoing tenants, agents and middlemen: Farrell v Alexander [1977] AC 59, [1976] 2 All ER 721, HL (outgoing tenant received an excessive price for furniture in consideration for surrendering the tenancy and procuring the grant of a new lease to the incoming tenant). 3 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

4 A landlord does not infringe this provision by receiving a premium which he has not been proved to have required as a precondition of granting the tenancy: Woods v Wise [1955] 2 QB 29, [1955] 1 All ER 767, CA. The Rent Act 1965 s 37 (repealed: see now the Rent Act 1977 s 119(2)), therefore, introduced the further offence of receiving a premium in connection with the grant etc: see Farrell v Alexander [1977] AC 59 at 80, [1976] 2 All ER 721 at 731-732, HL, per Viscount Dilhorne.

5 Payment need not be in cash; the release of the landlord from a debt or a sale of property to a third person at an undervalue counts as payment: Elmdene Estates Ltd v White [1960] AC 528, [1960] 1 All ER 306, HL.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(ii) Prohibitions, Penalties and Recovery/932. Premiums on assignment.

932. Premiums on assignment.

Subject to certain exceptions<sup>1</sup>, any person<sup>2</sup> who either:

- 1839 (1) as a condition of the assignment of a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup>, requires<sup>4</sup> the payment of any premium<sup>5</sup> or the making of any loan, whether secured or unsecured<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1840 (2) in connection with the assignment of a protected tenancy receives any premium<sup>7</sup>, is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>8</sup>. The court by which a person is convicted of such an offence relating to requiring or receiving any premium may order the amount of the premium, or so much of it as cannot lawfully be required or received<sup>9</sup>, to be repaid to the person by whom it was paid<sup>10</sup>.

Notwithstanding these provisions, however, an assignor of a protected tenancy of a dwelling house may, if he would otherwise be entitled to do so<sup>11</sup>, require the payment by the assignee or receive from him a payment:

- 1841 (a) of so much of any outgoings discharged by the assignor as is referable to any period after the assignment takes effect<sup>12</sup>;
- 1842 (b) of a sum not exceeding the amount of any expenditure reasonably incurred by the assignor in carrying out any structural alteration of the dwelling house or in providing or improving fixtures therein, being fixtures which as against the landlord he is not entitled to remove<sup>13</sup>;
- 1843 (c) where the assignor became a tenant of the dwelling house by virtue of an assignment of the protected tenancy, of a sum not exceeding any reasonable amount paid by him to his assignor in respect of expenditure incurred by that assignor, or by any previous assignor of the tenancy, in carrying out any such alteration or in providing or improving any such fixture as is mentioned in head (b) above<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1844 (d) where part of the dwelling house is used as a shop or office, or for business, trade or professional purposes, of a reasonable amount in respect of any goodwill of the business, trade or profession, being goodwill transferred to the assignee in connection with the assignment or accruing to him in consequence thereof<sup>15</sup>.

Without prejudice to a person's right to require or receive lawful payments<sup>16</sup>, the assignor is not guilty of an offence by reason only that:

- 1845 (i) any payment of outgoings required or received by him on an assignment was a payment of outgoings referable to a period before the assignment took effect<sup>17</sup>; or
- 1846 (ii) any expenditure which he incurred in carrying out structural alterations of the dwelling house, or in providing or improving fixtures therein, being expenditure in respect of which he required the payment of any sum on the assignment of a tenancy of the dwelling house, was not reasonably incurred<sup>18</sup>; or
- 1847 (iii) any sum paid by him<sup>19</sup> to a previous assignor in respect of structural alterations or fixtures was not a reasonable amount<sup>20</sup>; or
- 1848 (iv) any amount which he required to be paid or which he received on any assignment in respect of goodwill was not a reasonable amount<sup>21</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(5) PREMIUMS, LOANS AND PROHIBITED REQUIREMENTS/(ii) Prohibitions, Penalties and Recovery/933. Excessive price for furniture etc.

933. Excessive price for furniture etc.

Any person who, in connection with the proposed grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> on terms which require the purchase of furniture<sup>2</sup>:

- 1849 (1) offers the furniture at a price which he knows or ought to know is unreasonably high, or otherwise seeks to obtain such a price for the furniture<sup>3</sup>; or
- 1850 (2) fails to furnish, to any person seeking to obtain or retain accommodation whom he provides with particulars of the tenancy, a written inventory of the furniture specifying the price sought for each item<sup>4</sup>, is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>5</sup>.

Where a local authority<sup>6</sup> has reasonable grounds for suspecting that an offence under head (1) above has been committed with respect to a protected tenancy or proposed protected tenancy of a dwelling house, it may give notice to the person entitled to possession of it or his agent that on such date as may be specified in the notice, which must be not earlier than 24 hours after the giving of the notice or, if the dwelling house is unoccupied, the expiry of such period after the giving of the notice as may be reasonable in the circumstances, facilities will be required for entry to the dwelling house and inspection of the furniture there<sup>7</sup>. Where such a notice is given, any person authorised by the local authority may avail himself of any facilities for such entry and inspection provided on the specified date<sup>8</sup>.

If it is shown to the satisfaction of a justice of the peace on sworn information in writing that a person required to give facilities has failed to give them, the justice may by warrant under his hand empower the local authority, by any person authorised by it, to enter the dwelling house in question, if need be by force, and inspect the furniture therein<sup>9</sup>. Any person who wilfully obstructs a person acting in pursuance of a warrant so issued is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>10</sup>.

A person empowered by or under these provisions to enter a dwelling house may take with him such other persons as may be necessary; and, if the dwelling house is unoccupied, he must leave it as effectively secured against trespassers as he found it<sup>11</sup>.

Where under any agreement<sup>1</sup> any premium is paid<sup>2</sup> and the whole or any part of it could not lawfully be required or received<sup>3</sup>, the amount of the premium or, as the case may be, so much of it as could not lawfully be required or received, is recoverable by the person by whom it was paid<sup>4</sup>. An unlawful loan is repayable to the lender on demand<sup>5</sup>. The county court has jurisdiction irrespective of the amount claimed<sup>6</sup>. The limitation period for the recovery of an unlawful premium is six years from the date when the cause of action accrued<sup>7</sup>.

Where a rent tribunal on an application made to it<sup>8</sup> before 2 June 1950 certified<sup>9</sup> that a premium had been paid before 2 June 1949 in respect of the grant, continuance or renewal of the tenancy, the tenant was entitled to deduct the rental equivalent<sup>10</sup> of the premium from the rent fixed by the tribunal up to the relevant date<sup>11</sup>. In the rare case where the term current at the date of such an application still subsists, the tenant can still recover the premium by instalments by deduction from the recoverable rent<sup>12</sup>.

935. Rent in advance.

Where a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is a regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup> is granted, continued or renewed, any requirement (a 'prohibited requirement') that rent is to be payable before the beginning of the rental period<sup>3</sup> in respect of which it is payable, or earlier than six months before the end of that period, if that period is more than six months, is void, whether the requirement is imposed as a condition of the grant, renewal or continuance of the tenancy or under the terms of it<sup>4</sup>. Any person who purports to impose any prohibited requirement is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; and the court by which he is convicted may order any amount of rent paid in compliance with such a requirement to be repaid to the person by whom it was paid<sup>5</sup>.

Rent for any rental period to which a prohibited requirement relates is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>6</sup>; and, where a tenant has paid any such amount on account of rent, he is entitled to recover it from the landlord<sup>7</sup> who received it or his personal representatives<sup>8</sup>. Without prejudice to any other method of recovery, any amount which a tenant is entitled so to recover may be deducted by the tenant from any rent payable by him to the landlord<sup>9</sup>; but no such amount is recoverable at any time after the expiry of two years from the date of payment<sup>10</sup>.

Any person who in any rent book or similar document makes an entry showing or purporting to show any tenant as being in arrears in respect of any sum on account of rent which is irrecoverable by virtue of the above provisions is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale unless he proves that, at the time of the making of the entry, the landlord had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>11</sup>.

If, where any such entry has been made by or on behalf of the landlord, the landlord, on being requested by or on behalf of the tenant to do so, refuses or neglects to cause the entry to be deleted within seven days, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale unless he proves that at the time of the refusal or neglect he had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>12</sup>.

936. In general.

In three cases<sup>1</sup> where a lawful premium has been paid for the grant of a tenancy the prohibitions on requiring or receiving premiums<sup>2</sup> are modified so as to allow the tenant to take from an assignee a proportion of the premium originally paid. The requiring of a premium originally will have been lawful only if at that date the tenancy was not a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup>, as, for example, because it was at a low rent<sup>4</sup> or the rateable value was too high<sup>5</sup> or the term was too long<sup>6</sup>.

Prior to 8 December 1965<sup>7</sup> it was not unlawful to receive a premium, only to require one as a condition of the grant etc of a tenancy<sup>8</sup>. Moreover, from 6 July 1957<sup>9</sup> to 8 December 1965 the prohibition on requiring premiums applied only to controlled tenancies save that, from 6 July 1957 to 6 July 1960, it also applied to tenancies excluded from control by reason only of the provisions which decontrolled:

- 1851 (1) houses of which the rateable value exceeded certain limits<sup>10</sup>; or
- 1852 (2) tenancies granted after 5 July 1957<sup>11</sup>, or by reason of those provisions and that<sup>12</sup> excluding from control tenancies at low rents<sup>13</sup>.

Where:

- 1853 (1) a premium<sup>1</sup> was lawfully<sup>2</sup> required and paid, or lawfully received, in respect of the grant, renewal or continuance<sup>3</sup> of a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup> of a dwelling house which is a regulated tenancy<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1854 (2) since that grant, renewal or continuance the landlord<sup>6</sup> has not granted a tenancy<sup>7</sup> of the dwelling house under which, as against the landlord, a person became entitled to possession, other than the person who was so entitled to possession of the dwelling house immediately before that tenancy began; and
- 1855 (3) a rent for the dwelling house is registered<sup>8</sup> and the rent so registered is higher than the rent payable under the tenancy, nothing in the statutory prohibition of premiums<sup>9</sup> prevents any person from requiring or receiving, on an assignment of that protected tenancy or any subsequent protected tenancy of the same dwelling house, a premium which does not exceed the permitted amount<sup>10</sup>. That amount is ascertained by applying the statutory formula<sup>11</sup>.

For these purposes, the reference to a premium does not include a premium which consisted only of any such outgoings, sum or amount as an assignor is otherwise<sup>12</sup> permitted to require or receive<sup>13</sup>.

Where any rates in respect of the dwelling house are borne by the landlord or a superior landlord, the amount of the registered rent is taken, for these purposes, to be increased by the amount of the rates so borne in respect of the rental period comprising the date from which the registration took effect: s 120(5), Sch 18 para 4. For the meaning of 'rates' for these purposes see PARA 895 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'rental period' see PARA 853 note 3 ante. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante.

9 I.e. ibid s 120 (as amended): see PARA 932 ante.

10 Ibid Sch 18 paras 1, 2. Schedule 18 Pt I (paras 1-5) has effect notwithstanding anything in s 120(1), (2) (see PARA 932 ante): s 120(5).

11 The statutory formula is  $P \times A \div G$ , where P is the original premium, A is the length of the period beginning on the date on which the assignment in question takes effect and ending on the relevant date and G is the length of the period beginning on the date of the grant, renewal or continuance in respect of which the premium was paid and ending on the relevant date: ibid Sch 18 para 2. For these purposes, any reference to the relevant date is to be construed in accordance with the following provisions: (1) where the tenancy was granted, renewed or continued for a term of years certain exceeding seven years and that term has not expired when the assignment takes effect, the relevant date is the date of the expiry of that term; and (2) in any other case, the relevant date is the date of the expiry of seven years from the commencement of the term or, as the case may be, the renewal or continuance in respect of which the premium was paid: Sch 18 para 5(1)-(3). A term of years is treated as certain notwithstanding that it is liable to determination by re-entry or on the happening of any event other than the giving of notice by the landlord to determine the term; and a term determinable by the landlord giving notice to determine it is treated as a term certain expiring on the earliest date on which such a notice given after the date of the assignment would be capable of taking effect: Sch 18 para 5(4).

If, although the registered rent is higher than the rent payable under the tenancy, the lump sum equivalent of the difference is less than the premium, the statutory formula in Sch 18 para 2 has effect as if P were the lump sum equivalent; and, for these purposes, the lump sum equivalent of the difference between the two rents is taken to be that difference multiplied by the number of complete rental periods falling within the period beginning with the grant, renewal or continuance in respect of which the premium was paid and ending with the relevant date: Sch 18 para 3(1), (2).

12     Ie under ibid s 120(3): see PARA 932 ante.

13     Ibid Sch 18 para 1(2). In the case of a premium which included any such outgoings, sum or other amount, so much only of the premium as does not consist of those outgoings, sum or amount is to be treated as the premium for these purposes: Sch 18 para 1(2). If it were not for this provision, an assignor could make a double charge.

Where a premium<sup>1</sup> was lawfully<sup>2</sup> required and paid on the grant, renewal or continuance<sup>3</sup> or on the assignment<sup>4</sup> of a regulated tenancy<sup>5</sup> which was granted before 8 March 1973 and which would not have been a regulated tenancy but for the increase<sup>6</sup> in the rateable value limits for the purpose of the definition of a protected tenancy<sup>7</sup>, nothing in the statutory prohibition of premiums<sup>8</sup> prevents any person from requiring or receiving, on an assignment of the tenancy, the specified fraction of the premium<sup>9</sup>. However, this entitlement is without prejudice to that person's right to require or receive a greater sum in a case where he may lawfully<sup>10</sup> do so<sup>11</sup>. The specified fraction is X divided by Y, where X is the residue of the term<sup>12</sup> at the date of the assignment and Y is:

- 1856   (1)   where the premium was paid on the grant<sup>13</sup> of the tenancy, the term for which the tenancy was granted<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1857   (2)   where the premium was paid on the assignment of the tenancy, the residue of the term at the date of that assignment<sup>15</sup>.

Where the tenancy was granted on the surrender of a previous tenancy and a premium had been lawfully required and paid on the grant or an assignment of the previous tenancy, the surrender value<sup>16</sup> of the previous tenancy is treated for these purposes as a premium or, as the case may be, as part of the premium paid on the grant of the tenancy<sup>17</sup>.

940. Payment for giving up possession.

A statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house who, as a condition of giving up possession of the dwelling house, asks for or receives the payment of any sum, or the giving of any other consideration, by any person other than the landlord<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>.

Where a statutory tenant of a dwelling house requires that furniture or other articles be purchased as a condition of his giving up possession of a dwelling house, the price demanded must, at the request of the person on whom the demand is made, be stated in writing, and, if the price exceeds the reasonable price<sup>4</sup> of the articles, the excess is to be treated as a sum asked to be paid as a condition of giving up possession<sup>5</sup>.

The court by which a person is convicted of such an offence may order the payment:

1858 (1) to the person who made any such payment or gave any such consideration as a condition of obtaining possession, of the amount of that payment or the value of that consideration; or 1859 (2) to the person who paid any such price for furniture or other articles, of the amount by which the price paid exceeds the reasonable price<sup>6</sup>.

An agreement to exchange flats is invalidated by these provisions since it involves the receipt by the outgoing tenant of consideration other than the money<sup>7</sup>; and it has been said that the charging of rent by a statutory tenant upon a purported subletting of the whole dwelling may be likewise prohibited<sup>8</sup>. An agreement in contravention of these provisions is void for illegality<sup>9</sup> and therefore unenforceable<sup>10</sup>. There are no provisions enabling the payer to recover such a prohibited payment in a civil claim<sup>11</sup>.

941. Payment for transfer of statutory tenancy.

A statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> may not be assigned but may be transferred by written agreement between the outgoing tenant and the incoming tenant to which the landlord is a party<sup>2</sup>. Any person who requires<sup>3</sup> the payment of any pecuniary consideration for entering into such an agreement is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>4</sup>; and the court by which he is convicted may order the amount of the payment to be repaid by the person to whom it was paid<sup>5</sup>. The amount of any such payment is also recoverable by the person by whom it was paid either by proceedings for its recovery or, if it was made to the landlord<sup>6</sup> by a person liable to pay rent to the landlord, by deduction from any rent so payable<sup>7</sup>.

Notwithstanding anything in these provisions, the outgoing tenant<sup>8</sup> may, if he would otherwise be entitled to do so, require the payment by the incoming tenant<sup>9</sup>:

1860 (1) of so much of any outgoings discharged by the outgoing tenant as is referable to any period after the transfer date<sup>10</sup>;

1861 (2) of a sum not exceeding the amount of any expenditure reasonably incurred by the outgoing tenant in carrying out any structural alteration of the dwelling<sup>11</sup> or in providing or improving fixtures therein, being fixtures which, as against the landlord, the outgoing tenant is not entitled to remove;

1862 (3) where the outgoing tenant became a tenant of the dwelling by virtue of an assignment of the previous protected tenancy<sup>12</sup>, of a sum not exceeding any reasonable amount paid by him to his assignor in respect of expenditure incurred by the assignor, or by any previous assignor of the tenancy, in carrying out any such alteration or in providing or improving any such fixtures as are mentioned in head (2) above; or 1863 (4) where part of the dwelling is used as a shop or office, or for business, trade or professional purposes, of a reasonable amount in respect of any goodwill of the business, trade or profession, being goodwill transferred to the incoming tenant in connection with his becoming a statutory tenant of the dwelling or accruing to him in consequence thereof<sup>13</sup>.

(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION

(i) Restrictions on Right to Possession

942. General principles.

In general a court may not make an order for possession of a dwelling house which is for the time being let on a protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> or subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup> unless the court considers it reasonable<sup>3</sup> to make such an order and either:

- 1864 (1) the court is satisfied that suitable alternative accommodation<sup>4</sup> is available for the tenant<sup>5</sup> or will be available for him when the order in question takes effect<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1865 (2) one of the discretionary grounds<sup>7</sup> is established<sup>8</sup>.

If, however, the landlord<sup>9</sup> would otherwise<sup>10</sup> be entitled to recover possession of a dwelling house which is for the time being let on or subject to a regulated tenancy, the court must make an order for possession if one of the mandatory grounds<sup>11</sup> is established<sup>12</sup>.

A landlord may not evict a protected or statutory tenant without recourse to the court<sup>13</sup>. The court may not make a consent order for possession unless it is satisfied either by evidence or by admission by or on behalf of the tenant that he is not entitled to that protection<sup>14</sup>. These restrictions on the right to possession apply notwithstanding any agreement to give up possession<sup>15</sup> but do not prevent an actual surrender<sup>16</sup>. The court has power to suspend or rescind an order for possession or to grant a stay of execution<sup>17</sup>. The restrictions are, however, removed in certain circumstances under housing legislation<sup>18</sup>. A licensee of a statutory tenant enjoys a measure of security in that the court may not order possession against him unless the tenant is joined as a party and an order made against him, so long at least as there is any possibility that the statutory tenancy subsists<sup>19</sup>.

The restrictions do, however, apply against a purchaser of land notwithstanding that the tenant had signed a contract of sale with the purchaser entitling the purchaser to vacant possession: Appleton v Aspin [1988] 1 All ER 904, [1988] 1 WLR 410, CA. In the case of any protected<sup>1</sup> or statutory<sup>2</sup> tenancy which, if it were a tenancy at a low rent<sup>3</sup> and if (where relevant) any earlier tenancy<sup>4</sup> granted to the tenant<sup>5</sup> or to a member of his family had been a tenancy at a low rent, would be a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>6</sup>, the grounds upon which an order for possession may be made are modified<sup>7</sup>. The court may not<sup>8</sup> make an order for possession of a dwelling house which is for the time being let on or subject to such a tenancy unless the court considers it reasonable to make such an order<sup>9</sup> and either one of the specified discretionary grounds is established<sup>10</sup> or the special conditions relating to alternative accommodation<sup>11</sup> are satisfied<sup>12</sup>. If, however, the landlord<sup>13</sup> would otherwise<sup>14</sup> be entitled to recover possession of a dwelling house which is for the time being so let or subject, the court must make an order for possession on any of the mandatory grounds except those relating to the dwelling house being required<sup>15</sup> for an agricultural worker<sup>16</sup>.

944. Exceptions under the housing legislation.

The restrictions on the right to possession of a dwelling house subject to a protected or statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> are removed in the following circumstances:

- 1866 (1) at any time when the dwelling house is overcrowded<sup>2</sup> in such circumstances as to render the occupier guilty of an offence<sup>3</sup>;
- 1867 (2) where possession is sought of a house in respect of which a demolition order or prohibition order has been made<sup>4</sup>;
- 1868 (3) where the house is required to enable a local authority to exercise its powers under any enactment relating to housing<sup>5</sup>;
- 1869 (4) if the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>6</sup> certifies that possession of a house acquired and held by certain authorities for planning purposes is immediately required for those purposes<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to these restrictions see PARA 942 ante.

2 In the meaning of the Housing Act 1985 Pt X (ss 324-344) (as amended): see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 444 et seq.

3 Rent Act 1977 s 101 (substituted by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 ss 4, 5(1), Sch 2 para 35(1), (8), Sch 3 para 3 in a case where the tenant, or statutory tenant, occupies the dwelling house under or by virtue of a tenancy granted on or after 1 April 1986). The Rent Act 1977 s 101 as originally enacted removed protection from overcrowded premises used as a separate dwelling by 'members of the working classes': see Guinness Trust (London Fund) Founded 1890 Registered 1920 v Green [1955] 2 All ER 871, [1955] 1 WLR 872, CA. The relevant date for determining whether a house is overcrowded is the date of the hearing: Zbytniewski v Broughton [1956] 2 QB 673, [1956] 3 All ER 348, CA; Henry Smith's Charity Trustees v Bartosiak-Jentys (1990) 24 HLR 627, [1991] 2 EGLR 276, CA. It seems that overcrowding also deprives an occupier under a restricted contract of the security of tenure afforded him by the deferment of the operation of a notice to quit: see the Rent Act 1977 s 101 (as substituted), s 103 (as amended), s 104; and PARAS 1002-1004 post. As to overcrowding offences and the landlord's rights and duties see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 451-453.

4 See the Housing Act 1985 s 270(3) (as amended); the Housing Act 2004 s 33; and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 399, 419. Where there was a closing order, the landlord was entitled to possession even if the condition of the premises was a result of his breach of contractual or statutory duty: Buswell v Goodwin [1971] 1 All ER 418, [1971] 1 WLR 92, CA. There was no rule requiring a rent officer to register a nil rent because of the coming into force of a closing order: Williams v Khan (1981) 258 Estates Gazette 554, CA. The court had no power to vary or determine a statutory tenancy once a closing order had been made: Johnson v Felton (1994) 27 HLR 265, [1994] EGCS 135, CA. Prior to 1 April 1990, protection was also removed where the owner of a house had given an undertaking that it was not to be used for human habitation: see the Housing Act 1985 s 265 (as originally enacted). Closing orders are now replaced by prohibition orders under the Housing Act 2004: see further HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 387 et seq.

5 See the Housing Act 1985 s 612 (as amended); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 587.

6 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

7 See the Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 ss 144(1), (3), Sch 28 para 10 (as amended); the New Towns Act 1981 s 22 (as amended); the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 242; and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vols 46(2), (3) (Reissue) PARAS 963, 1372, 1472. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(i) Restrictions on Right to Possession/945. Reasonableness.

945. Reasonableness.

In determining whether it is reasonable to make an order for possession the judge is entitled to take into account all the circumstances, as they exist at the date of hearing<sup>1</sup>, in a broad commonsense way<sup>2</sup>. He ought normally, however, to proceed on the assumption that domestic law strikes a fair balance and is compatible with the tenant's Convention rights under the Human Rights Act 1998<sup>3</sup>. Any facts which amount to hardship on landlord or tenant<sup>4</sup> are relevant and so is the conduct of the parties generally<sup>5</sup>. The question is not whether it is reasonable for the landlord to seek possession but whether it is reasonable for the court to grant it<sup>6</sup>. The interests of the public are also relevant<sup>7</sup>. The difficulty of establishing reasonableness will usually be less when alternative accommodation is available than when it is not<sup>8</sup>. The Court of Appeal will overrule the county court on questions of reasonableness only on very strong grounds<sup>9</sup>.

The court must consider the question of reasonableness before ordering possession, and so a default judgment entered without consideration of that issue was formerly held to be a nullity<sup>10</sup>. The rules relating to default judgments<sup>11</sup> do not now apply to possession claims<sup>12</sup>. Nor is summary judgment available in possession proceedings against a tenant whose occupancy is protected under the Rent Act 1977<sup>13</sup>.

945 Reasonableness

NOTE 4--The judge must decide as a question of fact whether it is reasonable to make an order by evaluating the effect on both parties if an order is made and if it is not: Whitehouse v Lee [2009] EWCA Civ 375, [2009] 31 EG 74.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(i) Restrictions on Right to Possession/946. Transitional provisions.

946. Transitional provisions.

There are provisions for giving security to tenants whose unprotected tenancies came to an end before the date of commencement of the Rent Act 1965<sup>1</sup>, the Counter-Inflation Act 1973<sup>2</sup> and the Rent Act 1974<sup>3</sup> but who retained possession beyond those dates and whose tenancies would have been protected tenancies if they had ended after the relevant commencement date. In each case the court was required not to make any order for possession which would not have been made if the tenancy had been protected when it ended, and was given power to rescind or vary any order already made<sup>4</sup>. Such a tenant is deemed to have retained possession as a statutory tenant under a regulated tenancy on the same terms as to rent and otherwise of the previous contractual tenancy as a person who became a statutory tenant on the termination of a protected tenancy<sup>5</sup>. The court has power to vary all or any of the terms of such a statutory tenancy in any way appearing to it to be just and equitable<sup>6</sup>.

2    le 23 March 1973. The Counter-Inflation Act 1973 increased the rateable value limits for protected tenancies: see PARA 855 ante.

3    le 14 August 1974. The Rent Act 1974 made furnished tenancies protected: see PARA 870 ante.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(ii) Suitable Alternative Accommodation/947. Conditions to be satisfied; in general.

(ii) Suitable Alternative Accommodation

947. Conditions to be satisfied; in general.

If it considers it reasonable<sup>1</sup> to do so, the court has power to make an order for possession if it is satisfied that suitable alternative accommodation is available<sup>2</sup> for the tenant, or will be available for him when the order takes effect<sup>3</sup>.

A certificate of the local housing authority<sup>4</sup> for the district<sup>5</sup> in which the dwelling house in question is situated, certifying that the authority will provide suitable alternative accommodation for the tenant by a date specified in the certificate is conclusive evidence that such accommodation will be available for him on that date<sup>6</sup>. Where no such certificate is produced to the court, the alternative accommodation is deemed to be suitable if, and only if<sup>7</sup> it consists of either:

- 1870 (1) premises which are to be let as a separate dwelling<sup>8</sup> such that they will then be let on a protected tenancy<sup>9</sup>, other than one under which the landlord might recover possession on a mandatory ground<sup>10</sup>; or

and, in the opinion of the court, the accommodation fulfils the relevant conditions<sup>12</sup>.

The relevant conditions are that the accommodation is reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>13</sup> as regards proximity to their places of work<sup>14</sup> and either:

- 1872 (a) similar as regards rental and extent to the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided in the neighbourhood by any local housing authority for persons whose needs as regards extent are, in the opinion of the court, similar to those of the tenant and his family<sup>15</sup>; or
- 1873 (b) reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent and character<sup>16</sup>, and that, if any furniture was provided for use under the protected or statutory tenancy in question, furniture is provided for use in the accommodation which is either similar to that so provided or is reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>17</sup>.

The alternative accommodation need not make provision for lodgers<sup>18</sup>, unless, it seems, the lodgers in question can be treated as members of the tenant's family<sup>19</sup>; but the extent to which it will accommodate the tenant's furniture<sup>20</sup> or include a garden for the use of the tenant's children<sup>21</sup> or (probably) a garage<sup>22</sup> is relevant, and all these circumstances may affect the question whether it is reasonable to make the order<sup>23</sup>. Where a tenant is protected for combined dwelling and professional purposes, the alternative accommodation must be suitable for his professional as well as his residential needs<sup>24</sup>. Accommodation is not deemed to be suitable for the needs of a tenant and his family if the result of their occupation of it would be to make it an overcrowded dwelling house for the purposes of housing legislation<sup>25</sup>, or if it would compel the tenant to live with a spouse from whom he or she is judicially separated<sup>26</sup>, or if it would be too large<sup>27</sup>, or the rent would be too high<sup>28</sup>, or if it lacks proper facilities<sup>29</sup>.

Accommodation may be suitable even though it consists of a part of the accommodation comprised in the original tenancy<sup>30</sup>. The court may properly take into account not only the physical character of the accommodation offered but also environmental matters either in relation to suitability to the needs of the tenant as regards its character or in relation to the reasonableness of making an order for possession<sup>31</sup>. In considering the needs of the tenant as regards character it is permissible for the court to look at the environment to which the tenants have become accustomed in their present accommodation and to see how far the new environment differs from that<sup>32</sup>; but 'character' is confined to the character of the property and does not extend to the society of the tenant's friends or to the tenant's cultural interests<sup>33</sup>.

It seems that, where the recoverable rent of the new accommodation is beyond what the tenant can afford, but the landlord offers the accommodation at less than the recoverable rent, the order may include an undertaking restricting his right to increase the rent<sup>34</sup>.

1 As to the test of reasonableness see PARA 945 ante.

2 It is not sufficient that it was available and that the tenant refused it: Kimpson v Markham [1921] 2 KB 157, DC.

3 Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(a). Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 7(2), Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 9; and PARA 1118 post. The accommodation need not be provided by the landlord: Bazalgette v Hampson (1920) 89 LJKB 476. An order may not, however, be made to enable works to be done that will only give suitable alternative accommodation once completed: Akram v Adam [2002] EWCA Civ 1679, [2003] HLR 381, [2002] All ER (D) 68 (Nov). Alternative accommodation belonging to the tenant which is let by him and possession of which cannot be obtained without unreasonable expense or difficulty does not satisfy the test under the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(a): see Amrit Holdings Co Ltd v Shahbakhti [2005] EWCA Civ 339, [2005] HLR 474, [2005] All ER (D) 37 (Mar).

4 For these purposes, 'local housing authority' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Rent Act 1977 s 98(4), Sch 15 Pt IV para 8 (substituted by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 35(1), (12)).

5 For these purposes, 'district', in relation to a local housing authority, has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 8 (as substituted: see note 4 supra).

6 Ibid Sch 15 Pt IV para 3 (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(1), (12)). Any document purporting to be such a certificate and to be signed by the proper officer of the local housing authority must be received in evidence and is deemed to be such a certificate without further proof, unless the contrary is shown: Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 7 (as so amended).

7 Standingford v Probert [1950] 1 KB 377 at 385, [1949] 2 All ER 861 at 866, CA; Sheenan v Cutler [1946] KB 339 at 343, 344, CA; but see Barnard v Towers [1953] 2 All ER 877 at 877, 878, [1953] 1 WLR 1203, CA, per Somervell LJ. The onus is on the landlord to show that the premises are suitable: Neville v Hardy [1921] 1 Ch 404; Andrew v Baker (1946) 175 LT 95, CA.

8 In this connection this normally means premises all under one roof and not separated by another distinct dwelling house (Sheehan v Cutler [1946] KB 339, CA; Selwyn v Hamill [1948] 1 All ER 70, CA); but see Marks v Maxwell (1954) 163 Estates Gazette 406, CA (rooms in different houses but connected). As to the position where the family consists of two subfamilies see Standingford v Probert [1950] 1 KB 377 at 384, [1949] 2 All ER 861 at 865, CA, per Cohen LJ and at 386 and 866 per Evershed MR; Kettering Ironmongers Ltd v Afford (1950) 155 Estates Gazette 180, CA. Alternative accommodation is not suitable if it involves sharing of living accommodation with another occupant (Barnard v Towers [1953] 2 All ER 877, [1953] 1 WLR 1203, CA); see also Sharpe v Nicholls [1945] KB 382, [1945] 2 All ER 55, CA; Cookson v Walsh (1954) 163 Estates Gazette 486, CA (shared use of kitchen); cf Saul v Brooks (1946) 148 Estates Gazette 409, CA (sharing of bathroom and lavatory). In another context a dwelling house may comprise rooms in more than one building: see PARA 821 ante. It seems that a house of which the tenant is the freeholder, even if outside the rateable value limits of the Rent Acts, can be suitable alternative accommodation: Barnard v Towers supra.

9 For the meaning of 'protected tenancy' see PARA 818 ante.

10 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 4(1)(a) (Sch 15 Pt IV para 4(1) amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 58; renumbered by the Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 13(2)). As to the mandatory grounds for possession see PARA 961 et seq post.

11 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 4(1)(b) (as amended and renumbered: see note 10 supra). The security of tenure of a council house is not reasonably equivalent to that afforded in the case of a protected tenancy: Sills v Watkins [1956] 1 QB 250, [1955] 3 All ER 319, CA. Similarly, premises which have been decontrolled by reconstruction are not suitable unless a lease for a substantial period is offered: Scrace v Windust [1955] 2 All ER 104, [1955] 1 WLR 475, CA.

12 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 4(1) (as renumbered: see note 10 supra).

13 It seems that 'family' for these purposes has in general the same meaning as in ibid s 2(1)(b), Sch 1 Pt I (paras 1-11) (as amended) (see PARA 846 ante): Brock v Wollams [1949] 2 KB 388 at 392-393, [1949] 1 All ER 715 at 716, CA. Only persons who are permanently living with the tenant, in the sense that they have made their home with him and have no present intention of making any change, are members of the tenant's family for these purposes: Standingford v Probert [1950] 1 KB 377 at 383, [1949] 2 All ER 861 at 865, CA; Scrace v Windust [1955] 2 All ER 104 at 107, [1955] 1 WLR 475, CA. Quaere whether the needs of the tenant's fiancée have to be taken into account: see Gladyric Ltd v Collinson (1983) 11 HLR 12, [1983] 2 EGLR 98, CA (where the question was raised but left undecided). The needs of a friend living with the tenant but not a member of his family for these purposes are not relevant: see Kavanagh v Lyroudias [1985] 1 All ER 560, (1983) 10 HLR 20, CA. The fact that a tenant receives temporary visits from relations, even though it is not relevant to the suitability of alternative accommodation, may be relevant to the reasonableness of making an order for possession: Smith v Combes (1950) 155 Estates Gazette 334, CA.

14 'Place of work' may be a place for voluntary work: Dakyns v Pace [1948] 1 KB 22. It need not be a building or office, but may be an area: Yewbright Properties Ltd v Stone (1980) 40 P & CR 402, CA.

15 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 5(1)(a) (amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(1), (12)). A certificate of a local housing authority stating (1) the extent of the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided by it to meet the needs of tenants with families of such number as may be specified therein; and (2) the amount of rent charged for dwelling houses affording accommodation of that extent, is conclusive evidence of those facts: Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 5(2) (as so amended). The certificate should state the number of rooms in such accommodation and it is desirable, but not essential, that it should also state their approximate size: see MacDonnell v Daly [1969] 3 All ER 851 at 854, [1969] 1 WLR 1482 at 1487, CA, per Edmund Davies LJ; Jones v Cook [1990] 2 EGLR 108 at 111, CA, per Woolf LJ. The certificate is not conclusive as to suitability or as to whether the alternative accommodation is similar as regards rental and extent: Turner v Keiller 1950 SC 43, Ct of Sess; Hinesman v Read (1946) 148 Estates Gazette 409, CA (existing accommodation at increased rent); Jones v Cook supra. As to the admissibility of certificates see note 6 supra. Environmental considerations which affect the character of a property are of as much relevance for these purposes as they are to the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt IV para 5(1)(b) (see the text and note 16 infra) where they are specifically mentioned: Dawncar Investments Ltd v Plews (1993) 25 HLR 639, [1994] 1 EGLR 141, CA.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(ii) Suitable Alternative Accommodation/948. Special grounds applying to certain agricultural workers.

948. Special grounds applying to certain agricultural workers.

In the case of certain dwelling houses let to agricultural workers<sup>1</sup>, the court may make an order for possession if it considers it reasonable to do so<sup>2</sup> and either of the following discretionary grounds for possession is established<sup>3</sup>.

Where alternative accommodation is not provided or arranged by the housing authority, the court may make an order for possession if it is satisfied that suitable alternative accommodation is available for the tenant or will be available for him when the order for possession takes effect<sup>4</sup>. Accommodation is deemed suitable for these purposes if it consists of:

- 1874 (1) premises which are to be let as a separate dwelling such that they will then be let on a protected tenancy<sup>5</sup>; or
- 1875 (2) premises which are to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which will, in the opinion of the court, afford to the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security afforded<sup>6</sup> in the case of a protected tenancy, and, in the opinion of the court, the accommodation fulfils the specified conditions<sup>7</sup>.

The specified conditions are that the accommodation must be reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>8</sup> as regards proximity to place of work and either:

- 1876 (a) similar as regards rental and extent to the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided in the neighbourhood by the local housing authority<sup>9</sup> for persons whose needs as regards extent are similar to those of the tenant and his family<sup>10</sup>; or
- 1877 (b) reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant, and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent and character<sup>11</sup>;

but for these purposes no account may be taken of accommodation as respects which an offer has been made or notice has been given as mentioned in heads (i) or (ii) below<sup>12</sup>. If any furniture was provided by the landlord for use under the tenancy, furniture must be provided for use in the alternative accommodation which is either similar, or is reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>13</sup>.

Alternatively, the court may make an order for possession if:

- 1878 (i) the local housing authority has made an offer in writing to the tenant of alternative accommodation which appears to it to be suitable, specifying the date when the accommodation will be available and the date, not being less than 14 days from the date of the offer, by which the offer must be accepted; or
- 1879 (ii) the local housing authority has given notice in writing to the tenant that it has received from a person specified in the notice an offer in writing to rehouse the tenant in alternative accommodation which appears to it to be suitable, and the notice specifies both the date when the accommodation will be available and the date, not being less than 14 days from the date when the notice was given to the tenant, by which the offer must be accepted<sup>14</sup>, and the landlord shows that the tenant:

- 1880 (A) accepted the offer by the housing authority or other person within the time duly specified in the offer; or
- 1881 (B) did not so accept the offer, and the tenant does not satisfy the court that he acted reasonably in failing to accept the offer<sup>15</sup>.

The accommodation offered must, in the opinion of the court, be reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards proximity to place of work<sup>16</sup> and to the means of the tenant and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent<sup>17</sup>.

8 Accommodation is not deemed to be suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family if the result of their occupation of the accommodation would be that it would be an overcrowded dwelling house for the purposes of the Housing Act 1985 Pt X (ss 324-344) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 444 et seq): Rent Act 1977 Sch 16, Case I para 4 (Sch 16, Case I paras 3-5 amended, and Sch 16, Case I para 7 substituted, by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 35(1), (13)). For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 947 note 13 ante.

9 For these purposes, 'the local housing authority' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Rent Act 1977 Sch 16, Case I para 7 (as substituted: see note 8 supra).

10 For these purposes, a certificate of the local housing authority stating (1) the extent of the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided by the authority to meet the needs of tenants with families of such number as may be specified in the certificate; and (2) the amount of the rent charged by the local housing authority for dwelling houses affording accommodation of that extent, is conclusive evidence of the facts so stated: ibid Sch 16, Case I para 3(2) (as amended: see note 8 supra). Any document purporting to be a certificate of the local housing authority issued for these purposes and to be signed by the proper officer of the authority is receivable in evidence and is deemed to be such a certificate without further proof unless the contrary is shown: Sch 16, Case I para 5 (as so amended).

If the accommodation offered is available for a limited period only, the local housing authority's offer or notice must contain an assurance that other accommodation the availability of which is not so limited, which appears to the authority to be suitable, and which fulfils the conditions in the Rent Act 1977 Sch 16, Case II para 3 (see the text and notes 16-17 infra) will be offered to the tenant as soon as practicable: Sch 16, Case II para 4 (as so amended).

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/949. Case 1: non-payment of rent or breach of obligation.

(iii) Discretionary Grounds for Possession

949. Case 1: non-payment of rent or breach of obligation.

The court may make an order for possession<sup>1</sup> without proof of alternative accommodation, if it considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where any rent lawfully due from the tenant<sup>3</sup> has not been paid<sup>4</sup>. The material date is the date when proceedings are commenced, and a tender of the arrears before that date will defeat the claim<sup>5</sup>. A tender of the arrears or payment into court after the proceedings have been commenced does not prevent the court from making an order, as, for example, where there has been a long history of default<sup>6</sup>. The normal order, where there are still arrears at the date of the hearing, is an order for possession suspended so long as the current rent is paid and a further sum paid off the arrears<sup>7</sup>. Rent is lawfully due when the day for payment arrives, even if the landlord has habitually accepted late payment, unless the circumstances give rise to an estoppel or show that the terms have been varied<sup>8</sup>. An order cannot be made on the ground of default by the tenant's predecessor in title<sup>9</sup>. The landlord's failure to supply a proper rent book does not prevent the rent being lawfully due<sup>10</sup>, although failure to furnish the tenant with an address for the landlord to enable notices to be served on the landlord will do so<sup>11</sup>.

An order for possession may also be so made where any obligation of the tenancy<sup>12</sup> has been broken or not performed<sup>13</sup>. The landlord may not rely on this ground if he has waived the breach, but acceptance of rent with knowledge of the breach does not necessarily bar the landlord's claim<sup>14</sup>. If, however, the landlord has to rely on a forfeiture to put an end to the contractual tenancy, acceptance of rent, where the breach is not a continuing one, is dangerous and in any event the tenant or a subtenant may be able to obtain relief<sup>15</sup>.

If he is to escape the consequences of a breach of covenant to repair and decorate, the onus is on the tenant to show that the dilapidation of the premises is within an exception in the tenancy agreement as to fair wear and tear<sup>16</sup>. It seems that the court is not confined to considering the state of facts at the hearing, but has jurisdiction to make an order for possession if there has been a breach before then<sup>17</sup>.

Cohabitation by an unmarried couple is not a breach of a term that the premises should not be used for immoral purposes<sup>18</sup>. A tenant is not in breach of a term not to permit a nuisance unless he has authorised the nuisance or abstained from taking reasonable steps to prevent the nuisance where it is within his power to prevent it<sup>19</sup>.

4 Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(b), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 1. Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 7(2), Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 10; and PARA 1119 post. For the purposes of the statutory provisions for the protection of persons serving in the reserve and auxiliary forces of the Crown which render the leave of the court necessary for the enforcement of a judgment or order for the recovery of possession of land in default of payment of rent (see the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 ss 2(3)-(5), 3, 4(1); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 82 et seq), a judgment or order for the recovery of possession of a dwelling house let on or subject to a protected or statutory tenancy is deemed to be a judgment or order for the recovery of the dwelling house in default of payment of rent if the court in giving or making the judgment or order was exercising the power conferred by the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt I, Case 1, on the sole ground that rent lawfully due from the tenant had not been paid and was not exercising any other power conferred by that Schedule: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 4(2) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 2). Where a lease creating a protected tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 provides for re-entry in the event of the tenant's bankruptcy, and the tenant is made bankrupt after becoming a statutory tenant, that bankruptcy constitutes the breach or non-performance of an obligation of the previous protected tenancy applicable to the statutory tenancy and therefore provides grounds for possession: Cadogan Estates Ltd v McMahon [2001] 1 AC 378, [2000] 4 All ER 897, HL.

Where a statutory tenancy arises on the termination of a long tenancy under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 6 (as amended) (see PARA

Case 2: nuisance or annoyance or conviction for illegal or immoral user.

950. Case 2: nuisance or annoyance or conviction for illegal or immoral user.

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation, if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where the tenant<sup>3</sup> or any person residing or lodging with him or any subtenant of his has been guilty of conduct which is a nuisance<sup>4</sup> or annoyance<sup>5</sup> to adjoining occupiers<sup>6</sup>. Such an order may be made notwithstanding that the nuisance has been abated by the trial date<sup>7</sup>.

An order for possession may also be so made where the tenant or any person residing or lodging with him or any subtenant of his has been convicted of using the dwelling house or allowing it to be used for immoral or illegal purposes<sup>8</sup>. The premises must have been used for the purpose of committing the crime and not merely have been the scene of it. User of the premises need not, however, be an essential ingredient in the offence or be referred to in the charge<sup>9</sup> nor need there be continuous or repeated user<sup>10</sup>; but the court must look at the circumstances very carefully before an isolated finding on a single occasion is held to constitute proof of user<sup>11</sup>.

2 As to the test of reasonableness see PARA 945 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

4 It has been held that 'nuisance' means a common law nuisance (see NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 109 et seq) and does not include a statutory nuisance: see Timmis v Pearson [1934] LJNCCR 115.

5 'Annoyance' would cover anything that would disturb the reasonable peace of mind of an ordinary sensible person even though it might not amount to physical detriment to comfort: Tod-Heatly v Benham (1888) 40 ChD 80 at 98, CA. It may include annoyance due to prostitution (Frederick Platts Co Ltd v Grigor [1950] 1 All ER 941n, CA; Yates v Morris [1951] 1 KB 77, [1950] 2 All ER 577, CA); but normally the fact that a man is living on the premises with his cohabitant would not be enough (Hodson v Jones [1951] WN 127 at 128, CA). It also includes creation of noise or dust to a degree less than that required to constitute a nuisance: Chapman v Hughes (1923) 39 TLR 260 at 261; and see Cobstone Investments Ltd v Maxim [1985] QB 140, [1984] 2 All ER 635, CA (use of abusive or obscene language). 6 Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(b), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 2. As to the restriction of the application of Sch 15 Pt I, Case 2 where a statutory tenancy arises on the termination of a long tenancy see PARA 949 note 13 ante. Cf the Housing Act 1988 s 7(2), Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 14 (as substituted): see PARA 1123 post. 'Adjoining' in this context means 'neighbouring' rather than 'contiguous': Cobstone Investments Ltd v Maxim [1985] QB 140, [1984] 2 All ER 635, CA. Annoyance of the landlord as such is not within this ground unless the landlord is an adjoining occupier: Liffen v France (1952) 102 L Jo 583, CA; and see Whitbread v Ward (1952) 159 Estates Gazette 494. See also Taylor v Smith (1946) 90 Sol Jo 294; cf Knapp v Swanson (1945) 89 Sol Jo 20. A tenant's subtenant is not, it seems, an adjoining occupier, and in proceedings by the landlord against the tenant a subtenant's evidence has been held inadmissible: Chester v Empson [1949] CLY 3397. The evidence of a subtenant has, however, been admitted in corroboration of that of an adjoining occupier: Cox v Goldsmith (1949) 154 Estates Gazette 4.

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation, if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where:

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation, if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where the tenant<sup>3</sup> has given notice to quit and, in consequence of that notice, the landlord<sup>4</sup> has contracted to sell or let<sup>5</sup> the dwelling house or has taken any other steps as the result of which he would, in the court's opinion, be seriously prejudiced if he could not obtain possession<sup>6</sup>.

It is not sufficient that the tenant should have agreed to give up possession unless his agreement can be construed as a notice to quit<sup>7</sup>.

954. Case 6: assignment or subletting of whole premises.

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation, if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where the tenant<sup>3</sup> has, without the landlord's<sup>4</sup> consent, at any time after:

- 1886 (1) 22 March 1973 in the case of a tenancy which became a regulated tenancy<sup>5</sup> by virtue of the Counter-Inflation Act 1973<sup>6</sup>;
- 1887 (2) 14 August 1974 in the case of a regulated furnished tenancy<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1888 (3) 8 December 1965 in the case of any other tenancy<sup>8</sup>, assigned or sublet the whole of the dwelling house or sublet part of the dwelling house, the remainder being already sublet<sup>9</sup>.

This Case is not confined to instances where the assignment or subletting is in breach of covenant<sup>10</sup>. It applies where there has been an assignment of a contractual tenancy<sup>11</sup>, for a statutory tenant has nothing to assign<sup>12</sup>. The consent may be express or implied and it may be given after the assignment but before proceedings<sup>13</sup>; but it is not implied simply from the fact that there is no prohibition in the lease<sup>14</sup>. An order may be made notwithstanding that the subletting of the whole had ceased before the issue of proceedings<sup>15</sup>.

955. Case 8: letting in consequence of employment.

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so and the landlord<sup>3</sup> can prove that:

- 1889 (1) the tenant<sup>4</sup> was in the employment of the landlord or a former landlord and the dwelling house was let<sup>5</sup> to him in consequence of that employment<sup>6</sup>;
- 1890 (2) he has ceased to be in that employment; and 1891 (3) the dwelling house is reasonably required<sup>7</sup> by the landlord for occupation as a residence for some person<sup>8</sup> engaged<sup>9</sup> in his<sup>10</sup> whole-time employment or in the whole-time employment of some tenant from him or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for such employment has been entered into<sup>11</sup>.

The court may order the landlord to pay compensation if it later appears that he has obtained possession under this Case by misrepresentation<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the general principles governing the making of an order for possession of a dwelling house let on a protected tenancy or subject to a statutory tenancy see PARA 942 ante.

2 As to the test of reasonableness see PARA 945 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'tenant' means the original tenant: Bolsover Colliery Co Ltd v Abbott [1946] KB 8, CA.

5 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 820 ante.

6 The question is what was in the mind of the landlord; knowledge on the part of the tenant is irrelevant: Braithwaite & Co Ltd v Elliot [1947] KB 177, [1946] 2 All ER 537, CA (overruling Frederick Braby & Co Ltd v Bedwell [1926] 1 KB 456, DC, and disapproving a dictum of Lush J in Queen's Club Garden Estates Ltd v Bignell [1924] 1 KB 117 at 132); Royal Crown Derby Porcelain Co Ltd v Russell [1949] 2 KB 417, [1949] 1 All ER 749, CA; Harvard v Shears (1967) 111 Sol Jo 683, CA. It need not be shown that the nature of the employment made the letting necessary or that the employment has not changed in character: Munro v Daw [1948] 1 KB 125, [1947] 3 All ER 360, CA; Duncan v Hay [1956] 3 All ER 555, [1956] 1 WLR 1329, CA. The crucial date is the termination of the contractual tenancy: Read v Gordon [1941] 1 KB 495, [1941] 1 All ER 222, CA, disapproving an observation of Bray J in Lever Bros Ltd v Caton (1921) 37 TLR 664 at 665, DC. If the employment ceased before that day and a new tenancy was granted, the ground will not apply (Murton v Aldis (1929) 141 LT 168), but a new tenancy will not readily be inferred from the fact of remaining for a time in possession after the employment has ceased (Benninga (Mitcham) Ltd v Bijstra [1946] KB 58, [1945] 2 All ER 433, CA; Thompsons (Funeral Furnishers) Ltd v Phillips [1945] 2 All ER 49, CA; Lever Bros Ltd v Caton (1921) 37 TLR 664 at 665, DC, per Lush J).

7 The material date for this purpose is the date of hearing: Benninga (Mitcham) Ltd v Bijstra [1946] KB 58, [1945] 2 All ER 433, CA.

8 A landlord is not bound to nominate a particular whole-time employee if he has a list of whole-time employees whom he desires to occupy a house: Oban Transport and Trading Co Ltd v Devine 1953 SLT (Sh Ct) 40.

9 'Engaged' means, subject to the provision for conditional contracts, actually in employment and not engaged to work at a future date: Benninga (Mitcham) Ltd v Bijstra [1946] KB 58, [1945] 2 All ER 433, CA. Absence owing to illness does not, however, prevent the employee from being engaged: RF Fuggle Ltd v Gadsden [1948] 2 KB 236, [1948] 2 All ER 160, CA.

10 It has been held in Scotland to be insufficient that the landlord should be the joint employer of the person for whose occupation the dwelling house is required: Grinyard v Duncan (1949) 99 L Jo 133; sed quaere.

PARAS 1386-2000)/16. TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/956. Case 9: premises required for landlord or certain relatives.

956. Case 9: premises required for landlord or certain relatives.

An order for possession<sup>1</sup> may be made without proof of alternative accommodation, if the court considers it reasonable<sup>2</sup> to do so, where the dwelling house is reasonably required<sup>3</sup> by the landlord<sup>4</sup> for occupation as a residence for himself<sup>5</sup>, or for any son or daughter of his over 18 years of age<sup>6</sup>, or for his father or mother or, if the dwelling house is let<sup>7</sup> on or subject to a regulated tenancy<sup>8</sup>, the father or mother of his spouse or civil partner<sup>9</sup>. A landlord may seek possession although the need for accommodation is not presently established provided that need is in the ascertainable and not too distant future<sup>10</sup>; and the relevant date for considering whether the dwelling house is reasonably required by the landlord is the date of the hearing<sup>11</sup>.

This power is, however, subject to two limitations:

- 1892 (1) the landlord must not have become landlord by purchasing the dwelling house or any interest therein after 7 November 1956 in the case of a tenancy which was then a controlled tenancy<sup>12</sup>, 8 March 1973 in the case of a tenancy which became a regulated tenancy by virtue of the Counter-Inflation Act 1973<sup>13</sup>, 24 May 1974 in the case of a regulated furnished tenancy<sup>14</sup>, or 28 March 1965 in the case of any other tenancy<sup>15</sup>; and
- 1893 (2) the court may not make an order if satisfied by the tenant that having regard to all the circumstances, including the question whether other accommodation is available for the landlord or the tenant, greater hardship would be caused by granting the order than by refusing to grant it<sup>16</sup>.

The court may order the landlord to pay compensation if it later appears that he has obtained possession under this Case by misrepresentation<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the general principles governing the making of an order for possession of a dwelling house let on a protected tenancy or subject to a statutory tenancy see PARA 942 ante.

2 As to the test of reasonableness see PARA 945 ante. An order should not be made merely on the admission of the tenant: Smith v McGoldrick [1977] 1 EGLR 53, (1976) 242 Estates Gazette 1047, CA. Cf para 942 the text and note 14 ante.

3 A landlord who wants possession in order to live in the house only until he can sell it may not rely on this ground: Rowe v Truelove [1977] 1 EGLR 46, (1976) 241 Estates Gazette 533, CA.

4 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante. 'Landlord' includes beneficial joint owners having the legal estate but they must require the premises for occupation by both of them: Baker v Lewis [1947] KB 186, [1946] 2 All ER 592, CA; McIntyre v Hardcastle [1948] 2 KB 82, [1948] 1 All ER 696, CA; cf Wetherall & Co Ltd v Stone [1950] 2 All ER 1209, CA. A landlord who was a trustee for himself and his daughter as tenants in equity in equal shares and obliged to transfer the house into their joint names succeeded under this ground where he claimed that the house was reasonably required for the daughter, notwithstanding that, if the transfer had been executed, the landlord would not have been entitled to possession by reason of McIntyre v Hardcastle supra: Bostock v Tacher de la Pagerie (1987) 14 HLR 358, [1987] 1 EGLR 104, CA. Beneficiaries under a trust, not having the legal estate, cannot take advantage of this provision: Parker v Rosenberg [1947] KB 371, [1947] 1 All ER 87, CA. A tenant for life can, however, do so, as can executors beneficially interested if they all require to occupy the premises (Sharpe v Nicholls [1945] KB 382, [1945] 2 All ER 55, CA); and personal representatives with no beneficial interest in the house may also do so (Patel v Patel [1982] 1 All ER 68, [1981] 1 WLR 1342, CA).

5 This provision is satisfied if the landlord requires the premises for his family even if for business reasons he is compelled to live away from the premises (Smith v Penny [1947] KB 230, [1946] 2 All ER 672, CA) but not if he requires them for a stranger who will not live as one household with him (Richter v Wilson [1963] 2 QB 426, [1963] 2 All ER 335, CA; Lowdell v Nash [1958] EGD 77, CA). The landlord need not in all cases intend to occupy the whole of the premises: Kelley v Goodwin [1947] 1 All ER 810, CA.

6 A husband and wife who are joint landlords may claim possession on the ground that the dwelling house is required as a residence for a child who is the natural son of the wife but neither the natural nor the adopted son of the husband: Potsos v Theodotou (1991) 23 HLR 356, [1991] 2 EGLR 93, CA.

8 For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

9 Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(b), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 9 (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8 para 14). This provision cannot be extended to other relatives: Stovin v Fairbrass (1919) 88 LJB 1004, CA. The provision is relevant only when the landlord is not offering suitable alternative accommodation: Briddon v George [1946] 1 All ER 609, CA.

12 For the meaning of 'controlled tenancy' see PARA 849 ante. The Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt I, Case 9 (now as amended) has effect in relation to any tenancy which was a controlled tenancy on 7 November 1956 notwithstanding that it ceased to be a controlled tenancy before 28 November 1980: Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 57.

957. Meaning of 'landlord by purchase' for the purposes of Case 9.

For the purpose of the limitation by reference to the date of purchase where premises are required as a residence for the landlord or certain relatives of his<sup>1</sup>, the relevant date is the date of purchase, not the date when the landlord became landlord. 'Purchase', for these purposes, means the date of a binding contract to purchase rather than the date of completion<sup>2</sup>, and is used in its ordinary meaning and not in the technical conveyancing sense<sup>3</sup>. Thus a person taking a grant of a lease without paying any premium subject to the tenancy does not become landlord by purchase<sup>4</sup>, nor does a person who acquires a house under a will even though compensating payments may be made to fellow residuary legatees<sup>5</sup>. A landlord who buys the freehold and subsequently obtains possession from the tenant does not become landlord by purchase of the subtenant<sup>6</sup>. The court will have regard to the substance and reality of the transaction or transactions by which the property was acquired<sup>7</sup>. The object of the limitation is to disqualify those who purchase the premises over the head of the tenant and it does not apply where after purchasing the premises a new tenancy is granted<sup>8</sup>.

1 le the limitation set out in the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(b), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 9 (as amended): see PARA 956 ante.

A tenant who purchases the freehold does not become landlord by purchase of his subtenant: Turney v Hammond (1952) 102 L Jo 721. An employee who is enabled by a gift from his former employer's estate to purchase a property occupied by a statutory tenant is a landlord by purchase (Amaddio v Dalton (1991) 23 HLR 332, CA); but the donee of a flat who covenants with the donor that the donee will keep up the mortgage instalments on the flats is not a landlord by purchase (Mansukhani v Sharkey (1992) 24 HLR 600, [1992] 2 EGLR 105, CA).

958. Meaning of 'greater hardship' for the purposes of Case 9.

The question of greater hardship<sup>1</sup> is pre-eminently one for the judge, whose decision will be upset only if there was no evidence upon which he could properly have based his conclusion<sup>2</sup>. The burden of proof is on the tenant<sup>3</sup>. The whole of the circumstances are to be considered<sup>4</sup>, the existence of alternative accommodation on both sides being an important but not decisive factor<sup>5</sup>, but having to move does not of itself constitute hardship<sup>6</sup>. Changes in circumstances after the date of hearing may form the basis of a fresh application to the court<sup>7</sup>.

962. Conditions applicable in certain cases.

1896 (1) the dwelling house is required as a residence for the owner<sup>7</sup> or any member of his family who resided with the owner when he last occupied the dwelling house as a residence<sup>8</sup>;

1897 (2) the owner has retired from regular employment and requires the dwelling house as a residence<sup>9</sup>;

- 1898 (3) the owner has died and the dwelling house is required as a residence for a member of his family who was residing with him at the time of his death<sup>10</sup>;
- 1899 (4) the owner has died and the dwelling house is required by a successor in title<sup>11</sup> as his residence or for the purpose of disposing of it with vacant possession<sup>12</sup>;
- 1900 (5) the dwelling house is subject to a mortgage<sup>13</sup>, made by deed and granted before the tenancy, and the mortgagee is entitled to exercise a power of sale<sup>14</sup> and requires the dwelling house for the purpose of disposing of it with vacant possession in exercise of that power<sup>15</sup>; and
- 1901 (6) the dwelling house is not reasonably suitable to the needs of the owner, having regard to his place of work, and he requires it for the purpose of disposing of it with vacant possession and of using the proceeds of that disposal in acquiring, as his residence, a dwelling house which is more suitable to those needs<sup>16</sup>.

1    le the conditions set out in the Rent Act 1977 s 98(5), Sch 15 Pt V (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 66(3), Sch 7): see heads (1)-(6) in the text. Subject to the Housing Act 1980 s 66(6) (see notes 10, 12 infra), the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11, 12 (as amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 66) apply to all tenancies whenever granted, and notices given under the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Case 11 or Case 12 (as so amended) before 28 November 1980 are not invalidated: Housing Act 1980 s 66(5).

11    For these purposes, 'successor in title' means any person deriving title from the owner, other than a purchaser for value or a person deriving title from a purchaser for value: Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt V para 1 (as added: see note 1 supra).

12    Ibid Sch 15 Pt V para 2(d) (as added: see note 1 supra). This condition does not apply to Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11 or 12 (as amended) if the tenancy was granted, and the owner died, before 28 November 1980: Housing Act 1980 s 66(6).

B. CASES IN WHICH ORDERS FOR POSSESSION MUST BE MADE

963. Case 11: house required as residence for owner-occupier.

Where a person ('the owner-occupier') who let<sup>1</sup> the dwelling house on a regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup> had, at any time before the letting, occupied it as his residence<sup>3</sup> and:

- 1902 (1) not later than the relevant date<sup>4</sup> the landlord<sup>5</sup> gave notice in writing to the tenant<sup>6</sup> that possession might be recovered under this Case<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1903 (2) the house has not since the prescribed date<sup>8</sup> been let by the owner-occupier on a protected tenancy<sup>9</sup> with respect to which the condition mentioned in head (1) above was not satisfied<sup>10</sup>; and
- 1904 (3) the court is of the opinion that one of certain conditions<sup>11</sup> is satisfied<sup>12</sup>,

the court must make an order for possession if, apart from the Rent Act 1977<sup>13</sup>, the landlord would be entitled to recover possession<sup>14</sup>.

If, however, the court is of the opinion that it would be just and equitable to make an order for possession notwithstanding that the condition in head (1) or head (2) above has not been complied with, the court may dispense with the requirements of either or both of those conditions, as the case may require<sup>15</sup>. In deciding whether to dispense with a requirement the court should look at all the circumstances of the case, including the circumstances affecting the landlord or his successors in title, the circumstances of the tenant and the circumstances in which the failure to give written notice arose<sup>16</sup>.

The quality of residence required of an owner-occupier before letting the premises is not the same as that required of a tenant for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 2(1)(a) (see PARA 831 ante); occupation which is intermittent and temporary may suffice (Naish v Curzon (1984) 51 P & CR 229, [1985] 1 EGLR 117, CA; Mistry v Isidore (1990) 22 HLR 281, [1990] 2 EGLR 97, CA).

the court was to make an order for possession if, apart from the Rent Act 1977<sup>11</sup>, the landlord would have been entitled to recover possession<sup>12</sup>.

1 This ground for possession is not restricted to ministers of the Church of England; indeed it has been said that the court does not prefer one religion to another or one sect to another: Re Watson, Hobbs v Smith [1973] 3 All ER 678, [1973] 1 WLR 1472, following Thornton v Howe (1862) 31 Beav 14 (charity cases). ## (v) Special Powers in Possession Proceedings

972. Extended powers of the court.

The proper forum in which to apply for an order for possession of a dwelling house is generally the county court<sup>1</sup>. The court may not, save in certain specified cases, postpone the giving up of possession to a date later than 14 days after the making of the order, unless it appears to the court that exceptional hardship would be caused by requiring possession to be given up by that date; and in any event the court may not postpone possession to a date later than six weeks after the making of the order<sup>2</sup>.

Where, however, proceedings are brought for possession of a dwelling house which is let<sup>3</sup> on a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup> or subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup> on a ground other than any of the mandatory grounds<sup>6</sup> for possession, the court has much wider powers and may adjourn the proceedings for such period or periods as it thinks fit<sup>7</sup>.

On the making of an order for possession of such a dwelling house or at any time before the execution of such an order<sup>8</sup>, the court may stay or suspend execution<sup>9</sup> of the order or postpone the date of possession for such period or periods as it thinks fit<sup>10</sup>. Unless the court considers that to do so would cause exceptional hardship to the tenant<sup>11</sup> or would otherwise be unreasonable, the court must, on any such adjournment, stay, suspension or postponement, impose conditions with regard to payment by the tenant of arrears of rent, if any, and rent or payments in respect of occupation after termination of the tenancy (mesne profits) and may impose such other conditions as it thinks fit<sup>12</sup>. If any such conditions are complied with, the court may discharge or rescind the order for possession<sup>13</sup>.

In any case where:

- 1929 (1) proceedings are brought for possession of a dwelling house which is let on a protected tenancy or subject to a statutory tenancy;
- 1930 (2) the tenant's spouse or former spouse, having statutory rights of occupation<sup>14</sup>, is then in occupation of the dwelling house; and
- 1931 (3) the tenancy is terminated as a result of those proceedings, the spouse or former spouse, so long as he or she remains in occupation, has the same rights in relation to, or in connection with, any such adjournment, stay, suspension or postponement of possession proceedings as he or she would have if those rights of occupation were not affected by the termination of the tenancy<sup>15</sup>.

973. Modification of order or postponement of date for possession.

The court has, it seems, no power by virtue of the provisions as to the making of orders for possession<sup>1</sup> to discharge an absolute order for possession of which the character has not been modified by any subsequent order<sup>2</sup>. It may, however, in effect convert an absolute order into a conditional order by making a subsequent order postponing the date of possession on conditions and may discharge the original order for possession if the conditions are fulfilled<sup>3</sup>. For these purposes, the order imposing the conditions and the order providing for the discharge of the original absolute order may be combined in one order; and it is not necessary for the tenant to obtain first an order imposing conditions and subsequently a further order discharging the original absolute order<sup>4</sup>. Wide use is made of these powers, particularly in postponing the date of possession<sup>5</sup>, or, where the ground is non-payment of rent, in suspending an order on condition that the current rent and something off the arrears is paid<sup>6</sup>. If the tenant dies after a possession order is made, the rights of a successor to the statutory tenancy depend on whether the order was absolute (whether or not suspended for a period) or conditional<sup>7</sup>.

974. Position of subtenants generally.

Whether a subtenant is entitled to protection against his immediate landlord depends simply on whether his tenancy is a protected or statutory tenancy according to the general criteria<sup>1</sup>. It does not matter for that purpose whether the head tenancy is protected<sup>2</sup> or whether the subtenancy is unlawful<sup>3</sup>. At common law a subtenancy comes to an end automatically on the determination of the tenancy out of which it was created<sup>4</sup> (except in the cases of surrender<sup>5</sup> and merger), but the security of tenure of certain subtenants of residential premises in that event is preserved by statute<sup>6</sup>. Where the mesne tenancy is determined by forfeiture, the subtenant may obtain relief against forfeiture and with it a protected tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE; RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(vi) Security of Subtenants/975. Effect of order for possession against mesne tenant.

975. Effect of order for possession against mesne tenant.

An order for possession on any of the discretionary grounds<sup>1</sup> against a protected or statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> does not affect the right of any subtenant to whom the dwelling house or any part of it has been lawfully sublet<sup>3</sup> before the commencement of proceedings for recovery of possession to retain possession<sup>4</sup>; nor does the order operate to give a right to possession against any such subtenant<sup>5</sup>. The effect of this provision is that, where there is a subtenant lawfully and de facto in possession of a dwelling house, the landlord cannot avail himself against the subtenant of any order or judgment for possession which he may have recovered against the tenant, but must either commence separate proceedings against the subtenant, in which the subtenant may urge whatever matters he may think fit, including matters personal between himself and the landlord affecting the reasonableness of the landlord's demand<sup>6</sup>, or join the subtenant as a defendant in proceedings against the tenant, in which case the court must address itself separately to the position of the subtenant and consider whether it would be reasonable to make an order for possession against him<sup>7</sup>. The landlord need not prove a ground for possession against the subtenant provided that one exists against the tenant<sup>8</sup>.

If, however, a landlord has obtained a writ of possession against his tenant and the sheriff's officer, in executing the writ, turns out a lawful subtenant who is protected by the Rent Acts, neither the landlord nor the sheriff's officer is in general liable in damages to the subtenant, as the sheriff's officer is not the agent of the landlord so as to render the landlord liable for the act of the officer and the officer is protected so long as he is acting in accordance with the writ<sup>9</sup>.

976. Status of subtenant after end of mesne tenancy.

Where a statutorily protected tenancy<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house is determined, either as a result of an order for possession or for any other reason<sup>2</sup>, any subtenant to whom the dwelling house or any part of it has been lawfully sublet<sup>3</sup> is deemed to become the tenant of the landlord<sup>4</sup> on the same terms as<sup>5</sup> if the tenant's statutorily protected tenancy had continued<sup>6</sup>. For a subtenant to be entitled to the benefit of this provision three conditions must be satisfied:

1933 (2) the subtenancy must have been protected<sup>9</sup>;

1934 (3) the subtenancy must have been lawful<sup>10</sup>.

Once the head landlord has proved his title and an intention to regain possession, the onus is on the defendant to establish his subtenancy<sup>11</sup>.

Where, however, a new lease has been granted under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993<sup>12</sup>, none of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure for tenants apply to the lease; and after the term date of the lease no person is entitled, by virtue of any sublease directly or indirectly derived out of the lease, to retain possession under Part VII<sup>13</sup> of the Rent Act 1977<sup>14</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'statutorily protected tenancy' means (1) a protected or statutory tenancy (see PARAS 818, 831 ante); (2) a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 (see PARA 1144 et seq post); or (3) if the subtenancy is a protected or statutory tenancy to which the Rent Act 1977 s 99 (see PARA 943 ante) applies, (a) a tenancy of an agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 which is a tenancy in relation to which that Act applies (see PARA 806 ante); or (b) a farm business tenancy within the meaning of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 (see PARA 807 ante): Rent Act 1977 s 137(4) (amended by the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 s 100, Sch 14 para 60; the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 s 40, Schedule para 28(3)).

5 The Rent Act 1968 s 18(2) (as originally enacted and now repealed), read 'as he would have held from the tenant if ...'. These words were omitted when a new section was substituted by the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 40(2), Sch 8 para 20. The omission would not appear to have changed the law.

6 Rent Act 1977 s 137(2). Section 137(2) and s 137(1) (as amended) (see PARA 975 ante) overlap to some degree: see the remarks of Scrutton LJ in Roe v Russell [1928] 2 KB 117 at 128, CA. See also Chogley v Bains [1955] 3 All ER 148 at 153, [1955] 1 WLR 877 at 884, PC. Where, however, a tenancy has been extended under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 14 (as amended), after the extended term date no person is entitled by virtue of any subtenancy directly or indirectly derived out of the tenancy to retain possession under the Rent Act 1977 Pt VII (ss 98-107) (as amended) (see PARA 942 et seq ante) or any enactment applying or extending Pt VII (as amended): see the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 16(1) (as amended); and PARA 1483 post. ### 977. Exceptions to rule that mesne tenancy must have been protected.

There are two exceptions to the rule<sup>1</sup> that for a subtenant to retain his security against the head landlord the mesne tenancy must have been protected:

- 1935 (1) a long tenancy<sup>2</sup> of a dwelling house which is also a tenancy at a low rent<sup>3</sup> but which, had it not been a tenancy at a low rent, would have been a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup> or an assured tenancy<sup>5</sup> is treated as a statutorily protected tenancy<sup>6</sup>;
- 1936 (2) where the dwelling house is itself subject to a protected or statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup> and forms part of premises which have been let as a whole on a superior tenancy but do not constitute a dwelling house let on a statutorily protected tenancy<sup>8</sup>, then, from the coming to an end of the superior tenancy, the subtenant has the same protection<sup>9</sup> as if, in lieu of the superior tenancy, there had been separate tenancies of the dwelling house and the remainder of the premises, for the like purposes as under the superior tenancy, and at rents equal to the just proportion of the rent under the superior tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

The latter provision applies in certain circumstances<sup>11</sup> where the premises let on the superior tenancy are an agricultural holding<sup>12</sup> or land comprised in a farm business tenancy<sup>13</sup> and has been held to apply to premises comprised in a business tenancy<sup>14</sup> the residential part of which is sublet<sup>15</sup>.

This notional division of the premises comprised in the mesne tenancy will prevent the subtenant being deprived of security by the fact that those premises have a high rateable value<sup>16</sup> or are not let as a separate dwelling<sup>17</sup>. A subtenant may rely on the combined effect of the above two exceptions<sup>18</sup>.

978. Lawful subtenancy.

A subletting is lawful if it is not contrary to the terms of the mesne tenancy<sup>1</sup>. It is unlawful if it involves a breach of covenant, even if there is no right of forfeiture<sup>2</sup>. The question of lawfulness is to be determined as at the date of determination of the mesne tenancy<sup>3</sup> unless the mesne tenant is still a statutory tenant, in which case the material date is that of the commencement of possession proceedings<sup>4</sup>. If before the material date the head landlord has waived the breach, the subtenant is protected against him<sup>5</sup>. A waiver only operates so as to render the subletting lawful from the date of the waiver<sup>6</sup>. For these purposes, whether acceptance of rent amounts to a waiver is a question of fact<sup>7</sup>; there has to be such a degree of acquiescence that a consent to a subletting can be inferred<sup>8</sup>. However, a landlord who has actual or deemed knowledge of a change of personnel in the house is put on inquiry as to the true state of affairs and, if he then accepts rent for a substantial period, will be held to have waived the breach of covenant, even though he did not know the precise nature of the breach<sup>9</sup>. For these purposes, the knowledge of the landlord's employees or agents whose duty it is to report such matters will be treated as the knowledge of the landlord<sup>9</sup>. If the subtenant claiming protection is an assignee of the sub-term, the assignment must also have been lawful<sup>10</sup>.

It seems that a subletting which was illegal under the general law would not be 'lawful'. As to covenants against subletting see PARA 484 ante. Although subletting the whole premises without consent may be a ground for possession (see PARA 954 ante), that does not make the subletting unlawful: Gidden v Mills [1925] 2 KB 713, DC; and see Hyde v Pimley [1952] 2 QB 506 at 514, 515, [1952] 2 All ER 102 at 106, CA. A statutory tenant, including a successor to the statutory tenancy, may sublet part of the premises (Lewis v Reeves [1952] 1 KB 19, [1951] 2 All ER 855, CA), but it is questionable whether a purported subletting of the whole premises confers any interest on the subtenant (Oak Property Co Ltd v Chapman [1947] KB 886, [1947] 2 All ER 1, CA; Trustees of Henry Smith's Charity v Willson [1983] QB 316, [1983] 1 All ER 73, CA); and see RC Glaze Properties Ltd v Alabdinboni (1992) 25 HLR 150, [1992] EGCS 141, CA; Moreland Properties (UK) Ltd v Dhokia [2003] EWCA Civ 1639, [2003] All ER (D) 348 (Oct), [2004] 1 P & CR D34 (statutory tenant who had abandoned possession for a number of years could not grant an effective sub-tenancy of the whole of the demised premises).

979. Furnished subtenancies.

As a subtenant who is deemed by statute to become the direct tenant of the head landlord does so on the terms of his subtenancy<sup>1</sup>, it follows that the head landlord will be obliged to provide services or furniture if the intervening tenant had been so obliged by the terms of the subtenancy. If, however, certain conditions are fulfilled, the terms on which the subtenant is deemed<sup>2</sup> to become to tenant of the landlord<sup>3</sup> are not to include<sup>4</sup> any terms as to the provision by the landlord of furniture or services<sup>5</sup>. The conditions are that:

1937 (1) the statutorily protected tenancy<sup>6</sup> which is determined<sup>7</sup> was neither a protected nor a statutory furnished tenancy<sup>8</sup>; and

- 1938 (2) immediately before the determination of that statutorily protected tenancy, the subtenant<sup>9</sup> was the tenant under a protected or a statutory furnished tenancy; and
- 1939 (3) the landlord, within the period of six weeks beginning with the day on which the statutorily protected tenancy was determined, serves notice on the subtenant that these provisions are to apply to his tenancy or statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

If the former mesne tenant leaves his furniture in the premises, it seems that the rent should be apportioned<sup>11</sup>.

TENANCIES UNDER THE RENT ACT 1977/(7) APPLICATIONS TO THE COURT/981. Special Rent Act jurisdiction of the county court.

981. Special Rent Act jurisdiction of the county court.

A county court has jurisdiction, either in the course of any proceedings relating to a dwelling or on an application<sup>1</sup> made for the purpose by the landlord<sup>2</sup> or the tenant<sup>3</sup>, to determine any of the following questions:

- 1940 (1) as to whether a tenancy is a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup> or whether any person is a statutory tenant<sup>5</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>6</sup>;
- 1941 (2) as to the rent limit<sup>7</sup>;
- 1942 (3) as to the application to a contract of the provisions<sup>8</sup> relating to restricted contracts<sup>9</sup>;
- 1943 (4) as to whether a protected, statutory or regulated tenancy<sup>10</sup> is a protected, statutory or regulated furnished tenancy<sup>11</sup>; or as to any matter which is or may become material for determining any such question<sup>12</sup>.

The county court shares with the High Court the power to vary the terms of statutory tenancies arising under the transitional provisions of the enactments<sup>13</sup> which gave protection to furnished tenants<sup>14</sup>, certain housing association tenants<sup>15</sup> and tenants of houses with a higher rateable value<sup>16</sup>.

Under this provision the county court has jurisdiction to ascertain whether there is a registered rent and, if so, to apply it in accordance with the provisions of Pt III (ss 44-61) (as amended) (see PARA 891 et seq ante); but the court has no power to fix the registered rent or to alter it in any way: Tingey v Sutton [1984] 3 All ER 561, [1984] 1 WLR 1154, CA.

982. Exclusive jurisdiction of the county court.

In addition to its ordinary and special Rent Act jurisdiction<sup>1</sup> the county court is given specific and exclusive jurisdiction in the following matters:

- 1944 (1) to decide between competing claims of members of the tenant's family to succeed to a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup>;
- 1945 (2) to apportion rates<sup>3</sup> and rateable value<sup>4</sup>;
- 1946 (3) to deal with applications for leave to distrain for rent of a dwelling house let as a protected tenancy or subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup>;
- 1947 (4) to modify rights relating to shared accommodation<sup>6</sup>;
- 1948 (5) to determine any adjustment in the recoverable rent with respect to services or furniture<sup>7</sup>;

- 1949 (6) to empower a landlord to carry out works to provide standard amenities<sup>8</sup>;
- 1950 (7) to reduce the period at the end of which a notice to quit extended by a rent tribunal is to take effect<sup>9</sup>;
- 1951 (8) to stay or suspend the execution of a possession order<sup>10</sup>.

The apportionment by a county court of a rateable value is final and no appeal lies from it<sup>11</sup>.

Furthermore, the county court has an exclusive jurisdiction to make orders for possession of premises within its current jurisdiction<sup>12</sup> in which any person lawfully residing there at the end of the contractual period is still living, in the following circumstances:

- 1952 (a) where the premises were let as a dwelling under a tenancy which was not a statutorily protected tenancy nor an excluded tenancy<sup>13</sup>; or
- 1953 (b) where a person was granted exclusive possession of a dwelling as a licensee under the terms of his employment<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1954 (c) where the owner's right to possession arises on the death of the statutory tenant<sup>15</sup>.

12 See PARA 980 ante. The jurisdiction to order possession in cases where it is unlawful for the owner to enforce his right to recover possession otherwise than by proceedings is made exclusive to the county court in the case of such premises by the definition of 'the court' in the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 9(1): see PARA 653 note 2 ante.

Most of the tenancies to which this provision will apply are restricted contracts and other tenancies granted by exempt bodies: see PARA 884 et seq ante, PARA 985 et seq post.

Where, in any proceedings, the recoverable rent<sup>1</sup> of any dwelling house subject to a regulated tenancy<sup>2</sup> is determined by a court, the court may on the application of the tenant<sup>3</sup>, whether in those or any subsequent proceedings, call for the production of the rent book<sup>4</sup> or any similar document relating to the dwelling house and may direct the district judge or clerk of the court to correct any entries in the rent book which show or purport to show that the tenant is in arrears in respect of any sum which the court has determined to be irrecoverable<sup>5</sup>.

984. Appeals from county courts.

The decision of the county court as to the apportionment of a rateable value is final and no appeal lies from it<sup>1</sup>. If any party to other proceedings in a county court is dissatisfied with the determination of the judge, he may, subject to certain statutory restrictions<sup>2</sup>, appeal from it to a senior court<sup>3</sup>. No appeal lies, however, on a question of fact in proceedings in which either the claimant or defendant is claiming the possession of any premises if, by virtue of the statutory provisions which restrict the making or giving of orders for the recovery of possession of dwelling houses<sup>4</sup>, the court can only grant possession if it is reasonable to do so<sup>5</sup>.

The Access to Justice Act 1999 (Destination of Appeals) Order 2000<sup>6</sup> now provides that in most cases an appeal from a county court lies to the High Court<sup>7</sup>. The procedure on appeals is governed by Part 52 of the Civil Procedure Rules<sup>8</sup> and is discussed elsewhere in this work<sup>9</sup>.

1 See PARA 982 ante.

2 I.e. subject to the provisions of the County Courts Act 1984 s 77 (as amended) and to any order made under the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 56(1); and in such manner and subject to such conditions as may be provided by Civil Procedure Rules: County Courts Act 1984 s 77(1) (amended by the Civil Procedure Act 1997 s 10, Sch 2 para 2(7); and by the Access to Justice Act 1999 (Destination of Appeals) Order 2000, SI 2000/1071, art 8).

3 The County Courts Act 1984 s 77(1) (as amended: see note 2 supra) provides that there is a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 12 (2009) PARA 1679); but see the text and notes 6-9 infra.

4 I.e. the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 13(4) (see PARA 1228 post); the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 6, Sch 4, Cases III-IX (see PARA 1172 et seq post); the Rent Act 1977 s 98 (as amended) as it applies to Sch 15 Pt I, Cases 1-6 (as amended) (see PARAS 949-954 ante), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 8 (see PARA 955 ante), Sch 15 Pt I, Case 9 (as amended) (see PARA 956 ante) or s 98 (as amended) as extended or applied by any other enactment; s 99

If an order for possession is made and enforced but is later set aside on appeal, the court has a discretion whether to order restitution of possession or the payment of compensation by the landlord: Pollock v Kumar (1976) 120 Sol Jo 589, CA, applying Tanner v Tanner [1975] 3 All ER 776, [1975] 1 WLR 1346, CA. If the premises have been relet, the latter alternative is likely to be preferred: cf Rhodes Trust v Khan [1980] 1 EGLR 64, (1979) 253 Estates Gazette 689, CA (appeal against an order setting aside an order for possession allowed on the ground that the premises had been sold to a third person).

(i) Introduction

985. Origin of restricted contracts.

Before 14 August 1974 the general provisions of the Rent Restrictions Acts did not apply to a dwelling house bona fide let at a rent which included to a sufficient degree payments in respect of board, attendance or the use of furniture<sup>1</sup>. Furnished tenancies were subject to a separate system of control through rent tribunals introduced by the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act 1946 and eventually consolidated in Part VI of the Rent Act 1968<sup>2</sup>. Such tenancies were thereafter known as 'Part VI contracts'<sup>3</sup>.

The Rent Act 1974 enabled tenancies of fully furnished premises to be protected<sup>4</sup>, thus greatly reducing the number of Part VI contracts, but it also introduced a new category of lettings incapable of being protected, namely lettings by resident landlords<sup>5</sup>, and applied the provisions of Part VI of the Rent Act 1968 to them<sup>6</sup>. The existing law was then consolidated in the Rent Act 1977, which renamed Part VI contracts 'restricted contracts'<sup>7</sup>.

No new restricted contracts can be created on or after 15 January 1989<sup>8</sup> save in certain transitional cases<sup>9</sup> but existing restricting contracts are unaffected<sup>10</sup>. There is no equivalent system of protection under the Housing Act 1988<sup>11</sup>.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(i) Introduction/986. Meaning of 'restricted contract'.

986. Meaning of 'restricted contract'.

Subject to certain exclusions<sup>1</sup>, a restricted contract is a contract entered into before 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> and either:

- 1955 (1) a contract whereby one person grants to another person, in consideration of a rent which includes payment for the use of furniture<sup>3</sup> or services<sup>4</sup>, the right to occupy a dwelling<sup>5</sup> as a residence<sup>6</sup>, whether or not, in the case of a contract relating to a dwelling consisting of only part of a house, the lessee<sup>7</sup> is entitled, in addition to exclusive occupation of that part, to the use in common with any other person of other rooms or accommodation in the house<sup>8</sup>; or
- 1956 (2) a contract under which:
  - 14
  14. (a) a tenant<sup>9</sup> has the exclusive occupation of any accommodation;
  15. (b) the terms on which he holds the accommodation include the use of other accommodation in common with his landlord<sup>10</sup> or in common with his landlord and other persons; and
  - 1957 notwithstanding that the rent does not include payment for the use of furniture or for services<sup>14</sup>.

Additionally, if and so long as a tenancy entered into before 15 January 1989 is precluded from being a protected tenancy by reason only of the resident landlord exemption<sup>15</sup>, it is treated as a restricted contract notwithstanding that the rent may not include payment for the use of furniture or for services<sup>16</sup>.

As a contract is not a restricted contract if it creates a regulated tenancy<sup>17</sup> and furnished tenancies are no longer precluded from being protected<sup>18</sup>, head (1) above will generally only apply to licences<sup>19</sup> and to tenancies which are excluded from being protected tenancies because board or substantial attendance is provided<sup>20</sup>. For a contract to be a restricted contract exclusive occupation of at least one room is necessary<sup>21</sup> and there must, in a case falling within head (1) above, be a contractual right to the services or the use of the furniture<sup>22</sup>.

1 See PARA 987 post.

2 I.e. the date when the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) came into force: see s 141(3). No new restricted contracts can be created after that date except in certain transitional cases: see PARA 1014 post.

3 For the meaning of 'furniture' see PARA 872 ante. See also R v Blackpool Rent Tribunal, ex p Ashton [1948] 2 KB 277, [1948] 1 All ER 900, DC (electric clock and curtains de minimis; gas cooker and water heater not furniture).

4 For these purposes, 'services' includes attendance, the provision of heating or lighting, the supply of hot water and any other privilege or facility connected with the occupancy of a dwelling, other than a privilege or facility requisite for the purposes of access, cold water supply or sanitary accommodation: Rent Act 1977 s 19(8) (s 19 repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(2), Sch 18 para 1). An identical definition appears in the Rent Act 1977 s 85(1) in respect of Pt V (ss 77-85) (as amended): see PARA 989 et seq post. Cf the services considered in R v Paddington North and St Marylebone Rent Tribunal, ex p Perry [1956] 1 QB 229 at 231, [1955] 3 All ER 391 at 393, DC (decided under the Housing Repairs and Rents Act 1954 s 40 (repealed), which did not contain this definition).

5 For these purposes, 'dwelling' means a house or part of a house: Rent Act 1977 s 19(8) (repealed with savings: see note 4 supra). Identical definitions appear in ss 85(1), 107(1) in respect of Pt V (as amended) (see PARA 989 et seq post) and Pt VII (ss 98-107) (as amended) (see PARA 942 et seq ante, PARA 1002 et seq post). A hotel can be a house and a hotel room a dwelling for these purposes: Luganda v Service Hotels Ltd [1969] 2 Ch 209, [1969] 2 All ER 692, CA. The same is true of a furnished room in a hostel: R v South Middlesex Rent Tribunal, ex p Beswick (1976) 32 P & CR 67, DC. A caravan is a house for these purposes provided the occupier is to live in it in a particular field (R v Guildford Area Rent Tribunal, ex p Grubey [1951] EGD 286, DC), but a houseboat is not (R v Wolverhampton and District Rent Tribunal as reported in (1949) 113 JP Jo 376). As to the separate statutory protection for occupiers of mobile homes see PARA 1267 et seq post.

6 Rent Act 1977 s 19(1), (2) (repealed with savings: see note 4 supra). Occupation of a hotel room for a temporary visit is not occupation as a residence (R v Bethnal Green and Paddington Rent Tribunals, ex p Rowton Houses Ltd (1947) 91 Sol Jo 255, DC), but long-term occupation is (Luganda v Service Hotels Ltd [1969] 2 Ch 209, [1969] 2 All ER 692, CA). It is not necessary that the contract should expressly permit occupation as a residence; it is enough if the lessee is within his rights so to occupy the premises: R v York, Harrogate, Ripon and Northallerton Areas Rent Tribunal, ex p Ingle [1954] 1 QB 456, [1954] 1 All ER 440, DC, applied in Luganda v Service Hotels Ltd supra. No right to occupy a dwelling for a holiday is to be treated as a right to occupy it as a residence for these purposes: Rent Act 1977 s 19(7) (as so repealed).

7 For these purposes, 'lessee' means the person to whom is granted, under a restricted contract, the right to occupy the dwelling in question as a residence and any person directly or indirectly deriving title from the grantee: ibid s 19(8) (repealed with savings: see note 4 supra). Identical definitions appear in ss 85(1), 107(1) in respect of Pt V (as amended) and Pt VII (as amended).

8 Ibid s 19(6) (repealed with savings: see note 4 supra).

9 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 816 note 3 ante.

10 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante. To come within the Rent Act 1977 s 21 (repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 18 para 1) (see head (2) in the text), the terms must include clear words reserving the right to the landlord to live on the premises sharing accommodation with the tenant; but it is sufficient for the landlord to reserve to himself that express right and he need not actually exercise it nor have a clear intention of doing so, so long as the possibility is genuinely within his contemplation at the time of the tenancy agreement: Gray v Brown (1992) 25 HLR 144, [1993] 1 EGLR 119, CA.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(i) Introduction/987. Contracts excluded from being restricted.

987. Contracts excluded from being restricted.

A contract entered into before 15 January 1989<sup>1</sup> is not a restricted contract<sup>2</sup> in the following circumstances:

- 1958 (1) if the rateable value<sup>3</sup> in relation to the dwelling<sup>4</sup> on the appropriate day<sup>5</sup> exceeded the specified limits for its Class<sup>6</sup>; or
- 1959 (2) if the contract creates a regulated tenancy<sup>7</sup>; or
- 1960 (3) if under the contract the interest of the lessor<sup>8</sup> belongs to a local authority or one of certain other bodies<sup>9</sup>; or
- 1961 (4) if under the contract the interest of the lessor belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or to a government department or is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department<sup>10</sup>; or
- 1962 (5) if the contract is for the letting of any premises at a rent which includes payment in respect of board<sup>11</sup> if the value of the board to the lessee<sup>12</sup> forms a substantial<sup>13</sup> proportion of the whole rent<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1963 (6) if it creates a qualifying shared ownership lease<sup>15</sup>; or
- 1964 (7) if it is a protected occupancy<sup>16</sup>; or
- 1965 (8) if it creates a tenancy<sup>17</sup> to which the special regime for housing association tenancies<sup>18</sup> applies<sup>19</sup>; or
- 1966 (9) if it creates an old-style<sup>20</sup> assured tenancy<sup>21</sup>; or
- 1967 (10) if immediately before the revocation of the relevant Defence Regulation<sup>22</sup>, the accommodation was let in accordance with terms registered for the purposes of the relevant provision of that regulation, so long as that letting continues<sup>23</sup>; or

- 1968 (11) where the dwelling belongs to a benefice of the Church of England for the occupation of the incumbent<sup>24</sup>; or
- 1969 (12) where the contract only confers a right to occupy a dwelling for a holiday<sup>25</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>26</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>27</sup> may by order provide that, as from such date as may be specified in the order, the restricted contract provisions<sup>28</sup> are not to apply to a dwelling the rateable value of which on such day as may be specified in the order exceeds such amount as may be so specified<sup>29</sup>.

1 le the date when the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) came into force: see s 141(3). No new restricted contracts can be created after that date except in certain transitional cases: see PARA 1014 post.

6 Rent Act 1977 s 19(3) (s 19 repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(2), Sch 18 para 1). Where alternative rateable values are mentioned, the higher applies if the dwelling is in Greater London and the lower applies if it is elsewhere: Rent Act 1977 s 19(4) (as so repealed with savings). The specified rateable values and Classes are: (1) Class D, if the appropriate day in relation to the dwelling house fell on or after 1 April 1973 and the dwelling on the appropriate day had a rateable value exceeding £1,500 or £750; (2) Class E, if the appropriate day in relation to the dwelling fell before 1 April 1973 and the dwelling had a rateable value (a) on the appropriate day exceeding £400 or £200; and (b) on 1 April 1973 exceeding £1,500 or £750: s 19(4) (as so repealed). As to the significance of 1 April 1973 see PARA 855 ante. As to Greater London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 29.

8 For these purposes, 'lessor' means the person who, under a restricted contract, grants to another the right to occupy the dwelling in question as a residence and any person directly or indirectly deriving title from the grantor: Rent Act 1977 s 19(8) (repealed with savings: see note 6 supra). Identical definitions appear in ss 85(1), 107(1) in respect of Pt V (ss 77-85) (as amended) (see PARA 989 et seq post) and Pt VII (ss 98-107) (as amended) (see PARA 942 et seq ante, PARA 1002 et seq post).

9 Ibid s 19(5)(aa) (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 36; repealed with savings (see note 6 supra)). The local authorities and bodies concerned are those mentioned in the Rent Act 1977 s 14 (as amended) (see PARA 884 ante): s 19(5)(aa) (as so added and repealed).

10 Ibid s 19(5)(b) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 73(2); repealed with savings (see note 6 supra)). An interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown does not, however, prevent a contract from being a restricted contract if the interest is under the management of the Crown Estate Commissioners: s 19(5) (as so amended and repealed). ### A. POWERS OF RENT TRIBUNALS

988. Rent tribunals.

Rent tribunals as constituted for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977<sup>1</sup> have been abolished<sup>2</sup>; and the functions conferred by that Act on rent tribunals are now carried out by rent assessment committees<sup>3</sup>. When constituted to carry out these functions, a rent assessment committee is, however, known as a 'rent tribunal'<sup>4</sup>.

3 Ibid s 72(2). As to rent assessment committees generally see PARA 910 ante; and as to the functions of such committees in relation to restricted contracts see PARA 989 et seq post.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(ii) Control of Rent/A. POWERS OF RENT TRIBUNALS/989. Reference of contract to rent tribunal.

989. Reference of contract to rent tribunal.

Either the lessor<sup>1</sup> or the lessee<sup>2</sup> under a restricted contract<sup>3</sup> may refer the contract to the rent tribunal<sup>4</sup>; but no other person, unless authorised to act as an agent for one of the above, can validly make such a reference<sup>5</sup>. Where there are joint tenants, the reference must be made by or on behalf of all of them<sup>6</sup>. It is essential that there is a subsisting contract at the date of the reference<sup>7</sup>, although not at the date of the hearing<sup>8</sup>.

It is not intended that these provisions should be used to create a general rent-fixing tribunal throughout a district<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'lessor' see PARA 987 note 8 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'lessee' see PARA 986 note 7 ante. It follows from this definition and that of 'lessor' (see note 1 supra) that a reference may be made by a licensee and by an assignee (revsg R v Tottenham and District Rent Tribunal, ex p Northfield (Highgate) Ltd [1957] 1 QB 103, [1956] 2 All ER 863, DC). A person allowed to stay on paying rent 'without prejudice to the landlord's right of action' after the expiry of a notice to quit can validly make a reference to a rent tribunal: R v South-West London Rent Tribunal, ex p Gravesande (1966) 200 Estates Gazette 1092, DC.

3 For the meaning of 'restricted contract' see PARA 986 ante.

4 Rent Act 1977 s 77(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(3), Sch 26; the Housing Act 1988 s 140, Sch 17 para 23, Sch 18). 'Rent tribunal' is to be construed in accordance with the Housing Act 1980 s 72 (see PARA 988 ante); Rent Act 1977 s 85(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 45(b)). It thus means a rent assessment committee. For the procedure on such a reference see PARA 994 post.

Before 1 April 1994 the lessor or the lessee might also refer the contract to the rent tribunal for consideration of an increased rent where (1) the lessor or any person having any title superior to that of the lessor was liable to pay council tax in respect of a hereditament which included the dwelling to which the restricted contract related; (2) under the terms of the restricted contract, or an agreement collateral to the contract, the lessee was liable to make payments to the lessor in respect of council tax; (3) either (a) a rent had been entered in the register under the Rent Act 1977 s 79 (as amended) (see PARA 996 post) before 1 April 1993, the period of two years beginning on the date on which the rent was last considered by the tribunal had not yet expired and since that date there had been no change in circumstances of the kind mentioned in s 80(2)(a)-(d) (see PARA 1000 post), other than circumstances relating to council tax, as to make the registered rent no longer a reasonable rent; or (b) a reference had been made under s 77 (as amended) or s 80 (as amended) before 1 April 1993 but had not been disposed of before that date; and (4) no previous such reference in relation to the dwelling had been made to the rent tribunal: see s 80A(1)-(4) (added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(2), Sch 2 para 5). As to the rent tribunal's powers on such a reference see the Rent Act 1977 s 80A(5), (6) (as so added).

990. Tribunal's power to require information.

Where a restricted contract<sup>1</sup> is referred to a rent tribunal<sup>2</sup>, the tribunal may by notice in writing served on the lessor<sup>3</sup> require him to give to it within the period specified in the notice, not being less than seven days from the date of service of the notice, such information as it may reasonably require regarding such of the prescribed particulars relating to the contract as are specified in the notice<sup>4</sup>. The prescribed particulars comprise:

- 1970 (1) the name of the lessee;
- 1971 (2) a specification of the dwelling to which the contract relates;
- 1972 (3) accommodation occupied or used by the lessee:
- 16
- 17. (a) exclusively;
- 18. (b) in common with the lessor;
- 19. (c) in common with persons other than the lessor;
- 17
- 1973 (4) furniture provided by the lessor for the use of the lessee;
- 1974 (5) services provided by the lessor for the use of the lessee;
- 1975 (6) the rateable value<sup>5</sup> of the accommodation occupied by the lessee, where this has been separately assessed, or, where it has not, the rateable value of the dwelling of which the accommodation forms part;
- 1976 (7) responsibility for payment of the rates and the council tax for the accommodation occupied by the lessee;
- 1977 (8) payments contracted to be made by the lessee to the lessor and, if separate payments are made in respect of occupation, furniture and services, the separate payments in respect of each;
- 1978 (9) whether board is supplied and, if so, the nature and amount of the board;
- 1979 (10) the date the occupation of the accommodation began<sup>6</sup>.

If the lessor fails without reasonable cause to comply with the provisions of the notice within the specified period, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>7</sup>.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(ii) Control of Rent/A. POWERS OF RENT TRIBUNALS/991. Consideration of the reference.

991. Consideration of the reference.

Where a restricted contract<sup>1</sup> is referred to a rent tribunal<sup>2</sup>, the tribunal must consider the reference unless it is withdrawn by the party or authority who made it before the tribunal has entered upon consideration of it<sup>3</sup>, even though the lessee has left and surrendered his tenancy before the hearing<sup>4</sup>. Withdrawal of a reference need not be in any particular form<sup>5</sup>, and becomes effective within a reasonable time of its reaching the office of the tribunal during office hours. The tribunal enters upon consideration of a reference when all of its members have started to read the papers<sup>6</sup>. The tribunal must make such inquiry as it thinks fit and must give to each party to the contract<sup>7</sup> and, if the general management of the dwelling<sup>8</sup> is vested in and exercisable by a housing authority<sup>9</sup>, to that authority, an opportunity of being heard or, at his or its option, of submitting representations in writing<sup>10</sup>. The tribunal must correctly identify both parties to the contract<sup>11</sup>. If one party takes a point which will take the other by surprise, the other should be given a fair opportunity to deal with it<sup>12</sup>.

In any case where the lessor<sup>13</sup>, or any person having any title superior to that of the lessor, is liable<sup>14</sup> to pay council tax in respect of a hereditament<sup>15</sup> ('the relevant hereditament') of which the dwelling forms part, the tribunal must have regard to the amount of council tax which, as at the date on which the reference to the tribunal was made, was set by the billing authority<sup>16</sup> for the financial year in which that reference was made and for the category of dwelling<sup>17</sup> within which the relevant hereditament fell on that date. Any discount or other reduction affecting the amount of council tax payable must, however, be disregarded<sup>18</sup>.

- 1980 (1) approve the rent<sup>19</sup> payable under the contract<sup>20</sup>; or
- 1981 (2) reduce or increase it to such sum as the tribunal may, in all the circumstances, think reasonable<sup>21</sup>; or
- 1982 (3) if it thinks fit in all the circumstances, dismiss the reference<sup>22</sup>.

The effect of a reduction or increase by the tribunal is to alter the existing contract so that the new rent becomes payable without any notice of increase or notice to quit being served<sup>23</sup>. The effect of a dismissal of the reference instead of the approval of the rent is that it avoids a rent being registered<sup>24</sup>. An approval, reduction or increase may be limited to rent payable in respect of a particular period<sup>25</sup>. On a reference of a restricted contract relating to a dwelling for which a rent is already registered under the provisions relating to regulated tenancies<sup>26</sup>, the tribunal may not reduce the rent below the amount which would be recoverable under a regulated tenancy<sup>27</sup>.

The tribunal must notify the parties of its decision<sup>28</sup>.

18 Ibid s 78(2A) (as added: see note 15 supra).

19 Where separate sums are payable by the lessee of any dwelling to the lessor for any two or more of the following: (1) occupation of the dwelling; (2) use of furniture; and (3) services, any reference for these purposes to 'rent' in relation to that dwelling is a reference to the aggregate of those sums; and, where those sums are payable under separate contracts, those contracts are deemed to be one contract: Rent Act 1977 s 85(3). For the meaning of 'services' see PARA 986 note 4 ante.

20 Ibid s 78(2)(i).

21 Ibid s 78(2)(ii). The tribunal must take into account any services and amenities which the lessor has not contracted to supply but is in fact supplying, if there is every reason to suppose that they will be continued: R v Paddington and St Marylebone Rent Tribunal, ex p Bell London and Provincial Properties Ltd [1949] 1 KB 666, [1949] 1 All ER 720, DC. The receipt of war damage compensation by the lessor is irrelevant: R v Fulham, Hammersmith and Kensington Rent Tribunal, ex p Hierowski [1953] 2 QB 147, [1953] 2 All ER 4, DC. No criteria are laid down for the ascertainment of a 'reasonable rent' other than the requirement to have regard to liability for council tax; cf the criteria provided by the Rent Act 1977 s 70 (as amended) for the determination by rent officers of a fair rent for regulated tenancies: see PARA 921 ante. In particular, it is not clear whether or to what extent the tribunal should discount scarcity value. Nor does the Rent Acts (Maximum Fair Rent) Order 1999, SI 1999/6, art 2 apply to restrict the rent, since art 2 applies only where there is an existing registered rent under the Rent Act 1977 Pt IV (ss 62-75) (as amended) (registration of rent under regulated tenancies: see PARA 891 et seq ante): see art 2(6); and PARA 922 ante.

23 Villa d'Este Restaurant Ltd v Burton [1957] 2 QB 214, [1957] 1 All ER 862, CA.

24 As to the effect of registration see PARA 996 et seq post. It is suggested that dismissal may be appropriate where the rent is too low but the landlord does not want to increase it or where the current rent is reasonable but the circumstances make it unfair to fix the premises with that rent bearing in mind the restrictions on reapplying within two years (see PARA 1000 post). If the reference is dismissed, other than for want of jurisdiction, a notice to quit served after the reference was made in respect of a restricted contract made before 28 November 1980 will be deferred automatically for six months from the date of the decision unless the tribunal directs otherwise, but a notice served before the reference will be deferred only for seven days unless the tribunal directs a longer period: see the Rent Act 1977 s 103 (as amended), s 104; and PARAS 1003-1004 post.

992. Jurisdiction of the rent tribunal.

The rent tribunal, before it determines the main question, has a duty to inquire and decide whether it has jurisdiction to do so, and is entitled to decide a collateral question on which its jurisdiction depends<sup>1</sup>. The county court, however, provides an alternative forum for determining whether a particular contract is within the tribunal's jurisdiction<sup>2</sup>. The tribunal has a discretion whether to decide the preliminary question itself or whether to adjourn the reference in order that an application may be made to the county court. In exercising this discretion the tribunal should look at all the circumstances including the wishes of the parties<sup>3</sup>. Where the nature of the preliminary question requires disclosure, evidence and cross-examination, the tribunal should normally adjourn the reference<sup>4</sup>; but, where the parties decline an invitation to apply to the county court, it is correct for the tribunal to proceed to determine the issue of jurisdiction itself<sup>5</sup>. The tribunal's decision as to its jurisdiction is not conclusive and may be put in issue in further proceedings<sup>6</sup>. It has no power to decide questions of breach of contract or to award compensation to tenants for breach of contract by way of reduction of rent<sup>7</sup>.

993. Appeals and judicial review.

If any party to proceedings before a rent tribunal<sup>1</sup> is dissatisfied in point of law with a decision of the tribunal, he may appeal from it to the High Court<sup>2</sup> or require the tribunal to state a case for the opinion of the High Court<sup>3</sup>. Judicial review will also lie in appropriate cases<sup>4</sup>. Thus the High Court will intervene if the tribunal has not given the lessor an opportunity to be heard<sup>5</sup>, or if it can be proved that the tribunal wrongly decided facts which went to its jurisdiction<sup>6</sup>, or if it exceeded its jurisdiction by reducing the rent below a rent registered under Part IV of the Rent Act 1977<sup>7</sup> or by proceeding after the application had been withdrawn in time<sup>8</sup>, or if it has disregarded the principles of natural justice<sup>9</sup>, or if there was no subsisting contract at the date of the reference<sup>10</sup> or if the reference was not made by the lessor, lessee or other authorised person<sup>11</sup>.

B. PROCEDURE ON REFERENCE TO RENT TRIBUNAL

994. Making of the reference; preliminary proceedings.

Reference to a rent tribunal<sup>1</sup> must be by written notice<sup>2</sup>, which may be delivered at an office of the rent assessment panel<sup>3</sup>, in which case it is deemed to have reached the tribunal on the day when it was so delivered, or may be posted to the panel, in which case it is deemed to have reached the tribunal on the day when it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post<sup>4</sup>. The tribunal must give notice in writing to each party to the restricted contract<sup>5</sup> informing him that he may, within such time as the tribunal may allow, not being less than seven days from the date of the notice<sup>6</sup>, give notice to the tribunal that he desires to be heard by it, or may send to it written representations<sup>7</sup>. If any such party informs the tribunal that he desires to be heard, the tribunal must give to each party not less than seven clear days' written notice of the time and place of the hearing<sup>8</sup>. Notices by the tribunal may be sent by prepaid post to a party at his usual or last known address<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'rent tribunal' see PARA 988 ante.

2 The notice must specify the address of the house or part of a house to which the restricted contract relates, the names of the lessor and lessee and the address of the lessor: Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) (Rent Tribunal) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1700, reg 3.

3 As to rent assessment panels see PARA 910 ante.

4 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) (Rent Tribunal) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1700, reg 3.

5 As to references to parties to the contract see PARA 991 note 7 ante.

6 The tribunal may extend the time: Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) (Rent Tribunal) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1700, reg 4 proviso.

7 Ibid reg 4 (amended by SI 1981/1493). The tribunal may, however, refuse to entertain the reference if it was made too soon after a previous reference (see PARA 1000 post) but this did not apply if it was an interim reference before 1 April 1994 under the Rent Act 1977 s 80A (as added) in respect of liability for council tax.

8 Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) (Rent Tribunal) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1700, reg 5(1) (amended by SI 1981/1493). If the house to which the reference relates is one whose general management is vested in a local authority as housing authority (see PARA 991 text and note 9 ante), that authority must be given an opportunity of being heard or, if it so desires, of submitting written representations: Rent Assessment Committees (England and Wales) (Rent Tribunal) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1700, reg 5(2).

9 Ibid reg 9. If a party does not receive the notice and therefore misses the hearing, he may apply for it to be reopened: see PARA 995 post.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(ii) Control of Rent/B. PROCEDURE ON REFERENCE TO RENT TRIBUNAL/995. Procedure at the hearing.

995. Procedure at the hearing.

At a hearing before a rent tribunal<sup>1</sup> a party to a restricted contract<sup>2</sup> may appear in person, by counsel, by solicitor or by any other representative or may be accompanied by any person whom he may wish to assist him at the hearing<sup>3</sup>. The procedure is such as the tribunal may determine<sup>4</sup>. The tribunal may, if it thinks fit, and must, if either party so requests, allow the hearing to be in public unless for some special reason it considers it undesirable<sup>5</sup>. The tribunal may adjourn or postpone the hearing from time to time as it thinks fit<sup>6</sup>. Decision is by a majority; it must be in writing, signed by the chairman and sent as soon as may be to the parties to the contract<sup>7</sup>. The tribunal must furnish a statement, either written or oral, of the reasons for its decision if, on or before the giving or notification of the decision, it is requested to state the reasons<sup>8</sup>.

The tribunal is not bound to act on evidence or on any particular principles; it may act on its own views, knowledge and opinions<sup>9</sup>. Provided that the parties are given the opportunity of being heard or making representations, it is doubtful how far the rules of natural justice must be observed<sup>10</sup>. The tribunal may act on unstamped documents<sup>11</sup>. If a party fails to attend the hearing, the tribunal may reopen the case on his application, but it should do so only if his application is made promptly and if it is satisfied that there was a good argument on the merits that the absent party has a real and reasonable excuse for being absent and that other parties would not be prejudiced<sup>12</sup>.

995 Procedure at the hearing

TEXT AND NOTES 4, 5--SI 1980/1700 reg 7(1) amended: SI 2008/2683.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/17. RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(ii) Control of Rent/C. REGISTRATION OF RENT AND ITS EFFECT/996. Maintenance and inspection of the register.

C. REGISTRATION OF RENT AND ITS EFFECT

996. Maintenance and inspection of the register.

The president of every rent assessment panel<sup>1</sup> must prepare and keep up to date a register<sup>2</sup> and must make it available for inspection in such place or places and in such manner as the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant

Welsh minister<sup>4</sup> may direct<sup>5</sup>. The register must be so prepared and kept up to date as to contain, with regard to any contract relating to a dwelling<sup>6</sup> situated in the area of the rent assessment panel and under which a rent<sup>7</sup> is payable which has been approved, reduced or increased under the relevant statutory provisions<sup>8</sup>, entries of:

- 1983 (1) the prescribed particulars<sup>9</sup> with regard to the contract;
- 1984 (2) a specification of the dwelling to which the contract relates; and
- 1985 (3) the rent as approved, reduced or increased by the rent tribunal<sup>10</sup>, and, in a case in which the approval, reduction or increase is limited to rent payable in respect of a particular period, a specification of that period<sup>11</sup>.

Where any rates<sup>12</sup> in respect of a dwelling are borne by the lessor<sup>13</sup> or any person having any title superior to that of the lessor, the amount to be so entered in the register as the rent payable is the same as if the rates were not so borne, but the fact that they are so borne must be noted in the register<sup>14</sup>; and the amount to be so entered in the register as the rent payable for a dwelling includes any sums payable by the lessee<sup>15</sup> to the lessor in respect of the council tax, whether or not those sums are separate from the sums payable for the occupation of the dwelling or are payable under separate agreements<sup>16</sup>.

A copy of an entry in the register certified under the hand of an officer duly authorised in that behalf by the president of the rent assessment panel concerned is receivable in evidence in any court and in any proceedings<sup>17</sup> and a person requiring such a certified copy is entitled to obtain it on payment of the prescribed fee<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to rent assessment panels see PARA 910 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'register' means the register kept by the president of the rent assessment panel concerned under the Rent Act 1977 s 79 (as amended) (see the text and notes 3-18 infra): s 85(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 152(1), Sch 25 para 45(a)). The register was formerly kept by the local authority: see the Rent Act 1977 s 79(1) (as originally enacted). Before the end of February 1981 each local authority had to send to the president of the appropriate panel the register previously kept by the authority: see s 79(6A) (added by the Housing Act 1980 Sch 25 para 44).

9 The prescribed particulars comprise: (1) the names and addresses of parties to the restricted contract referred to the rent tribunal; (2) the accommodation (a) of which the lessee is entitled to exclusive occupation; (b) of which the lessee is entitled to the use in common with the lessor and persons other than the lessor; (3) details of any furniture provided by the lessor for the use of the lessee; (4) details of any services provided by the lessor; (5) whether board is supplied, and, if so, the nature and amount of the board; (6) liability for payment of council tax for the accommodation occupied by the lessee; (7) any other terms of the contract taken into consideration in determining the rent: Rent Act 1977 (Forms etc) Regulations 1980, SI 1980/1697, reg 8, Sch 4 (amended by SI 1993/655).

12 For these purposes, the reference to rates in respect of a dwelling includes a reference to such proportion of any rates in respect of a hereditament of which the dwelling forms part as may be agreed in writing between the lessor and the lessee or determined by a county court: Rent Act 1977 s 85(4). RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(1) RESTRICTED CONTRACTS/(ii) Control of Rent/C. REGISTRATION OF RENT AND ITS EFFECT/997. Excess rent.

997. Excess rent.

Where the rent<sup>1</sup> payable for any dwelling<sup>2</sup> is entered on the register<sup>3</sup>, it is not lawful to require or receive on account of rent for that dwelling under a restricted contract<sup>4</sup>, either in respect of any period subsequent to the date of the entry<sup>5</sup>, or, where a particular period is specified in the register, in respect of that period<sup>6</sup>, payment of any amount in excess of the rent so registered<sup>7</sup>. Where the rates are borne by the lessor or a superior landlord<sup>8</sup>, the registered rent is treated for this purpose as increased for any rental period<sup>9</sup> by the amount of the rates<sup>10</sup> for that period<sup>11</sup>. Where any payment has been made or received in contravention of these provisions, the amount of the excess is recoverable by the person by whom it was paid<sup>12</sup>.

The limitation as to rent does not apply only to the lessor who was a party to the reference; it attaches to the premises<sup>13</sup>. There is no provision for apportionment, and the registered rent is not applicable to a letting of a part of the premises<sup>14</sup>; but it would seem that the registered rent would apply to a letting of the same premises on different terms or with different internal equipment, furniture or services until the matter was referred to the tribunal for reconsideration<sup>15</sup>.

a tenant gave notice to exercise an option at the yearly rent of £525 (reduced to £425 for the purpose of the Furnished Houses (Rent Control) Act 1946 (repealed)), and it was held that the words contained in the notice did not call for a lease in terms different from those of the lease specified by the option agreement, but were merely declaratory of the legal effect of quashing a lease in the terms offered by that agreement, and, therefore, the plaintiff's notice was a good and valid notice).

998. Premiums under restricted contracts.

If a rent is registered for any premises<sup>1</sup> under the statutory provisions relating to restricted contracts<sup>2</sup>, and in a case where the approval, reduction or increase of the rent by the rent tribunal<sup>3</sup> is limited to rent payable in respect of a particular period, that period has not expired, then any person who, as a condition of the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of rights under a restricted contract<sup>4</sup>, requires the payment of any premium<sup>5</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup> and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>7</sup>. The court by which a person is convicted of such an offence may order the amount of the premium, or so much of it as cannot lawfully be required<sup>8</sup>, to be repaid to the person by whom it was paid<sup>9</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions, however, prevents a person from requiring that there shall be paid:

1986 (1) so much of any outgoings discharged by a grantor or assignor as is referable to any period after the grant or assignment takes effect<sup>10</sup>; or 1987 (2) a reasonable amount in respect of goodwill of a business, trade or profession, where the goodwill is transferred to a grantee or assignee in connection with the grant or assignment or accrues to him in consequence thereof<sup>11</sup>.

The requirement that furniture be purchased at an excessive price as a condition of the grant of rights under a restricted contract falling under these provisions<sup>12</sup> is also treated as the requirement of a premium<sup>13</sup>.

999. Offences.

Any person who requires or receives any payment of rent<sup>1</sup> in contravention of the statutory limitation<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale, or to both<sup>3</sup>. Without prejudice to any other method of recovery, the court by which a person is found guilty of such an offence may order the amount paid in excess<sup>4</sup> to be repaid to the person by whom the payment was made<sup>5</sup>.

It is also an offence for any person to require a premium for the grant, renewal, continuance or assignment of rights under a restricted contract<sup>6</sup>. Failure to provide a proper rent book and the demanding or receiving of rent when such a rent book has not been provided is an offence<sup>7</sup>, as is a failure by a lessor to give information required of him by a rent tribunal<sup>8</sup>.

Proceedings may not be instituted otherwise than by the local authority: s 81(5). It is also an offence for the tenant to pay the rent at more than the reduced figure, as he is thereby aiding and abetting an offence, and, if he offered it, he would be guilty of inciting the landlord to commit an offence: R v Paddington and St Marylebone Rent Tribunal, ex p Bell London and Provincial Properties Ltd [1949] 1 KB 666 at 681, [1949] 1 All ER 720 at 726, DC, per Lord Goddard CJ. For the meaning of 'local authority' for these purposes see PARA 816 note 11 ante.

1000. Reconsideration of reference.

Where the rent<sup>1</sup> payable for any dwelling<sup>2</sup> under a restricted contract<sup>3</sup> has been entered in the register<sup>4</sup>, the lessor<sup>5</sup> or the lessee<sup>6</sup> may refer the case to the rent tribunal<sup>7</sup> for reconsideration of the rent so entered<sup>8</sup>. A rent tribunal is not, however, required to entertain<sup>9</sup> a reference made otherwise than by the lessor and the lessee jointly for the registration of a different rent for the dwelling concerned before the expiry of a period of two years beginning on the date on which the rent was last considered by the tribunal except on the ground that, since that date, there has been such a change in:

- 1988 (1) the condition of the dwelling;
- 1989 (2) the furniture or services<sup>10</sup> provided;
- 1990 (3) the terms of the contract; or
- 1991 (4) any other circumstances taken into consideration when the rent was last considered, as to make the registered rent no longer a reasonable rent<sup>11</sup>.

If the dwelling forms part of a hereditament<sup>12</sup> in respect of which the lessor, or any person having any title superior to that of the lessor, is liable<sup>13</sup> to pay council tax or was so liable on the date on which the rent was last considered by the tribunal, then, in the determining for these purposes whether since that date there has been such a change falling within head (4) above as to make the registered rent no longer a reasonable rent, any change in the amount of council tax payable in respect of the hereditament must be disregarded unless it is attributable to:

- 1992 (a) the fact that the hereditament has become, or has ceased to be, an exempt dwelling<sup>14</sup>;
- 1993 (b) an alteration in accordance with regulations<sup>15</sup> of the valuation band<sup>16</sup> shown in a valuation list<sup>17</sup> as applicable to the hereditament; or
- 1994 (c) the compilation of a new valuation list in consequence of an order<sup>18</sup> of the Secretary of State<sup>19</sup> or, in relation to Wales, of the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>20</sup>.

That Act had no two-year rule and only allowed reconsideration on grounds of change of circumstances. However, that decision was distinguished in London Housing and Commercial Properties Ltd v Cowan [1977] QB 148, [1976] 2 All ER 385, DC, on grounds which would appear to apply to the Rent Act 1977 s 80(2) (as so amended). It was there held that a rent assessment committee reconsidering a rent in the three-year period under the Rent Act 1968 s 44(3) (repealed) (now a two-year period under the Rent Act 1977 s 67(3) (as amended): see PARA 915 ante), should consider the case afresh.

1001. Cancellation of registration.

Where the rent<sup>1</sup> payable for any dwelling<sup>2</sup> is entered in the register<sup>3</sup>, the rent tribunal<sup>4</sup>, on an application being made under this provision, must cancel the entry if the dwelling is not for the time being subject to a restricted contract<sup>5</sup> and the application is made by the person who would be the lessor<sup>6</sup> if the dwelling were so subject<sup>7</sup>. An application must be in the prescribed form<sup>8</sup> and must contain the prescribed particulars<sup>9</sup>.

The rent tribunal must notify the applicant of its decision to grant, or to refuse, any such application<sup>10</sup>. Cancellation of the registration is without prejudice to a further registration of a rent at any time thereafter<sup>11</sup>.

Nature of protection.

(iii) Security of Tenure; Recovery of Possession

A. RESTRICTED CONTRACTS ENTERED INTO BEFORE 28 NOVEMBER 1980

1002. Nature of protection.

Security of tenure is given to persons occupying premises under a restricted contract<sup>1</sup> entered into before 28 November 1980<sup>2</sup> by deferring the operation of a notice to quit<sup>3</sup> in certain circumstances<sup>4</sup>. This does not prevent a tenancy being determined by effluxion of time, forfeiture or some other method. Nor do these provisions prevent the immediate landlord of an occupier of a dwelling house<sup>5</sup> which is overcrowded<sup>6</sup> in such circumstances as to render the occupier guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup> from obtaining possession<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'restricted contract' see PARA 986 ante.

2 I.e. the commencement date of the Housing Act 1980 s 69: see s 153(4); the Housing Act 1980 (Commencement No 5) Order 1980, SI 1980/1706. The Rent Act 1977 ss 103-106 (as amended) (see the text and notes 3-8 infra; and PARAS 1003-1007 post) apply only to restricted contracts entered into before that date: s 102A (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 69(3)). As to the position in relation to contracts entered into on and after that date see the Rent Act 1977 s 106A (added by the Housing Act 1980 s 69(2)); and PARA 1008 post.

3 These provisions have been held to apply in the case of a residential licensee who would, strictly speaking, not need to be given a notice to quit to determine his right of occupation: Luganda v Service Hotels Ltd [1969] 2 Ch 209, [1969] 2 All ER 692, CA. Cf Crane v Morris [1965] 3 All ER 77, [1965] 1 WLR 1104, CA.

4 See the Rent Act 1977 s 103 (as amended), s 104; and PARAS 1003-1004 post. The statutory provisions that the notice is or is not to have effect are usually understood to mean that the contractual tenancy is thereby prolonged (Alexander v Springate [1951] 1 KB 803, [1951] 1 All ER 351); but in Francis Jackson Developments Ltd v Hall [1951] 2 KB 488, [1951] 2 All ER 74, CA, it was said (apropos of a subtenancy) that the contractual tenancy was not extended but that the subtenant obtained a statutory security of tenure as against the tenant. The nature of such security is obscure and the decision has been cogently criticised: see eg 68 LQR 22.

5 The Rent Act 1977 s 101 (as originally enacted) applies to a dwelling house which consists of premises used as a separate dwelling by members of the working classes or of a type suitable for such use: Rent Act 1977 s 101(2) (as originally enacted; substituted in relation to tenancies granted on or after 1 April 1986 by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 ss 4, 5(1), Sch 2 para 35(1), (8), Sch 3 para 3). See further PARA 944 note 3 ante. 'Dwelling' means a house or part of a house: Rent Act 1977 s 107(1); cf para 986 note 5 ante.

6 I.e. overcrowded, in relation to tenancies granted before 1 April 1986, within the meaning of the Housing Act 1957 (repealed).

7 As to offences of overcrowding under the Housing Act 1985 Pt X (ss 324-344) (as amended) see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 451-453.

8 Rent Act 1977 s 101(1) (as originally enacted). Section 101 (substituted, in relation to tenancies granted on or after 1 April 1986, by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 ss 4, 5(1), Sch 2 para 35(1), (8), Sch 3 para 3) also applies to protected tenancies: see PARA 944 ante. The equivalent provision in the Rent Act 1968 s 17 (repealed) did not affect Part VI contracts (see PARA 985 ante). The operation of the provision has therefore been widened in the course of the consolidation of the law in the Rent Act 1977.

Notice to quit after reference.

1003. Notice to quit after reference.

If, after a restricted contract<sup>1</sup> entered into before 28 November 1980<sup>2</sup> has been referred<sup>3</sup> to a rent tribunal<sup>4</sup> by the lessee<sup>5</sup>, a notice to quit the dwelling<sup>6</sup> to which the contract relates is served by the lessor<sup>7</sup> on the lessee at any time before the tribunal's decision is given or within six months thereafter, then, subject to two exceptions<sup>8</sup>, the notice does not take effect before the expiry of that period<sup>9</sup>. In such a case the rent tribunal may, however, if it thinks fit, direct that a shorter period be substituted for that period of six months<sup>10</sup>.

If the reference to the rent tribunal is withdrawn, the period during which the notice to quit is not to take effect ends on the expiry of seven days from the withdrawal of the reference<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'restricted contract' see PARA 986 ante.

9 Ibid s 103(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 18). If the notice is served within the six-month period and is expressed to expire during that period, the effect of the Rent Act 1977 s 103(1) (as so amended) is that it will expire at the end of that period: see Alexander v Springate [1951] 1 KB 803, [1951] 1 All ER 351.

10 Rent Act 1977 s 103(2)(a). In exercising this power the tribunal has a complete discretion and may balance the respective hardships: see R v West London Rent Tribunal, ex p Saliterman (1969) 20 P & CR 776, DC (where the landlord's establishment was found to be well run, the tenant was found to have behaved intolerably and to be able to afford somewhere else, and the security was reduced to seven days).

Where:

1995 (1) a notice to quit a dwelling<sup>1</sup> the subject of a restricted contract<sup>2</sup> entered into before 28 November 1980<sup>3</sup> has been served; and

1996 (2) the restricted contract has been referred<sup>4</sup> to a rent tribunal<sup>5</sup> whether before or after the service of the notice to quit and the reference has not been withdrawn; and

1997 (3) the period at the end of which the notice takes effect<sup>6</sup> has not expired, the lessee<sup>7</sup> may apply to the tribunal for the extension of that period<sup>8</sup>. No such application may, however, be made with respect to a notice to quit if a direction has been given<sup>9</sup> reducing the period at the end of which the notice is to take effect<sup>10</sup>.

Where an application is so made, the notice to quit to which the application relates does not have effect before the determination of the application unless the application is withdrawn<sup>11</sup>. The rent tribunal, after making such inquiry as it thinks fit and giving to each party<sup>12</sup> an opportunity of being heard or, at his option, of submitting written representations, may direct that the notice to quit shall not have effect until the end of such period, not exceeding six months from the date on which the notice to quit would otherwise have had effect, as may be specified in the direction<sup>13</sup>. If the rent tribunal refuses to give such a direction, the notice to quit does not have effect before the expiration of seven days from the determination of the application and no subsequent application may be made in relation to the same notice to quit<sup>14</sup>. On coming to a determination on such an application, the rent tribunal must notify the parties of its determination<sup>15</sup>.

Court's discretion in possession proceedings.

B. RESTRICTED CONTRACTS ENTERED INTO AFTER 27 NOVEMBER 1980

1008. Court's discretion in possession proceedings.

In the case of restricted contracts<sup>1</sup> entered into on or after 28 November 1980<sup>2</sup> the operation of a notice to quit cannot be deferred either automatically or by direction of a rent tribunal<sup>3</sup>. Instead, in the case of any dwelling house<sup>4</sup> which is the subject of such a restricted contract, the court may, on the making of an order for possession of such a dwelling house or at any time before the execution of such an order, stay or suspend execution of the order or postpone the date of possession for such period or periods as it thinks fit<sup>5</sup>.

Where a court makes an order for possession of such a dwelling house, the giving up of possession may not, however, be postponed<sup>6</sup> to a date later than three months after the making of the order<sup>7</sup>. On any such stay, suspension or postponement the court, unless it considers that to do so would cause exceptional hardship to the lessee<sup>8</sup> or would otherwise be unreasonable, must impose conditions with regard to payment by the lessee of arrears of rent, if any, and rent or payments in respect of occupation after termination of the tenancy (mesne profits) and may impose such other conditions as it thinks fit<sup>9</sup>.

In any case where:

- 2002 (1) proceedings are brought for possession of such a dwelling house;
- 2003 (2) the lessee's spouse or former spouse having rights of occupation under the Family Law Act 1996<sup>10</sup> is then in occupation of the dwelling house; and
- 2004 (3) the restricted contract is terminated as a result of those proceedings, the spouse or former spouse, so long as he or she remains in occupation, has the same rights in relation to, or in connection with, any stay, suspension or postponement of possession as he or she would have if those rights of occupation were not affected by the termination of the restricted contract<sup>11</sup>.

It is unlawful for the land owner to enforce his right to recover possession otherwise than by proceedings in the court against a licensee holding under a restricted contract entered into on or after 28 November 1980, or against a tenant holding under such a contract whenever it was granted<sup>12</sup>.

(2) PROTECTED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES

1009. In general.

Protected shorthold tenancies were introduced by the Housing Act 1980<sup>1</sup> and phased out under the provisions of the Housing Act 1988<sup>2</sup>. Such a tenancy had the normal incidents of a protected tenancy in that the rent was subject to registration<sup>3</sup>, the restrictions on premiums<sup>4</sup> applied and after the determination of the contractual term the tenant became and remains a statutory tenant if and so long as he occupies the house as his residence<sup>5</sup>. A protected shorthold tenancy differs from an ordinary protected tenancy, however, in that:

- 2005 (1) the tenant had a statutory right to determine the contractual term on notice<sup>6</sup>;

- 2006 (2) neither the protected shorthold tenancy nor any subsequent contractual tenancy granted to the original tenant or his statutory successors was or is capable of being assigned except in pursuance of certain court orders<sup>7</sup>;
- 2007 (3) subtenants enjoy no security of tenure<sup>8</sup>; and
- 2008 (4) there is available to the landlord at any time after the determination of the shorthold term a special mandatory ground for possession<sup>9</sup>.

1 le the Housing Act 1980 ss 51-55 (as amended): see the text and notes 2-9 infra.

2 See the Housing Act 1988 ss 34, 140(2), Sch 18 para 2 (as amended); and PARA 1012 post. As to the grant of an assured shorthold tenancy to a tenant who was previously a protected shorthold tenant see PARA 1054 post.

A protected shorthold tenancy was a protected tenancy granted on or after 28 November 1980 and before 15 January 1989 which was granted for a term certain of not less than one year nor more than five years and which satisfied the following conditions: (1) the tenancy could not be brought to an end by the landlord before the expiry of the term, except in pursuance of a provision for re-entry or forfeiture for non-payment of rent or breach of any other obligation of the tenancy; and (2) before the grant the landlord gave the tenant a valid notice stating that the tenancy was to be a protected shorthold tenancy: Housing Act 1980 s 52(1) (repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(2), Sch 18 para 2). A tenancy of a dwelling house was not a protected shorthold tenancy if it was granted to a person who, immediately before it was granted, was a protected or statutory tenant of that dwelling house: s 52(2) (as so repealed). See Dibbs v Campbell (1988) 20 HLR 374, [1988] 2 EGLR 122, CA (previous tenancy validly surrendered despite tenant's failure to vacate premises; new protected shorthold tenancy therefore properly created).

If a protected tenancy was granted on or after 28 November 1980 for a term certain of not less than one and not more than five years to be followed, at the option of the tenant, by a further term, or for such a term certain and thereafter from year to year or some other period, and satisfied the conditions set out in heads (1)-(2) supra, the tenancy was a protected shorthold tenancy until the end of the term certain: Housing Act 1980 s 52(5) (as so repealed).

3 See PARA 909 et seq ante. Registration of rent is, however, no longer required in order to qualify as a protected shorthold tenancy: see the Protected Shorthold Tenancies (Rent Registration) Order 1987, SI 1987/265, arts 2, 3.

4 As to these restrictions see PARA 925 et seq ante.

RESTRICTED CONTRACTS AND PROTECTED SHORTHOLDS/(2) PROTECTED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/1010. Case 19: special mandatory ground for possession.

1010. Case 19: special mandatory ground for possession.

Where a dwelling house was let<sup>1</sup> under a protected shorthold tenancy<sup>2</sup> or is treated<sup>3</sup> as having been so let, and:

- 2009 (1) either there has been no grant of a further tenancy<sup>4</sup> of the dwelling house since the end of the protected shorthold tenancy or, if there was such a grant, it was to a person who immediately before the grant was in possession of the dwelling house as a protected or statutory tenant<sup>5</sup>; and 2010 (2) the proceedings for possession were commenced after appropriate notice by the landlord<sup>6</sup> to the tenant and not later than three months after the expiry of the notice<sup>7</sup>,

the court must make an order for possession if, apart from the Rent Act 1977<sup>8</sup>, the landlord would be entitled to recover possession<sup>9</sup>.

A notice is appropriate for this Case if:

- 2011 (a) it is in writing and states that proceedings for possession under this Case may be brought after its expiry<sup>10</sup>;
- 2012 (b) it expires not earlier than three months after it is served nor, if, when it is served, the tenancy is a periodic tenancy, before that periodic tenancy could be brought to an end by a notice to quit<sup>11</sup> served by the landlord on the same day<sup>12</sup>;
- 2013 (c) it is served in the period of three months immediately preceding the date on which the protected shorthold tenancy<sup>13</sup> comes to an end or, if that date has passed, in the period of three months immediately preceding any anniversary of that date<sup>14</sup>; and
- 2014 (d) it is served, in a case where a previous notice has previously been served by the landlord on the tenant in respect of the dwelling house, not earlier than three months after the expiry of the previous notice<sup>15</sup>.

If, in proceedings for possession under this Case, the court is of the opinion that, notwithstanding that either of the conditions<sup>16</sup> in the definition of a protected shorthold tenancy is not satisfied, it is just and equitable<sup>17</sup> to make an order for possession, it may treat the tenancy under which the dwelling house was let as a protected shorthold tenancy<sup>18</sup>.

For the meaning of 'protected tenant' see PARA 818 ante; and for the meaning of 'statutory tenant' see PARA 831 ante. This condition means that the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19 (as so added) is available only against the original shorthold tenant or his statutory successors, but the grant of subsequent contractual tenancies which are not protected shorthold tenancies to such persons will not preclude the landlord recovering possession on this ground. See Gent v De la Mare (1987) 20 HLR 199, [1988] 1 EGLR 104, CA.

6 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 816 note 2 ante.

7 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19(b) (as added: see note 5 supra). This time limit is not a procedural requirement; it is one of two necessary conditions without which Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19 (as added) is not established and without which the court has no jurisdiction to make a possession order: Ridehalgh v Horsefield and Isherwood (1992) 24 HLR 453, CA. If proceedings are not commenced within the time limit, it may be a considerable time, up to nine months, before the landlord can serve another appropriate notice.

10 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19(i) (as added: see note 5 supra).

11 Where the tenancy is periodic, it is submitted that a common law notice to quit satisfying the requirements of the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 5 (as amended) (see PARA 214 ante) must be served in addition to the 'appropriate notice', as the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2) applies only if the landlord would be entitled to recover possession at common law and Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19 (as added: see note 5 supra) does not expressly dispense with the need for a notice to quit.

12 Ibid Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19(ii) (as added: see note 5 supra). See Henry Smith's Charity Trustees v Kyriakou (1989) 22 HLR 66, [1989] 2 EGLR 110, CA.

13 Ie the original contractual term.

14 Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19(iii) (as added: see note 5 supra). There is no maximum length of notice but, as there is only a three-month season in each year for service, a landlord who anticipates requiring possession in the next year must work out his timetable carefully: see note 7 supra. Although it is possible to make the notice expire on the anniversary day, this is highly inadvisable because it requires service to be effected only on the day exactly three months earlier than the expiry date of the notice.

15 Ibid Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19(iv) (as added: see note 5 supra). This restricts the landlord to one valid notice per year.

16 Ie the conditions set out in the Housing Act 1980 s 52(1)(b) (repealed with savings) or s 52(1)(c) (repealed): see PARA 1009 ante.

17 Cf the Rent Act 1977 Sch 15 Pt II, Cases 11, 12 (as amended) (see PARAS 963-964 ante), which also enable the court to dispense with certain requirements if it is just and equitable to make an order for possession. The court is thus enabled to overlook eg technical defects in the notice required by the Housing Act 1980 s 52(1)(b) (repealed with savings).

(1) PHASING OUT OF THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

1011. Introduction.

With certain exceptions<sup>1</sup> and save for certain transitional cases<sup>2</sup>, tenancies of dwelling houses entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> are either assured tenancies or assured shorthold tenancies<sup>4</sup> under the Housing Act 1988 and cannot be protected tenancies<sup>5</sup> or become statutory tenancies<sup>6</sup> under the Rent Act 1977<sup>7</sup>. Similarly a licence or tenancy entered into on or after that date cannot ordinarily be a relevant licence<sup>8</sup> or relevant tenancy<sup>9</sup> for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>10</sup>.

Further, an assured tenancy created on or after 28 February 1997 is presumed to be an assured shorthold tenancy unless it falls within one of the statutory exceptions to this rule<sup>11</sup>.

1012. New protected tenancies restricted to special cases.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> cannot be a protected tenancy<sup>3</sup>, unless:

- 2015 (1) it is entered into in pursuance of a contract made before that date; or
- 2016 (2) it is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, who, immediately before the tenancy was granted, was a protected or statutory tenant<sup>4</sup> and was so granted by the person who at that time was the landlord<sup>5</sup>, or one of the joint landlords, under the protected or statutory tenancy<sup>6</sup>; or
- 2017 (3) it is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, in the following circumstances:
  - 18
  - 20. (a) prior to the grant of the tenancy, an order for possession of a dwelling house was made against him, alone or jointly with others, on the court being satisfied that suitable alternative accommodation was available to him<sup>7</sup>; and
  - 21. (b) the tenancy is of the premises which constitute the suitable alternative accommodation as to which the court was so satisfied; and
  - 22. (c) in the proceedings for possession the court considered that, in the circumstances, the grant of an assured tenancy would not afford the required security and accordingly directed that the tenancy would be a protected tenancy; or
  - 19
  - 2018 (4) it is a tenancy under which the interest of the landlord was at the time the tenancy was granted held by a new town corporation<sup>8</sup> and before 31 March 1996<sup>9</sup> ceased to be so held by virtue of a disposal<sup>10</sup> by the Commission for the New Towns<sup>11</sup>.

1 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'tenancy' includes subtenancy and an agreement for a tenancy or subtenancy: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1).

2 ie the date when ibid Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) came into force: see s 141(3).

3 For these purposes, 'protected tenancy' has the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see PARA 818 ante): Housing Act 1988 s 34(5). A protected tenancy cannot be an assured tenancy: see s 1(2), Sch 1 para 13(1); and PARA 1043 post. For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 post.

4 For these purposes, 'protected tenant' and 'statutory tenant' do not include: (1) a tenant under a protected shorthold tenancy; (2) a protected or statutory tenant of a dwelling house which was let under a protected shorthold tenancy which ended before 15 January 1989 and in respect of which at that date either there had been no grant of a further tenancy or any grant of a further tenancy had been to the person who, immediately before the grant, was in possession of the dwelling house as a protected or statutory tenant (ibid s 34(2)(a), (b)); and 'protected shorthold tenancy' includes a tenancy which, in proceedings for possession under the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 19 (as added) (see PARAS 970, 1010 ante) is treated as a protected shorthold tenancy (Housing Act 1988 s 34(2)). For the meaning of 'protected tenant' generally see PARA 818 ante; for the meaning of 'statutory tenant' generally see PARA 831 ante; and for the meaning of 'protected shorthold tenancy' generally see PARA 1009 ante. For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'dwelling house' may be a house or part of a house; and 'let' includes sublet: s 45(1). See also PARA 1018 post.

As to the grant of an assured shorthold tenancy or an assured tenancy to a person who was previously a protected shorthold tenant see s 34(3) (as amended); and PARA 1054 post.

5 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 post.

6 For these purposes, 'statutory tenancy' has the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see PARA 831 ante): Housing Act 1988 s 34(5). As to the application of head (2) in the text see Arogol Co Ltd v Rajah [2001] EWCA Civ 454, 82 P & CR D14, [2001] All ER (D) 254 (Mar) (it is the identities of the landlord and tenant that matter, not the identity or extent of the premises); Secretarial Nominee Co Ltd v Thomas [2005] EWCA Civ 1008, [2005] 3 EGLR 37, [2005] All ER (D) 484 (Jul) (protection does not apply when the original tenant protected by the Rent Act 1977 has ceased to be a joint tenant under a successor tenancy).

7 If the court was satisfied as mentioned in the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1)(a) (see PARAS 942, 947 ante) or s 99, Sch 16, Case I (as amended) (see PARAS 943, 948 ante) or in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 6, Sch 4, Case I (as amended) (see PARA 1170 post). Where the court is satisfied that alternative accommodation is available and that the tenancy of that accommodation offers the required security, it is not obliged to direct that the tenancy of the alternative accommodation be a protected tenancy: see Laimond Properties Ltd v Al-Shakarchi (1998) 30 HLR 1099, [1998] NPC 19, CA.

The creation of a statutory tenancy following the expiry of a protected shorthold tenancy does not fall within the Housing Act 1988 s 34 (as amended); the subjection of a house to a statutory tenancy is not a matter with which s 34 (as amended) is concerned since it cannot be regarded as a 'tenancy ... entered into': Ridehalgh v Horsefield and Isherwood (1992) 24 HLR 453, CA.

THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS/1013. Removal of special regimes for housing association tenancies.

1013. Removal of special regimes for housing association tenancies.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> cannot be a housing association tenancy<sup>3</sup> unless:

- 2019 (1) it is entered into in pursuance of a contract made before that date; or
- 2020 (2) it is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, who, immediately before the tenancy was granted, was a tenant<sup>4</sup> under a housing association tenancy and is so granted by the person who at that time was the landlord<sup>5</sup> under that housing association tenancy; or
- 2021 (3) it is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, in the following circumstances:
  - 20 (a) prior to the grant of the tenancy, an order for possession of a dwelling house<sup>6</sup> was made against him, alone or jointly with others, on the court being satisfied that suitable accommodation was available to him<sup>7</sup>; and
  - 24. (b) the tenancy is of the premises which constitute the suitable accommodation as to which the court was so satisfied; and

Where, on or after 15 January 1989, a registered social landlord<sup>12</sup> grants a secure tenancy to a former owner occupier<sup>13</sup>, then, in determining whether that tenancy is a housing association tenancy, it must be assumed<sup>14</sup> that the tenancy was granted before that date<sup>15</sup>. If, on or after that date, the interest of the landlord under a protected or statutory tenancy<sup>16</sup> becomes held by a housing association<sup>17</sup>, a housing trust<sup>18</sup> or the Housing Corporation<sup>19</sup> or, as the result of the exercise by him of functions under Part III of the Housing Associations Act 1985<sup>20</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>21</sup>, nothing in the above provisions prevents the tenancy from being a housing association tenancy or a secure tenancy<sup>22</sup>.

TEXT AND NOTE 11--Housing Act 1988 s 35(2) further amended: SI 2008/3002.

TEXT AND NOTE 19--Reference to Housing Corporation treated as reference to the Regulator of Social Housing: Transfer of Housing Corporation Functions (Modifications and Transitional Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/2839.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(1) PHASING OUT OF THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS/1014. New restricted contracts limited to transitional cases.

1014. New restricted contracts limited to transitional cases.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> or other contract entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> cannot be a restricted contract<sup>3</sup> unless it is entered into in pursuance of a contract made before that date<sup>4</sup>. If the terms of a restricted contract are varied on or after that date, then, if the variation affects the amount of the rent<sup>5</sup> which, under the contract, is payable for the dwelling in question<sup>6</sup>, the contract is treated as a new contract entered into at the time of the variation<sup>7</sup>. If, however, the variation does not affect the amount of the rent which, under the contract, is so payable, nothing in these provisions affects the determination of the question whether the variation is such as to give rise to a new contract<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

2 I.e. the date when the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) came into force: see s 141(3).

3 I.e. for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977: see PARA 985 et seq ante.

4 Housing Act 1988 s 36(1). There is no equivalent to the restricted contract under the Housing Act 1988: see PARAS 1019, 1035 post.

5 For these purposes, 'rent' has the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 Pt V (ss 77-85) (as amended) (see PARA 991 note 19 ante): Housing Act 1988 s 36(5).

6 For these purposes, any reference to a variation affecting the amount of the rent which, under a contract, is payable for a dwelling does not include a reference to: (1) a reduction or increase effected under the Rent Act 1977 s 78 (as amended) (power of rent tribunal: see PARA 991 ante); or (2) a variation which is made by the parties and has the effect of making the rent expressed to be payable under the contract the same as the rent for the dwelling which is entered in the register under s 79 (as amended) (see PARA 996 ante): Housing Act 1988 s 36(3). In the Rent Act 1977 s 81A(1) (as added) (cancellation of registration of rent relating to a restricted contract: see PARA 1001 ante) s 81A(1)(a) (as added) (no cancellation until two years have elapsed since the date of the entry) ceases to have effect: Housing Act 1988 s 36(4).

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(1) PHASING OUT OF THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS/1015. Transfer of existing tenancies from public to private sector.

1015. Transfer of existing tenancies from public to private sector.

The following provisions apply in relation to a tenancy<sup>1</sup> which was entered into before, or pursuant to a contract made before, 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> if:

2023 (1) at that date or, if it is later, at the time the tenancy is entered into, the interest of the landlord<sup>3</sup> is held by a public body<sup>4</sup> and at some time after that date the interest of the landlord ceases to be so held<sup>5</sup>; or

2024 (2) at that date or, if it is later, at the time the tenancy is entered into, it is a housing association tenancy<sup>6</sup> and at some time after that date it ceases to be such a tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

Subject to the exceptions set out below<sup>8</sup>, on and after the time when the interest of the landlord ceases to be held by a public body<sup>9</sup> or the tenancy ceases to be a housing association tenancy<sup>10</sup>, the tenancy is:

- 2025 (a) not capable of being a protected tenancy<sup>11</sup>, a protected occupancy<sup>12</sup> or a housing association tenancy;
- 2026 (b) not capable of being a secure tenancy<sup>13</sup> unless, and only at a time when, the interest of the landlord under the tenancy is, or is again, held by a public body; and
- 2027 (c) not prohibited from being an assured tenancy<sup>14</sup> because it was entered into before, or pursuant to a contract made before, 15 January 1989<sup>15</sup> and the question whether at any time after that time it becomes or remains an assured tenancy must be determined accordingly<sup>16</sup>.

In relation to a tenancy under which, on 15 January 1989 or, if it is later, at the time when the tenancy is entered into, the interest of the landlord is held by a new town corporation<sup>17</sup> and which subsequently ceases to be so held by virtue of a disposal by the Commission for the New Towns<sup>18</sup>, the above provisions<sup>19</sup> have effect as if any reference<sup>20</sup> to 15 January 1989 were a reference to 14 November 1990<sup>21</sup> or such other date, whether earlier or later, as may be specified by an order made for these purposes<sup>22</sup> by the Secretary of State by statutory instrument within the period of two years beginning on 15 January 1989<sup>23</sup>. The date so specified is 31 March 1996<sup>24</sup>.

Where, however, by virtue of a disposal by the Commission for the New Towns<sup>25</sup> made before 31 March 1996, the interest of the landlord under a tenancy passes to a registered social landlord<sup>26</sup>, then, so long as the tenancy continues to be held by a specified body<sup>27</sup>, the tenancy continues<sup>28</sup> to be a secure tenancy and to be capable of being a housing association tenancy<sup>29</sup>. Similarly, where, by virtue of a disposal by the Secretary of State<sup>30</sup> made in the exercise by him of functions under Part III of the Housing Associations Act 1985<sup>31</sup>, the interest of the landlord under a secure tenancy passes to a registered social landlord<sup>32</sup> then, so long as the tenancy continues to be held by a specified body<sup>33</sup>, the tenancy continues<sup>34</sup> to be a secure tenancy and to be capable of being a housing association tenancy<sup>35</sup>.

3 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 post.

4 For these purposes, the interest of a landlord under a tenancy is held by a public body at a time when it belongs to: (1) a local authority, a new town corporation, or an urban development corporation, all within the meaning of the Housing Act 1985 s 80 (as amended) (see PARA 1300 notes 8-11 post); or (2) a housing action trust established under the Housing Act 1988 Pt III (ss 60-92) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 319 et seq); or (3) Her Majesty in right of the Crown or a government department or is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department: Housing Act 1988 s 38(5) (amended by the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 152, Sch 18 Pt IV). 6 For these purposes, 'housing association tenancy' means a tenancy to which the Rent Act 1977 Pt VI (ss 86-97) (as amended) (see PARA 905 et seq ante) applies: Housing Act 1988 s 38(6)(a). As to the phasing out of the special regime for housing association tenancies see PARA 1013 ante.

1015 Transfer of existing tenancies from public to private sector

TEXT AND NOTES--Housing Act 1988 s 38 further amended: SI 2008/3002.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(1) PHASING OUT OF THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS/1016. Succession to assured tenancies by statutory tenants.

1016. Succession to assured tenancies by statutory tenants.

Where the person who is the original tenant<sup>1</sup> or the first successor<sup>2</sup> within the meaning of the Rent Act 1977 dies after 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup>, the provisions of that Act allowing a spouse or a member of the family of a deceased tenant to succeed to a statutory tenancy are modified by the Housing Act 1988<sup>4</sup>. Where the original tenant died on or before 15 January 1989, a surviving spouse or a member of the family of the deceased tenant who qualified succeeded to a statutory tenancy as the first successor; but, where the original tenant dies after that date, only a surviving spouse may succeed as a first successor and a qualifying family member will become an assured tenant by succession<sup>5</sup>. Where a first successor who was a statutory tenant died on or before 15 January 1989, a surviving spouse or qualifying family member succeeded to a statutory tenancy; but, where such a first successor dies after that date, a surviving spouse or surviving civil partner, or a qualifying family member, will succeed to an assured tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

In any case where, by virtue of any such modified provision<sup>7</sup>, a person ('the successor') becomes entitled to an assured tenancy of a dwelling house<sup>8</sup> by succession, that tenancy is a periodic tenancy arising<sup>9</sup> by statute<sup>10</sup> and is a tenancy:

- 2028 (1) taking effect in possession immediately after the death of the protected<sup>11</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>12</sup> or protected occupier<sup>13</sup> ('the predecessor') on whose death the successor became so entitled;
- 2029 (2) deemed to have been granted to the successor by the person who, immediately before the death of the predecessor, was the landlord<sup>14</sup> of the predecessor under his tenancy<sup>15</sup>;
- 2030 (3) under which the premises which are let<sup>16</sup> are the same dwelling house as, immediately before his death, the predecessor occupied under his tenancy;
- 2031 (4) under which the periods of the tenancy are the same as those for which rent was last payable by the predecessor under his tenancy;
- 2032 (5) under which the other terms are<sup>17</sup> the same as those on which, under his tenancy, the predecessor occupied the dwelling house immediately before his death; and
- 2033 (6) which is treated<sup>18</sup> as a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>19</sup>.

If, immediately before the death of the predecessor, the landlord might have recovered possession of the dwelling house on the mandatory ground for possession available where the tenancy was a protected shorthold tenancy<sup>20</sup>, the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled is<sup>21</sup> an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>22</sup>; and, if immediately before his death the predecessor was a protected occupier or statutory tenant within the meaning of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976, the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled is an assured agricultural occupancy<sup>23</sup>.

Where, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a tenant under a fixed term tenancy<sup>24</sup>, the provisions for fixing the terms of the statutory periodic tenancy<sup>25</sup> to which the successor becomes entitled on the predecessor's death are modified<sup>26</sup>; and, if and so long as a dwelling house is subject to an assured tenancy to which the successor has become entitled by succession, the provisions relating to the recovery of possession<sup>27</sup> are also modified<sup>28</sup>.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(1) PHASING OUT OF THE RENT ACTS AND OTHER TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS/1017. Conversion of 1980 Act assured tenancies; no such new tenancies to be created.

1017. Conversion of 1980 Act assured tenancies; no such new tenancies to be created.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> under which a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> was, on 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup>, let as a separate dwelling<sup>4</sup> and which immediately before that date was an assured tenancy for the purposes of the Housing Act 1980<sup>5</sup>, became on that date an assured tenancy<sup>6</sup> for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988<sup>7</sup>.

In any case where, immediately before that date, the landlord<sup>8</sup> under a tenancy was a fully mutual housing association<sup>9</sup>, and the tenancy so became an assured tenancy, then, so long as that association remains the landlord under that tenancy and under any statutory periodic tenancy<sup>10</sup> which arises on the coming to an end of that tenancy, the tenancy is not excluded<sup>11</sup> from being an assured tenancy notwithstanding that the landlord is such an association<sup>12</sup>.

In any case where a tenant under a 1980 Act tenancy<sup>13</sup> made an application to the court<sup>14</sup> before 15 January 1989 for the grant of a new tenancy and the 1980 Act tenancy was continuing<sup>15</sup> on that date, the above provisions<sup>16</sup> do not apply to the 1980 Act tenancy<sup>17</sup>; but, if the court makes an order for the grant of a new tenancy<sup>18</sup>, that tenancy is<sup>19</sup> an assured tenancy<sup>20</sup>. In any case where a contract was entered into before 15 January 1989 for the grant of a 1980 Act tenancy but at that date the tenancy had not been granted, the contract has effect as a contract for the grant of an assured tenancy<sup>21</sup>.

A tenancy which is entered into on or after 15 January 1989 cannot be a 1980 Act tenancy<sup>22</sup>.

7 Ibid s 1(3). In relation to an assured tenancy falling within s 1(3), Sch 1 Pt I (paras 1-13) (as amended) has effect, subject to s 1(5) (see the text and notes 8-12 infra), as if it consisted only of Sch 1 paras 11, 12 (as amended) (see PARAS 1039-1040 post); and the Housing Act 1980 ss 56-58, Sch 5 (as amended; repealed with savings by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 18) (see PARA 890 ante) do not apply after 15 January 1989: Housing Act 1988 s 1(4).

8 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 post.

9 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'fully mutual housing association' has the same meaning as in the Housing Associations Act 1985 Pt I (ss 1-40) (as amended) (see s 1(2) (as amended)); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 11): Housing Act 1988 s 45(1).

(2) MEANING OF 'ASSURED TENANCY'

(i) In general

1018. Meaning of 'assured tenancy'.

2034 (1) the tenant<sup>6</sup> or, as the case may be, each of the joint tenants is an individual<sup>7</sup>; and

2035 (2) the tenant or, as the case may be, at least one of the joint tenants occupies the dwelling house as his only or principal home<sup>8</sup>; and 2036 (3) the tenancy is not one which cannot be<sup>9</sup> an assured tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

Lettings to service personnel which would not otherwise be assured tenancies may be treated as such in certain circumstances<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante. The letting of a houseboat will not be on an assured tenancy since the Housing Act 1988 only applies to land, not to personal property, and a boat is not real property: see Chelsea Yacht and Boat Club Ltd v Pope [2001] 2 All ER 409, [2000] 1 WLR 1941, CA. Cooking facilities are not an essential attribute of a 'dwelling house' or 'dwelling' for these purposes; but a hotel room let to a long-term resident who provides his own electrical equipment enabling him to warm up food and make simple meals may fall within the statutory protection since the legislative purpose is to protect people in the occupation of their homes: see Uratemp Ventures Ltd v Collins [2001] UKHL 43, [2002] 1 AC 301, [2002] 1 All ER 46.

3 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

4 In determining whether a property is let as a separate dwelling, the primary consideration is the tenancy agreement itself, rather than the nature of the property or the use to which it has been put: Andrews v Brewer (1997) 30 HLR 203, sub nom Brewer v Andrews [1997] EGCS 19, CA. As to the sharing of premises see PARA 1019 et seq post.

5 Ie for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988: see PARA 1011 et seq ante, PARA 1019 et seq post.

6 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'tenant' includes a subtenant and any person deriving title under the original tenant or subtenant: ibid s 45(1). Where two or more persons jointly constitute the tenant in relation to a tenancy, then, for these purposes, except where otherwise provided, any reference to the tenant is a reference to all the persons who jointly constitute the tenant: s 45(3).

7 The requirement that the tenant or each of the joint tenants be an individual prevents a letting to a company, whether alone or as one of joint tenants, from being an assured tenancy and marks a departure from the Rent Acts which contain no such restriction in relation to protected tenancies, although only an individual can become a statutory tenant (see PARA 832 ante). The requirement that a tenant be an individual is also found in the Housing Act 1985 s 81 in relation to secure tenants: see PARA 1300 post. An assured tenancy will, therefore, cease to be an assured tenancy if it is assigned to a company.

8 This requirement also marks a departure from the Rent Acts under which occupation is not a prerequisite of the existence of a protected tenancy, although a statutory tenancy continues if and so long as the statutory tenant occupies the dwelling house as his residence: see the Rent Act 1977 s 2(1)(a); and PARA 831 ante. For the meaning of 'occupies the dwelling house as his residence' in the context of the Rent Acts see PARAS 832-836 ante. That case law is likely to be helpful in determining what constitutes occupation as 'a home' but not as to whether the home is the tenant's 'only or principal' home since the test is stricter than the test of residence. The requirement of occupation as an only or principal home is also found in the Housing Act 1985 s 81 in relation to secure tenants: see PARA 1300 note 19 post. See also Ujima Housing Association v Ansah (1997) 30 HLR 831, [1997] NPC 144, CA (subtenant who sublet the whole premises and moved out leaving his furniture in the premises was held not to be in occupation).

9 Ie by virtue of the Housing Act 1988 s 1(2) (see PARA 1024 post) or s 1(6) (repealed).

10 Ibid s 1(1).

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(2) MEANING OF 'ASSURED TENANCY'/(ii) Shared Accommodation/1019. Sharing with the landlord.

(ii) Shared Accommodation

1019. Sharing with the landlord.

A tenant who does not have a tenancy of premises let as a separate dwelling because he shares essential living accommodation<sup>1</sup> with his landlord cannot be an assured tenant<sup>2</sup>.

Any reservation by a landlord of a right to re-enter and share accommodation with the tenant must be clear and specific if it is to operate to prevent the tenant from holding an assured tenancy<sup>3</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'essential living accommodation' for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 see PARA 824 ante. It is thought that the same principles apply for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988. Cf the meaning of 'living accommodation' for the purposes of s 3 (sharing with persons other than the landlord): see PARA 1020 note 7 post.

2 It is a requirement of an assured tenancy that the premises are let as a separate dwelling: see PARA 1018 ante. As to resident landlords see further PARA 1035 et seq post. The Housing Act 1988 contains no equivalent provision to that formerly contained in the Rent Act 1977 s 21 (repealed with savings) which conferred the limited protection of a 'restricted contract' on certain tenants who shared accommodation with their landlords. As to restricted contracts see PARA 985 et seq ante; and as to the phasing out of restricted contracts see PARA 1014 ante. As to the exceptions to the general requirement of 'separateness' see PARA 1038 post. See also Gray v Brown (1992) 25 HLR 144 [1993] 1 EGLR 119, CA (cited in PARA 826 note 4 ante).

3 See Miller v Eyo (1999) 31 HLR 306, [1998] NPC 95, CA (term of tenancy of bedsitting room that kitchen and bathroom were to be shared with any other tenant of the other bedroom but there was no agreement relating to the possibility of sharing with the landlords; held that the tenancy was an assured tenancy).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(2) MEANING OF 'ASSURED TENANCY'/(ii) Shared Accommodation/1020. Tenant sharing with persons other than the landlord.

1020. Tenant sharing with persons other than the landlord.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> has the exclusive occupation<sup>2</sup> of any accommodation ('the separate accommodation') and:

2038 (2) the separate accommodation would not otherwise be a dwelling house let<sup>4</sup> on an assured tenancy by reason only of the circumstances mentioned in head (1) above, the separate accommodation is deemed to be a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy and the following provisions have effect<sup>5</sup>.

While the tenant is in possession of the separate accommodation, any term of the tenancy<sup>6</sup> terminating or modifying, or providing for the termination or modification of, his right to use any of the shared accommodation which is living accommodation<sup>7</sup> is of no effect<sup>8</sup>. Where, however, the terms of the tenancy are such that, at any time during the tenancy, the persons in common with whom the tenant is entitled to the use of the shared accommodation could be varied or their number increased, nothing in the above provision prevents those terms from having effect so far as they relate to any such variation or increase<sup>9</sup>.

While the tenant is in possession of the separate accommodation, no order may be made<sup>10</sup> for possession of any of the shared accommodation, whether on the application of the immediate landlord of the tenant or on the application of any person under whom that landlord derives title, unless a like order has been made, or is made at the same time, in respect of the separate accommodation<sup>11</sup>. The statutory provisions relating to fixing the terms of a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>12</sup> apply accordingly<sup>13</sup>. The court<sup>14</sup> may, however, on the application of the landlord, make such order as it thinks just either:

- 2039 (a) terminating the right of the tenant to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation other than living accommodation; or
- 2040 (b) modifying his right to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation, whether by varying the persons or increasing the number of persons entitled to the use of that accommodation or otherwise<sup>15</sup>;

but no order may be so made so as to effect any termination or modification of the rights of the tenant which could not<sup>16</sup> be effected by or under the terms of the tenancy<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

2 As to exclusive occupation generally see PARA 6 ante.

3 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'landlord' includes any person from time to time deriving title under the original landlord and also includes, in relation to a dwelling house, any person other than a tenant who is or but for the existence of an assured tenancy would be entitled to possession of the dwelling house: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1). Where two or more persons jointly constitute the landlord in relation to a tenancy then, except where otherwise provided, any reference to the landlord is a reference to all the persons who jointly constitute the landlord: s 45(3). For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

5 Housing Act 1988 s 3(1). Where, for the purposes of determining the rateable value of the separate accommodation, it is necessary to make an apportionment under s 1(2)(b), Sch 1 Pt II (paras 14-16) (see PARA 1027 post), regard must, however, be had to the circumstances mentioned in s 3(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text): s 3(2). As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

7 For these purposes, 'living accommodation' means accommodation of such a nature that the fact that it constitutes or is included in the shared accommodation is sufficient, apart from the Housing Act 1988 s 3, to prevent the tenancy from constituting an assured tenancy of a dwelling house: s 3(5).

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(2) MEANING OF 'ASSURED TENANCY'/(ii) Shared Accommodation/1021. Tenant sharing with a subtenant.

1021. Tenant sharing with a subtenant.

Where the tenant<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> has sublet part but not the whole of the dwelling house, then no part of the dwelling house is, as against his landlord<sup>3</sup> or any superior landlord, to be treated as excluded from being a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup> by reason only that the terms on which any person claiming under the tenant holds any part of the dwelling house include the use of accommodation in common with other persons<sup>5</sup>. Nothing in this provision, however, affects the rights against, and liabilities to, each other of the tenant and any person claiming under him or of any two such persons<sup>6</sup>.

(iii) Letting of Dwelling House with Other Land

1022. Letting with other land.

If, under a tenancy<sup>1</sup>, a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is let<sup>3</sup> together with other land<sup>4</sup>, then:

- 2041 (1) if and so long as the main purpose of the letting is the provision of a home for the tenant<sup>5</sup>, or, where there are joint tenants, at least one of them, the other land is treated for the statutory purposes<sup>6</sup> as part of the dwelling house;
- 2042 (2) if and so long as the main purpose of the letting is not as mentioned in head (1) above, the tenancy is treated for those purposes as not being one under which a dwelling house is let as a separate dwelling<sup>7</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions, however, affects any question whether a tenancy is otherwise precluded<sup>8</sup> from being an assured tenancy<sup>9</sup>. During the course of a tenancy the main purposes of the letting may change and accordingly the tenancy may sometimes be assured and sometimes not<sup>10</sup>.

2043 (1) the date on which the applicant was notified of the authority's decision on his case<sup>4</sup>; or

2044 (2) if there is a review of that decision<sup>5</sup> or an appeal to the court<sup>6</sup>, the date on which he is notified of the decision on review or the appeal is finally determined,

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which was entered into before, or pursuant to a contract made before, 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> cannot<sup>3</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup>. PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(3) EXCEPTIONS AND EXCLUSIONS/(ii) Tenancies which cannot be Assured Tenancies/1026. Tenancies at high rents.

1026. Tenancies at high rents.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> had a rateable value<sup>3</sup> on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, and under which the rent<sup>4</sup> payable for the time being is payable at a rate exceeding £25,000<sup>5</sup> a year, cannot<sup>6</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

There is no statutory restriction on the rent which the parties may agree; however a clause in a tenancy agreement which purported to be a rent review clause but which provided for the annual rent to rise from £4,680 to £25,000, which was substantially above the market value for the property, was held to be a device designed to enable the landlord to bring the assured tenancy to an end and obtain possession of the property and was, accordingly, unenforceable as an unlawful contracting out of the security of tenure provisions relating to assured tenancies<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' for these purposes see PARA 1025 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

3 As to the ascertainment of rateable value see PARA 1027 post; as to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value where no entry appeared on the valuation list at the date at which the domestic rating system was abolished see PARA 523 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'rent' does not include any sum payable by the tenant as is expressed, in whatever terms, to be payable in respect of rates, council tax, services, management, repairs, maintenance or insurance, unless it could not have been regarded by the parties to the tenancy as a sum so payable: Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 2(2) (Sch 1 para 2 substituted by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 29; amended by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 19). Cf the Rent Act 1977 s 4(5) (as added and amended), s 5(4) (as amended) and PARAS 860 note 5, 862 ante. Unless the rent is a pecuniary rent or, if in kind, has been quantified in money terms, the exclusion cannot operate: see Hornsby v Maynard [1925] 1 KB 514, DC; Montague v Browning [1954] 2 All ER 601, [1954] 1 WLR 1039, CA; Barnes v Barratt [1970] 2 QB 657, [1970] 2 All ER 483, CA (all decided under the Rent Act 1977: see PARA 862 ante).

'Rates' includes water rates and charges but does not include an owner's drainage rate, as defined by the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 63(2)(a) (repealed; see now the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 40; and WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 101 (2009) PARAS 627-628); Housing Act 1988 s 45(1). 6 The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order replace any amount referred to in the Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 2 (as substituted and amended) by such amount as is specified in the order; and such an order must be made by statutory instrument which is subject, if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Housing Act 1988 s 1(2A) (added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 27). A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which was entered into before 1 April 1990, or on or after that date in pursuance of a contract made before that date, and under which the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> had a rateable value<sup>3</sup> on 31 March 1990 which, if it is in Greater London<sup>4</sup>, exceeded £1,500 and, if it is elsewhere, exceeded £750, cannot<sup>5</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

The rateable value of a dwelling house at any time is to be ascertained<sup>7</sup> as follows<sup>8</sup>. If the dwelling house is a hereditament for which a rateable value is then shown in the valuation list<sup>9</sup>, it is that rateable value<sup>10</sup>. If, however, the dwelling house forms part only of such a hereditament or consists of or forms part of more than one such hereditament, its rateable value is taken to be such value as is found by a proper apportionment or aggregation of the rateable value or values so shown<sup>11</sup>.

Where, after the time at which the rateable value of a dwelling house is material for these purposes<sup>12</sup>, the valuation list is altered so as to vary the rateable value of the hereditament of which the dwelling house consists, in whole or in part, or forms part and the alteration has effect from that time or from an earlier time, the rateable value of the dwelling house at the material time must be ascertained as if the value shown in the valuation list at the material time had been the value shown in the list as altered<sup>13</sup>.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> under which the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is comprised in an agricultural holding<sup>3</sup> and is occupied by the person responsible for the control, whether as tenant<sup>4</sup> or as servant or agent of the tenant, of the farming of the holding, cannot<sup>5</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>6</sup>. Similarly, a tenancy under which the dwelling house is comprised in the holding held under a farm business tenancy<sup>7</sup>, and is occupied by the person responsible for the control, whether as tenant or as servant or agent of the tenant, of the management of the holding, cannot<sup>8</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'agricultural holding' means any agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 held under a tenancy in relation to which that Act applies: Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 7(3) (Sch 1 para 7 substituted by the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 s 40, Schedule para 34). ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(3) EXCEPTIONS AND EXCLUSIONS/(ii) Tenancies which cannot be Assured Tenancies/1035. Resident landlords.

1035. Resident landlords.

The Housing Act 1988 follows the Rent Acts<sup>1</sup> by excluding from its protection certain tenancies granted by resident landlords; but, whereas under the Rent Acts a tenancy which fell within the resident landlord exemption was a restricted contract<sup>2</sup>, a tenancy which falls within the resident landlord exemption under the Housing Act 1988 has no statutory protection.

A tenancy<sup>3</sup> in respect of which the following conditions are fulfilled cannot<sup>4</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>5</sup>. The conditions are:

- 2049 (2) that, subject to certain exceptions<sup>10</sup>, the tenancy was granted by an individual<sup>11</sup> who at the time when the tenancy was granted occupied as his only or principal home<sup>12</sup> another dwelling house which also forms part of the flat<sup>13</sup> or also forms<sup>14</sup> part of the building<sup>15</sup>; and
- 2050 (3) that, subject to certain exceptions<sup>16</sup>, at all times since the tenancy was granted the interest of the landlord under the tenancy has belonged to an individual<sup>17</sup> who, at the time he owned that interest, occupied as his only or principal home another dwelling house which also formed part of the flat<sup>18</sup> or also formed<sup>19</sup> part of the building<sup>20</sup>; and
- 2051 (4) that the tenancy is not a new tenancy excluded<sup>21</sup> from the resident landlord exemption<sup>22</sup>.

1 The exclusion was introduced by the Rent Act 1974 (repealed) and was re-enacted in the Rent Act 1977 s 12, Sch 2 (as amended). The corresponding provisions in the Housing Act 1988 are in many respects very similar to those in the Rent Act 1977: see PARA 875 et seq ante.

2 See PARA 985 et seq ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tenancy' for these purposes see PARA 1025 note 1 ante.

4 The subject to the Housing Act 1988 s 1(3) (conversion of Housing Act 1980 assured tenancies): see PARA 1017 ante.

5 Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 10(1). For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

7 What constitutes a 'building' for these purposes is a question of fact: see Bardrick v Haycock (1976) 31 P & CR 420 at 424, CA, per Scarman LJ; Lewis-Graham v Conacher (1991) 24 HLR 132, [1992] 1 EGLR 111, CA (both decided under the Rent Act 1977 and cited in PARA 875 note 4 ante).

8 For these purposes, 'flat' means a dwelling house which forms part only of a building and is separated horizontally from another dwelling house which forms part of the same building: Housing Act 1988 s 1(2)(c), Sch 1 para 22. As to 'separated horizontally' cf the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 2(1); and Peck v Anicar Properties Ltd [1971] 1 All ER 517, (1970) 21 P & CR 919, CA. See also PARA 1390 post.

9 For these purposes, a building is a purpose-built block of flats if as constructed it contained, and it contains, two or more flats: Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 22. See also Barnes v Gorsuch (1981) 43 P & CR 294, 2 HLR 134, CA.

10 Ie subject to the Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 Pt III (paras 17-22) (as amended): see the text and notes 8 supra, 15 infra; and PARAS 1036-1037 post.

11 If a tenancy was granted by two or more persons jointly, the reference to an individual is a reference to any one of those persons: ibid Sch 1 para 10(2).

12 As to occupation as his only or principal home see PARA 1018 note 8 ante.

13 Ie in the case mentioned in the Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 10(1)(a): see head (1) in the text.

14 Ie in any other case.

15 Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 10(1)(b). In any case where (1) immediately before a tenancy comes to an end, the condition in Sch 1 para 10(1)(c) (see head (3) in the text) is deemed to be fulfilled by virtue of Sch 1 para 18(1) (as amended) (see PARA 1037 post); and (2) on the coming to an end of that tenancy the trustees in whom the interest of the landlord is vested grant a new tenancy of the same or substantially the same dwelling house to a person, alone or jointly with others, who was the tenant or one of the tenants under the previous tenancy, the condition in Sch 1 para 10(1)(b) is deemed to be fulfilled with respect to the new tenancy: Sch 1 para 19. For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

16 See note 10 supra.

17 For these purposes, if the interest of the landlord is for the time being held by two or more persons jointly, the reference to an individual is a reference to any one of those persons: Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 10(2).

18 See note 13 supra.

19 See note 14 supra.

20 Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 10(1)(c). As to determining whether this condition is at any time fulfilled see PARA 1037 post.

Resident landlords; periods of non-occupation by landlord to be disregarded.

1036. Resident landlords; periods of non-occupation by landlord to be disregarded.

In determining whether the condition as to residence by the landlord<sup>1</sup> is at any time fulfilled with respect to a tenancy<sup>2</sup>, there must be disregarded:

2052 (1) any period of not more than 28 days beginning with the date on which the interest of the landlord under the tenancy becomes vested at law and in equity in an individual who, during that period, does not occupy as his only or principal home<sup>3</sup> another dwelling house<sup>4</sup> which forms part of the building<sup>5</sup> or, as the case may be, flat<sup>6</sup> concerned<sup>7</sup>;

2053 (2) if, within a period falling within head (1) above the individual concerned notifies the tenant<sup>8</sup> in writing of his intention to occupy as his only or principal home another dwelling house in the building or, as the case may be, flat concerned, the period beginning with the date on which the interest of the landlord under the tenancy becomes vested in that individual as mentioned in head (1) above and ending:

30. (a) at the expiry of the period of six months beginning on that date; or

31. (b) on the date on which that interest ceases to be so vested; or

32. (c) on the date on which that interest becomes again vested in an individual who fulfils the residence requirement<sup>9</sup> or that requirement becomes deemed to be fulfilled<sup>10</sup>,

Throughout any period which falls to be disregarded by virtue of these provisions<sup>14</sup> for the purpose of determining whether the condition as to residence by the landlord<sup>15</sup> is fulfilled with respect to a tenancy, no order may be made for possession of the dwelling house subject to that tenancy other than an order which might be made if that tenancy were or, as the case may be, had been an assured tenancy<sup>16</sup>.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(3) EXCEPTIONS AND EXCLUSIONS/(ii) Tenancies which cannot be Assured Tenancies/1037. Deemed fulfilment of landlord's residence condition.

1037. Deemed fulfilment of landlord's residence condition.

During any period when:

the condition as to residence by the landlord<sup>7</sup> is deemed to be fulfilled and, accordingly, no part of that period is to be<sup>8</sup> disregarded<sup>9</sup>. If such a period comes to an end on the death of a person who was in occupation of a dwelling house as mentioned in head (2) above, then, in determining whether that residence condition is at any time thereafter fulfilled, there must be disregarded any period:

2058 (a) which begins on the date of the death;

- 2059 (b) during which the interest of the landlord remains vested in trustees as such; and
- 2060 (c) which ends at the expiry of the period of two years beginning on the date of the death or on any earlier date on which that residence condition becomes again so deemed<sup>10</sup> to be fulfilled<sup>11</sup>.

If the interest of the landlord under the tenancy becomes vested in the personal representatives of a deceased person acting in that capacity, the landlord's residence condition is also deemed to be fulfilled for any period, beginning with the date on which the interest becomes vested in the personal representatives and not exceeding two years, during which the interest of the landlord remains so vested<sup>12</sup>.

It is probable that as under the Rent Acts the periods of disregard and deemed fulfilment can be aggregated<sup>13</sup>.

1039. Crown tenancies.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> under which the interest of the landlord<sup>2</sup> belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown<sup>3</sup> or to a government department or is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department cannot<sup>4</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>5</sup>. Subject to this provision, the provisions of the Housing Act 1988 relating to assured tenancies<sup>6</sup> apply to premises in which there subsists, or at any material time subsisted, a Crown interest<sup>7</sup> as they apply in relation to premises in relation to which no such interest subsists or ever subsisted<sup>8</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

3 For these purposes, the reference to the case where the interest of the landlord belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown does not include the case where that interest is under the management of the Crown Estate Commissioners or it is held by the Secretary of State as the result of the exercise by him of functions under the Housing Associations Act 1985 Pt III (ss 74-102) (as amended): Housing Act 1988 s 1(2), Sch 1 para 11(2) (amended by the Government of Wales Act 1998 (Housing) (Amendments) Order 1999, SI 1999/61, art 2, Schedule, PARA 3(1), (4)). 7 For these purposes, 'Crown interest' means an interest which belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster or to the Duchy of Cornwall, or to a government department, or which is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department: ibid s 44(3). Where an interest belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, then, for the purposes of Pt I Chs I-IV (as amended), the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster is deemed to be the owner of the interest: s 44(4).

1045. Exclusion of statutory presumption by notice or by provisions of assured tenancy.

- 2076 (1) the notice is one which:
- 28
- 33. (a) is served before the assured tenancy is entered into;

34. (b) is served by the person who is to be the landlord<sup>5</sup> under the assured tenancy on the person who is to be the tenant<sup>6</sup> under that tenancy; and
35. (c) states that the assured tenancy to which it relates is not to be an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>7</sup>; or
- 29
- 2077 (2) the notice is one which:
- 30
36. (a) is served after the assured tenancy has been entered into;
37. (b) is served by the landlord under the assured tenancy on the tenant under that tenancy; and
38. (c) states that the assured tenancy to which it relates is no longer an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>8</sup>.
- 31

Nor is an assured tenancy created on or after that date an assured shorthold tenancy if it contains a provision to the effect that the tenancy is not an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

An assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>2</sup> which:

- 2078 (1) is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, who, immediately before the tenancy was granted, was the tenant<sup>3</sup> or, in the case of joint tenants, one of the tenants, under an assured tenancy other than a shorthold tenancy ('the old tenancy');
- 2079 (2) is granted, alone or jointly with others, by a person who was at that time the landlord<sup>4</sup>, or one of the joint landlords, under the old tenancy; and is not<sup>6</sup> an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>7</sup>.
- 2080 (3) is not one in respect of which a notice is served as mentioned below<sup>5</sup>,

The notice referred to in head (3) above is one which:

- 2081 (a) is in such form as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>;
- 2082 (b) is served before the assured tenancy is entered into;
- 2083 (c) is served by the person who is to be the tenant under the assured tenancy on the person who is to be the landlord under that tenancy or, in the case of joint landlords, on at least one of the persons who are to be joint landlords; and

1048 Other cases where the statutory presumption is excluded

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(4) ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(i) Assured Shorthold Tenancies created on or after 28 February 1997/1049. Landlord's duty to provide statement as to terms of tenancy.

1049. Landlord's duty to provide statement as to terms of tenancy.

A tenant<sup>1</sup> under an assured shorthold tenancy to which the statutory presumption<sup>2</sup> applies may<sup>3</sup>, by notice in writing, require the landlord<sup>4</sup> under that tenancy to provide him with a written statement of any term of the tenancy which:

- 2091 (1) falls within heads (a) to (d) below; and 2092 (2) is not evidenced in writing<sup>5</sup>.

The terms so referred to are the following terms of a tenancy:

- 2093 (a) the date on which the tenancy began or, if it is a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>6</sup> or a tenancy to which the specified statutory provision<sup>7</sup> applies, the date on which the tenancy came into being;
- 2094 (b) the rent payable under the tenancy and the dates on which that rent is payable;
- 2095 (c) any term providing for a review of the rent payable under the tenancy; and
- 2096 (d) in the case of a fixed term tenancy, the length of the fixed term<sup>8</sup>.

No notice may, however, be so given in relation to a term of the tenancy if:

- 2097 (i) the landlord under the tenancy has provided a statement of that term in response to an earlier such notice given by the tenant under the tenancy; and
- 2098 (ii) the term has not been varied since the provision of the statement referred to in head (i) above<sup>9</sup>.

A landlord who fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with such a notice within the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which he received the notice is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale<sup>10</sup>.

A statement provided for these purposes is not, however, to be regarded as conclusive evidence of what was agreed by the parties to the tenancy in question<sup>11</sup>.

1 In the Housing Act 1988 s 20A(1), (3) (as added) (see the text and notes 2-5, 9 infra), references to the tenant under the tenancy are, in the case of joint tenants, to be taken to be references to any of the tenants: s 20A(7)(a) (s 20A added by the Housing Act 1996 s 97). For the meaning of 'tenant' generally see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

4 In ibid s 20A(1), (3) (as added) (see the text and notes 1-4 supra, 5, 9 infra), references to the landlord under the tenancy are, in the case of joint landlords, to be taken to be references to any of the landlords: s 20A(7)(b) (as added: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'landlord' generally see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

5 Ibid s 20A(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). Where (1) a term of a statutory periodic tenancy is one which has effect by virtue of s 5(3)(e) (see PARA 1068 post at head (5) in the text); or (2) a term of a tenancy to which s 39(7) (as amended) applies is one which has effect by virtue of s 39(6)(e) (see PARA 1016 ante), s 20A(1) (as so added) has effect in relation to it as if s 20A(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) related to the term of the tenancy from which it derives: s 20A(6) (as so added).

6 For the meaning of 'statutory periodic tenancy' see PARA 1067 note 8 post.

7 Ibid if it is a tenancy to which the Housing Act 1988 s 39(7) (as amended) applies: see PARA 1016 ante.

1050. Demoted assured shorthold tenancies.

An assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> is a demoted assured shorthold tenancy<sup>2</sup> if the tenancy is created by virtue of a demotion order<sup>3</sup> and the landlord<sup>4</sup> is a registered social landlord<sup>5</sup>.

At the end of the period of one year starting with the day when the demotion order takes effect a demoted assured shorthold tenancy ceases to be an assured shorthold tenancy unless, before the end of that period, the landlord gives notice of proceedings for possession of the dwelling house<sup>6</sup>. In that case the tenancy continues to be a demoted assured shorthold tenancy until the end of that period or, if later, until one of the following occurs:

- 2099 (1) the notice of proceedings for possession is withdrawn;
- 2100 (2) the proceedings are determined in favour of the tenant<sup>7</sup>;
- 2101 (3) the period of six months beginning with the date on which the notice is given ends and no proceedings for possession have been brought<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

2 I.e. an assured shorthold tenancy to which the Housing Act 1988 s 20B (as added) applies: see the text and notes 3-8 infra.

3 I.e. an order of the court under the Housing Act 1985 s 82A (as added) (see PARA 1351 post) or the Housing Act 1988 s 6A (as added) (see PARA 1066 post).

Each of the following has effect in respect of a demoted tenancy at the time it is created by virtue of an order under s 6A (as added) as it has effect in relation to the assured tenancy at the time it is terminated by virtue of the order: (1) the parties to the tenancy; (2) the period of the tenancy; (3) the amount of the rent; (4) the dates on which the rent is payable; but head (2) supra does not apply if the assured tenancy was for a fixed term and in such a case the demoted tenancy is a weekly periodic tenancy: s 6A(8), (9) (added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 14(4)). If the landlord of the demoted tenancy serves on the tenant a statement of any other express terms of the assured tenancy which are to apply to the demoted tenancy such terms are also terms of the demoted tenancy: Housing Act 1988 s 6A(10) (as so added). For these purposes, a demoted tenancy is a tenancy to which s 20B (as added) applies (see the text and notes 4-8 infra): s 6A(11) (as so added).

4 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

5 Housing Act 1988 s 20B(1) (s 20B added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 15(1)). For these purposes, 'registered social landlord' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-64) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 11, 66 et seq): Housing Act 1988 s 20B(5) (as so added).

(ii) Assured Shorthold Tenancies created before 28 February 1997

1051. Meaning of 'assured shorthold tenancy'.

An assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> created before 28 February 1997<sup>2</sup> is an assured shorthold tenancy if:

2102 (1) it is a fixed term tenancy<sup>3</sup> granted for a term certain of not less than six months<sup>4</sup>; and

2104 (3) a notice in respect of it was served:

41. (a) in such form as might be prescribed<sup>8</sup>;

42. (b) before the assured tenancy was entered into;

43. (c) by the person who was to be the landlord<sup>9</sup> under the assured tenancy on the person who was to be the tenant<sup>10</sup>;

2105 and the notice stated that the assured tenancy to which it related was to be a shorthold tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante. Tenancies which cannot be assured tenancies (see PARA 1024 et seq ante) cannot be assured shorthold tenancies.

2 Ie an assured tenancy which is not one to which the Housing Act 1988 s 19A (as added) applies: see PARA 1044 ante. As to the significance of the date in the text see PARA 1044 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'fixed term tenancy' means any tenancy other than a periodic tenancy: ibid s 45(1). A tenancy is not a periodic tenancy for these purposes where the automatic continuance is not for the same period as the initial term: see Goodman v Evelyn [2001] EWCA Civ 104, [2001] All ER (D) 146 (Jan). For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

4 The tenancy commenced on the date of grant, not at any earlier date from which the tenancy is expressed to run: see Keen v Holland [1984] 1 All ER 75, [1984] 1 WLR 251, CA (decided under the Agricultural Holdings Act 1948 s 2(1) (repealed)). See also Bedding v McCarthy (1993) 27 HLR 103, [1994] 2 EGLR 40, CA (tenancy agreements deal with years, months and weeks and sometimes days, but not with hours).

5 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

6 Any reference in the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended), however expressed, to a power for a landlord to determine a tenancy does not include a reference to a power of re-entry or forfeiture for breach of any term or condition of the tenancy: s 45(4).

7 Subject to ibid s 7(5), Sch 2 Pt IV para 11 (see PARA 1108 note 6 post), any reference in Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) to the beginning of a tenancy is a reference to the day on which the tenancy is entered into or, if it is later, the day on which, under the terms of any lease, agreement or other document, the tenant is entitled to possession under the tenancy: s 45(2).

8 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 1046 note 8 ante. For the form of notice which was prescribed for these purposes see the Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Forms) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/2203, regs 2, 3(7), Schedule, Form 7 (as amended; revoked by SI 1997/194). The prescribed form required for its completion the specification of a date of termination and therefore predicated the insertion of the correct date for the tenancy in respect of which it was served; a notice with an incorrect date was invalid: Panayi & Pyrkos v Roberts (1993) 25 HLR 421, [1993] 2 EGLR 51, CA; and see Clickex Ltd v McCann (1999) 32 HLR 324, [1999] 2 EGLR 63, CA (not only was the notice technically defective, but the commencement and termination dates on the claimant's and defendant's copies of the tenancy agreement had been in complete conflict with each other, so that it was impossible to determine by reference to the documents alone which was correct). See also Manel v Memon [2000] 2 EGLR 40, [2000] All ER (D) 481, CA (omission from a notice of four bullet points in the prescribed form, particularly an exhortation to the prospective tenant to obtain advice and a statement that the notice did not commit the prospective tenant to the tenancy, rendered that notice ineffective). A notice not in the prescribed form by virtue only of a clerical error might, however, still be treated as valid: Andrews v Brewer (1997) 30 HLR 203, sub nom Brewer v Andrews [1997] EGCS 19, CA; and see York v Casey (1998) 31 HLR 209, [1998] 2 EGLR 25, CA (distinguished in Clickex Ltd v McCann supra). The question for the court is whether, despite errors or omissions, the notice accomplished the statutory purpose of informing the proposed tenant of the unique nature of an assured shorthold tenancy: Ravenseft Properties Ltd v Hall [2001] EWCA Civ 2034, [2002] HLR 624, [2001] All ER (D) 318 (Dec). The notice ought properly to include the landlord's name and address, but a failure to give such information where the notice gave the name and address of the landlord's agent did not have the effect of invalidating the notice, since, without such information, the notice would still be substantially to the same effect as the proper form: Osborn & Co Ltd v Dior, Marito Holdings SA v Borhane [2003] EWCA Civ 281, [2003] HLR 649, [2003] All ER (D) 185 (Jan).

9 In the case of joint landlords, the reference to the person who was to be the landlord is a reference to at least one of the persons who were to be joint landlords: see the Housing Act 1988 s 20(6)(a).

10 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante. Where there are joint tenants, all must have been served with the notice: see ibid s 45(3) (cited in PARA 1018 note 6 ante).

11 Ibid s 20(1), (2) (s 20(1) substituted by the Housing Act 1996 s 104, Sch 8 para 2(1), (3)). The requirement for service of notice in the prescribed form could not be dispensed with: cf the Housing Act 1980 s 55(2) (protected shorthold tenancies); and PARA 1010 ante. A tenant might authorise an agent to receive the notice: Yenula Properties Ltd v Naidu [2002] EWCA Civ 719, [2003] HLR 229, [2002] All ER (D) 366 (May).

Shorthold tenancy could not be granted to tenant who was previously an assured tenant.

1052. Shorthold tenancy could not be granted to tenant who was previously an assured tenant.

Where immediately before<sup>1</sup> a tenancy<sup>2</sup> ('the new tenancy') was granted, the person to whom it was granted or, as the case might be, at least one of the persons to whom it was granted was a tenant<sup>3</sup> under an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup> which was not an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>5</sup> and the new tenancy was granted by the person who, immediately before the beginning of the tenancy<sup>6</sup>, was the landlord<sup>7</sup> under that assured tenancy, the new tenancy could not<sup>8</sup> be an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

The above provision does not apply where the new tenancy is created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>10</sup>.

1 The expression 'immediately before' is not defined but the gap between the existence of a previous assured tenancy and the creation of a new tenancy need not be long: see Dibbs v Campbell (1988) 20 HLR 374, [1988] 2 EGLR 122, CA.

- 6 For the meaning of references to the beginning of the tenancy see PARA 1051 note 7 ante.
- 7 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante. It seems that, where there were joint landlords under either the new or the previous tenancy, the new tenancy would be an assured shorthold tenancy unless there was an exact identity between the persons who comprised 'the landlord' under each tenancy: see the Housing Act 1988 s 45(3) (cited in PARA 1020 note 3 ante).
- 8 Ie notwithstanding anything in ibid s 20(1) (as substituted): see PARA 1051 ante.

1053. Grant to tenant who was previously a protected or statutory tenant.

A tenancy entered into on or after 15 January 1989 cannot generally be a protected or statutory tenancy under the Rent Act 1977<sup>1</sup>. Transitional provisions preserve the pre-existing statutory protection in a number of cases where a new tenancy is granted on or after 15 January 1989 to a tenant who was previously a protected or statutory tenant<sup>2</sup>; but this protection does not apply to protected shorthold tenants<sup>3</sup>. A new tenancy granted on or after that date, whether of the same or different premises, to a person who was previously a protected or statutory tenant cannot, therefore, be an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>4</sup>; but a new tenancy granted to a person who was previously a protected shorthold tenant may be<sup>5</sup>.

In any case where:

- 2106 (1) a tenancy<sup>1</sup> entered into on or after 15 January 1980<sup>2</sup> is<sup>3</sup> an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup>; but
- 2107 (2) the tenancy would<sup>5</sup>, if not granted to a person who was previously a protected shorthold tenant, be<sup>6</sup> a protected tenancy<sup>7</sup>; and
- 2108 (3) the landlord<sup>8</sup> and the tenant<sup>9</sup> under the tenancy are the same as at the coming to an end of the protected or statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup> which would otherwise qualify for protection<sup>11</sup>, the tenancy is an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>12</sup>, whether or not, in the case of a tenancy created before 28 February 1997<sup>13</sup>, it fulfils the statutory conditions<sup>14</sup>, unless, before the tenancy is entered into, the landlord serves notice on the tenant that it is not to be a shorthold tenancy<sup>15</sup>.

1055. Grant to tenant who was previously an assured shorthold tenant.

If, on the coming to an end of an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>1</sup>, including a tenancy<sup>2</sup> which was an assured shorthold but ceased to be assured before it came to an end, a new tenancy of the same or substantially the same premises came into being under which the landlord<sup>3</sup> and the tenant<sup>4</sup> were the same as at the coming to an end of the earlier tenancy, then, if and so long as the new tenancy is an assured tenancy<sup>5</sup>, it is an assured shorthold tenancy whether or not it fulfils the statutory<sup>6</sup> conditions<sup>7</sup>. This provision does not, however, apply if, before the new tenancy was entered into or, in the case of a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>8</sup>, took effect in possession, the landlord<sup>9</sup> served notice on the tenant that the new tenancy was not to be an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>10</sup>. Nor does it apply where the new tenancy is created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>11</sup>.

1056. Arrangements for securing availability of tenancy deposit schemes.

As from a day which, except for the purposes of making an order or regulations, is to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, the appropriate national authority<sup>2</sup> must make arrangements for securing that one or more tenancy deposit schemes are available for the purpose of safeguarding tenancy deposits<sup>3</sup> paid in connection with shorthold tenancies<sup>4</sup>. For these purposes a 'tenancy deposit scheme' is a scheme which:

- 2109 (1) is made for the purpose of safeguarding tenancy deposits paid in connection with shorthold tenancies and facilitating the resolution of disputes arising in connection with such deposits; and
- 2110 (2) complies with the statutory requirements<sup>5</sup>.

Such arrangements must be arrangements made with any body or person under which the body or person ('the scheme administrator') undertakes to establish and maintain a tenancy deposit scheme of a description specified in the arrangements<sup>6</sup>. They must require the scheme administrator to give the appropriate national authority, in such manner and at such times as it may specify, such information and facilities for obtaining information as it may specify<sup>7</sup>.

The appropriate national authority may:

- 2111 (a) give financial assistance to the scheme administrator<sup>8</sup>;
- 2112 (b) make payments to the scheme administrator, otherwise than as financial assistance, in pursuance of such arrangements<sup>9</sup>;
- 2113 (c) in such manner and on such terms as it thinks fit, guarantee the discharge of any financial obligation incurred by the scheme administrator in connection with such arrangements<sup>10</sup>;
- 2114 (d) make regulations conferring or imposing on scheme administrators, or on scheme administrators of any description specified in the regulations, such powers or duties in connection with such arrangements as are so specified<sup>11</sup>.

3 'Tenancy deposit', in relation to a shorthold tenancy, means any money intended to be held, by the landlord or otherwise, as security for (1) the performance of any obligations of the tenant; or (2) the discharge of any liability of his, arising under or in connection with the tenancy; 'money' means money in the form of cash or otherwise; and 'shorthold tenancy' means an assured shorthold tenancy within the meaning of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I Ch II (ss 19A-23) (as amended) (see PARA 1044 et seq ante, PARA 1063 et seq post): Housing Act 2004 s 212(8). ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(4) ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(iii) Tenancy Deposit Schemes/1057. Schemes to be custodial schemes or insurance schemes.

1057. Schemes to be custodial schemes or insurance schemes.

A tenancy deposit scheme<sup>1</sup> must be either a custodial scheme or an insurance scheme<sup>2</sup>.

A 'custodial scheme' is a scheme under which:

- 2115 (1) tenancy deposits<sup>3</sup> in connection with shorthold tenancies<sup>4</sup> are paid to the landlords<sup>5</sup> under the tenancies;
- 2116 (2) amounts representing the deposits are then paid by the landlords into a designated account held by the scheme administrator<sup>6</sup>; and
- 2117 (3) those amounts are kept by the scheme administrator in that account until such time as, in accordance with the scheme, they fall to be paid, wholly or in part, to the landlords or tenants under the tenancies<sup>7</sup>.

An 'insurance scheme' is a scheme under which:

- 2118 (a) tenancy deposits in connection with shorthold tenancies are paid to the landlords under the tenancies;
  - 2119 (b) such deposits are retained by the landlords on the basis that, at the end of the tenancies:
- 36
- 44. (i) such amounts in respect of the deposits as are agreed between the tenants and the landlords will be repaid to the tenants; and
  - 45. (ii) such amounts as the tenants request to be repaid to them and which are not so repaid will, in accordance with directions given by the scheme administrator, be paid into a designated account held by the scheme administrator;
- 37
- 2120 (c) amounts paid into that account are kept by the scheme administrator in the account until such time as, in accordance with the scheme, they fall to be paid, wholly or in part, to the landlords or tenants under the tenancies;

- 2121 (d) landlords undertake to reimburse the scheme administrator, in accordance with directions given by him, in respect of any amounts in respect of the deposits paid to the tenants by the scheme administrator, other than amounts paid to the tenants as mentioned in head (c) above; and
- 2122 (e) insurance is maintained by the scheme administrator in respect of failures by landlords to comply with such directions<sup>8</sup>.

Every custodial scheme or insurance scheme must provide:

- 2123 (A) for the scheme administrator to respond as soon as is practicable to any request made by the tenant under a shorthold tenancy to receive confirmation that a deposit paid in connection with the tenancy is being held in accordance with the scheme<sup>9</sup>;
- 2124 (B) for facilities to be available for enabling disputes relating to tenancy deposits subject to the scheme to be resolved without recourse to litigation, but it must not make the use of such facilities compulsory in the event of such a dispute<sup>10</sup>.

Additionally, the scheme must comply with the specific statutory requirements for custodial or insurance schemes<sup>11</sup>, as the case may be<sup>12</sup>. The appropriate national authority<sup>13</sup> may by order make such amendments of the statutory requirements<sup>14</sup> as it considers appropriate<sup>15</sup>.

UPDATE

1056-1062 Tenancy Deposit Schemes

These provisions now in force for all purposes: SI 2007/305 (Wales), SI 2007/1068 (England).

1057 Schemes to be custodial schemes or insurance schemes

TEXT AND NOTES--These provisions may confer power on a person acting as an adjudicator in relation to such a dispute to decline to proceed, or continue to proceed, with the case: 2004 Act Sch 10 para 10(3) (added by the Housing (Tenancy Deposit Schemes) Order 2007, SI 2007/796. As to the service of documents, see the 2004 Act Sch 10 para 10A-10C (added by SI 2007/796).

1058. Custodial schemes.

- 2125 (1) in respect of the period during which the relevant amount<sup>11</sup> has remained in the designated account; and
- 2126 (2) at such rate as the appropriate national authority<sup>12</sup> may specify by order<sup>13</sup>.

With the exception of any interest retained as described above<sup>14</sup>, nothing contained in the designated account may be used to fund the administration of the scheme<sup>15</sup>.

A custodial scheme must make provision:

- 2127 (a) for enabling the tenant<sup>16</sup> and the landlord under a shorthold tenancy in connection with which a tenancy deposit is held in accordance with the scheme<sup>17</sup> to apply, at any time after the tenancy has ended, for the whole or part of the relevant amount<sup>18</sup> to be paid to him; and 2128 (b) for such an application to be dealt with by the scheme administrator in accordance with the following provisions<sup>19</sup>.

Where the tenant and the landlord notify the scheme administrator that they have agreed that the relevant amount should be paid wholly to one of them, or partly to the one and partly to the other, then if, having received such a notification, the scheme administrator is satisfied that the tenant and the landlord have so agreed, the scheme administrator must arrange for the relevant amount to be paid, in accordance with the agreement, within the period of ten days beginning with the date on which the notification is received by the scheme administrator<sup>20</sup>.

Where the tenant or the landlord notifies the scheme administrator that a court has decided that the relevant amount is payable either wholly to one of them or partly to the one and partly to the other, and that decision has become final<sup>21</sup>, then if, having received such a notification, the scheme administrator is satisfied as to those matters, the scheme administrator must arrange for the relevant amount to be paid, in accordance with the decision, within the period of ten days beginning with the date on which the notification is received by the scheme administrator<sup>22</sup>.

At the date at which this title states the law, the provisions set out above were in force only for the purposes of making orders or regulations; for other purposes, they are to come into force as from a day to be appointed<sup>23</sup>.

UPDATE

1056-1062 Tenancy Deposit Schemes

These provisions now in force for all purposes: SI 2007/305 (Wales), SI 2007/1068 (England).

1058 Custodial schemes

TEXT AND NOTES--As to the procedures that apply after a tenancy is terminated but the parties are not able to agree to whom a deposit held in a custodial scheme should be paid, either because one of the parties has no current address for, or other means of contacting the other party, or because one party has failed to respond to the communications of the other within the period specified, see the 2004 Act Sch 10 paras 4A-4C (added by the Housing (Tenancy Deposit Schemes) Order 2007, SI 2007/796).

NOTE 22--Now, this also applies where the tenant or landlord notifies the scheme administrator that a person acting as an adjudicator under the provision made under paragraph 10 has made a binding decision that the relevant amount is payable either wholly to one of them or partly to one and partly to the other: 2004 Act Sch 10 para 4(4A) (added by SI 2007/796).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(4) ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(iii) Tenancy Deposit Schemes/1059. Insurance schemes.

1059. Insurance schemes.

The following provisions apply to an insurance scheme<sup>1</sup>. The scheme must provide that any landlord<sup>2</sup> by whom a tenancy deposit<sup>3</sup> is retained under the scheme must give the scheme administrator<sup>4</sup> an undertaking that, if the scheme administrator directs the landlord to pay him any amount in respect of the deposit in accordance with the statutory requirements<sup>5</sup>, the landlord will comply with such a direction<sup>6</sup>. The scheme must require the scheme administrator to effect, and maintain in force, adequate insurance in respect of failures by landlords by whom tenancy deposits are retained under the scheme to comply with such directions as are mentioned above<sup>7</sup>; and if the scheme provides for landlords participating in the scheme to be members of the scheme, the scheme may provide for a landlord's membership to be terminated by the scheme administrator in the event of any such failure on the part of the landlord<sup>8</sup>. The scheme may provide for landlords participating in the scheme to pay to the scheme administrator fees in respect of the administration of the scheme and contributions in respect of the cost of such insurance against failures by landlords<sup>9</sup>.

An insurance scheme must make provision<sup>10</sup> in relation to the respective obligations of the landlord and the scheme administrator where a tenancy deposit has been retained by the landlord under the scheme and the tenancy has ended<sup>11</sup>. Where the tenant<sup>12</sup> notifies the scheme administrator that:

- 2129 (1) the tenant has requested the landlord to repay to him the whole or any part of the deposit; and
- 2130 (2) the amount in question ('the outstanding amount') has not been repaid to him within the period of ten days beginning with the date on which the request was made, the following provisions apply<sup>13</sup>. On receiving a notification in accordance with heads (1) and (2) above, the scheme administrator must direct the landlord to pay an amount equal to the outstanding amount into a designated account held by the scheme administrator and to do so within the period of ten days beginning with the date on which the direction is received by the landlord<sup>14</sup>. The landlord must comply with any so direction given<sup>15</sup>. Where the tenant or the landlord notifies the scheme administrator:

- 2131 (a) that a court has decided that the outstanding amount is payable either wholly to one of them or partly to the one and partly to the other and the decision has become final<sup>16</sup>; or
- 2132 (b) that the tenant and landlord have agreed that such an amount is to be paid either wholly to one of them or partly to the one and partly to the other, then if the scheme administrator is satisfied as to the matters mentioned in head (a) or head (b) above, as the case may be, he must pay to the tenant any amount due to him in accordance with the decision or agreement<sup>17</sup> and must either:

- 2133 (i) where any amount held by the scheme administrator<sup>18</sup> is more than any amount due to the tenant in accordance with the decision or agreement, pay the balance to the landlord<sup>19</sup>; or
- 2134 (ii) where any amount so held by the scheme administrator is less than any amount so due to the tenant, direct the landlord to pay him the difference within the period of ten days beginning with the date on which the direction is received by the landlord<sup>20</sup>; and the landlord must comply with any direction so given<sup>21</sup>. The scheme administrator must pay any amounts required to be paid to the tenant or the landlord as mentioned above<sup>22</sup> within ten days beginning with the date on which the notification is received by the scheme administrator<sup>23</sup>.

The designated account held by the scheme administrator must not contain anything other than amounts paid into it as mentioned above<sup>24</sup> and any interest accruing on such amounts<sup>25</sup>. The scheme administrator may<sup>26</sup> retain any interest accruing on such amounts<sup>27</sup>. The relevant arrangements<sup>28</sup> may, however, provide for any amount paid to the tenant or the landlord in accordance with the above provisions<sup>29</sup> to be paid with interest in respect of the period during which the relevant amount<sup>30</sup> has remained in the designated account and at such rate as the appropriate national authority<sup>31</sup> may<sup>32</sup> specify<sup>33</sup>. With the exception of any interest retained as mentioned above<sup>34</sup>, nothing contained in the designated account may be used to fund the administration of the scheme<sup>35</sup>.

The scheme must make provision for preventing double recovery<sup>36</sup> by a tenant in respect of the whole or part of the deposit, and may in that connection make provision for excluding or modifying any requirement imposed by the scheme in accordance with the above requirements<sup>37</sup> and for requiring the repayment of amounts paid to the tenant by the scheme administrator<sup>38</sup>.

At the date at which this title states the law, the provisions set out above were in force only for the purposes of making orders or regulations; for other purposes, they are to come into force as from a day to be appointed<sup>39</sup>.

(5) IMPLIED TERMS OF ASSURED TENANCIES

1063. Limited prohibition on assignment etc without consent.

It is an implied term of every assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is a periodic tenancy that, except with the consent of the landlord<sup>2</sup>, the tenant<sup>3</sup> shall not assign the tenancy<sup>4</sup>, in whole or in part, or sublet or part with possession of the whole or any part of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> let<sup>6</sup> on the tenancy<sup>7</sup>. Where this term is so implied, the landlord is not precluded from withholding his consent unreasonably<sup>8</sup>.

In the case of an assured periodic tenancy which is not a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>9</sup> or an assured periodic tenancy arising under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>10</sup>, the above term is not implied if:

2144 (1) there is a provision, whether contained in the tenancy or not, under which the tenant is prohibited, whether absolutely or conditionally, from assigning or subletting or parting with possession or is permitted, whether absolutely or conditionally, to assign, sublet or part with possession; or

2145 (2) a premium<sup>11</sup> is required to be paid on the grant or renewal of the tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

11 For these purposes, 'premium' includes (1) any fine or other like sum; (2) any other pecuniary consideration in addition to rent; and (3) any sum paid by way of deposit, other than one which does not exceed one-sixth of the annual rent payable under the tenancy immediately after the grant or renewal in question: Housing Act 1988 s 15(4).

(6) SECURITY OF TENURE

(i) Introduction

1065. Security of tenure; in general.

An assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> cannot be brought to an end by the landlord<sup>2</sup> except by obtaining an order of the court in accordance with the statutory provisions<sup>3</sup> or, in the case of a fixed term tenancy<sup>4</sup> which contains power for the landlord to determine the tenancy<sup>5</sup> in certain circumstances, by the exercise of that power; and, accordingly, the service by the landlord of a notice to quit is of no effect in relation to a periodic assured tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

3 Ie in accordance with the Housing Act 1988 ss 5(2)-(7), 6-19 (as amended) or Pt I Ch II (ss 19A-23) (as amended); see PARA 1067 et seq post.

4 For the meaning of 'fixed term tenancy' see PARA 1051 note 3 ante.

5 For the meaning of references to the landlord's power to determine the tenancy see the Housing Act 1988 s 45(4) (cited in PARA 1051 note 6 ante). A proviso for re-entry or forfeiture is not thereby rendered wholly nugatory; although forfeiture is not a means by which alone the landlord can recover possession while the tenancy remains assured, the presence of such a proviso would enable the court to make an order for possession on certain grounds during the currency of the contractual fixed term: see s 7(6); and PARA 1101 post. As to forfeiture generally see PARA 603 et seq ante.

6 Ibid s 5(1). As to the tenant's right to remain in possession under a statutory periodic tenancy see PARA 1067 et seq post; and as to grounds for possession see PARA 1108 et seq post. There is nothing to prevent a landlord from serving a notice to quit where the tenancy, though once assured, has ceased to be so, but it is doubtful whether the notice to quit could be effective if the tenancy becomes assured again before the expiry of the notice. Cf the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 24(3)(b); and PARA 713 ante.

PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE/(ii) Demotion of Assured Tenancy/1066. Demotion because of anti-social behaviour.

(ii) Demotion of Assured Tenancy

1066. Demotion because of anti-social behaviour.

The following provisions apply to an assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> if the landlord<sup>2</sup> is a registered social landlord<sup>3</sup>.

The landlord may apply to a county court for a demotion order<sup>4</sup>; and a demotion order has the following effect:

- 2146 (1) the assured tenancy is terminated with effect from the date specified in the order;
- 2147 (2) if the tenant remains in occupation of the dwelling house after that date a demoted tenancy<sup>5</sup> is created with effect from that date;
- 2148 (3) it is a term of the demoted tenancy that any arrears of rent payable at the termination of the assured tenancy become payable under the demoted tenancy;
- 2149 (4) it is also a term of the demoted tenancy that any rent paid in advance or overpaid at the termination of the assured tenancy is credited to the tenant's liability to pay rent under the demoted tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

The court must not entertain proceedings for a demotion order unless:

- 2150 (a) the landlord has served on the tenant a notice<sup>7</sup> which must:
  - 38
  - 46. (i) give particulars of the conduct in respect of which the order is sought;
  - 47. (ii) state that the proceedings will not begin before the date specified in the notice<sup>8</sup>;
  - 48. (iii) state that the proceedings will not begin after the end of the period of 12 months beginning with the date of service of the notice<sup>9</sup>; or
- 2151 (b) the court thinks it is just and equitable to dispense with the requirement of the notice<sup>10</sup>.

The court will fix a date for the hearing when it issues the claim form<sup>11</sup>. The defendant must be served with the claim form and the particulars of claim not less than 21 days before the hearing date<sup>12</sup>. Where the defendant does not file a defence within the specified time<sup>13</sup> he may take part in any hearing but the court may take his failure to do so into account when deciding what order to make about costs<sup>14</sup>. The landlord may not obtain a default judgment<sup>15</sup>.

At the hearing fixed in accordance with the rules set out above<sup>16</sup> or at any adjournment of that hearing the court may either decide the claim or give case management directions<sup>17</sup>. Where the claim is genuinely disputed on grounds which appear to be substantial, case management directions so given will include the allocation of the claim to a track<sup>18</sup> or directions to enable it to be allocated<sup>19</sup>. A practice direction may make provision about proceedings relating to demoted tenancies<sup>20</sup>.

The court must not make a demotion order unless it is satisfied that the tenant or a person residing in or visiting the dwelling house<sup>21</sup> has engaged or has threatened to engage in conduct amounting to anti-social behaviour or use of the premises for unlawful purposes<sup>22</sup> and that it is reasonable to make the order<sup>23</sup>.

A demotion order may be claimed in the alternative to a possession order, in which case there are different procedural rules<sup>24</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

3 Housing Act 1988 s 6A(1) (s 6A added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 14(4)). For the meaning of 'registered social landlord' see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 11, 67.

4 Housing Act 1988 s 6A(2) (as added: see note 3 supra). Where a demotion claim is made other than in a possession claim, CPR 65.14-CPR 65.19 apply: CPR 65.13. The claim must be made in the county court for the district in which the property to which the claim relates is situated; and the claim form and form of defence sent with it must be in the forms set out in the relevant practice direction: CPR 65.14(1), (2). The particulars of claim must be filed and served with the claim form: CPR 65.15.

5 For these purposes, a demoted tenancy is a tenancy to which the Housing Act 1988 s 20B (as added) applies (see PARA 1050 ante): s 6A(11) (as added: see note 3 supra).

6 Ibid s 6A(3) (as added: see note 3 supra). As to other terms of the demoted tenancy see s 6A(8)-(10) (as so added); and PARA 1050 note 3 ante.

7 I.e a notice under ibid s 6A(6) (as added): see heads (i)-(iii) in the text.

8 The date specified for these purposes must not be before the end of the period of two weeks beginning with the date of service of the notice: ibid s 6A(7) (as added: see note 3 supra).

9 Ibid s 6A(6) (as added: see note 3 supra).

10 Ibid s 6A(5) (as added: see note 3 supra).

11 CPR 65.16(1). The hearing date will be not less than 28 days from the date of issue of the claim form: CPR 65.16(2). The standard period between the issue of the claim form and the hearing will be not more than eight weeks: CPR 65.16(3). The court may extend or shorten the time for compliance with any rule and may adjourn or bring forward a hearing: see CPR 3.1(2)(a), (b); and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 247, 249.

The court may use its powers under CPR 3.1(2)(a), (b) to shorten the time periods set out in CPR 65.16(2)-(4): Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 8.1. Particular consideration should be given to the exercise of this power if (1) the defendant, or a person for whom the defendant is responsible, has assaulted or threatened to assault (a) the claimant; (b) a member of the claimant's staff; or (c) another resident in the locality; (2) there are reasonable grounds for fearing such an assault; or (3) the defendant, or a person for whom the defendant is responsible, has caused serious damage or threatened to cause serious damage to the property or to the home or property of another resident in the locality: para 8.2. Where para 8.2 applies but the case cannot be determined at the first hearing fixed under CPR 65.16, the court will consider what steps are needed to finally determine the case as quickly as reasonably practicable: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 8.3.

12 CPR 65.16(4). The claimant must use the appropriate claim form and particulars of claim form set out in Practice Direction--Forms PD 4 Table 1; and the defence must be in form N11D as appropriate: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 6.2. The claimant's evidence should include details of the conduct alleged and any other matters relied upon: para 6.3. An acknowledgement of service is not required and CPR Pt 10 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 184 et seq) does not apply: CPR 65.17(1). Where the claimant serves the claim form and particulars of claim, he must produce at the hearing a certificate of service of those documents and CPR 6.14(2)(a) (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 151) does not apply: CPR 65.18(5).

In a demotion claim the particulars of claim must (1) state whether the demotion claim is a claim under the Housing Act 1985 s 82A(2) (as added) (see PARA 1351 post) or under the Housing Act 1988 s 6A(2) (as added); (2) state whether the claimant is a local housing authority, a housing action trust or a registered social landlord; (3) identify the property to which the claim relates; (4) provide the following details about the tenancy to which the demotion claim relates: (a) the parties to the tenancy; (b) the period of the tenancy; (c) the amount of the rent; (d) the dates on which the rent is payable; and (e) any statement of express terms of the tenancy served on the tenant under the Housing Act 1985 s 82A(7) (as added) (see PARA 1351 post) or under the Housing Act 1988 s 6A(10) (as added) (see PARA 1050 note 3 ante), as applicable; and (5) state details of the conduct alleged: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 7.1.

13 I.e the time specified in CPR 15.4: see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 201.

15 See CPR 65.17(3), disapplying CPR Pt 12 (default judgment: see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 506 et seq).

16 It is fixed in accordance with CPR 65.16(1): see the text and note 11 supra.

17 CPR 65.18(1). As to case management see generally CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 246 et seq. Except where the claim is allocated to the fast track or the multi-track, or the court directs otherwise, any fact that needs to be proved by the evidence of witnesses at a hearing referred to in CPR 65.18(1) may be proved by evidence in writing: CPR 65.18(3). All witness statements must be filed and served at least two days before the hearing: CPR 65.18(4). As to the general rule about evidence, which is subject to any provision to the contrary, see CPR 32.2(1), (2); and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 979.

Each party should wherever possible include all the evidence he wishes to present in his statement of case, verified by a statement of truth: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 9.1. If (1) the maker of a witness statement does not attend a hearing; and (2) the other party disputes material evidence contained in the statement, the court will normally adjourn the hearing so that oral evidence can be given: para 9.3.

18 When the court decides the track for the claim, the matters to which it must have regard include: (1) the matters set out in CPR 26.8 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 270); and (2) the nature and extent of the conduct alleged: CPR 65.19.

21 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA para 1012 note 4 ante.

22 It is the conduct to which the Housing Act 1996 s 153A or s 153B (each as added) (injunctions against anti-social behaviour: see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 268) applies: Housing Act 1988 s 6A(4)(a) (as added: see note 3 supra). The claimant's evidence should include details of the conduct to which the Housing Act 1996 s 153A or s 153B (each as added) applies and in respect of which the demotion claim is made: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 9.2.

23 Ibid s 6A(4) (as added: see note 3 supra).

24 See CPR 65.12. In such a case the claimant must use the procedure under CPR Pt 55 (see PARA 656 et seq ante) and CPR Pt 55 s 1 (CPR 55.2-CPR 55.10A) applies, except that the claim must be made in the county court for the district in which the property to which the claim relates is situated: CPR 65.12; and see Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 10.1. If the claim relates to residential property let on a tenancy and if the claim includes a demotion claim, the particulars of claim must (1) state whether the demotion claim is a claim under the Housing Act 1985 s 82A(2) (as added) (see PARA 1351 post) or under the Housing Act 1988 s 6A(2) (as added); (2) state whether the claimant is a local housing authority, a housing action trust or a registered social landlord; (3) provide details of any statement of express terms of the tenancy served on the tenant under the Housing Act 1985 s 82A(7) (as added: see PARA 1351 post) or under the Housing Act 1988 s 6A(10) (as added: see PARA 1050 note 3 ante), as applicable; and (4) state details of the conduct alleged: Practice Direction--Anti-social Behaviour and Harassment PD 65 para 5.1.

If an assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is a fixed term tenancy<sup>2</sup> comes to an end otherwise than by virtue of an order of the court or a surrender or other action on the part of the tenant<sup>3</sup>, the tenant is entitled<sup>4</sup> to remain in possession of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> let<sup>6</sup> under that tenancy and his right to possession depends upon a periodic tenancy arising by virtue of the relevant<sup>7</sup> statutory provisions<sup>8</sup>. That statutory periodic tenancy does not, however, arise if, on the coming to an end of the fixed term tenancy, the tenant is entitled, by virtue of the grant of another tenancy<sup>9</sup>, to possession of the same or substantially the same dwelling house as was let to him under the fixed term tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

If, by virtue of any provision of Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) s 1(2), Sch 1 Pt I (paras 1-13) (as amended) (see PARA 1025 et seq ante) has effect in relation to a fixed term tenancy as if it consisted only of Sch 1 paras 11, 12 (see PARAS 1039-1040 ante), Sch 1 Pt I (paras 1-13) (as amended) has the like effect in relation to any periodic tenancy which arises by virtue of s 5 (as amended) on the coming to an end of the fixed term tenancy: s 5(6). For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, any reference to a statutory periodic tenancy is a reference to a periodic tenancy arising by virtue of s 5 (as amended): ss 5(7), 45(1). A tenancy which is an assured tenancy or an assured agricultural occupancy within the meaning of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) and the terms of which inhibit an assignment as mentioned in the Rent Act 1977 s 127(5) (as amended) (see PARA 929 note 10 ante) would normally be excluded from the bankrupt's estate: see the Insolvency Act 1986 s 283(3A) (as added); para 598 note 2 ante; and BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 216. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE/(iii) Statutory Periodic Tenancy/1069. Procedure for variation of implied terms.

1069. Procedure for variation of implied terms.

The landlord<sup>1</sup> may serve on the tenant<sup>2</sup>, or the tenant may serve on the landlord, not later than the first anniversary of the day on which the former tenancy<sup>3</sup> came to an end<sup>4</sup>, a notice in the prescribed form<sup>5</sup> proposing terms of the statutory periodic tenancy<sup>6</sup> different from the implied terms<sup>7</sup>; and, if the landlord or the tenant considers it appropriate, proposing an adjustment of the rent to take account of the proposed terms<sup>8</sup>. Where a notice has been so served, within the period of three months beginning with the date on which the notice was served on him the landlord or the tenant, as the case may be, may by an application in the prescribed form<sup>9</sup> refer<sup>10</sup> the notice to a rent assessment committee<sup>11</sup>. If the notice is not so referred, then, with effect from such date not falling within that three-month period as may be specified in the notice, the terms proposed in the notice become terms of the tenancy<sup>12</sup> in substitution for any of the implied terms dealing with the same subject matter; and the amount of the rent must be varied in accordance with any adjustment so proposed<sup>13</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'the former tenancy' means the fixed term tenancy on the coming to an end of which the statutory periodic tenancy arises: Housing Act 1988 s 6(1)(a). For the meaning of 'fixed term tenancy' see PARA 1051 note 3 ante; and for the meaning of 'statutory periodic tenancy' see PARA 1067 note 8 ante.

Where, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a tenant under a fixed term tenancy, s 6 applies in relation to the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled on the predecessor's death subject to the modification that s 6(1)(a) is to be omitted: s 39(9)(b). For the meaning of 'the predecessor' and 'the successor' see PARA 1016 ante; and for the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

4 Where, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a tenant under a fixed term tenancy, ibid s 6 applies in relation to the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled on the predecessor's death subject to the modification that for any reference to the coming to an end of the former tenancy there is to be substituted a reference to the date of the predecessor's death: s 39(9)(c).

5 For the prescribed form of notice see the Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Forms) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/194, regs 2, 3(a), Schedule, Form 1. For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 1046 note 8 ante.

6 Where, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a tenant under a fixed term tenancy, the Housing Act 1988 s 6 applies in relation to the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled on the predecessor's death subject to the modification that for any reference to a statutory periodic tenancy there is to be substituted a reference to the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes so entitled: s 39(9)(a).

7 For these purposes, 'the implied terms' means the terms of the tenancy which have effect by virtue of ibid s 5(3)(e) (see PARA 1068 ante at head (5) in the text), other than terms as to the amount of rent: s 6(1)(b). Where, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a tenant under a fixed term tenancy, s 6 applies in relation to the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled on the predecessor's death subject to the modification that the reference in s 6(1)(b) to s 5(3)(e) is to be construed as a reference to s 39(6)(e) (see PARA 1016 ante at head (5) in the text): s 39(9)(b).

8 Ibid s 6(2). Nothing in s 6(2), (3) applies, however, to a statutory periodic tenancy at a time when, by virtue of s 1(2), Sch 1 para 11 (see PARA 1039 ante) or Sch 1 para 12 (see PARA 1040 ante), it cannot be an assured tenancy: s 6(1). For the meaning of 'statutory periodic tenancy' see PARA 1067 note 8 ante.

12 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

13 Housing Act 1988 s 6(3)(b). See also note 8 supra. There is no guidance as to whether the parties may agree enforceable variations of the implied terms without adopting this procedure.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE/(iii) Statutory Periodic Tenancy/1070. Determination of terms by rent assessment committee.

1070. Determination of terms by rent assessment committee.

Where a notice<sup>1</sup> is referred to a rent assessment committee<sup>2</sup>, the committee must consider the terms proposed in the notice and must determine whether those terms or some other terms, dealing with the same subject matter as the proposed terms, are such as, in the committee's opinion, might reasonably be expected to be found in an assured periodic tenancy<sup>3</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> concerned, being a tenancy<sup>5</sup>:

- 2157 (1) which begins on the coming to an end of the former tenancy<sup>6</sup>; and
- 2158 (2) which is granted by a willing landlord<sup>7</sup> on terms which, except in so far as they relate to the subject matter of the proposed terms, are those of the statutory periodic tenancy<sup>8</sup> at the time of the committee's consideration<sup>9</sup>.

Whether or not such a notice proposes an adjustment of the amount of the rent under the statutory periodic tenancy, where a rent assessment committee so determines any terms, it must, if it considers it appropriate, specify an adjustment to take account of the terms so determined<sup>10</sup>. In so making a determination or so specifying an adjustment of an amount of rent there must be disregarded any effect on the terms or the amount of the rent attributable to the granting of a tenancy to a sitting tenant<sup>11</sup>.

Where such a notice is referred to a rent assessment committee, then, unless the landlord and the tenant otherwise agree, with effect from such date as the committee may direct:

- 2159 (a) the terms determined by the committee become terms of the statutory periodic tenancy in substitution for any of the implied terms<sup>12</sup> dealing with the same subject matter; and
- 2160 (b) the amount of the rent under the statutory periodic tenancy must be altered to accord with any adjustment specified by the committee;

but, for the purposes of head (b) above, the committee may not direct a date earlier than the date specified<sup>13</sup> in the notice referred to it<sup>14</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions requires a rent assessment committee to continue with a determination<sup>15</sup> if the landlord and tenant give notice in writing that they no longer require such a determination or if the tenancy has come to an end<sup>16</sup>.

In any case where a rent assessment committee has before it at the same time the reference of a notice relating to a tenancy<sup>17</sup> ('the section 6 reference') and the reference of a notice proposing a new rent<sup>18</sup> relating to the same tenancy ('the section 13 reference'), and the date specified in the first notice<sup>19</sup> is not later than the first day of the new period specified in the second notice<sup>20</sup>, and the committee proposes to hear the two references together, the committee must make a determination in relation to the section 6 reference before making its determination in relation to the section 13 reference<sup>21</sup>.

PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE/(iii) Statutory Periodic Tenancy/1071. Security of tenure cannot be avoided.

1071. Security of tenure cannot be avoided.

If, on or before the date on which a tenancy<sup>1</sup> is entered into or is deemed to have been granted<sup>2</sup>, the person who is to be the tenant<sup>3</sup> under that tenancy enters into an obligation to do any act which will otherwise<sup>4</sup> cause the tenancy to come to an end at a time when it is an assured tenancy<sup>5</sup>, or executes, signs or gives any surrender, notice to quit or other document which otherwise has the effect of bringing the tenancy to an end at a time when it is an assured tenancy, the obligation is not enforceable or, as the case may be, the surrender, notice to quit or other document is of no effect<sup>6</sup>. Nothing in this provision, however, affects any right of pre-emption:

2162 (2) in pursuance of which the landlord would be required to pay, in respect of the acquisition<sup>9</sup> of that interest, an amount representing its market value<sup>10</sup>.

(iv) Family Homes

A. IN GENERAL

1072. Family homes.

Where one spouse<sup>1</sup> or civil partner<sup>2</sup> ('A') is entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a beneficial estate or interest or contract or any enactment giving that spouse or partner the right to remain in occupation, the spouse or civil partner not so entitled ('B') has the following rights ('home rights'):

- 2163 (1) if in occupation, a right not to be evicted or excluded from the dwelling house or any part of it by A except with the leave of the court given by an order under the relevant statutory provisions<sup>3</sup>;
- 2164 (2) if not in occupation, a right with the leave of the court so given to enter into and occupy the dwelling house<sup>4</sup>.

B's occupation by virtue of these statutory provisions is to be treated, if B occupies the dwelling house as B's only or principal home, as occupation by A as A's only or principal home for the purposes of Part I<sup>5</sup> of the Housing Act 1988<sup>6</sup>. These provisions do not, however, apply to a dwelling house which:

- 2165 (a) in the case of spouses, has at no time been, and was at no time intended by them to be, a matrimonial home of theirs; and
- 2166 (b) in the case of civil partners, has at no time been, and was at no time intended by them to be, a civil partnership home of theirs<sup>7</sup>.

Cohabitants have more limited rights under the 1996 Act. If:

- 2167 (i) one cohabitant or former cohabitant is entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a beneficial estate or interest or contract or by virtue of any enactment giving him the right to remain in occupation;
- 2168 (ii) the other cohabitant or former cohabitant is not so entitled; and
- 2169 (iii) that dwelling house is the home in which they cohabit or a home in which they at any time cohabited or intended to cohabit,

the cohabitant or former cohabitant not so entitled may apply to the court for an order against the other cohabitant or former cohabitant ('the respondent') containing provision:

- 2170 (A) if the applicant is in occupation, giving him the right not to be evicted or excluded from the dwelling house or any part of it by the respondent for the period specified in the order and prohibiting the respondent from evicting or excluding the applicant during that period;
- 2171 (B) if the applicant is not in occupation, giving him the right to enter into and occupy the dwelling house for the period specified in the order and requiring the respondent to permit the exercise of that right<sup>8</sup>.

Other specified matters may be included in such an order<sup>9</sup>. An order so made may not be made after the death of either of the parties and ceases to have effect on the death of either of them<sup>10</sup>. It must be limited so as to have effect for a specified period not exceeding six months, but may be extended on one occasion for a further specified period not exceeding six months<sup>11</sup>. So long as the order remains in force, the applicant's occupation by virtue of these statutory provisions is to be treated, for the purposes of Part I of the Housing Act 1988, as occupation by the respondent as the respondent's residence<sup>12</sup>.

If one spouse or civil partner is entitled, either in his own right or jointly with the other spouse or civil partner, to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy<sup>13</sup>, the court may make an order transferring the tenancy from one of them to the other<sup>14</sup> on granting a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity of marriage or a decree of judicial separation or at any time thereafter<sup>15</sup> or at any time when it has power to make a property adjustment order<sup>16</sup> with respect to the civil partnership<sup>17</sup>. Similarly, if one cohabitant is entitled, either in his own right or jointly with the other cohabitant, to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy, then if the cohabitants cease to cohabit, the court may make an order transferring the tenancy from one of them to the other<sup>18</sup>. Such an order may not be made, however, unless the dwelling house is or was a matrimonial home, a civil partnership home, or a home in which the cohabitants cohabited, as the case may be<sup>19</sup>.

Rights of occupation in respect of family homes are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>20</sup>.

If a spouse, civil partner or cohabitant is entitled to occupy the dwelling house by virtue of an assured tenancy or assured agricultural occupancy within the meaning of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (as amended), the court may by order direct that, as from such date as may be specified in the order, there is, by virtue of the order and without further assurance, to be transferred to, and vested in, the other spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: (1) the estate or interest which the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled had in the dwelling house immediately before that date by virtue of the lease or agreement creating the tenancy and any assignment of that lease or agreement, with all rights, privileges and appurtenances attaching to that estate or interest but subject to all covenants, obligations, liabilities and incumbrances to which it is subject; and (2) where the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled is an assignee of such lease or agreement, the liability of that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant under any covenant of indemnity by the assignee express or implied in the assignment of the lease or agreement to that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(1) (amended for these purposes by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9, Pt 1 para 16(1), (8); and by the Housing Act 1996 (Consequential Amendments) Order 1997, SI 1997/74, art 2, Schedule para 10(b)(ii)). If an order is so made, any liability or obligation to which the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled is subject under any covenant having reference to the dwelling house in the lease or agreement, being a liability or obligation falling due to be discharged or performed on or after the date so specified, is not to be enforceable against that spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(2) (as so amended). References in Schedule 7 Pt II (as amended) to a spouse, a civil partner or a cohabitant being entitled to occupy a dwelling house by virtue of a relevant tenancy apply whether that entitlement is in his own right or jointly with the other spouse, civil partner or cohabitant: Sch 7 para 6 (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9 Pt 1 para 16(1), (7)).

If the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant so entitled is for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 s 17 (as amended) (see PARA 1084 post) a successor in relation to the tenancy or occupancy: (a) his former spouse (or, in the case of judicial separation, his spouse); (b) his former civil partner (or, if a separation order is in force, his civil partner), or (c) his former cohabitant, is to be deemed to be a successor in relation to the tenancy or occupancy for the purposes of s 17 (as amended): Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(4) (substituted by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9, Pt 1, PARA 16(1), (9)). If the transfer under the Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(1) (as amended) is of an assured agricultural occupancy, then, for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I Ch III (ss 24-25) (as amended) (see PARA 1183 et seq post), the agricultural worker condition is fulfilled with respect to the dwelling house while the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant to whom the assured agricultural occupancy is transferred continues to be the occupier under that occupancy, and that condition is to be treated as so fulfilled by virtue of the same paragraph of the Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 (as amended) (see PARA 1184 post) as was applicable before the transfer: Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(5) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 9 Pt 1 para 16(1), (10)).

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(6) SECURITY OF TENURE/(iv) Family Homes/B. SERVICEMAN'S OR SERVICEWOMAN'S FAMILY RESIDENCE/(A) Certain Rented Premises/1073. Protection of tenure of certain rented premises.

B. SERVICEMAN'S OR SERVICEWOMAN'S FAMILY RESIDENCE

(A) CERTAIN RENTED PREMISES

1073. Protection of tenure of certain rented premises.

If at any time during a serviceman's<sup>1</sup> period of residence protection<sup>2</sup> a tenancy qualifying for protection<sup>3</sup>, which is a fixed term tenancy<sup>4</sup>, ends<sup>5</sup> without being continued or renewed by agreement, whether on the same or different terms and conditions, and on the ending of that tenancy no statutory periodic tenancy<sup>6</sup> of the rented family residence<sup>7</sup> would otherwise arise by reason only of the specified circumstances<sup>8</sup>, the statutory provisions relating to assured tenancies<sup>9</sup> apply, during the remainder of the period of protection, in relation to the rented family residence as if those circumstances did not exist and had not existed immediately before the ending of that tenancy. Those statutory provisions apply, therefore, as if on the ending of that tenancy there arose a statutory periodic tenancy which is an assured tenancy during the remainder of that period<sup>10</sup>.

If at any time during a serviceman's period of residence protection:

2172 (1) a tenancy qualifying for protection which is a periodic tenancy would otherwise come to an end; and

2173 (2) by reason only of the specified circumstances<sup>11</sup>, that tenancy is not an assured tenancy; and

2174 (3) if that tenancy had been an assured tenancy, it would not have come to an end at that time, the statutory provisions relating to assured tenancies<sup>12</sup> apply during the remainder of the period of protection as if those circumstances did not exist and, accordingly, as if the tenancy had become an assured tenancy immediately before it would otherwise have come to an end<sup>13</sup>.

The circumstances so specified are any one or more of the following, that is to say:

2175 (a) that the tenancy was entered into before, or pursuant to a contract made before, 15 January 1989;

2177 (c) that the circumstances excluding tenancies from being assured tenancies on the grounds that the tenancies were of dwelling houses with high rateable values<sup>15</sup> or were at a low rent<sup>16</sup> or were tenancies of agricultural land<sup>17</sup> applied with respect to the tenancy qualifying for protection; and

1 For the meaning of 'serviceman' see PARA 780 note 4 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'period of residence protection' means the period of relevant service, other than a short period of training, and four months from the date of the ending of it: see the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 14(1). For the meaning of 'relevant service' see PARA 780 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'short period of training' see PARA 780 note 3 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tenancy qualifying for protection' and 'tenancy' see PARA 1074 post.

4 For these purposes, 'fixed term tenancy' means any tenancy other than a periodic tenancy: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 23(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(1), Sch 17 para 13(2)(b)).

5 For these purposes, references to the ending of a tenancy are references to the coming to an end of it however brought about, whether by effluxion of time, notice to quit or otherwise, and in particular, as respects a statutory tenancy, include references to the coming to an end of it as between the tenant and a landlord who is himself a tenant by reason of the ending of the tenancy of the landlord: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 23(2)(a). In relation to a statutory tenancy or to a provision of the Rent Act 1977 'landlord' and 'tenant' have the same meaning as in that Act (see PARA 816 notes 2-3 respectively ante) but, subject thereto, those expressions have the same meanings as in the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (ss 1-45) (as amended) (see PARAS 1020 note 3, 1018 note 6 respectively ante): Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 23(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 17 para 13(2)(c)). For the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARA 1074 note 4 post.

6 For these purposes, 'statutory periodic tenancy' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1988 Pt I (as 1-45) (as amended) (see PARA 1067 note 8 ante): Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 23(1) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 Sch 17 para 13(2)(d)).

7 For the meaning of 'rented family residence' see PARA 1074 post.

1074. Meaning of 'tenancy qualifying for protection'; 'tenancy'; and 'rented family residence'.

'Tenancy qualifying for protection' means<sup>1</sup> the tenancy of a rented family residence of the serviceman in right of which a dependant<sup>2</sup> or dependants of his is or are living in it or in part of it at the time in question<sup>3</sup>; and 'tenancy' includes a statutory tenancy<sup>4</sup> and, apart from a statutory tenancy, means a tenancy created either immediately or derivatively out of the freehold, whether by a lease or underlease, by an agreement for a lease or underlease or by a tenancy agreement, but does not include any relationship between a mortgagor and a mortgagee as such<sup>5</sup>.

'Rented family residence' means<sup>6</sup> premises in which, or in part of which, the serviceman was living immediately before the beginning of his period of service<sup>7</sup> with a dependant or dependants of his in right of a tenancy at a rent of those premises being a tenancy vested<sup>8</sup> in him or in that dependant or any of those dependants, and in which, or in part of which, at the time in question during the period of protection a dependant or dependants of his is or are living, whether with or without him, in right of such a tenancy of those premises being a tenancy vested in him or in that dependant or any of those dependants<sup>9</sup>.

1 Ie for the purposes of the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 Pt II (ss 14-25) (as amended): see PARA 1073 ante, PARA 1075 et seq post.

2 For these purposes, 'dependant', in relation to a serviceman, means (1) his spouse or civil partner; and (2) any other member of his family who was wholly or mainly maintained by him immediately before the beginning of the period of service in question: ibid s 23(1) (definition amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 257, Sch 26 para 21(a)). For the meaning of 'serviceman' see PARA 780 note 4 ante.

3 Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 14(1)(b).

4 For these purposes, 'statutory tenancy' means a right to retain possession of premises after the ending of a tenancy of them, being a right arising on the ending of that tenancy from the operation of the Rent Act 1977, or of the Rent Act 1977 as extended by the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 Pt II (ss 14-25) (as amended), in relation to a person as being, or being the surviving spouse or surviving civil partner of or otherwise related to, the former owner of the tenancy, or a right to retain possession of premises arising by virtue of s 18(1) (as amended) (see PARA 1078 post): s 23(1) (definition amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 10(b); the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 26 para 21(b)).

(B) ACCOMMODATION SHARED OTHERWISE THAN WITH LANDLORD

1076. In general.

- 2182 (1) the tenant<sup>6</sup> under the terms of the tenancy has the exclusive occupation of some accommodation ('the separate accommodation') and has the use of other accommodation in common with another person or other persons, not being or including the landlord<sup>7</sup>; but
- 2183 (2) by reason only of the specified circumstances<sup>8</sup>, the statutory provisions whereby such accommodation is deemed to be a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy<sup>9</sup> did not have effect with respect to the separate accommodation, those provisions apply, during the remainder of the period of protection, in relation to the separate accommodation as if the specified circumstances did not exist and had not existed immediately before the ending of the tenancy<sup>10</sup>. Those provisions apply, therefore, as if on the ending of the tenancy there arose a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>11</sup> which is an assured tenancy during the remainder of that period<sup>12</sup>.

Where, at any time during a serviceman's period of residence protection, a tenancy qualifying for protection which is a periodic tenancy would otherwise<sup>13</sup> come to an end and heads (1) and (2) above apply, the statutory provisions whereby separate accommodation is deemed to be a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy<sup>14</sup> apply, during the remainder of the period of protection, in relation to the separate accommodation as if the circumstances referred to in head (2) above did not exist and, accordingly, as if the tenancy had become an assured tenancy immediately before it would otherwise have come to an end<sup>15</sup>.

1078. Protection of employees occupying under licence or rent-free letting.

Where a serviceman<sup>1</sup>:

- 2187 (1) begins a period of relevant service<sup>2</sup>, other than a short period of training<sup>3</sup>, and immediately before beginning it he was living, together with a dependant<sup>4</sup> or dependants of his, in any premises by virtue of a licence in that behalf granted to him by his employer in consequence of his employment<sup>5</sup>, or by virtue of a tenancy<sup>6</sup> so granted otherwise than at a rent (a 'rent-free tenancy'); or
- 2188 (2) is performing such a period of relevant service, other than a short period of training, and immediately before beginning it he was so living, and a dependant or dependants of his is or are living in the premises or in part of them, otherwise than in right of a tenancy at a rent, then, during the serviceman's period of residence protection<sup>7</sup>, the statutory provisions relating to assured tenancies<sup>8</sup> apply in relation to those premises as if instead of the licence, or of the rent-free tenancy, there had been granted to the serviceman a tenancy at a rent for a term of years certain expiring at the beginning of the period of service and in other respects on the same terms and conditions, excluding any terms or conditions relating to the employment, as those on which the licence or the rent-free tenancy, as the case may be, was granted<sup>9</sup>. Those premises are deemed, during the period of protection, to be a dwelling house let on a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>10</sup> which is an assured tenancy<sup>11</sup>. As regards the assumption of the granting of a tenancy which is to be made for the above purposes in a case where the grant in question was of a licence, if the granting of such a tenancy would have been a subletting of the premises, it is not to be treated for any purposes as constituting a breach of any covenant or agreement prohibiting or restricting subletting<sup>12</sup>.

The subsistence of a Crown interest<sup>13</sup> in the premises does not affect the application of these provisions if the interest of the grantor of the licence, or the rent-free tenancy, as the case may be, is not a Crown interest<sup>14</sup>.

For these purposes, 'policeman serviceman' means a serviceman who, immediately before beginning the period of relevant service in question, was a member of a police force; and 'relevant police authority' means, in relation to a police force, the police authority responsible for the maintenance of that force: s 23(1) (definition amended by the Police Act 1964 s 64(3), Sch 10 Pt I).

1081. Modifications of certain statutory provisions relating to recovery of possession.

Where the carrying out of duties connected with an employment which a serviceman<sup>1</sup> had before beginning a period of relevant service<sup>2</sup> or, in the case of a policeman serviceman<sup>3</sup>, the carrying out of his police duties, constitutes an obligation of a tenancy<sup>4</sup>, and his performing that service prevents his carrying out those duties, the fact that he does not carry them out is not to be treated for the purposes of the statutory provisions relating to recovery of possession where an obligation of a tenancy has been broken or not performed<sup>5</sup> as a breach or non-performance of the obligation<sup>6</sup>.

The statutory provisions relating to recovery of possession without proof of suitable alternative accommodation in circumstances connected with occupation by employees<sup>7</sup> do not apply for the purposes of the proceedings on an application for possession of premises made at any time during a serviceman's period of residence protection<sup>8</sup> if the premises are a rented family residence<sup>9</sup> of his<sup>10</sup>. Nor do they apply for those purposes if the statutory provisions relating to assured tenancies apply in relation to the premises<sup>11</sup> and a dependant<sup>12</sup> or dependants of the serviceman is or are living in the premises or in part of them in right of the statutory periodic tenancy<sup>13</sup> which is deemed<sup>14</sup> to arise or of the assured tenancy<sup>15</sup> which is deemed<sup>16</sup> to exist<sup>17</sup>.

Where the above restriction has effect as to an application for possession, the specified circumstances<sup>18</sup> in which the court has power to make or give an order or judgment for the recovery of possession without proof of suitable alternative accommodation nevertheless include either of the following sets of circumstances:

- 2196 (1) that the landlord<sup>19</sup> is a body who are statutory undertakers<sup>20</sup> or a local authority<sup>21</sup> or development corporation<sup>22</sup> having public utility functions<sup>23</sup>, and the premises are required by that body in the public interest for occupation as a residence for some person who is engaged in the body's whole-time employment in connection with its public utility functions or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for such employment has been entered into;

Where, however, the court is satisfied that circumstances exist such as are specified in head (1) above, the matters relevant for the court in determining<sup>27</sup> whether it is reasonable to make or give such an order or judgment include<sup>28</sup> the question whether the body seeking the order or judgment has at its disposal any vacant accommodation which would be suitable alternative accommodation for the tenant<sup>29</sup> or will have such accommodation at its disposal at or before the time when it is proposed that the order or judgment should take effect<sup>30</sup>.

(E) SHORT PERIODS OF TRAINING

1082. Protection during short period of training.

Where a serviceman<sup>1</sup> who has been living with a dependant<sup>2</sup> or dependants of his in any premises in right of a tenancy<sup>3</sup>, or of a licence in that behalf granted by his employer in consequence of his employment, performs a short period of training<sup>4</sup>, then, for so long during that period and within 14 days from the ending of it as the dependant or dependants and the serviceman or any of them is or are still living in the premises or any part of them, no person is entitled, except with the leave of the appropriate court, to proceed:

2199 (2) to exercise against any of them any right to take possession of, or to re-enter upon, any such part of them<sup>7</sup>.

If, on any application for such leave as is so required, the court is of opinion that, by reason of circumstances directly or indirectly attributable to the serviceman's performing or having performed the period of service in question, the judgment, order or right ought not to be immediately executed, enforced or exercised, the court may refuse leave or give leave subject to such restrictions and conditions as the court thinks proper<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'serviceman' see PARA 780 note 4 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'dependant', in relation to a serviceman, means his spouse or civil partner and any other member of his family wholly or mainly maintained by him: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 25(6) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 257, Sch 26 para 22).

3 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1074 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'short period of training' see PARA 780 note 3 ante.

5 For these purposes, a person is deemed to be proceeding to execution on, or otherwise to the enforcement of, a judgment or order in the circumstances in which, by virtue of the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 3(9) (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 83), he would be deemed to be so proceeding for the purposes of s 2 (as amended), and, where a person has, in a case for which leave was not required under s 25 (as amended), taken out any judicial process with a view to, or in the course of, the enforcement of a judgment or order or proceeded to the exercise of a right to take possession of or to re-enter upon premises, he is deemed to be proceeding to the enforcement of the judgment or order or to the exercise of the right when any step is taken by him or on his behalf towards its completion: s 25(4).

6 For these purposes, references to a judgment or order for the recovery of possession of premises include references to any judgment or order the effect of which is to enable a person to obtain possession of the premises, and in particular includes, in relation to a mortgagee, a judgment or order for the delivery of possession of the premises: ibid s 25(3).

7 Ibid s 25(1).

8 Ibid s 25(2). The provisions of s 13 which relate to omission to obtain leave required under s 2 (as amended) (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 81) have effect in relation to omission to obtain leave required under s 25: s 25(5).

(F) PROCEEDINGS

1083. Representation in proceedings.

Where in the course of any proceedings<sup>1</sup> it appears to the court or tribunal that:

2200 (1) the proceedings relate to a tenancy<sup>2</sup> or licence vested<sup>3</sup> in a serviceman<sup>4</sup>;

2201 (2) a person other than the serviceman desires to take a step in the proceedings on behalf of the serviceman at a time when he is serving abroad<sup>5</sup>, or has purported to take a step in the proceedings on his behalf at a time when he was so serving; and

2202 (3) that person, in seeking or purporting to take that step, is or was acting in good faith in the interests of the serviceman and is or was a fit person to take that step on his behalf, but is or was not duly authorised to do so, the court or tribunal may direct that that person is to be deemed to be, or to have been, duly authorised to take that step on behalf of the serviceman<sup>6</sup>. The above provisions apply in relation to the institution of proceedings before a court as they apply in relation to the taking of a step in such proceedings, and apply in relation to the making of a reference or application to a rent tribunal as they apply in relation to the taking of a step in proceedings consequential upon the making of such a reference or application<sup>7</sup>.

Where in the course of any proceedings a court or tribunal so gives a direction, the person to whom the direction relates has the like right of audience in those proceedings as the serviceman himself would have<sup>8</sup>.

In relation to any proceedings before a rent officer<sup>9</sup> or rent assessment committee<sup>10</sup> these provisions have effect as if the references to the court or tribunal included references to a rent officer or rent assessment committee<sup>11</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(7) SUCCESSION/1084. Succession by spouse or civil partner to assured periodic tenancy.

(7) SUCCESSION

1084. Succession by spouse or civil partner to assured periodic tenancy.

In any case where:

- 2203 (1) the sole tenant<sup>1</sup> under an assured periodic tenancy<sup>2</sup> dies; and
- 2204 (2) immediately before the death, the tenant's spouse or civil partner<sup>3</sup> was occupying the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> as his or her only or principal home<sup>5</sup>; and
- 2205 (3) the tenant was not himself a successor, then, on the death, the tenancy<sup>6</sup> vests in the spouse or civil partner and, accordingly, does not devolve under the tenant's will or intestacy<sup>7</sup>.

For these purposes, a tenant is a successor in relation to a tenancy if:

- 2206 (a) the tenancy became vested in him either by virtue of these provisions or under the will or intestacy of a previous tenant; or
- 2207 (b) at some time before the tenant's death the tenancy was a joint tenancy held by himself and one or more other persons and, prior to his death, he became the sole tenant by survivorship; or
- 2208 (c) he became entitled<sup>8</sup> to the tenancy by virtue of being a second successor to a protected or statutory tenancy under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 or the Rent Act 1977<sup>9</sup>.

A tenant is also a successor in relation to a tenancy ('the new tenancy') which was granted to him, alone or jointly with others, if:

- 2209 (i) at some time before the grant of the new tenancy, he was a successor<sup>10</sup> in relation to an earlier tenancy of the same or substantially the same dwelling house as is let<sup>11</sup> under the new tenancy; and
- 2210 (ii) at all times since he became such a successor he has been a tenant, alone or jointly with others, of the dwelling house which is let under the new tenancy or of a dwelling house which is substantially the same as that dwelling house<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante. If there were joint tenants, the tenancy would pass to the survivor or survivors by the right of survivorship.

2 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante. A fixed term tenancy is not within this provision and would devolve under the tenant's will or according to the rules relating to intestacy.

3 For these purposes: (1) a person who was living with the tenant as his or her wife or husband is to be treated as the tenant's spouse; and (2) a person who was living with the tenant as if they were civil partners is to be treated as the tenant's civil partner: Housing Act 1988 s 17(4) (s 17(4) substituted, and s 17(1), (5) amended, by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8 para 41). See also note 5 infra. For indicia that a person is living with another as his or her wife or husband see Nutting v Southern Housing Group Ltd [2004] EWHC 2982 (Ch), [2005] 2 P & CR 254, [2004] All ER (D) 347 (Dec) (a case involving two men, decided before the amendments made by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 8 para 41 came into force). Where the parties are married or in a civil partnership, there is no requirement that the spouse or civil partner should have been 'living with' the deceased tenant so long as the spouse or civil partner was occupying the dwelling house immediately before the death of the tenant. Cf the Rent Act 1977 s 2(1)(b), Sch 1 para 2 (as substituted and amended); and PARA 843 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

5 If, on the death of the tenant, there is, by virtue of the Housing Act 1988 s 17(4) (as substituted: see note 3 supra), more than one person who fulfils the condition in s 17(1)(b) (as amended), such one of them as may be decided by agreement or, in default of agreement, by the county court is to be treated for these purposes

(according to whether that one of them is of the opposite sex to, or of the same sex as, the tenant) as the tenant's spouse or the tenant's civil partner: s 17(5) (as amended: see note 3 supra). For the indicia that a person is living with another as his or her wife or husband see Nutting v Southern Housing Group Ltd [2004] EWHC 2982 (Ch), [2005] 2 P & CR 254, [2004] All ER (D) 347 (Dec).

6 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

7 Housing Act 1988 s 17(1) (as amended: see note 3 supra). The rule in Moodie v Hosegood [1952] AC 61, [1951] 2 All ER 582, HL (cited in PARA 847 note 6 ante) under the Rent Acts has no application in these circumstances. If the tenancy is a periodic tenancy which does not vest in a spouse or civil partner under these provisions but which passes under a will or intestacy, a mandatory ground for possession is available under the Housing Act 1988 s 7(3) (as amended), Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 7: see PARA 1115 post. As to transfer to a spouse or civil partner on divorce, dissolution of the partnership etc see PARA 1072 ante. If the spouse, civil partner or cohabitant entitled to occupy the dwelling house by virtue of an assured tenancy is for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 s 17 (as amended) a successor in relation to the tenancy or occupancy: (1) his former spouse (or, in the case of judicial separation, his spouse); (2) his former civil partner (or, if a separation order is in force, his civil partner), or (3) his former cohabitant, is to be deemed to be a successor in relation to the tenancy or occupancy for the purposes of s 17 (as amended): see the Family Law Act 1996 Sch 7 para 7(4) (as substituted); and PARA 1072 note 17 ante.

8 le as mentioned in the Housing Act 1988 s 39(5): see PARA 1016 ante.

1085. Where landlord is subtenant.

If at any time:

- 2211 (1) a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> is for the time being lawfully<sup>2</sup> let<sup>3</sup> on an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup>;
and
- 2212 (2) the landlord<sup>5</sup> under the assured tenancy is himself a tenant<sup>6</sup> under a
- 2213 (3) the superior tenancy comes to an end, the assured tenancy continues<sup>8</sup> in existence as a tenancy held of the person whose interest would, apart from the continuance of the assured tenancy, entitle him to actual possession of the dwelling house at that time<sup>9</sup>. This provision does not, however, apply to an assured tenancy if the interest which would<sup>10</sup> become that of the landlord is such that the tenancy could not<sup>11</sup> be an assured tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

Where, however, a new lease has been granted under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993<sup>13</sup>, none of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure for tenants apply to the lease, and after the term date of the lease no person is entitled, by virtue of any sublease directly or indirectly derived out of the lease, to retain possession under Part I<sup>14</sup> of the Housing Act 1988<sup>15</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>2</sup> is empowered to make regulations regulating the procedure to be followed by rent assessment committees<sup>3</sup>. The rent assessment committee to which a matter is referred<sup>4</sup> may by notice in the prescribed form<sup>5</sup> served on the landlord<sup>6</sup> or the tenant<sup>7</sup> require him to give to the committee, within such period of not less than 14 days from the service of the notice as may be specified in the notice, such information as the committee may reasonably require<sup>8</sup> for the purposes of its functions<sup>9</sup>.

If any person fails without reasonable excuse to comply with a notice so served on him, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>10</sup>; and, where such an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager or secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly<sup>11</sup>.

1089. Information as to determination of rents.

The president of every rent assessment panel<sup>1</sup> must keep and make publicly available, in such manner as is specified in an order<sup>2</sup> made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister, such information as may be so specified<sup>3</sup> with respect to rents under assured tenancies<sup>4</sup> and assured agricultural occupancies<sup>5</sup> which have been the subject of references or applications to, or determinations by, rent assessment committees<sup>6</sup>. The president of each rent assessment panel must keep the specified information available for public inspection without charge during usual office hours at the office or principal office of that panel<sup>7</sup>.

A person requiring a copy of any specified information certified under the hand of an officer duly authorised by the president of the rent assessment panel concerned is entitled to obtain it on payment of a fee of £1 for the specified information relating to each determination or, where no determination is made, each application<sup>8</sup>. A copy of any information certified under the hand of an officer duly authorised by the president of the rent assessment panel concerned is receivable in evidence in any court and in any proceedings<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to rent assessment panels see PARA 910 ante.

2 An order so made may prescribe the fees to be charged for the supply of a copy, including a certified copy, of any of the information so kept; and may make different provision with respect to different cases or descriptions of case, including different provision for different areas: Housing Act 1988 s 42(3). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument which is subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 42(4). In exercise of the power so conferred, and prior to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales, the Secretary of State made the Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Rent Information) Order 1988, SI 1988/2199 (amended by SI 1990/1474; SI 1993/657), which came into force on 15 January 1989 (art 1) and applies to cases where the rent assessment committee for an area has made a determination on an application under the Housing Act 1988 s 13(4) (see PARA 1091 post) or s 22(1) (as amended) (see PARA 1096 post) or is precluded from making a determination on an application under s 22(1) (as amended) by reason of s 22(3) (see PARA 1097 post) (Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Rent Information) Order 1988, SI 1988/2199, art 2 (amended by SI 1990/1474)). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

3 The president of the rent assessment panel for the area concerned must, as respects the cases falling within the Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Rent Information) Order 1988, SI 1988/2199, art 2 (as amended) (see note 2 supra) make available for public inspection under the Housing Act 1988 s 42 the following information: (1) address of premises; (2) description of premises; (3) names and addresses of landlord and tenant; (4) if granted for a term, date of commencement of the tenancy and length of term; (5) the rental period; (6) allocation between landlord and tenant of liabilities for repairs; (7) whether any council tax or rates is or are borne by the landlord or a superior landlord; (8) details of services provided by the landlord or a superior landlord; (9) details of furniture provided by the landlord or a superior landlord; (10) any other terms of the tenancy or notice relating to the tenancy taken into consideration in determining the rent; (11) the rent determined, the date it was determined and the amount, if any, of the rent which, in the opinion of the committee, is fairly attributable to the provision of services, except where that amount is in its opinion negligible or, in a case where the committee is precluded from making a determination by s 22(3), the rent currently payable under the assured shorthold tenancy, and whether the committee is so precluded by s 22(3) (a) or s 22(3)(b): Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Rent Information) Order 1988, SI 1988/2199, art 3, Schedule (amended by SI 1990/1474; SI 1993/657). ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(9) RENT/(iii) Increases of Rent under Assured Periodic Tenancies/1091. Procedure for increasing rent.

1091. Procedure for increasing rent.

The following provisions apply to:

2216 (1) a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>1</sup> other than one which cannot<sup>2</sup> for the time being be an assured tenancy<sup>3</sup>; and

- 2217 (2) any other periodic tenancy which is an assured tenancy, other than one in relation to which there is a provision, for the time being binding on the tenant<sup>4</sup>, under which the rent for a particular period of the tenancy will or may be greater than the rent for an earlier period<sup>5</sup>.

For the purpose of securing an increase in the rent under such a tenancy, the landlord<sup>6</sup> may serve on the tenant a notice in the prescribed form<sup>7</sup> proposing a new rent to take effect at the beginning of a new period of the tenancy specified in the notice<sup>8</sup>. The new period must be a period beginning not earlier than:

- 2218 (a) the minimum period<sup>9</sup> after the date of the service of the notice; and 2219 (b) except in the case of a statutory periodic tenancy:
 49. (i) in the case of an assured agricultural occupancy<sup>10</sup>, the first anniversary of the date on which the first period of the tenancy began;
 50. (ii) in any other case, on the date that falls 52 weeks after the date on which the first period of the tenancy began; and
 2220 (c) if the rent under the tenancy has previously been increased by virtue of such a notice<sup>11</sup> or of a determination by a rent assessment committee<sup>12</sup>:
 42
 51. (i) in the case of an assured agricultural occupancy, the first anniversary of the date on which the increased rent took effect;
 52. (ii) in any other case, the appropriate date<sup>13</sup>.

Where a notice is so served, a new rent specified in the notice takes effect as mentioned in it unless, before the beginning of the new period specified in the notice:

- 2221 (A) the tenant by an application in the prescribed form<sup>14</sup> refers the notice to a rent assessment committee<sup>15</sup>; or 2222 (B) the landlord and the tenant agree on a variation of the rent which is different from that proposed in the notice or agree that the rent should not be varied<sup>16</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions affects the right of the landlord and the tenant under an assured tenancy to vary by agreement any term of the tenancy, including a term relating to rent<sup>17</sup>.

9 The minimum period for these purposes is: (1) in the case of a yearly tenancy, six months; (2) in the case of a tenancy where the period is less than a month, one month; and (3) in any other case, a period equal to the period of the tenancy: Housing Act 1988 s 13(3).

Section 13(3B) (as so added) applies where: (a) the rent under the tenancy has been increased by virtue of a notice under s 13 (as amended) or a determination under s 14 (as amended) on at least one occasion after the coming into force of the Regulatory Reform (Assured Periodic Tenancies) (Rent Increases) Order 2003, SI 2003/259 (ie 11 February 2003: see art 1); and (2) the fifty-third week after the date on which the last such increase took effect begins more than six days before the anniversary of the date on which the first such increase took effect: Housing Act 1988 s 13(3B) (as so added).

14 For the prescribed form of application see the Assured Tenancies and Agricultural Occupancies (Forms) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/194, regs 2, 3(e), Schedule, Form 5. The notes on that form have been subject to judicial criticism: see R (on the application of Lester) v London Rent Assessment Committee [2003] EWCA Civ 319 at [36], [2003] 1 WLR 1449, [2003] All ER (D) 163 (Mar) per Waller LJ (the notes should say in bold letters that delivery to the office of the rent assessment committee prior to the relevant date is mandatory, that there is no discretion to extend time, and that the effect of non-receipt by the rent assessment committee before the relevant date will be that the rent proposed by the landlord will be the rent from the relevant date).

1091 Procedure for increasing rent

NOTE 5--Exclusion from the need to comply with the procedure under the 1988 Act s 13(2) where the assured tenancy agreement contains its own rent review clause applies equally to a rent review clause that provides for a fixed increase in rent as it does to a rent review clause that provides for an unspecified increase in rent that is to be achieved in a specified way: Contour Homes Ltd v Rowen [2007] EWCA Civ 842, [2007] 1 WLR 2982. Given the contrast between the 1988 Act s 13(1)(a) and (b), a rent review clause in a contractual assured periodic tenancy does not oust the mechanism for increasing rent in s 13 once that tenancy has been superseded by a statutory periodic tenancy: London District Properties (Management) Ltd v Goolamy [2009] EWHC 1367 (Admin), [2010] 1 WLR 307, [2009] All ER (D) 164 (Jun).

1092. Determination of rent by rent assessment committee; the statutory assumptions.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> refers<sup>2</sup> to a rent assessment committee<sup>3</sup> a notice<sup>4</sup> relating to an increase in rent, the committee must determine the rent<sup>5</sup> at which the committee considers that the dwelling house might reasonably be expected to be let<sup>6</sup> in the open market by a willing landlord<sup>7</sup> under an assured tenancy<sup>8</sup>:

- 2223 (1) which is a periodic tenancy having the same periods as those of the tenancy<sup>9</sup> to which the notice relates;
- 2224 (2) which begins at the beginning of the new period specified in the notice;
- 2225 (3) the terms of which, other than those relating to the amount of the rent, are the same as those of the tenancy to which the notice relates<sup>10</sup>; and
- 2226 (4) in respect of which the same notices, if any, have been given under any of Grounds 1 to 5<sup>11</sup> as have been given, or have effect as if given, in relation to the tenancy to which the notice relates<sup>12</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions:

- 2227 (a) requires a rent assessment committee to continue with its determination of a rent for a dwelling house if the landlord and tenant give notice in writing that they no longer require such a determination or if the tenancy has come to an end<sup>13</sup>;
- 2228 (b) affects the right of the landlord and the tenant under an assured tenancy to vary by agreement any term of the tenancy, including a term relating to rent<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

2 Ie under the Housing Act 1988 s 13(4)(a): see PARA 1091 ante.

3 As to rent assessment committees generally see PARAS 910, 1087-1089 ante.

4 Ie under the Housing Act 1988 s 13(2) (as amended): see PARA 1091 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'rent' does not include any service charge within the meaning of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 18 (as amended) (see PARA 326 ante) but, subject thereto, includes any sums payable by the tenant to the landlord on account of the use of furniture, in respect of council tax, or for any of the matters referred to in s 18(1)(a), whether or not those sums are separate from the sums payable for the occupation of the dwelling house concerned or are payable under separate agreements: Housing Act 1988 s 14(4) (amended by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 17(1), (3); for transitional provisions see art 1(2)(c)). For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante; and for the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

A billing authority within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-69) (as amended) must, if so requested in writing by a rent officer or rent assessment committee in connection with his or its functions under any enactment, inform the rent officer or rent assessment committee in writing whether or not a particular dwelling, within the meaning of Pt I (as amended), is, or was at any time specified in the request, an exempt dwelling for the purposes of Pt I (as amended): Housing Act 1988 s 41B (added by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, Sch 1 para 18; substituted by SI 1993/1120).

In order to assist authorities to give effect to the housing benefit scheme under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VII (ss 123-137) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 140 et seq), where a rent is determined under the Housing Act 1988 s 14 (as amended) or under s 22 (as amended) (see PARA 1097 post), the rent assessment committee must note in its determination the amount, if any, of the rent which, in its opinion, is fairly attributable to the provision of services, except where that amount is in its opinion negligible; and the amount so noted may be included in the information specified in an order under s 42 (see PARA 1089 ante): s 41A (added by the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 4, Sch 2 para 103).

6 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante. The hypothesis requires an objective approach without reference to the subjective characteristics of the particular tenant: see Ponsford v HMS Aerosols Ltd [1979] AC 63, [1978] 2 All ER 837, HL.

7 For the meaning of 'willing landlord' see FR Evans (Leeds) Ltd v English Electric Co Ltd (1977) 36 P & CR 185, [1978] 1 EGLR 93; affd as reported in (1977) 245 Estates Gazette 657 at 662, CA. In order for there to be a transaction a willing tenant must also be assumed: see Dennis & Robinson Ltd v Kiossos Establishment (1987) 54 P & CR 282, [1987] 1 EGLR 133, CA.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(9) RENT/(iii) Increases of Rent under Assured Periodic Tenancies/1093. Determination by rent assessment committee; matters to be considered or disregarded.

1093. Determination by rent assessment committee; matters to be considered or disregarded.

In making a determination of rent<sup>1</sup> there must be disregarded:

2230 (2) any increase in the value of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> attributable to a relevant improvement<sup>6</sup> carried out by a person who at the time it was carried out was the tenant<sup>7</sup>, if the improvement was carried out:

53. (a) otherwise than in pursuance of an obligation<sup>8</sup> to his immediate landlord<sup>9</sup>; or

54. (b) pursuant to an obligation to his immediate landlord being an obligation which did not relate to the specific improvement concerned but arose by reference to consent given to the carrying out of that improvement; and

2231 (3) any reduction in the value of the dwelling house attributable to a failure by the tenant to comply with any terms of the tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

Where any rates<sup>11</sup> in respect of the dwelling house concerned are borne by the landlord or a superior landlord, the rent assessment committee<sup>12</sup> must make its determination as if the rates were not so borne<sup>13</sup>. In making a determination in any case where the landlord or a superior landlord is liable<sup>14</sup> to pay council tax in respect of a hereditament<sup>15</sup> ('the relevant hereditament') of which the dwelling house forms part, the rent assessment committee must have regard to the amount of council tax which, as at the date on which the notice proposing an increase in rent<sup>16</sup> was served, was set by the billing authority<sup>17</sup> for the financial year in which that notice was served and for the category of dwellings<sup>18</sup> within which the relevant hereditament fell on that date; but any discount or other reduction affecting the amount of council tax payable must be disregarded<sup>19</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions:

- 2232 (i) requires a rent assessment committee to continue with its determination of a rent for a dwelling house if the landlord and tenant give notice in writing that they no longer require such a determination or if the tenancy has come to an end<sup>20</sup>;
- 2233 (ii) affects the right of the landlord and the tenant under an assured tenancy to vary by agreement any term of the tenancy, including a term relating to rent<sup>21</sup>.

4 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

6 For these purposes, in relation to a notice which is referred by the tenant as mentioned in the Housing Act 1988 s 14(1) (see PARA 1092 ante), an improvement is a relevant improvement if either it was carried out during the tenancy to which the notice relates or if the following conditions are satisfied, namely: (1) that it was carried out not more than 21 years before the date of service of the notice; and (2) that, at all times during the period beginning when the improvement was carried out and ending on the date of service of the notice, the dwelling house has been let under an assured tenancy; and (3) that, on the coming to an end of an assured tenancy at any time during that period, the tenant, or, in the case of joint tenants, at least one of them, did not quit: s 14(3). For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

7 Since 'tenancy' includes an agreement for a tenancy (see PARA 1012 note 1 ante), improvements carried out by a tenant holding under such an agreement would be disregarded.

8 Improvements are not carried out in pursuance of an obligation if the tenant may choose whether or not to carry them out at all but where, if he chooses to do them, he must carry them out in accordance with plans approved by the landlord: Godbold v Martins the Newsagents Ltd [1983] 2 EGLR 128, (1983) 268 Estates Gazette 1202.

1096. Reference of excessive rents to rent assessment committee.

The tenant<sup>1</sup> under an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>2</sup> may<sup>3</sup> make an application in the prescribed form<sup>4</sup> to a rent assessment committee<sup>5</sup> for a determination of the rent<sup>6</sup> which, in the committee's opinion, the landlord<sup>7</sup> might reasonably be expected to obtain under the assured shorthold tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

No such application may, however, be made if:

- 2234 (1) the rent payable under the tenancy<sup>9</sup> is a rent previously determined upon such an application;
- 2235 (2) the tenancy was created on or after 1 February 1997<sup>10</sup> and more than six months have elapsed since the beginning of the tenancy<sup>11</sup> or, in the case of a replacement tenancy<sup>12</sup>, since the beginning of the original tenancy<sup>13</sup>; or

1097. Determination by rent assessment committee.

- 2237 (1) that there is a sufficient number of similar dwelling houses<sup>5</sup> in the locality let<sup>6</sup> on assured tenancies<sup>7</sup>, whether shorthold or not; and
- 2238 (2) that the rent payable under the assured shorthold tenancy in question is significantly higher than the rent which the landlord<sup>8</sup> might reasonably be expected to be able to obtain under the tenancy<sup>9</sup>, having regard to the level of rents payable<sup>10</sup> in the locality<sup>11</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions requires a rent assessment committee to continue with its determination of a rent for a dwelling house if the landlord and tenant<sup>12</sup> give notice in writing that they no longer require such a determination or if the tenancy has come to an end<sup>13</sup>.

1100. In general.

The court<sup>1</sup> may not make an order for possession of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> let<sup>3</sup> on an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup> except on one or more of the statutory grounds<sup>5</sup>. If the court is satisfied that any of the mandatory grounds<sup>6</sup> is established, the court must<sup>7</sup> make an order for possession<sup>8</sup>; and, if the court is satisfied that any of the discretionary grounds<sup>9</sup> is established, the court may<sup>10</sup> make an order for possession if it considers it reasonable to do so<sup>11</sup>. The court may not, however, make an order for possession of a dwelling house let on an assured periodic tenancy arising under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>12</sup> on certain specified<sup>13</sup> grounds<sup>14</sup>.

Nothing in Part I of the Housing Act 1988<sup>15</sup> relates to proceedings for possession of a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy which are brought by a mortgagee<sup>16</sup> who has lent money on the security of the assured tenancy<sup>17</sup>.

If, however, by virtue of s 39(8) (see PARA 1149 post), the assured tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled is an assured agricultural occupancy, Sch 4 para 13(1) does not apply and s 7 (as amended) has effect in relation to that tenancy as if in s 7(3) after the word 'established' there were inserted the words 'or that the circumstances are as specified in Case XI or Case XII of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976': Housing Act 1988 Sch 4 paras 13(2), 14. The court<sup>1</sup> may not make an order for possession of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> to take effect at a time when it is let<sup>3</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>4</sup> unless the ground for possession is one of certain specified<sup>5</sup> grounds and the terms of the tenancy<sup>6</sup> make provision<sup>7</sup> for it to be brought to an end on the ground in question<sup>8</sup>.

The court may<sup>9</sup>, however, make an order for possession of a dwelling house on grounds relating to a fixed term tenancy which has come to an end; and, where an order is made in such circumstances, any statutory periodic tenancy<sup>10</sup> which has arisen on the ending of the fixed term tenancy ends, without any notice and regardless of the period, on the day on which the order takes effect<sup>11</sup>.

7 I.e. whether that provision takes the form of a provision for re-entry, for forfeiture, for determination by notice or otherwise.

8 Housing Act 1988 s 7(6). A fixed term tenancy cannot be brought to an end by forfeiture since a power of forfeiture is not a power to determine the tenancy within the meaning of s 5(1) (see PARA 1065 ante): see s 45(4); and PARA 1051 note 6 ante. If, however, the tenancy contains a proviso for re-entry or forfeiture, that would enable the court to make an order for possession where an appropriate ground was available even though there could not be a forfeiture.

- 2239 (1) where possession is sought of a house in respect of which a demolition order or prohibition order has been made<sup>2</sup>;
- 2240 (2) where the house is required to enable a local authority to exercise its powers under any enactment relating to housing<sup>3</sup>;
- 2241 (3) if the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>4</sup> certifies that possession of a house acquired or appropriated and held by certain authorities for planning purposes is immediately required for those purposes<sup>5</sup>.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(i) In general/1103. Notice of proceedings for possession; in general.

1103. Notice of proceedings for possession; in general.

The court<sup>1</sup> may not entertain proceedings for possession of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> let<sup>3</sup> on an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup> unless:

- 2242 (1) the landlord<sup>5</sup>, or in the case of joint landlords, at least one of them, has served on the tenant<sup>6</sup> a notice in the prescribed form<sup>7</sup> in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions<sup>8</sup> and the proceedings are begun within the statutory time limits<sup>9</sup>; or
- 2243 (2) the court considers it just and equitable to dispense with the requirement of such a notice<sup>10</sup>.

The court may not make an order for possession on any of the statutory grounds<sup>11</sup> unless that ground and the particulars of it are specified in the notice; but the grounds specified in such a notice may be altered or added to with the leave of the court<sup>12</sup>.

The notice must inform the tenant that:

- 2244 (a) the landlord intends to begin proceedings for possession of the dwelling house on one or more of the grounds specified in the notice; and
- 2245 (b) those proceedings will not begin earlier than a date specified in the notice<sup>13</sup>; and
- 2246 (c) those proceedings will not begin later than 12 months from the service of the notice<sup>14</sup>.

Where such a notice is served at a time when the dwelling house is let on a fixed term tenancy<sup>15</sup>, or is served after a fixed term tenancy has come to an end but relates, in whole or in part, to events occurring during that tenancy, the notice has effect notwithstanding that the tenant becomes or has become a tenant under a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>16</sup> arising on the coming to an end of the fixed term tenancy<sup>17</sup>.

8 Ie in accordance with the Housing Act 1988 s 8 (as amended): see the text and notes 9-17 infra.

9 Ie the time limits stated in the notice in accordance with ibid s 8(3)-(4B) (as amended): see note 14 infra.

10 Ibid s 8(1), (2) (s 8(1), (3) amended by the Housing Act 1996 s 151(2), (3)). The court may not exercise the power conferred by the Housing Act 1988 s 8(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) if the landlord seeks to recover possession on s 7(1), Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8 (as amended) (see PARA 1116 post): s 8(5). Notice need not be given in a separate document: Springfield Investments Ltd v Bell (1990) 22 HLR 440, [1991] 1 EGLR 115, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1977). Oral notice may be an important factor in dispensing with the requirement for written notice but it is not a prerequisite of such dispensation: Boyle v Verrall (1996) 29 HLR 436, [1997] 1 EGLR 25, CA. See also Mustafa v Ruddock (1997) 30 HLR 495, [1997] EGCS 87, CA; Knowsley Housing Trust v Revell [2003] EWCA Civ 496, [2004] LGR 236, [2003] HLR 958 (on conversion of secure tenancy to assured tenancy, court ought not to order a 'blanket' dispensation without consideration of the cases of individual tenants). Under similar provisions in the Rent Act 1977 the requirement for written notice was dispensed with where oral notice had been given (Fernandes v Pavardin (1982) 5 HLR 33, CA, [1982] 2 EGLR 104; Davies v Peterson (1988) 21 HLR 63, [1989] 1 EGLR 121, CA; RJ Dunnell Property Investments Ltd v Thorpe (1989) 21 HLR 559, [1989] 2 EGLR 94, CA) and where no notice was given at all (Minay v Sentongo (1983) 45 P & CR 190, 6 HLR 79, CA). Notice could not, however, be dispensed with under that Act where at the outset the landlord had not intended to return to live in the premises (Bradshaw v Baldwin-Wiseman (1985) 49 P & CR 382, [1985] 1 EGLR 123, CA) nor merely on the basis that the original agreement to occupy purported to be temporary (Ibie v Trubshaw (1990) 22 HLR 191).

11 le the grounds in the Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 (as amended): see PARA 1109 et seq post.

12 Ibid s 8(2). The notice must be sufficiently specific to enable the tenant to know what he must do to avoid proceedings, but need not follow the statutory wording verbatim when specifying the ground relied upon: see Mountain v Hastings (1993) 25 HLR 427, [1993] 2 EGLR 53, CA. As to the information to be given where the Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8 (as amended) (see PARA 1116 post) is cited in the notice see Marath v MacGillivray (1996) 28 HLR 484, [1996] NPC 11, CA.

- 2248 (2) the court considers it just and equitable to dispense with such requirements as to service<sup>6</sup>.

Where Ground 14A is added to a notice of proceedings for possession<sup>7</sup> with the leave of the court after proceedings for possession are begun and the partner who has left the dwelling house as mentioned in that ground is not a party to the proceedings, the court must not continue to entertain the proceedings unless:

1106. Fixed term tenancy.

Without prejudice to any right of the landlord<sup>1</sup> under an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>2</sup> to recover possession of the dwelling house<sup>3</sup> let<sup>4</sup> on the tenancy<sup>5</sup> in accordance with the normal statutory provisions<sup>6</sup>, a court<sup>7</sup> must make an order for possession of the dwelling house, on or after the coming to an end of an assured shorthold tenancy which was a fixed term tenancy<sup>8</sup>, if it is satisfied:

- 2254 (1) that the assured shorthold tenancy has come to an end and no further assured tenancy<sup>9</sup>, whether shorthold or not, is for the time being in existence other than an assured shorthold periodic tenancy, whether statutory<sup>10</sup> or not; and
- 2255 (2) the landlord or, in the case of joint landlords, at least one of them has given to the tenant<sup>11</sup> not less than two months' notice in writing<sup>12</sup> stating that he requires<sup>13</sup> possession of the dwelling house<sup>14</sup>.

A notice may be so given before or on the day on which the tenancy comes to an end; and the above provisions<sup>15</sup> have effect notwithstanding that on the coming to an end of the fixed term tenancy a statutory periodic tenancy arises<sup>16</sup>.

Where a court so makes an order for possession of a dwelling house, any statutory periodic tenancy which has arisen on the coming to an end of the assured shorthold tenancy ends, without further notice and regardless of the period, on the day on which the order takes effect<sup>17</sup>.

Unless the tenancy is a demoted assured shorthold tenancy<sup>18</sup>, where an order for possession under the above provisions is made in relation to a dwelling house let on a tenancy created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>19</sup>, the order may not be made so as to take effect earlier than:

- 2256 (a) in the case of a tenancy which is not a replacement tenancy<sup>20</sup>, six months after the beginning of the tenancy<sup>21</sup>; and
- 2257 (b) in the case of a replacement tenancy, six months after the beginning of the original tenancy<sup>22</sup>.

The landlord may bring an accelerated claim for possession of residential property let on an assured shorthold tenancy where all the relevant conditions are satisfied<sup>23</sup>.

1107. Periodic tenancy.

- 2258 (1) that the landlord or, in the case of joint landlords, at least one of them has given to the tenant<sup>8</sup> a notice in writing stating that, after a date specified in the notice, being the last day of a period of the tenancy and not earlier than two months after the date the notice was given, possession of the dwelling house is required<sup>9</sup>; and
- 2259 (2) that the date specified in the notice under head (1) above is not earlier than the earliest day on which the tenancy could otherwise<sup>10</sup> be brought to an end by a notice to quit given by the landlord on the same date as that notice<sup>11</sup>.

Unless the tenancy is a demoted assured shorthold tenancy<sup>12</sup>, where an order for possession under the above provisions is made in relation to a dwelling house let on a tenancy created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>13</sup>, the order may not be made so as to take effect earlier than:

- 2260 (a) in the case of a tenancy which is not a replacement tenancy<sup>14</sup>, six months after the beginning of the tenancy<sup>15</sup>; and
- 2261 (b) in the case of a replacement tenancy, six months after the beginning of the original tenancy<sup>16</sup>.

The landlord may bring an accelerated claim for possession of residential property let on an assured shorthold tenancy where all the relevant conditions are satisfied<sup>17</sup>.

UPDATE

1106-1107 Fixed term tenancy, Periodic tenancy

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

1107 Periodic tenancy

TEXT AND NOTE 11--Housing Act 1988 s 21(4A) added: Housing and Regeneration Act 2008 s 299, Sch 11 para 9(3). For transitional provisions see Sch 11 para 14 (partly in force: SI 2009/1261). See also Housing and Regeneration Act 2008 Sch 11 Pt 2 (replacement of certain terminated tenancies).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession/1108. Notices given for the purposes of Grounds 1 to 5.

(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession

1108. Notices given for the purposes of Grounds 1 to 5.

It is a requirement of the first five of the mandatory grounds for possession<sup>1</sup> that the tenancy is preceded by notice warning the tenant of the possibility of the ground being relied upon<sup>2</sup>. In the case of those five grounds any reference to the landlord<sup>3</sup> giving a notice in writing to the tenant<sup>4</sup> is, in the case of joint landlords, a reference to at least one of the joint landlords giving such a notice<sup>5</sup>.

If, not later than the beginning of a tenancy<sup>6</sup> ('the earlier tenancy'), the landlord gives such a notice in writing to the tenant, the notice also has effect<sup>7</sup> as if it had been given immediately before the beginning of any later tenancy which:

- 2262 (1) takes effect immediately on the coming to an end of the earlier tenancy;
- 2263 (2) is granted, or deemed to be granted, to the person who was the tenant under the earlier tenancy immediately before it came to an end; and
- 2264 (3) is of substantially the same dwelling house<sup>8</sup> as the earlier tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

In relation to the assured tenancy<sup>10</sup> to which the successor<sup>11</sup> becomes entitled by succession<sup>12</sup>, any notice given to the predecessor<sup>13</sup> for the purposes of Cases 13 to 15 of the Rent Act 1977<sup>14</sup> is treated as having been given for the purposes of whichever of Grounds 3 to 5 corresponds to the Case in question<sup>15</sup>.

1 le the Housing Act 1988 s 7(1), Sch 2 Pt I, Grounds 1-5 (as amended): see PARA 1109 et seq post.

2 There is no prescribed form of notice but it should be sufficiently clear to enable the tenant to know which ground is being relied upon: see Fowler v Minchin (1987) 19 HLR 224, [1987] 1 EGLR 108, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1977).

3 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

5 Housing Act 1988 s 7(5), Sch 2 Pt IV para 7. If, however, there are joint tenants, each of them must be served with the notice: see s 45(3) (cited in PARA 1018 note 6 ante).

6 Any reference in ibid Sch 2 Pt 1, Grounds 1-5 (as amended) to a notice being given not later than the beginning of the tenancy is a reference to its being given not later than the day on which the tenancy is entered into and, accordingly s 45(2) (see PARA 1051 note 7 ante) does not apply to any such reference: Sch 2 Pt IV para 11. For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

7 le for the purposes of the ground in question and any further application of ibid Sch 2 Pt IV para 8: see the text and notes 8-9 infra.

8 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

9 Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt IV para 8(1), (2). Schedule 2 Pt IV para 8(1) does not, however, apply in relation to a later tenancy if, not later than the beginning of the tenancy, the landlord gave notice in writing to the tenant that the tenancy is not one in respect of which possession can be recovered on the ground in question: Sch 2 Pt IV para 8(3).

10 For the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

11 For these purposes, 'the successor' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1988 s 39 (as amended) (see PARA 1016 ante): s 39(10).

12 le as mentioned in ibid s 39 (as amended): see PARA 1016 ante.

13 For these purposes, 'the predecessor' has the same meaning as in ibid s 39 (see PARA 1016 ante): s 39(10).

14 le for the purposes of any of the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 13 (see PARA 965 ante), Case 14 (see PARA 965 ante) or Case 15 (see PARA 966 ante).

15 Housing Act 1988 s 39(10), Sch 4 para 15(1). Where Sch 4 para 15(1) applies, the regulated tenancy of the predecessor is treated, in relation to the assured tenancy of the successor, as 'the earlier tenancy' for the purposes of Sch 2 Pt IV (paras 7-11) (see the text and notes 1-9 supra; and PARAS 1109, 1111-1112 post): Sch 4 para 15(2). For the meaning of 'regulated tenancy' see PARA 854 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession/1109. Ground 1: landlord was former occupier or requires possession as only or principal home.

1109. Ground 1: landlord was former occupier or requires possession as only or principal home.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where not later than the beginning of the tenancy<sup>2</sup> the landlord<sup>3</sup> gave notice<sup>4</sup> in writing to the tenant<sup>5</sup> that possession might be recovered on this Ground or the court is of the opinion that it is just and equitable to dispense with the requirement of notice<sup>6</sup> and, in either case:

An order for possession may not be made on this Ground to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let<sup>13</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>14</sup> or on an assured periodic tenancy arising<sup>15</sup> under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1128 post.

2 For the meaning of references to notice given not later than the beginning of the tenancy see PARA 1108 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1012 note 1 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante. See also PARA 1108 the text and notes 3-5 ante.

4 As to such notice see PARA 1108 ante.

- 5 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante. See also PARA 1108 note 5 ante.
- 6 As to dispensing with the requirement of notice see PARA 1103 note 10 ante.
- 7 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.
- 8 As to occupation as his only or principal home see PARA 1018 note 8 ante. The requirement of the dwelling house for the landlord's 'only or principal home' is a more stringent test than requirement 'as a residence' under the Rent Act 1977 s 98(2), Sch 15 Pt II, Case 11 (as amended) (see PARA 963 ante). Cases decided under that provision have to be treated with caution for these purposes.
- 9 For the meaning of 'requires' see Kidder v Birch (1982) 46 P & CR 362, 5 HLR 28 (decided under the Rent Act 1977). See also Aitken v Shaw 1933 SLT (Sh Ct) 21. The requirement is tested at the date of the hearing: Alexander v Mohamadzadeh (1985) 51 P & CR 41, 18 HLR 90, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1977). The onus of proof is on the landlord: see Epsom Grand Stand Association Ltd v Clarke (1919) 35 TLR 525, CA. See also Chandler v Strevett [1947] 1 All ER 164, CA (whether or not the landlord requires possession is a question of fact for the trial judge).
- 10 There is no extended statutory definition of 'spouse or civil partner' for these purposes; cf the Housing Act 1988 s 17(4) (as substituted); and PARA 1084 note 3 ante.
- 11 Where ibid s 7(5), Sch 2 Pt IV para 8(1) (see PARA 1108 ante) has effect in relation to a notice so given, the reference to the reversion on the tenancy is a reference to the reversion on the earlier tenancy and on any later tenancy falling within Sch 2 Pt IV para 8(2) (see PARA 1108 ante): Sch 2 Pt IV para 9.
- 12 Ibid s 7(1), Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 1 (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8 para 43(1), (2)).
- 13 For the meaning of 'let' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.
- 14 See the Housing Act 1988 s 7(6); and PARA 1101 ante. For the meaning of 'fixed term tenancy' see PARA 1051 note 3 ante.
- 15 Ie under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186, Sch 10 (as amended): see PARA 1254 et seq post.
- 16 See the Housing Act 1988 s 7(5A) (as added); and PARA 1100 ante.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession/1110. Ground 2: dwelling house mortgaged.

1110. Ground 2: dwelling house mortgaged.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is subject to a mortgage<sup>3</sup> granted before the beginning of the tenancy<sup>4</sup> and:

- 2267 (1) the mortgagee is entitled to exercise a power of sale conferred on him by the mortgage or by statute<sup>5</sup>; and
- 2268 (2) the mortgagee requires<sup>6</sup> possession of the dwelling house for the purpose of disposing of it with vacant possession in exercise of that power; and
- 2269 (3) either notice was given as mentioned in Ground 1<sup>7</sup> or the court is satisfied that it is just and equitable to dispense with the requirement of notice<sup>8</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may not be made:

- 2270 (a) to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let<sup>9</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>10</sup> unless the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>11</sup>;
- 2271 (b) if the dwelling house is let on an assured periodic tenancy arising<sup>12</sup> under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>13</sup>.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is held for the purpose of being available for occupation by a minister of religion as a residence from which to perform the duties of his office and:

- 2276 (1) not later than the beginning of the tenancy<sup>3</sup> the landlord<sup>4</sup> gave notice<sup>5</sup> in writing to the tenant<sup>6</sup> that possession might be recovered on this Ground; and
- 2277 (2) the court is satisfied that the dwelling house is required<sup>7</sup> for occupation by a minister of religion as such a residence<sup>8</sup>.

An order for possession may not be made on this Ground to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let<sup>9</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>10</sup> or on an assured periodic tenancy arising<sup>11</sup> under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>12</sup>.

1114. Ground 6: redevelopment.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where the landlord<sup>2</sup> who is seeking possession or, if that landlord is a registered social landlord<sup>3</sup> or charitable housing trust<sup>4</sup>, a superior landlord intends to demolish or reconstruct the whole or a substantial part of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> or to carry out substantial works on the dwelling house or any part of it or any building of which it forms part and the specified conditions<sup>6</sup> are fulfilled<sup>7</sup>. Those conditions are that:

2278 (1) the intended work cannot reasonably be carried out without the tenant<sup>8</sup> giving up possession<sup>9</sup> of the dwelling house because:

55. (a) the tenant is not willing to agree to such a variation of the terms of the tenancy<sup>10</sup> as would give such access and other facilities as would permit the intended work to be carried out; or

56. (b) the nature of the intended work is such that no such variation is practicable; or

57. (c) the tenant is not willing to accept an assured tenancy<sup>11</sup> of such part only of the dwelling house ('the reduced part') as would leave in the possession of his landlord so much of the dwelling house as would be reasonable to enable the intended work to be carried out and, where appropriate, as would give such access and other facilities over the reduced part as would permit the intended work to be carried out; or

58. (d) the nature of the intended work is such that such a tenancy is not practicable; and

2279 (2) either the landlord seeking possession acquired his interest in the dwelling house before the grant of the tenancy<sup>12</sup> or that interest was in existence at the time of the grant and neither that landlord, or, in the case of joint landlords, any of them, nor any other person who, alone or jointly with others, has acquired that interest since that time acquired it for money or money's worth; and 2280 (3) the assured tenancy on which the dwelling house is let did not come into being by virtue of the specified<sup>13</sup> statutory provisions<sup>14</sup>.

Where a court makes an order for possession of a dwelling house let<sup>15</sup> on an assured tenancy on this Ground or on Ground 9<sup>16</sup>, but not on any other Ground, the landlord must pay to the tenant a sum equal to the reasonable expenses likely to be incurred by the tenant in removing from the dwelling house<sup>17</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may not be made:

2281 (i) to take effect at any time when the dwelling house is let on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>18</sup>;

2282 (ii) if the dwelling house is let on an assured periodic tenancy which arose<sup>19</sup> on the termination of a former 1954 Act tenancy<sup>20</sup>.

1 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1128 post.

2 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1020 note 3 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'registered social landlord' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see s 5(4), (5); and HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 11, 67): Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 6 (definition substituted by the Housing Act 1996 (Consequential Provisions) Order 1996, SI 1996/2325, art 5, Sch 2 para 18(1), (13)).

4 For these purposes, 'charitable housing trust' means a housing trust, within the meaning of the Housing Associations Act 1985 (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 12), which is a charity within the meaning of the Charities Act 1993 (see CHARITIES vol 8 (2010) PARA 1): Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 6 (definition amended by the Charities Act 1993 s 98(1), Sch 6 para 30; and by the Housing Act 1996 (Consequential Provisions) Order 1996, SI 1996/2325, art 5, Sch 2 para 18(1), (13)).

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession/1115. Ground 7: death of tenant.

1115. Ground 7: death of tenant.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where the tenancy<sup>2</sup> is a periodic tenancy, including a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>3</sup>, which has devolved under the will or intestacy of the former tenant<sup>4</sup> and the proceedings for the recovery of possession<sup>5</sup> are begun not later than 12 months after the death of the former tenant or, if the court so directs, after the date on which, in the opinion of the court, the landlord<sup>6</sup> or, in the case of joint landlords, any one of them became aware of the former tenant's death<sup>7</sup>.

For these purposes, the acceptance by the landlord of rent from a new tenant after the death of the former tenant is not regarded as creating a new periodic tenancy, unless the landlord agrees in writing to a change, as compared with the tenancy before the death, in the amount of the rent, the period of the tenancy, the premises which are let or any other term of the tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

An order for possession may not be made on this Ground to take effect at a time when the dwelling house<sup>9</sup> is let<sup>10</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1128 post.

3 For the meaning of 'statutory periodic tenancy' see PARA 1067 note 8 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante. If there was a joint tenancy, the tenancy would vest in the survivor or survivors by the right of survivorship and would not devolve under the will or intestacy until the death of the last survivor. Equally, there will be no devolution under the will or intestacy if there is a statutory transmission of the tenancy. As to succession to an assured periodic tenancy see PARA 1084 ante.

5 The phrase 'proceedings for the recovery of possession' refers, in this context, to court proceedings and not to service of the notice of intention to commence proceedings: see Osada v Shepping [2000] 2 EGLR 38, [2000] 30 EG 125, CA.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iii) Other Mandatory Grounds for Possession/1116. Ground 8: serious arrears of rent.

1116. Ground 8: serious arrears of rent.

The court<sup>1</sup> must make an order for possession where both at the date of service of the notice of proceedings for possession<sup>2</sup> and at the date of the hearing:

- 2283 (1) if rent<sup>3</sup> is payable weekly or fortnightly, at least eight weeks' rent is unpaid;
- 2284 (2) if rent is payable monthly, at least two months' rent is unpaid;
- 2285 (3) if rent is payable quarterly, at least one quarter's rent is more than three months in arrears; and
- 2286 (4) if rent is payable yearly, at least three months' rent is more than three months in arrears<sup>4</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> is let<sup>6</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>7</sup> but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>8</sup>.

There is no absolute principle that the court should never adjourn a hearing date for the sole purpose of enabling a tenant to reduce arrears of rent to below the Ground 8 threshold; however, the power to do so is only to be exercised in exceptional circumstances and it has been held that maladministration on the part of the housing benefit authority (to which the arrears of rent are attributable) is not such an exceptional circumstance<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1128 post.

2 The court has no discretion to dispense with the requirement of notice of proceedings where an order for possession is sought on this Ground: see s 8(5); and PARA 1103 note 10 ante. A notice specifying this Ground but omitting the words specifying the amount of rent unpaid was defective since it did not give the tenant adequate information: see Mountain v Hastings (1993) 25 HLR 427, [1993] 2 EGLR 53, CA. For the information that must be given see Marath v MacGillivray (1996) 28 HLR 484, [1996] NPC 11, CA.

3 For these purposes, 'rent' means rent lawfully due from the tenant: Housing Act 1988 s 7(1), Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8. For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante. Where the landlord of premises let on an assured tenancy has obtained judgment for arrears of rent and an order for possession permitting him to accept payments from the tenant by way of mesne profits until possession is given, no new tenancy is created merely because the landlord has accepted a proposal by the tenant to pay regular amounts towards the money judgment. The tenant will remain in occupation as a tolerated trespasser and that will remain the position until the landlord takes a position inconsistent with the order, by seeking and obtaining an increase in the monthly payment for use and occupation: see Stirling v Leadenhall Residential 2 Ltd [2001] EWCA Civ 1011, [2001] 3 All ER 645, [2002] 1 WLR 499.

For rent to be lawfully due, a valid notice under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1987 s 48 (as amended) (see PARA 53 ante) must have been served; but that requirement is satisfied provided that the tenant has been informed in writing of an address in England at which he may serve notices to the landlord: see Drew-Morgan v Hamid-Zadeh (1999) 32 HLR 316, [1999] 2 EGLR 13, CA. It is unclear whether rent could properly be described as 'lawfully due' where the tenant has paid for the execution of work which in breach of covenant the landlord has failed to do, or where the tenant has an unqualified claim for damages which could be set off against a claim by the landlord for arrears of rent: see Lee-Parker v Izzet [1971] 3 All ER 1099, [1971] 1 WLR 1688; Asco Developments Ltd v Gordon [1978] 2 EGLR 41, (1978) 248 Estates Gazette 683; Melville v Grapelodge Developments Ltd (1978) 39 P & CR 179, [1980] 1 EGLR 42; British Anzani (Felixstowe) Ltd v International Marine Management (UK) Ltd [1980] QB 137, [1979] 2 All ER 1063; Televantos v McCulloch (1990) 23 HLR 412, [1991] 1 EGLR 123, CA. For the purposes of the statutory provisions for the protection of persons serving in the reserve and auxiliary forces of the Crown which render the leave of the court necessary for the enforcement of a judgment or order for the recovery of possession of land in default of payment of rent (see the Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 ss 2(3)-(5), 3, 4(1); and ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 82 et seq), a judgment or order for the recovery of possession of a protected dwelling house is deemed to be a judgment or order for the recovery of possession in default of payment of rent if the judgment or order was made on any of the following grounds, ie the Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8 (as amended), Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 10 (see PARA 1119 post) and Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 11 (see PARA 1120 post), and not on any other ground: Reserve and Auxiliary Forces (Protection of Civil Interests) Act 1951 s 4(2A) (added by the Housing Act 1988 s 140(1), Sch 17 para 1).

4 Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8 (amended by the Housing Act 1996 s 101). Where the parties agree for unpaid rent to be paid by means of a cheque, the acceptance of that cheque suspends the landlord's right to sue while the cheque is being cleared. At the date of the hearing, the judge has jurisdiction to adjourn the claim to see if the cheque will be paid, although he is not bound to do so if he has reason to conclude that it will not be paid. If the cheque is not paid at first presentation, then the order for possession must be made and the date of the hearing for the purpose of Sch 2 Pt I, Ground 8 (as amended) is the earlier hearing and not the adjourned hearing. Day v Coltrane [2003] EWCA Civ 342, [2003] 1 WLR 1379, [2003] All ER (D) 210 (Mar).

In calculating the amount of rent which is outstanding at the date of hearing for the purposes of the Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, Ground (as amended), the court is entitled to take into account moneys which have been paid into court on account of rent arrears: Etherington v Burt [2004] EWHC 95 (QB), [2004] All ER (D) 117 (Feb).

(iv) Discretionary Grounds for Possession

1117. Extended discretion of the court in possession claims.

The following provisions do not apply if the court<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that the landlord<sup>2</sup> is entitled to possession of the dwelling house<sup>3</sup> on any of the mandatory grounds<sup>4</sup> or on the expiry or termination<sup>5</sup> of an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

The court may<sup>7</sup> adjourn for such period or periods as it thinks fit proceedings for possession<sup>8</sup> of a dwelling house let<sup>9</sup> on an assured tenancy<sup>10</sup>. On the making of an order for possession of a dwelling house so let, or at any time before the execution of such an order the court may<sup>11</sup> stay or suspend execution of the order, or postpone the date of possession, for such period or periods as the court thinks just<sup>12</sup>. On any such adjournment, stay, suspension or postponement, the court must, however, unless it considers that to do so would cause exceptional hardship to the tenant<sup>13</sup> or would otherwise be unreasonable, impose conditions with regard to payment by the tenant of arrears of rent, if any, and rent or payments in respect of occupation after the termination of the tenancy (mesne profits) and may impose such other condition as it thinks fit<sup>14</sup>. If any such conditions are complied with, the court may, if it thinks fit, discharge or rescind any such possession order<sup>15</sup>.

In any case where:

- 2287 (1) at a time when proceedings are brought for possession of a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy, the tenant's spouse or former spouse, or civil partner or former civil partner, having home rights under Part IV of the Family Law Act 1996<sup>16</sup>, is in occupation of the dwelling house; and
- 2288 (2) the assured tenancy is terminated as a result of those proceedings, the spouse or former spouse or the civil partner or former civil partner, so long as he or she remains in occupation, has the same rights in relation to, or in connection with, any adjournment, stay, suspension or postponement of possession proceedings<sup>17</sup> as he or she would have if those home rights were not affected by the termination of the tenancy<sup>18</sup>.

Further, in any case where:

- 2289 (a) at a time when proceedings are brought for possession of a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy:
- 48
59. (i) an order is in force<sup>19</sup> conferring rights on the former spouse or former civil partner of the tenant; or
60. (ii) an order is in force<sup>20</sup> conferring rights on a cohabitant or former cohabitant<sup>21</sup> of the tenant;
- 49
- 2290 (b) that former spouse, former civil partner, cohabitant or former cohabitant is then in occupation of the dwelling house; and
- 2291 (c) the assured tenancy is terminated as a result of those proceedings, the former spouse, former civil partner, cohabitant or former cohabitant has the same rights in relation to, or in connection with, any adjournment stay, suspension or postponement of possession proceedings<sup>22</sup> as he or she would have if the rights conferred by the order referred to in head (a) above were not affected by the termination of the tenancy<sup>23</sup>.

The effect of s 9(6) is that once the court has expressed the conclusion that it is satisfied that the landlord is entitled to possession there is no power to grant an adjournment in any circumstances. However, the court is not 'satisfied' within the meaning of s 9(6) until the judge has given a judgment and effect has been given to that judgment in a perfected order of the court: see North British Housing Association Ltd v Matthews, London and Quadrant Housing Ltd v Morgan [2004] EWCA Civ 1736 at [36], [2005] 2 All ER 667, [2005] 1 WLR 3133.

PARAS 1386-2000)/18. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iv) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/1118. Ground 9: suitable alternative accommodation.

1118. Ground 9: suitable alternative accommodation.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order for possession where suitable alternative accommodation is available for the tenant<sup>2</sup> or will be available for him when the order for possession takes effect<sup>3</sup>.

For these purposes, a certificate of the local housing authority<sup>4</sup> for the district<sup>5</sup> in which the dwelling house<sup>6</sup> in question is situated, certifying that the authority will provide suitable alternative accommodation for the tenant by a date specified in the certificate, is conclusive evidence that suitable alternative accommodation will be available for him by that date<sup>7</sup>. Where no such certificate is produced to the court, accommodation is deemed to be suitable for the purposes of this Ground if it consists of either:

- 2292 (1) premises which are to be let<sup>8</sup> as a separate dwelling<sup>9</sup> such that they will then be let on an assured tenancy<sup>10</sup>, other than:
- 50
61. (a) a tenancy in respect of which notice is given not later than the beginning of the tenancy that possession might be recovered on any of Grounds 1 to 5<sup>11</sup>; or
62. (b) an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>12</sup>; or
- 51
- 2293 (2) premises to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which will, in the opinion of the court, afford to the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security afforded<sup>13</sup> in the case of an assured tenancy<sup>14</sup>, and, in the opinion of the court, the accommodation fulfils the relevant conditions<sup>15</sup>. The relevant conditions are that the accommodation is reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards proximity to place of work, and either:

- 2294 (i) similar as regards rental and extent to the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided in the neighbourhood by any local housing authority for persons whose needs as regards extent are, in the opinion of the court, similar to those of the tenant and of his family<sup>16</sup>; or
- 2295 (ii) reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent and character<sup>17</sup>, and that, if any furniture was provided for use under the assured tenancy in question, furniture is provided for use in the accommodation which is either similar to that so provided or is reasonable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>18</sup>.

Where the court makes an order for possession of a dwelling house let on an assured tenancy on this Ground or on Ground 6<sup>19</sup>, but not on any other Ground, the landlord must pay to the tenant a sum equal to the reasonable expenses likely to be incurred by the tenant in removing from the dwelling house<sup>20</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may not be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>21</sup>.

4 For these purposes, 'local housing authority' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Housing Act 1988 s 7(3), Sch 2 Pt III para 6.

5 For these purposes, 'district', in relation to a local housing authority, has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1985 (see PARA 1311 note 4 post): Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt III para 6.

For the meaning of 'assured agricultural occupancy' see PARA 1183 post.

16 For these purposes, a certificate of a local housing authority stating (1) the extent of the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses provided by the authority to meet the needs of tenants with families of such number as may be specified in the certificate; and (2) the amount of the rent charged by the authority for dwelling houses affording accommodation of that extent, is conclusive evidence of the facts so stated: ibid Sch 2 Pt III para 3(2). Such a certificate must be received in evidence: see note 7 supra.

17 Accommodation is not deemed to be suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family if the result of their occupation of the accommodation would be that it would be an overcrowded dwelling house for the purposes of the Housing Act 1985 Pt X (ss 324-344) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 443 et seq): Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt III para 4.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iv) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/1119. Ground 10: arrears of rent.

1119. Ground 10: arrears of rent.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order for possession where some rent lawfully due<sup>2</sup> from the tenant<sup>3</sup>:

- 2296 (1) is unpaid on the date on which the proceedings for possession are begun;
2297 (2) was in arrears at the date of the service of the notice<sup>4</sup> relating to those proceedings except where the court considers it just and equitable to dispense with the requirement<sup>5</sup> of notice<sup>6</sup>.

An order for possession may be made on this Ground to take effect at a time when the dwelling house<sup>7</sup> is let<sup>8</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>9</sup> but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>10</sup>.

Where the proceedings are brought by a social landlord<sup>11</sup> and are based solely on this ground, then if the tenant unreasonably fails to comply with the terms of the relevant pre-action protocol<sup>12</sup> the court may take such failure into account when considering whether it is reasonable to make a possession order and the landlord may be liable to sanctions if it unreasonably fails to comply with the terms of the protocol<sup>13</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> is let<sup>5</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>6</sup>, but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>7</sup>.

1121. Ground 12: breach of obligation.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order for possession where any obligation of the tenancy<sup>2</sup>, other than one related to the payment of rent, has been broken or not performed<sup>3</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> is let<sup>5</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>6</sup>, but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>7</sup>.

ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iv) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/1122. Ground 13: deterioration of premises.

1122. Ground 13: deterioration of premises.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order for possession where the condition of the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> or any of the common parts<sup>3</sup> has deteriorated owing to acts of waste by, or the neglect or default of, the tenant or any other person residing in the dwelling house, and, in the case of an act of waste by, or the neglect or default of, a person lodging with the tenant or a subtenant of his, the tenant has not taken such steps as he ought reasonably to have taken for the removal of the lodger or subtenant<sup>4</sup>.

An order for possession on this Ground may be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let<sup>5</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>6</sup>, but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1128 post. See also PARA 1117 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'common parts' means any part of a building comprising the dwelling house and any other premises which the tenant is entitled under the terms of the tenancy to use in common with the occupiers of other dwelling houses in which the landlord has an estate or interest: Housing Act 1988 s 7(2), Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 13. ASSURED AND ASSURED SHORTHOLD TENANCIES/(10) RECOVERY OF POSSESSION/(iv) Discretionary Grounds for Possession/1123. Ground 14: nuisance or annoyance or immoral or illegal use.

1123. Ground 14: nuisance or annoyance or immoral or illegal use.

The court<sup>1</sup> may make an order for possession where the tenant<sup>2</sup> or a person residing in or visiting the dwelling house<sup>3</sup>:

- 2298 (1) has been guilty of conduct causing or likely to cause a nuisance or annoyance to a person residing, visiting or otherwise engaging in a lawful activity in the locality; or
- 2299 (2) has been convicted of:
- 52
63. (a) using the dwelling house or allowing it to be used for immoral or illegal purposes; or
64. (b) an indictable offence committed in, or in the locality of, the dwelling house<sup>4</sup>.
- 53

An order for possession on this Ground may be made to take effect at a time when the dwelling house is let<sup>5</sup> on an assured fixed term tenancy<sup>6</sup>, but only if the terms of the tenancy make provision for it to be brought to an end on this Ground<sup>7</sup>.

If the court is considering<sup>8</sup> whether it is reasonable to make an order for possession on this Ground it must consider, in particular:

- 2300 (i) the effect that the nuisance or annoyance has had on persons other than the person against whom the order is sought;
- 2301 (ii) any continuing effect the nuisance or annoyance is likely to have on such persons;
- 2302 (iii) the effect that the nuisance or annoyance would be likely to have on such persons if the conduct is repeated<sup>9</sup>.

The court's discretion to postpone proceedings for possession on this Ground<sup>10</sup> ought not to be exercised where there is no evidence that the behaviour of the person causing nuisance or annoyance is likely to improve during the proposed period of postponement<sup>11</sup>.

The Court of Appeal has drawn attention to guidance issued by the Housing Corporation<sup>12</sup> stating that where the behaviour of a tenant's children is at the root of trouble on a housing estate the registered social landlord should be alert to intervene creatively at an early stage in order to do everything possible to avert recourse to eviction<sup>13</sup>.

Where the tenant's behaviour results from a mental illness or disability, the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 does not bar the making of a possession order under Ground 14 but such an order may only be made if justified under the specific circumstances<sup>14</sup> set out in that Act<sup>15</sup>.

See also Pollards Hill Housing Association Ltd v Marsh [2002] EWCA Civ 199, [2002] HLR 662, [2002] All ER (D) 61 (Feb) (relevant clause of tenant's lease read, under the heading 'Grounds for Possession': 'You or anyone living in or visiting the premises have been guilty of conduct causing or likely to cause a nuisance or annoyance to others living, visiting or carrying out a lawful activity in the locality, or you have been convicted of using the premises for immoral or illegal purposes or of an arrestable offence carried out at or in the locality of the premises (Ground 14)'; this had the effect of restricting the right to apply for possession under head (2) in the text to acts committed by the tenant alone). Cf North

British Housing Association v Sheridan (1999) 32 HLR 346, [1999] All ER (D) 922 (Ground (vi) of the tenancy agreement provided as a ground for the landlord obtaining an order for possession 'The tenant or anyone living in the premises has caused serious or persistent nuisance or annoyance to neighbours ... (Ground 14)'. That wording corresponded closely to the original statutory wording but not to the statute as subsequently amended; held that since the parties intended that the agreement should create an assured tenancy terminable on grounds which were clearly intended to mirror the grounds on which by statute an assured tenancy could be terminated, the fact that those grounds might be altered had to be taken to be in the contemplation of the parties at the time the agreement was made so that neither party was disentitled from relying on the amended provisions).

As to the relationship between this power and the power to apply for, and enforce, an anti-social behaviour order ('ASBO') see Knowsley Housing Trust v McMullen [2006] EWCA Civ 539, (2006) Times, 22 May, [2006] All ER (D) 108 (May) (no reason why the existence of an ASBO against the person responsible for the nuisance should prevent the making of an order for possession, whether outright or suspended, based on the Housing Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt II, Ground 14 (as so substituted and amended), although the existence of an ASBO may be a relevant matter when the court is deciding whether it was reasonable to make an order for possession, and whether to suspend it; the two orders are conceptually quite different and an order for possession will survive the revocation of an ASBO, or the ASBO will survive notwithstanding the execution or the reversal of the order for possession). ### (i) County Court Jurisdiction

1128. Jurisdiction of county courts.

A county court has jurisdiction to hear and determine any question arising under any provision of the Housing Act 1988 relating to assured tenancies<sup>1</sup> other than a question falling within<sup>2</sup> the jurisdiction of a rent assessment committee<sup>3</sup>. Where any proceedings under any such provision are being taken in a county court, the court has jurisdiction to hear and determine any other proceedings joined with those proceedings, notwithstanding that those other proceedings would otherwise be outside the court's jurisdiction<sup>4</sup>.

A county court has jurisdiction under these provisions whatever the amount involved in the proceedings and whatever the value of any fund or asset connected with the proceedings<sup>5</sup>.

1 Ie any provision of the Housing Act 1988 Pt I Chs I-III (ss 1-26) (as amended): see PARA 1011 et seq ante) and Pt I Ch V (ss 34-39 (as amended): see PARA 1012 et seq ante).

The special Housing Act jurisdiction is unaffected by the restrictions on interim relief imposed by the County Court Remedies Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1222 (as amended): see reg 3(1), (4)(a). ### (ii) Procedure on Accelerated Possession Claims

1129. Accelerated possession claim where property is let on an assured shorthold tenancy.

The general procedure for obtaining possession of residential property has already been set out<sup>1</sup>. Where, however, a claim is brought<sup>2</sup> to recover possession of residential property let under an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>3</sup> and the conditions listed in heads (1) to (6) below are satisfied, the claimant may use the procedure for accelerated possession claims<sup>4</sup> by bringing a claim in the county court for the district in which the property is situated<sup>5</sup>. The conditions which must be satisfied are that:

- 2307 (1) the tenancy and any agreement for the tenancy were entered into on or after 15 January 1989;
- 2308 (2) the only purpose of the claim is to recover possession of the property and no other claim is made;
- 2309 (3) the tenancy did not immediately follow an assured tenancy<sup>6</sup> which was not an assured shorthold tenancy;
- 2310 (4) the tenancy fulfilled the relevant statutory conditions<sup>7</sup>;
- 2311 (5) the tenancy:
  - 54
  - 65. (a) was the subject of a written agreement;
  - 66. (b) arises by virtue of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure<sup>8</sup> but follows a tenancy that was the subject of a written agreement; or
  - 67. (c) relates to the same or substantially the same property let to the same tenant and on the same terms (though not necessarily as to rent or duration) as a tenancy which was the subject of a written agreement; and
  - 55
- 2312 (6) a notice stating that possession is required<sup>9</sup> was given to the tenant in writing<sup>10</sup>.

If the tenancy is a demoted assured shorthold tenancy<sup>11</sup>, only the conditions in heads (2) and (6) above need be satisfied<sup>12</sup>.

The claim form must be in the form set out in the relevant practice direction<sup>13</sup> and must contain such information and be accompanied by such documents as are required by that form<sup>14</sup>. All relevant sections of the form must be completed<sup>15</sup>. The court will serve the claim form by first class post or an alternative service which provides for delivery on the next working day<sup>16</sup>.

1130. Procedure for opposing accelerated possession claim or seeking postponement of possession.

Where the 14-day period for filing a defence<sup>7</sup> has expired without the defendant filing a defence, the claimant may file a written request for an order for possession and the court will refer that request to a judge<sup>8</sup>. Where, however, the defence is received after that 14-day period has expired but before such a request is filed, the court will still send a copy of the defence to the claimant and refer the claim and defence to a judge<sup>9</sup>.

Where the 14-day period referred to above has expired without the defendant filing a defence and the claimant has not made a request for an order for possession<sup>10</sup> within three months after the expiry of that period, the claim will be stayed<sup>11</sup>.

1131. Judge's powers after considering claim and defence.

After considering the claim for accelerated possession<sup>1</sup> and any defence<sup>2</sup>, the judge will:

- 2313 (1) make an order for possession<sup>3</sup>; or
- 2314 (2) where he is not satisfied as to any of the following matters:
56
  - 68. (a) that the claim form was served<sup>4</sup>; and
  - 69. (b) that the claimant has established that he is entitled to recover possession<sup>5</sup> against the defendant, 57
- 2315 direct that a date be fixed for a hearing and give any appropriate case management directions<sup>6</sup>; or
- 2316 (3) strike out the claim if the claim form discloses no reasonable grounds for bringing the claim<sup>7</sup>.

The court will give all parties not less than 14 days' notice of a hearing fixed under head (2) above<sup>8</sup>.

Where a claim is struck out under head (3) above the court will serve its reasons for striking out the claim with the order and the claimant may apply to restore the claim within 28 days after the date the order was served on him<sup>9</sup>.

1132. Postponement of possession.

Where the defendant to a claim for accelerated possession<sup>1</sup> seeks postponement of possession on the ground of exceptional hardship<sup>2</sup> the judge may direct a hearing of that issue<sup>3</sup>. If, however, the judge is satisfied as to the specified matters<sup>4</sup> he will make an order for possession<sup>5</sup> whether or not the defendant seeks a postponement of possession on the ground of exceptional hardship<sup>6</sup>.

In a claim in which the judge is satisfied that the defendant has shown exceptional hardship, he will only postpone possession without directing a hearing if:

- 2317 (1) he considers that possession should be given up six weeks after the date of the order or, if the defendant has requested postponement to an earlier date, on that date; and
- 2318 (2) the claimant indicated on his claim form that he would be content for the court to make such an order without a hearing<sup>7</sup>.

In all other cases if the defendant seeks a postponement of possession on the ground of exceptional hardship, the judge will direct a hearing<sup>8</sup>.

Where the judge directs a hearing, the hearing must be held before the date on which possession is to be given up and the judge will direct how many days' notice the parties must be given of that hearing<sup>9</sup>.

Where the judge is satisfied, on a hearing so directed, that exceptional hardship would be caused by requiring possession to be given up by the date in the order of possession, he may vary the date on which possession must be given up<sup>10</sup> so that possession is to be given up at a later date; but that later date may be no later than six weeks after the making of the order for possession on the papers<sup>11</sup>.

2319 (1) gives security of tenure to agricultural workers housed by their employers who are not entitled to the benefit of the Rent Act 1977 because they are mere licensees or because they pay a low rent or no rent<sup>1</sup>;

2321 (3) imposes duties upon housing authorities to rehouse occupiers of dwelling houses which are needed to house agricultural workers in the interests of efficient agriculture<sup>5</sup>; and 2322 (4) provides for the establishment of committees to inquire into the matters relevant to those duties<sup>6</sup>.

The 1976 Act was brought into force generally on 1 January 1977<sup>7</sup>, but in relation to forestry workers it was not brought into force until 1 October 1977<sup>8</sup>. The date of commencement in either case is known as the 'operative date'<sup>9</sup>. The Act broadly follows the scheme of the Rent Acts but contains a number of significantly different provisions<sup>10</sup> and stands as a separate statutory scheme<sup>11</sup>. It contains transitional provisions which require it to be assumed, for the purpose of determining whether a person is a protected occupier, that the Act and the provisions applied by it were in force at all material time before the relevant operative date<sup>12</sup>.

The Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 has diminishing significance, however, as agreements coming into effect on and after 15 January 1989 under the Housing Act 1988 which fulfill the agricultural worker condition<sup>13</sup> will be for assured agricultural occupancies<sup>14</sup> or, if created on or after 28 February 1997<sup>15</sup> and not falling within the statutory exclusions<sup>16</sup>, for assured shorthold tenancies<sup>17</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by order direct that any of the provisions of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 shall, in their application to the Isles of Scilly, have effect subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the order: s 35(1). Any such order must be made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament and may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order so made: s 35(2). These powers are described as exercisable by the Secretary of State and the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food acting jointly; but see the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (Dissolution) Order 2002, SI 2002/794. At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante.

Subject to the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 5(1) (as substituted) (see PARA 1147 post), the 1976 Act applies in relation to premises in which there subsists, or at any material time subsisted, a Crown interest as it applies to premises in which no such interest subsists or ever subsisted: s 36(1). For these purposes, 'Crown interest' means any interest which belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster or to the Duchy of Cornwall or to a government department, or which is held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department: s 36(2). Where an interest belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, or to the Duchy of Cornwall, then, for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster or, as the case may be, the Secretary of the Duchy of Cornwall is deemed to be the owner of the interest: Housing Act 1980 s 73(5), Sch 8 paras 9, 10.

At the date at which this title states the law, no such regulations had been made. A licence or tenancy<sup>1</sup> which is entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>2</sup> cannot be a relevant licence<sup>3</sup> or relevant tenancy<sup>4</sup> unless:

- 2323 (1) it is entered into in pursuance of a contract made before 15 January 1989; or
- 2324 (2) it is granted to a person, alone or jointly with others, who, immediately before the licence or tenancy was granted, was a protected occupier<sup>5</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>6</sup> and is so granted by the person who at that time was the landlord or licensor, or one of the joint landlords or licensors, under the protected occupancy or statutory tenancy in question<sup>7</sup>.

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) In general/1136. Meaning of 'agriculture' and 'forestry'.

1136. Meaning of 'agriculture' and 'forestry'.

'Agriculture' includes:

- 2325 (1) dairy-farming and livestock<sup>1</sup> keeping and breeding, whether those activities involve the use of land or not;
- 2326 (2) the production of any consumable produce<sup>2</sup> which is grown for sale or for consumption or other use for the purposes of a trade or business or of any other undertaking, whether carried on for profit or not;
- 2327 (3) the use of land as grazing, meadow or pasture land or orchard or osier land;
- 2328 (4) the use of land for market gardens or nursery grounds; and
- 2329 (5) forestry<sup>3</sup>.

'Forestry' includes:

- 2330 (a) the use of land for nursery grounds for trees; and 2331 (b) the use of land for woodlands where that use is ancillary to the use of land for other agricultural purposes<sup>4</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'livestock' includes any animal which is kept for the production of food, wool, skin or fur, or for the purpose of its use in the carrying on of any agricultural activity, and 'animal' includes bird but does not include fish: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 1(2). It has been held that pheasants reared primarily for sport are not livestock and, therefore, the gamekeeper employed to rear them was not entitled to security of tenure: Reeve v Atterby [1978] CLY 73; Lord Glendyne v Rapley [1978] 2 All ER 110, [1978] 1 WLR 601, CA, approved in Earl of Normanton v Giles [1980] 1 All ER 106, [1980] 1 WLR 28, HL. A person employed to repair and maintain farm machinery is, however, employed in agriculture: see McPhail v Greensmith [1993] 2 EGLR 228, CA.

2 For these purposes, 'consumable produce' means produce grown for consumption or other use after severance or separation from the land or other growing medium on or in which it is grown: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 1(2).

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) In general/1137. Tenant sharing accommodation with persons other than landlord.

1137. Tenant sharing accommodation with persons other than landlord.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> has the exclusive occupation of any accommodation ('the separate accommodation'), and:

2332 (1) the terms as between the tenant and his landlord<sup>2</sup> on which he holds the separate accommodation include the use of other accommodation ('the shared accommodation') in common with another person or other persons, not being or including the landlord; and the separate accommodation is deemed<sup>5</sup> to be a dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy, as the case may be<sup>6</sup>.

While the tenant is in possession of the separate accommodation:

2334 (a) whether as a protected occupier<sup>7</sup> or statutory tenant, any term or condition of the contract of tenancy terminating or modifying, or providing for the termination or modification of, his right to the use of any of the shared accommodation which is living accommodation<sup>8</sup> is of no effect<sup>9</sup>;

2335 (b) no order may be made<sup>10</sup> for possession of any of the shared accommodation, whether on the application of the immediate landlord of the tenant or on the application of any person under whom that landlord derives title, unless a like order has been made, or is made at the same time, in respect of the separate accommodation<sup>11</sup>.

On the application of the landlord, the county court may make such order, either terminating the right of the tenant to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation other than living accommodation, or modifying his right to use the whole or any part of the shared accommodation, whether by varying the persons or increasing the number of persons entitled to the use of that accommodation, or otherwise, as the court thinks just; but no order may be so made so as to effect any termination or modification of the rights of the tenant which could not be effected<sup>12</sup> by or under the terms of the contract of tenancy<sup>13</sup>.

1 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'tenant' includes a statutory tenant and also includes a subtenant and any person deriving title under the original tenant or subtenant: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 ss 1(3), 34(1), Sch 1. References to tenancies include, unless the context otherwise requires, references to licences and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly (s 34(2)); and 'tenancy' includes a subtenancy (s 34(1), Sch 1). For the meaning of 'statutory tenant' see PARAS 1146-1149 post.

2 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'landlord' includes any person from time to time deriving title under the original landlord and also includes, in relation to any dwelling house, any person other than the tenant who is, or but for ibid Pt II (ss 6-19) (as amended) (see PARAS 1150, 1158 et seq post) would be, entitled to possession of the dwelling house: s 34(1), Sch 1. A 'dwelling house' may be a house or part of a house: s 34(3), Sch 1.

3 For the meaning of 'dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy' see PARA 1145 post; and for the meaning of 'protected occupancy' see PARAS 1144-1145 post.

4 For the meaning of 'dwelling house subject to a statutory tenancy' see PARA 1146 post; and for the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARAS 1146-1149 post.

5 Ie subject to the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 23(2). Section 23(1) does not apply in relation to accommodation which would otherwise be deemed to be a dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy if (1) the accommodation consists of only one room; and (2) at the time when the tenancy was granted not less than three other rooms in the same building were let, or were available for letting, as residential accommodation to separate tenants on such terms as are mentioned in s 23(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text): s 23(2). For the avoidance of doubt, where, for the purpose of determining the rateable value of the separate accommodation, it is necessary to make an apportionment under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976, regard is to be had to the circumstances mentioned in s 23(1)(a): s 23(3). As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

6 Ibid s 23(1). Section 23(3)-(8) (see the text and notes 7-13 infra) accordingly has effect: s 23(1).

7 For the meaning of 'protected occupier' see PARAS 1144-1145 post.

8 For these purposes, 'living accommodation' means accommodation of such a nature that the fact that it constitutes or is included in the shared accommodation is, or, if the tenancy has ended, was, otherwise sufficient to prevent the tenancy from constituting a protected occupancy of a dwelling house: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 23(8).

9 Ibid s 23(4). Where, however, the terms and conditions of the contract of tenancy are such that at any time during the tenancy the persons in common with whom the tenant is entitled to the use of the shared accommodation could be varied, or their number could be increased, nothing in s 23(4) prevents those terms and conditions from having effect so far as they relate to any such variation or increase: s 23(5).

10 Ie subject to ibid s 23(7) (see the text and notes 12-13 infra) and without prejudice to the enforcement of any order made thereunder.

11 Ibid s 23(6). The provisions of s 6 (see PARA 1166 post) apply accordingly: s 23(6).

12 Ie apart from ibid s 23(4): see the text and notes 7-9 supra.

1138. Certain sublettings not to exclude any part of sublessor's premises from protection.

Where the tenant<sup>1</sup> of any premises, consisting of a house or part of a house, has sublet a part, but not the whole, of the premises, then, as against his landlord<sup>2</sup> or any superior landlord, no part of the premises is treated as not being a dwelling house<sup>3</sup> subject to a protected occupancy<sup>4</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup> by reason only that:

- 2336 (1) the terms on which any person claiming under the tenant holds any part of the premises include the use of accommodation in common with other persons; or 2337 (2) part of the premises is let to any such person at a rent which includes payments in respect of board and attendance<sup>6</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions affects the rights against, and liabilities to, each other of the tenant and any person claiming under him, or of any two such persons<sup>7</sup>.

- 2338 (1) on any agent of the landlord named as such in the rent book or other similar document; or 2339 (2) on the person who receives the rent of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup>.

If for the purpose of any proceedings<sup>5</sup>, whether civil or criminal, any person serves upon any such agent or other person as is referred to in head (1) or head (2) above a notice in writing requiring the agent or other person to disclose to him the full name and place of abode or place of business of the landlord, that agent or other person must forthwith comply with the notice<sup>6</sup>. AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(i) In general/1140. Jurisdiction and procedure.

1140. Jurisdiction and procedure.

A county court has jurisdiction to determine:

- 2340 (1) whether any person is or is not a protected occupier<sup>1</sup> or a statutory tenant<sup>2</sup>;
or
- 2341 (2) any question concerning the subject matter, terms or conditions of a statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup>, or any matter which is or may become material for determining a question under head (1) or head (2) above<sup>4</sup>.

The jurisdiction so conferred is exercisable either in the course of any proceedings relating to the dwelling house<sup>5</sup>, or on an application made for the purpose by the landlord<sup>6</sup> or tenant<sup>7</sup>.

A county court has jurisdiction to deal with any claim or other proceedings<sup>8</sup> notwithstanding that the case would not otherwise be within the jurisdiction of a county court<sup>9</sup>.

(ii) Protected Occupancies

1141. Meaning of 'relevant licence' and 'relevant tenancy'; qualifying ownership.

Unless the context otherwise requires, 'licence' means<sup>1</sup> any contract whereby, whether or not the contract contains other terms, one person grants to another, whether or not for any consideration, the right to occupy a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> as a residence; and references to the granting of a licence are to be construed accordingly<sup>3</sup>.

'Relevant licence' means<sup>4</sup> any licence under which a person has the exclusive occupation of a dwelling house as a separate dwelling<sup>5</sup> and which:

2342 (1) if it were a tenancy<sup>6</sup>; and 2343 (2) if the provisions of Part I of the Rent Act 1977 relating to exceptions<sup>7</sup> to the definition of 'protected tenancy' were modified<sup>8</sup>, would be a protected tenancy for the purposes of that Act<sup>9</sup>.

'Relevant tenancy' means<sup>10</sup> any tenancy under which a dwelling house is let as a separate dwelling and which:

2344 (a) is not a protected tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977; but

2345 (b) would be such a tenancy if the modifications referred to in head (2) above were made<sup>11</sup>, other than a long residential tenancy<sup>12</sup>, a business tenancy<sup>13</sup>, a tenancy of an agricultural holding<sup>14</sup> and a farm business tenancy<sup>15</sup>.

A dwelling house in relation to which a person ('the occupier') has a licence or tenancy is in qualifying ownership<sup>16</sup> at any time if, at that time, the occupier is employed in agriculture<sup>17</sup> and the occupier's employer<sup>18</sup> either:

- 2346 (i) is the owner<sup>19</sup> of the dwelling house; or
- 2347 (ii) has made arrangements with the owner of the dwelling house for it to be used as housing accommodation for persons employed by him in agriculture<sup>20</sup>.

(2) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that meals provided in the course of a person's employment in agriculture do not constitute board for the purposes of this section; and a term that the landlord provides the tenant with attendance shall not be taken to be a bona fide term for those purposes unless, having regard to its value to the tenant, the attendance is substantial'.

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(ii) Protected Occupancies/1142. Meaning of 'qualifying worker'.

1142. Meaning of 'qualifying worker'.

A person is a qualifying worker<sup>1</sup> at any time if, at that time, he has worked whole-time in agriculture<sup>2</sup>, or has worked in agriculture as a permit worker<sup>3</sup>, for not less than 91 out of the last 104 weeks<sup>4</sup>.

A person works whole-time in agriculture for any week in which:

2348 (1) he is employed to work in agriculture; and 2349 (2) the number of hours for which he works in agriculture, or in activities incidental to agriculture, for the person or persons by whom he is so employed is not less than the standard number of hours<sup>5</sup>.

If in any week a person who is employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker<sup>6</sup> is, for the whole or part of the week:

2350 (a) absent from work in agriculture by reason of his taking a holiday to which he is entitled; or

2351 (b) absent from work in agriculture with the consent of his employer or, where he has two or more employers, with the consent of the employer or employers concerned; or

2352 (c) incapable of whole-time work in agriculture in consequence of an injury or disease, whether a qualifying injury or disease or not<sup>7</sup>, that week counts as a week of whole-time work in agriculture<sup>8</sup>.

If in any week a person, whether employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker or not, is, for the whole or part of the week, incapable of whole-time work in agriculture in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease, that week counts as a week of whole-time work in agriculture<sup>9</sup>.

If in any week a person who was employed in agriculture as a permit worker<sup>10</sup> was, for the whole or part of the week:

- 2353 (i) absent from work in agriculture by reason of his taking a holiday to which he was entitled; or
- 2354 (ii) absent from work in agriculture with the consent of his employer or, where he had two or more employers, with the consent of the employer or employers concerned; or
- 2355 (iii) incapable of work in agriculture as a permit worker in consequence of an injury or disease, whether a qualifying injury or disease or not<sup>11</sup>, that week counts as a week of work in agriculture as a permit worker<sup>12</sup>.

If in any week a person, whether employed in agriculture as a permit worker or not, was, for the whole or part of the week, incapable of work in agriculture as a permit worker in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease, that week counts as a week of work in agriculture as a permit worker<sup>13</sup>.

1 le for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976: see PARA 1134 et seq ante, PARA 1143 et seq post.

2 For these purposes, any reference to work in agriculture or in forestry, or to employment in agriculture or forestry, is a reference to such work or such employment in the United Kingdom, including the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, or in the territory of any other State which is a member of the European Community: ibid s 1(5)(c), Sch 3 para 13. 'Employment' means employment under one or more contracts of employment and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly (Sch 3 para 11(1)); and 'contract of employment' means a contract of employment or apprenticeship, whether express or implied and, if express, whether oral or in writing (Sch 3 para 11(2)). For the meaning of 'agriculture' and 'forestry' see PARA 1136 ante; and for the meaning of 'United Kingdom' generally see PARA 25 note 18 ante.

3 For these purposes, a person worked in agriculture as a permit worker for any week in which he worked in agriculture as an employee for the whole or part of the week and there was in force in relation to him a permit granted under the Agricultural Wages Act 1948 s 5 (repealed) (which provided for the grant of permits exempting an agricultural employer from the requirement to pay an incapacitated worker the full statutory minimum wage set by Agricultural Wages Orders): see the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 1(5)(a), Sch 3 para 5(1), (2). Every permit so granted or having effect as if so granted and in force immediately before 1 October 2004 ceased to have effect on that date: see the Agricultural Wages (Abolition of Permits to Incapacitated Persons) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2178, reg 2(2).

5 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(1), (2). Where a person is employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker, any week in which by agreement with his employer or, where he has two or more employers, by agreement with the employer or employers concerned he works less than the standard number of hours counts as a week of whole-time work in agriculture: Sch 3 para 4(1), (3). For these purposes, 'the standard number of hours' means 35 hours or such other number of hours as may be specified in an order made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister: Sch 3 para 12(1). Such an order must be made by statutory instrument which is, if made by the Secretary of State, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see Sch 3 para 12(2). An order so made may contain transitional and other supplemental and incidental provisions, and may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order so made: Sch 3 para 12(3). The Secretary of State's power is described as exercisable by him and by the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food acting jointly; but see the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (Dissolution) Order 2002, SI 2002/794. At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

6 For these purposes, a person is employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker if he is employed to work in agriculture by the week, or by any period longer than a week, and the number of hours for which he is employed to work in agriculture, or in activities incidental to agriculture, in any week is not less than the standard number of hours: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 para 6.

7 For these purposes, a person is incapable of whole-time work in agriculture in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease if (1) he is incapable of such work in consequence of (a) an injury or disease prescribed in relation to him, by reason of his employment in agriculture, under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 108(2) (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 151); or (b) an injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment in agriculture; and (2) at the time when he become so incapable, he was employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 1, Sch 3 para 2(1); Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(4).

Where a person has died in consequence of any such injury or disease as is mentioned in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 para 2(1) and, immediately before his death, he was employed in agriculture as a whole-time worker, or as a permit worker, he is regarded as having been, immediately before his death, incapable of whole-time work in agriculture, or work in agriculture as a permit worker, in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease: Sch 3 para 2(3). For the meaning of 'employed in agriculture as a permit worker' see note 10 infra.

8 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(1), (4).

9 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(1), (5).

10 For these purposes, a person was employed in agriculture as a permit worker if he was employed in agriculture and there was in force in relation to him a permit granted under the Agricultural Wages Act 1948 s 5 (repealed): Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 para 7; and see note 3 supra.

11 For these purposes, a person was incapable of whole-time work in agriculture as a permit worker in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease if (1) he was incapable of such work in consequence of any such injury or disease as is mentioned in ibid Sch 3 para 2(1) (see note 7 head (1) supra); and (2) at the time when he became so incapable, he was employed in agriculture as a permit worker: see Sch 1, Sch 3 para 2(2). See also notes 3, 7 supra.

1143. Forestry workers.

The question of what is whole-time work in forestry<sup>1</sup>, or what was work in forestry as a permit worker<sup>2</sup>, is to be determined in the same way as what is whole-time work in agriculture<sup>3</sup>, or what was work in agriculture as a permit worker, is determined<sup>4</sup>; and for that purpose all work which is not in forestry must be disregarded<sup>5</sup>.

A person is employed in forestry as a whole-time worker if he is employed to work in forestry by the week, or by any period longer than a week, and the number of hours for which he is employed to work in forestry, or in activities incidental to forestry, in any week is not less than the standard number of hours<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'forestry' see PARA 1136 ante.

2 For these purposes, a person was employed in forestry as a permit worker if he was employed in forestry and there was in force in relation to him a permit granted under the Agricultural Wages Act 1948 s 5 (repealed): Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 1(5)(b), Sch 3 para 10(3). Every permit so granted or having effect as if so granted and in force immediately before 1 October 2004 ceased to have effect on that date: see PARA 1142 note 3 ante. For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 1142 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 1136 ante.

4 See PARA 1142 ante. Whole-time work in forestry, and work in forestry as a permit worker, must be left out of account in determining whether, at a date before the date of operation for forestry workers, a person was a qualifying worker: see the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 para 9(1). Employment in forestry as a whole-time worker, or as a permit worker, must be left out of account in determining whether, at a date before the date of operation for forestry workers, a person was incapable of whole-time work in agriculture or work in agriculture as a permit worker, in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease: see Sch 3 para 9(2). The date of operation for forestry workers was 1 October 1977: see s 1(3), (7), Sch 1, Sch 3 para 8; and PARA 1134 ante. For the meaning of 'incapable of whole-time work in agriculture or work in agriculture as a permit worker in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease' see PARA 1142 notes 7, 11 ante.

Where a person has, in relation to a dwelling house<sup>1</sup>, a relevant licence<sup>2</sup> or tenancy<sup>3</sup> and the dwelling house is in qualifying ownership<sup>4</sup>, or has been in qualifying ownership at any time during the subsistence of the licence or tenancy, whether it was at the time a relevant licence or tenancy or not, he is a protected occupier of the dwelling house:

70. (a) he is a qualifying worker<sup>5</sup>; or

71. (b) he has been a qualifying worker at any time during the subsistence of the licence or tenancy, whether it was at the time a relevant licence or tenancy or not<sup>6</sup>;

59

2357 (2) if and so long as he is incapable of whole-time work in agriculture, or was incapable of work in agriculture as a permit worker, in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease<sup>7</sup>.

A person who has in relation to a dwelling house a relevant licence or tenancy is a protected occupier of the dwelling house if:

2358 (i) immediately before the licence or tenancy was granted, he was a protected occupier<sup>8</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>9</sup> of the dwelling house in his own right; or 2359 (ii) the licence or tenancy was granted in consideration of his giving up possession of another dwelling house of which he was such an occupier or such a tenant<sup>10</sup>.

1145. Protected occupiers by succession.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> have effect for determining what person, if any, is a protected occupier of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> after the death of a person ('the original occupier') who, immediately before his death, was a protected occupier of the dwelling house in his own right<sup>3</sup>.

Where the original occupier was a person who died leaving a surviving partner<sup>4</sup> who was residing<sup>5</sup> in the dwelling house immediately before the original occupier's death then, after the original occupier's death, if the surviving partner has, in relation to the dwelling house, a relevant licence<sup>6</sup> or tenancy<sup>7</sup>, the surviving partner is a protected occupier of the dwelling house<sup>8</sup>.

Where:

2361 (2) one or more persons who were members of the original occupier's family<sup>9</sup> were residing with the original occupier at the time of and for the period of six months immediately before the original occupier's death,

A person who has, in relation to a dwelling house, a relevant licence or tenancy is a protected occupier of the dwelling house if:

2362 (a) immediately before the licence or tenancy was granted, he was a protected occupier<sup>11</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>12</sup> of the dwelling house by succession; or 2363 (b) the licence or tenancy was granted in consideration of his giving up possession of another dwelling house of which he was such an occupier or such a tenant<sup>13</sup>.

For the purpose of determining what person, if any, is the statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> at any time after the death on or before 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> of a person ('the original occupier') who was, immediately before his death, a protected occupier<sup>4</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>5</sup> of the dwelling house in his own right<sup>6</sup>, if the original occupier was a man who died leaving a widow<sup>7</sup> who was residing<sup>8</sup> in the dwelling house immediately before his death, then, after his death, unless the widow is a protected occupier of the dwelling house<sup>9</sup>, she is the statutory tenant if and so long as she occupies the dwelling house as her residence. This provision is framed by reference to the case where the original occupier was a man, but is to be read as applying equally in the converse case where the original occupier was a woman<sup>10</sup>.

Where:

then, after his death, unless that person or, as the case may be, one of those persons is a protected occupier of the dwelling house<sup>12</sup>, that person or, as the case may be, such one of those persons as may be decided by agreement, or in default of agreement by the county court, is the statutory tenant if and so long as he occupies the dwelling house as his residence<sup>13</sup>.

1149. Succession to statutory tenancy where relevant death occurs after 15 January 1989.

For the purpose of determining what person, if any, is the statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> at any time after the death after 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> of a person ('the original occupier') who was, immediately before his death, a protected occupier<sup>4</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>5</sup> of the dwelling house in his own right<sup>6</sup>, if the original occupier was a person who died leaving a surviving partner<sup>7</sup> who was residing<sup>8</sup> in the dwelling house immediately before the original occupier's death then, after the original occupier's death, unless the surviving partner is a protected occupier of the dwelling house<sup>9</sup>, the surviving partner is the statutory tenant if and so long as he occupies the dwelling house as his residence<sup>10</sup>.

Where:

- 2379 (1) the original occupier was not a person who died leaving a surviving partner who was residing in the dwelling house immediately before the original occupier's death; but
- 2380 (2) one or more persons who were members of the original occupier's family<sup>11</sup> were residing with the original occupier in the dwelling house at the time of and for the period of two years immediately before his death, then, after the original occupier's death, unless that person or, as the case may be, one of those persons is a protected occupier of the dwelling house<sup>12</sup>, that person or, as the case may be, such one of those persons as may be decided by agreement, or in default of agreement by the county court, is entitled to an assured tenancy of the dwelling house by succession<sup>13</sup>.

7 For these purposes 'surviving partner' means surviving spouse or surviving civil partner: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 4(5ZA) (s 4(5ZA), (5A) substituted by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8 para 10(1), (4)). For the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 4(3) (as substituted: see note 10 infra): (1) a person who was living with the original occupier as his or her husband or wife is to be treated as the spouse of the original occupier; and (2) a person who was living with the original occupier as if they were civil partners is to be treated as the civil partner of the original occupier; and, subject to s 4(5B) (as added) 'surviving spouse' and 'surviving civil partner' in s 4(5ZA) (as so substituted) are to be construed accordingly: s 4(5A) (as so substituted). If, immediately after the death of the original occupier, there is, by virtue of s 4(5A) (as so substituted), more than one person who fulfils the conditions in s 4(3) (as substituted), such one of them as may be decided by agreement or in default of agreement by the county court, is the statutory tenant by virtue of s 4(3) (as substituted): s 4(5B) (s 4(5B), (5C) added by the Housing Act 1988 s 39, Sch 4 para 12). If the original occupier died within the period of 18 months beginning on 15 January 1989, then, for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 4(3) (now as substituted), a person who was residing in the dwelling house with the original occupier at the time of his death and for the period which began six months before 15 January 1989 and ended at the time of his death is to be taken to have been residing with the original occupier for the period of two years immediately before his death: s 4(5C) (as so added). In any case where, by virtue of any provision of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 4 (as amended), a person ('the successor') becomes entitled to an assured tenancy of a dwelling house by succession, that tenancy is a periodic tenancy: Housing Act 1988 s 39(5)(b). If, immediately before his death, the predecessor was a protected occupier or statutory tenant within the meaning of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976, the assured periodic tenancy to which the successor becomes entitled is an assured agricultural occupancy, whether or not it fulfils the conditions in the Housing Act 1988 s 24(1) (see PARA 1183 post): s 39(8). ## B. TERMS OF THE STATUTORY TENANCY

1150. In general.

So long as he retains possession, the statutory tenant<sup>1</sup> must observe, and is entitled to the benefit of, all the terms<sup>2</sup> of the original contract<sup>3</sup>, whether or not the terms are express or implied or statutory<sup>4</sup>. No account is, however, to be taken of any term of the original contract under which the right of occupation depended, or which itself depended, on the occupier being employed in agriculture<sup>5</sup> or in some other way<sup>6</sup>.

If the original contract was a licence, the statutory tenancy is a weekly tenancy<sup>7</sup> and the terms of the statutory tenancy include any term which would be implied if the contract had been a contract of tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

It is a term of the statutory tenancy that the landlord provides the tenant with any services or facilities:

2381 (1) which the landlord was providing for the occupier before the beginning of the statutory tenancy, though not under the original contract, or which he had provided for the occupier, but was not providing when the original contract terminated; and

2382 (2) which are reasonably necessary for any person occupying the dwelling house<sup>9</sup> as a statutory tenant, but which such a tenant cannot reasonably be expected to provide for himself<sup>10</sup>.

The landlord's statutory obligation to repair<sup>11</sup> applies to the dwelling house so long as it is subject to the statutory tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'statutory tenant' see PARAS 1146-1149 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'term', in relation to the statutory tenancy, or in relation to the original contract, includes a condition of the tenancy or contract: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 10(1), (2), Sch 5 para 1(3). For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1137 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'original contract' see note 3 infra.

3 For these purposes, 'original contract', in relation to a statutory tenancy, means the licence or tenancy on the termination of which the statutory tenancy arose: ibid Sch 5 para 1(1). For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 1141 ante.

4 Ibid Sch 5 para 2(1), (2). Schedule 5 para 2(1) applies subject to the provisions of Sch 5 (as amended) (see the text and notes 5-12 infra; and PARA 1151 et seq post) and of Pt II (ss 6-19) (as amended) (see PARA 1158 et seq post): Sch 5 para 2(3).

Schedule 5 para 2 does not, however, impose any liability on the tenant to make payments to the landlord in respect of rates borne by the landlord or a superior landlord (Sch 5 para 11(1)); nor does Sch 5 impose any liability to pay rent (see s 10(2); and PARA 1159 post). For these purposes, 'rates' includes water rates and charges and an occupier's drainage rate: ss 1(3), 34(1), Sch 1. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante. For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 1136 ante.

6 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 1(2).

7 Ibid Sch 5 para 3.

8 Ibid Sch 5 para 4(1). This applies in particular to the landlord's covenant for quiet enjoyment (see PARA 508 et seq ante) and the tenant's obligation to use the premises in a tenantlike manner (see PARA 427 et seq ante), which are implied in any tenancy: Sch 5 para 4(2).

9 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

10 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 5(1). Schedule 5 para 5 may apply eg where the only convenient electricity or water supplies, or the only convenient sewage disposal facilities, are those provided by the landlord from his own installations: Sch 5 para 5(2). Schedule 5 para 5 does not, however, apply to facilities for access to the dwelling house: Sch 5 para 9(4). As to access see PARA 1152 post.

11 Ie the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 11 (as amended): see PARA 416 et seq ante.

12 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 6(1) (Sch 5 para 6 amended by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 33(1), (5)). The Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 6(1) (as so amended) is without prejudice to the operation of Sch 5 para 2 (see the text and notes 1-4 supra) where the original contract was a tenancy to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 11 (as amended) applied: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 6(2) (as so amended).

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(iii) Statutory Tenancies/B. TERMS OF THE STATUTORY TENANCY/1151. Tenant's obligations.

1151. Tenant's obligations.

It is a condition of the statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> that the tenant<sup>2</sup> will not:

2383 (1) use the dwelling house<sup>3</sup>, or any part of it, for purposes other than those of a private dwelling house<sup>4</sup>;

2384 (2) assign, sublet, or part with possession of, the dwelling house, or any part of it<sup>5</sup>.

3 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

4 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 10(1), (2), Sch 5 para 7(1). Significant business use of premises which are also used as a residence will not of itself bring the statutory tenancy to an end, although such use is in breach of the terms of the statutory tenancy: Durman v Bell (1988) 20 HLR 340, [1988] 2 EGLR 117, CA.

5 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 5 para 7(2). Schedule 5 para 7(2) does not affect anything lawfully done before the beginning of the statutory tenancy: Sch 5 para 7(3).

1152. Access.

It is a condition of the statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> that the tenant<sup>2</sup> will afford to the landlord<sup>3</sup> access to the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> and all reasonable facilities for executing therein any repairs which the landlord is entitled to execute<sup>5</sup>.

The landlord must afford any such right of access to the dwelling house as is reasonable in the circumstances<sup>6</sup>; but any right of access<sup>7</sup> is confined<sup>8</sup> to such right of access to the dwelling house as is reasonable in the circumstances, and without regard to any right of access afforded wholly or mainly because the occupier of the dwelling house, or his predecessor, was employed on the land<sup>9</sup>.

If it is reasonably necessary in order to prevent the spread of disease which might otherwise affect livestock or crops, whether on the landlord's land or elsewhere, the landlord may temporarily restrict access to the dwelling house so made available so long as suitable alternative access is available or is made available<sup>10</sup>.

If it is reasonably necessary in the interests of efficient agriculture<sup>11</sup>, the landlord may permanently or temporarily deprive the dwelling house of access so made available so long as suitable alternative access is available or is made available<sup>12</sup>.

1154. Rates, water rates etc.

The following provisions apply as respects any rental period of the statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup>, including one as respects which an agreement<sup>2</sup> either fixes the rent or provides that no rent is payable<sup>3</sup>.

If the dwelling house forms part only of a hereditament in respect of which any rates are charged, the proportion for which the statutory tenant is so liable is such as may be agreed by him with the landlord, or as may be determined by the county court; and the decision of the county court is final<sup>12</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'rental period' means, in relation to a statutory tenancy under which no rent is payable, any period of the statutory tenancy which would be a rental period if a rent were payable under that tenancy; and in the Rent Act 1977 Sch 5 (see PARA 896 ante), as applied by the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 10(1), (2), Sch 5 para 11(3) (see the text and notes 4-8 infra), any reference to a rental period, or to a rating period during which the rent for a rental period is payable, is to be construed accordingly: Sch 5 para 11(6) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 83). The landlord<sup>1</sup> and the statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> may<sup>3</sup> by agreement in writing vary any of the provisions of the statutory tenancy<sup>4</sup>; and an agreement may be so made at any time, including a time before the beginning of the statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

An agreement which results in:

- 2387 (1) a substantial addition to the land or premises which the statutory tenant is entitled to occupy; or
- 2388 (2) the breach of any obligation implied by law<sup>6</sup>; or
- 2389 (3) the circumstances in which the statutory tenant can give notice to quit; or
- 2390 (4) the inclusion of any term which relates to the employment by the landlord of the tenant, or of any other term unrelated to the occupation of the dwelling house<sup>7</sup>, is not, however, authorised<sup>8</sup>.

The following bind any successor of the landlord or the tenant under a statutory tenancy to the same extent as they bind the landlord or, as the case may be, the tenant:

- 2391 (a) an agreement in writing to vary the provisions of the statutory tenancy<sup>9</sup>;
- 2392 (b) an agreement relating to rent between the landlord and the tenant<sup>10</sup>;

(iv) Rent

A. IN GENERAL

1156. Avoidance of requirements for advance payment of rent.

Any requirement that rent under a protected occupancy<sup>1</sup>, or under a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup>, shall be payable:

- 2396 (1) before the beginning of the rental period<sup>3</sup> in respect of which it is payable;
or 2397 (2) earlier than six months before the end of the rental period in respect of which it is payable, if that period is more than six months, is void<sup>4</sup>.

Rent for any rental period to which a prohibited requirement<sup>5</sup> relates is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>6</sup>.

A person who purports to impose a prohibited requirement is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; and the court by which he is convicted may order the amount of rent paid in compliance with the prohibited requirement to be repaid to the person by whom it was paid<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'protected occupier' see PARAS 1144-1145 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARAS 1146-1149 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'rental period' means a period in respect of which a payment of rent falls to be made: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 20(4).

4 Ibid s 20(1).

5 For these purposes, 'prohibited requirement' means any requirement avoided by ibid s 20 (as amended): s 20(1).

7 Ibid s 20(3) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 38, 46). For the avoidance of doubt the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 20 (as amended) does not render any amount recoverable more than once: s 20(5). As to the standard scale see PARA 52 note 6 ante. As to offences by bodies corporate and the prosecution of offences see PARA 1139 note 7 ante.

1157. Recovery from landlord of sums paid in excess of recoverable rent.

Where a tenant<sup>1</sup> has paid on account of rent any amount which is irrecoverable<sup>2</sup> by the landlord<sup>3</sup>, the tenant who paid it is entitled<sup>4</sup> to recover that amount from the landlord who received it or his personal representatives<sup>5</sup>. Any amount which a tenant is entitled so to recover may, without prejudice to any other method of recovery, be deducted<sup>6</sup> by the tenant from any rent payable by him to the landlord<sup>7</sup>; but no amount which a tenant is entitled so to recover is recoverable at any time after the expiry of two years from the date of payment<sup>8</sup>.

Any person who, in any rent book or similar document, makes an entry showing or purporting to show any tenant as being in arrears in respect of any sum on account of rent which is irrecoverable<sup>9</sup> is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale, unless he proves that, at the time of the making of the entry, the landlord had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>10</sup>. If, where any such entry has been made by or on behalf of any landlord, the landlord, on being requested by or on behalf of the tenant to do so, refuses or neglects to cause the entry to be deleted within seven days, the landlord is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale, unless he proves that, at the time of the neglect or refusal to cause the entry to be deleted, he had a bona fide claim that the sum was recoverable<sup>11</sup>.

1159. In general.

No rent is payable under a statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> until rent becomes payable by virtue of an agreement fixing the rent<sup>2</sup> or by virtue of a notice<sup>3</sup> of increase<sup>4</sup>.

Rent under a statutory tenancy which is a weekly tenancy<sup>5</sup> is payable weekly in arrear, except that, if a rent or equivalent payment was payable under the protected occupancy<sup>6</sup>, and was so payable otherwise than in arrear, rent under the statutory tenancy is payable in that other way<sup>7</sup>; but this provision has effect subject to any agreement between the landlord and the tenant<sup>8</sup>.

The day on which rent is so payable weekly in arrear is:

- 2398 (1) where rent or any equivalent payment was payable weekly in arrear under the protected occupancy, the day on which it was so payable;
- 2399 (2) where head (1) above does not apply, and at the end of the protected occupancy the protected occupier was being paid weekly wages, the day on which the wages were paid;
- 2400 (3) in any other case such day as the landlord and tenant may agree, or in default of agreement, Friday in each week<sup>9</sup>.

The covenants implied in the statutory tenancy include a covenant to pay<sup>10</sup> rent<sup>11</sup>.

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(iv) Rent/B. STATUTORY TENANCIES/1160. Agreed rents.

1160. Agreed rents.

The landlord<sup>1</sup> and the statutory tenant<sup>2</sup> may by agreement fix the rent payable under a statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup> or may agree that no rent is to be payable under the statutory tenancy<sup>4</sup>. An agreement may be so made at any time, including a time before the beginning of the statutory tenancy, or a time when a rent is registered<sup>5</sup> for the dwelling house<sup>6</sup>.

The rent so fixed may not exceed:

- 2401 (1) where a rent is registered for the dwelling house at the time when the agreement is made, the weekly or other periodical equivalent<sup>7</sup> of the amount of the rent so registered;
- 2402 (2) where a rent is not so registered, the amount of the rent based on rateable value<sup>8</sup>.

Where a rent is registered for the dwelling house at any time after the agreement is made, as from the date from which the registration takes effect the rent payable under the agreement may not exceed the weekly or other periodical equivalent of the amount of the rent so registered<sup>9</sup>.

Unless the contrary intention appears from the agreement, it is terminable by the landlord or the tenant by notice in writing served on the other<sup>10</sup>; and the notice must specify the date from which the agreement is terminated, which must not be earlier than four weeks after service of the notice<sup>11</sup>.

An agreement so made may from time to time be varied<sup>12</sup> by a further agreement so made, whether or not there has been a change in the persons who are landlord and tenant<sup>13</sup>.

If and so long as, in the period following the termination of such an agreement, no notice of increase<sup>14</sup> takes effect, and no subsequent agreement is in force, the rent payable under the statutory tenancy is the same as the rent payable, or last payable, under the agreement; and it is payable for equivalent rental periods<sup>15</sup>, and in other respects in the same way as the rent was payable, or last payable, under the agreement<sup>16</sup>. Where a rent is registered for the dwelling house at any time after the termination of the agreement, as from the date from which the registration takes effect the rent so payable<sup>17</sup> may not exceed the weekly or other periodical equivalent of the amount of the rent so registered; and, if the rent so payable exceeds the limit so imposed, the amount of the excess is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>18</sup>.

As to registration of rent see PARAS 1162-1163 post.

6 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 11(2). For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

7 For these purposes, in ascertaining the weekly or other periodical equivalent of a registered rent, or of the annual amount mentioned in ibid s 12(9) (as amended) (see PARA 1161 post), a period of one month is treated as equivalent to one-twelfth of a year, and a period of a week as equivalent to one fifty-second of a year: s 17.

8 Ibid s 11(3). For these purposes, 'rent based on rateable value' means rent based on rateable value as defined in s 12 (as amended) (see PARA 1161 note 4 post): s 11(3)(b). If the rent payable under the agreement exceeds the limit imposed by s 11(3) or s 11(4) (see the text and note 9 infra), the amount of the excess is irrecoverable from the tenant: s 11(5). 16 Ibid s 11(9). Section 11(9) binds any successor of the landlord or tenant under a statutory tenancy to the same extent as it binds the landlord or, as the case may be, the tenant: see Sch 5 para 12(5)(c); and PARA 1155 ante at head (c) in the text.

If the agreement mentioned in s 11(9) provided that no rent was payable under the statutory tenancy, no rent is payable in the period for which s 11(9) applies: s 11(11).

1161. Provisional rents.

The following provisions apply where a rent is not registered<sup>1</sup> for a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> which is subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup>.

If the rent payable for any period of the statutory tenancy would be less than the rent based on rateable value<sup>4</sup>, it may be increased up to the amount of that rent by a notice of increase<sup>5</sup> served by the landlord<sup>6</sup> on the tenant<sup>7</sup>. The notice must specify the amount of the rent based on rateable value, and must set out the landlord's calculation of the amount<sup>8</sup>; and it should also specify the date from which the notice is to take effect, which must not be earlier than four weeks before the service of the notice, and not at a time when an agreement fixing the rent<sup>9</sup> is in force<sup>10</sup>. If the notice takes effect from the termination of an agreement fixing the rent, it must state that fact, and must specify the rent payable, or last payable, under that agreement<sup>11</sup>. If a notice is served under the above provisions at a time when an agreement fixing the rent is in force, and the date stated in the notice as that from which it is to take effect is:

- 2403 (1) a date after service of the notice; and
- 2404 (2) a date as at which the landlord could by notice served with the first-mentioned notice terminate the agreement, the first-mentioned notice operates as a notice to terminate the agreement as at that date<sup>12</sup>.

Where a rent is registered for the dwelling house at any time after notice is served, as from the date from which the registration takes effect the rent payable in accordance with the notice may not exceed the weekly or other periodical equivalent of the amount of the rent so registered<sup>13</sup>. If the rent payable in accordance with the notice exceeds the limit so imposed, the amount of the excess is irrecoverable from the tenant<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 1160 note 5 ante. As to registration of rent see PARAS 1162-1163 post.

2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

3 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 12(1). For the meaning of 'dwelling house subject to a statutory tenancy' see PARA 1146 ante; and for the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARAS 1146-1149 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'rent based on rateable value' means: (1) where the dwelling house had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, the weekly or other periodical equivalent of an annual amount equal to the prescribed multiple of the rateable value of the dwelling house on that date; (2) where the dwelling house had no rateable value on 31 March 1990, the weekly or other periodical equivalent of an annual amount equal to the rent at which it is estimated the dwelling house might reasonably be expected to let from year to year if the tenant undertook to pay all usual tenant's rates and taxes and to bear the cost of the repairs and insurance and the other expenses, if any, necessary to maintain the dwelling house in a state to command that rent: ibid s 12(9) (a), (c) (amended and added respectively by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 11); Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 19. The 'prescribed multiple' is 1.5 or such other number, whole or with a fraction, as the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order prescribe: s 12(9)(b). Such an order (a) may contain such transitional and other supplemental and incidental provisions as appear to the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister expedient; (b) may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order so made; and (c) must be contained in a statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 12(10). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. As to ascertaining the weekly or other periodical equivalent see PARA 1160 note 7 ante. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

The date as at which the rateable value or the annual amount referred to in head (2) supra is to be determined for these purposes, and for the purposes of any agreement under s 11 (see PARA 1160 ante), is the date on which the notice is served or, as the case may be, the date when the agreement was made or, if that date is after 31 March 1990 and the dwelling house had a rateable value on that date, 31 March 1990: s 12(11) (amended by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 12). If there is no separate rateable value for the dwelling house on the date as at which the rateable value is to be determined for these purposes, the rateable value must be ascertained by a proper apportionment or aggregation of the rateable value or values of the relevant hereditaments; and, until the rateable value is so ascertained, references to the amount of the rent based on rateable value are to be construed as references to the amount of the rent based on the landlord's estimate of that value: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 12(12) (amended by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 13). Any question as to the proper apportionment or aggregation under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 12(12) (as so amended) must be determined by the county court; and the decision of the county court is final: s 12(13). ### 1162. Application for registration of rent.

The registration of a rent in that part of the register takes effect:

- 2405 (1) if the rent is determined by the rent officer<sup>5</sup>, from the date when it is registered; and
- 2406 (2) if the rent is determined by a rent assessment committee<sup>6</sup>, from the date when the committee makes its decision<sup>7</sup>.

If the rent for the time being registered in that part of the register is confirmed, the confirmation takes effect:

- 2407 (a) if it is made by the rent officer, from the date when it is noted in the register; and
- 2408 (b) if it is made by a rent assessment committee, from the date when the committee makes its decision<sup>8</sup>.

The date from which the registration or confirmation of a rent takes effect must be entered in that part of the register<sup>9</sup>; and as from the date on which the registration takes effect any previous registration of a rent for the dwelling house ceases to have effect<sup>10</sup>.

A rent registered in any part of the register for a dwelling house which becomes, or ceases to be, one subject to a statutory tenancy is as effective as if it were registered in any other part of the register<sup>11</sup>.

1163. Registered rents.

The following provisions apply where a rent is registered<sup>1</sup> for a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup>.

If the rent payable for any period of the statutory tenancy beginning on or after the date of registration would be less than the registered rent, it may be increased up to the amount of that rent by a notice of increase<sup>4</sup> served by the landlord<sup>5</sup> on the tenant<sup>6</sup>. The notice must specify the amount of the registered rent, and the date from which the notice is to take effect, which must not be earlier than four weeks before the service of the notice, and not at a time when an agreement fixing the rent<sup>7</sup> is in force<sup>8</sup>. If the notice takes effect from the termination of such an agreement, it must state that fact, and must specify the rent payable, or last payable, under that agreement<sup>9</sup>. If a notice is served at a time when such an agreement is in force, and the date stated in the notice as that from which it is to take effect is:

- 2409 (1) a date after service of the notice; and
- 2410 (2) a date as at which the landlord could by notice served with the first-mentioned notice terminate the agreement, the first-mentioned notice operates as a notice to terminate the agreement as at that date<sup>10</sup>.

1164. Notice of increase.

Notwithstanding that a notice<sup>1</sup> relates to periods of a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup>, it may be served before the statutory tenancy begins<sup>3</sup>. Where a notice is served before the statutory tenancy begins, and the protected occupancy<sup>4</sup> could, by a notice to quit served at the same time, be brought to an end before the date specified in the notice of increase, the notice operates to terminate the protected occupancy as from that date<sup>5</sup>.

If the county court is satisfied that any error or omission in a notice is due to a bona fide mistake on the part of the landlord<sup>6</sup>, the court may by order amend the notice by correcting any errors or supplying any omission therein which, if not corrected or supplied, would render the notice invalid and, if the court so directs, the notice as so amended has effect and is deemed to have had effect as a valid notice<sup>7</sup>.

If the county court is satisfied<sup>8</sup> that:

- 2411 (1) on 31 March 1990 there was no separate rateable value for the dwelling house<sup>9</sup>; and 2412 (2) the amount specified in the notice is the amount of the rent based on the landlord's estimate of the rateable value, the court may by order amend the notice by substituting for the amount so specified the amount of the rent based on rateable value<sup>10</sup> and, if the court so directs, the notice has effect and is deemed to have had effect as so amended<sup>11</sup>.

Any amendment of such a notice<sup>12</sup> may be made on such terms and conditions with respect to arrears of rent or otherwise as appear to the court to be just and reasonable<sup>13</sup>; but no increase of rent which becomes payable by reason of an amendment of such a notice is recoverable in respect of any period of the statutory tenancy which ended more than six months before the date of the order making the amendment<sup>14</sup>.

1 For these purposes, any reference to a notice is a reference to a notice of increase under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 12 (as amended) (see PARA 1161 ante) or s 14 (see PARA 1163 ante): s 16(1). Such a notice of increase by the landlord binds any successor of the landlord or the tenant under a statutory tenancy to the same extent as it binds the landlord or, as the case may be, the tenant: see s 10(1), (2), Sch 5 para 12(5) (b); and PARA 1155 ante at head (d) in the text.

Where, in any proceedings, the recoverable rent of a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> subject to a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup> is determined by a court, then, on the application of the tenant<sup>3</sup>, whether in those or in any subsequent proceedings, the court may call for the production of the rent book or any similar document relating to the dwelling house and may direct the district judge or clerk of the court to correct any entries showing, or purporting to show, the tenant as being in arrears in respect of any sum which the court has determined to be irrecoverable<sup>4</sup>.

1166. Grounds for possession.

A court may not make an order for possession of a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> subject to a protected occupancy<sup>2</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup> except in the specified<sup>4</sup> cases<sup>5</sup>.

If the landlord<sup>6</sup> would otherwise<sup>7</sup> be entitled to recover possession of a dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy, the court must make an order for possession if the circumstances of the case are as specified in any of Cases XI to XIII<sup>8</sup>.

A landlord who obtains an order for possession of a dwelling house as against a statutory tenant<sup>9</sup> is not required to give to the statutory tenant any notice to quit<sup>10</sup>.

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(1) PROTECTED OCCUPANCIES AND STATUTORY TENANCIES/(v) Security of Tenure; Recovery of Possession/A. IN GENERAL/1167. Effect of determination of superior tenancy etc.

1167. Effect of determination of superior tenancy etc.

If a court makes an order for possession<sup>1</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> from a protected occupier<sup>3</sup> or statutory tenant<sup>4</sup>, or from a protected or statutory tenant for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977<sup>5</sup>, nothing in the order affects the right of any subtenant:

- 2413 (1) to whom the dwelling house or any part of it has been lawfully sublet before the commencement of the proceedings; and
- 2414 (2) who is a protected occupier or statutory tenant thereof, to retain possession<sup>6</sup>, nor does the order operate to give a right to possession against any such subtenant<sup>7</sup>.

Where a statutorily protected tenancy<sup>8</sup> of a dwelling house is determined, either as a result of an order for possession or for any other reason, any subtenant to whom the dwelling house or any part of it has been lawfully sublet and who is a protected occupier or statutory tenant thereof is deemed<sup>9</sup> to become the tenant<sup>10</sup> of the landlord<sup>11</sup> on the same terms as if the tenant's statutorily protected tenancy had continued<sup>12</sup>.

Where a dwelling house:

- 2415 (a) forms part of premises<sup>13</sup> which have been let as a whole on a superior tenancy but do not constitute a dwelling house let on a statutorily protected tenancy; and
- 2416 (b) is itself subject to a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy, then, from the coming to an end of the superior tenancy, the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 applies in relation to the dwelling house as if, in lieu of the superior tenancy, there had been separate tenancies of the dwelling house and of the remainder of the premises, for the like purposes as under the superior tenancy, and at rents equal to the just proportion of the rent under the superior tenancy<sup>14</sup>.

Where, however, a new lease has been granted under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993<sup>15</sup>, none of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure for tenants apply to the lease, and after the term date of the lease no person is entitled, by virtue of any sublease directly or indirectly derived out of the lease, to retain possession under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>16</sup>.

1 le and the order is made by virtue of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 6(1), (5), Sch 4 Pt I (as amended) (see PARAS 1170-1179 post) or, as the case may be, the Rent Act 1977 s 98 (as amended) (see PARA 942 ante) or s 99(2) (see PARA 943 ante).

- 2 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.
- 3 For the meaning of 'protected occupier' see PARAS 1144-1145 ante.
- 4 For the meaning of 'statutory tenant' see PARAS 1146-1149 ante.
- 5 As to protected and statutory tenants under the Rent Act 1977 see PARA 818 et seq ante.
- 6 le by virtue of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976.
- 7 Ibid s 9(1).

8 For these purposes, and for the purposes of ibid s 9(3) (as amended) (see the text and notes 13-14 infra), 'statutorily protected tenancy' means (1) a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy; (2) a protected or statutory tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977; or (3) a tenancy of an agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 which is a tenancy in relation to which that Act applies (see PARA 806 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 323); or (4) a farm business tenancy within the meaning of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 (see PARA 807 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 302): Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(4) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 74; the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 s 40, Schedule para 25(3)).

A long tenancy of a dwelling house which is also a tenancy at a low rent but which, had it not been a tenancy at a low rent, would have been a protected tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977, is treated for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(2) as a statutorily protected tenancy: s 9(5) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 Sch 23 para 74(b)). Notwithstanding anything in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(5) (as so amended), s 9(2) does not have effect where the subtenancy in question was created, whether immediately or derivatively, out of a long tenancy falling within s 9(5) (as so amended) and, at the time of the creation of the subtenancy (a) a notice to terminate the long tenancy had been given under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 4(1) (see PARA 1212 post); or (b) the long tenancy was being continued by s 3(1) (see PARA 1209 post), unless the subtenancy was created with the consent in writing of the person who at the time when it was created was the landlord, within the meaning of Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq post): Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(6). Where a tenancy has been extended under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 14 (as amended), after the extended term date no person is entitled by virtue of any subtenancy directly or indirectly derived out of the tenancy to retain possession under the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976: see the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 16(1) (as amended); and PARA 1483 post. See also ss 17(3), 18(5), Sch 2 para 3(2) (as amended); and PARA 1494 post.

For these purposes, 'long tenancy' means a tenancy granted for a term of years exceeding 21 years, whether or not subsequently extended by act of the parties or by any enactment; and, in determining whether a long tenancy is a tenancy at a low rent, there must be disregarded such part, if any, of the sums payable by the tenant as is expressed, in whatever terms, to be payable in respect of rates, council tax, service, repairs, maintenance or insurance, unless it would not have been regarded by the parties as so payable: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(7) (amended by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 2). 'Tenancy at a low rent' means a tenancy under which either no rent is payable or the rent payable is less than two-thirds of the rateable value which is or was the rateable value of the dwelling house on the appropriate day for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 ss 1(3), 34(1), Sch 1 (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 77). For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 1137 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'rates' see PARA 1150 note 4 ante. As to the abolition of domestic rates see PARA 521 ante; and as to the certification of a rateable value in certain cases see PARA 523 ante.

- 11 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

- 12 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(2).

13 For these purposes, 'premises' includes an agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 held under a tenancy in relation to which that Act applies and land comprised in a farm business tenancy within the meaning of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 9(3) (amended by the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 Sch 14 para 57; the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 s 40, Schedule para 25(2)).

The restrictions on the right to possession of a dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> are removed in the following circumstances:

- 2417 (1) where possession is sought of a house in respect of which a demolition order or a prohibition order has been made<sup>2</sup>;
- 2418 (2) where the house is required to enable a local authority to exercise its powers under any enactment relating to housing<sup>3</sup>;
- 2419 (3) if the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales certifies that possession of a house acquired or appropriated and held by certain authorities for planning purposes is immediately required for those purposes<sup>4</sup>.

B. DISCRETIONARY GROUNDS FOR POSSESSION

1169. Discretion of court in giving possession.

In Cases I to X<sup>1</sup> the court may not make an order for possession unless it considers it reasonable to do so<sup>2</sup>; and in those Cases the court may adjourn for such period or periods as it thinks fit<sup>3</sup>.

On the making of the order for possession, or at any time before execution of the order, the court may stay or suspend execution of the order or postpone the date of possession, for such period or periods as the court thinks fit<sup>4</sup>.

On any such adjournment or any such stay, suspension or postponement, the court must, unless it considers that to do so would cause exceptional hardship to the tenant<sup>5</sup> or would otherwise be unreasonable, impose conditions with regard to payment by the tenant of arrears of rent, if any, and rent or payments in respect of occupation after termination of the tenancy (mesne profits) and may impose such other conditions as it thinks fit<sup>6</sup>. If conditions so imposed are complied with, the court may, if it thinks fit, discharge or rescind the order for possession<sup>7</sup>.

In any case where:

- 2420 (1) proceedings are brought for possession of a dwelling house<sup>8</sup> which is subject to a protected occupancy<sup>9</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup>;
- 2421 (2) the tenant's spouse or former spouse, having rights of occupation under the Family Law Act 1996<sup>11</sup>, is then in occupation of the dwelling house; and
- 2422 (3) the tenancy is terminated as a result of those proceedings, the spouse or former spouse has, so long as he or she remains in occupation, the same rights in relation to or in connection with any such adjournment or any such stay, suspension or postponement as he or she would have if those rights of occupation were not affected by the termination of the tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

The rights of occupation of spouses, civil partners and cohabitants in respect of family homes have already been discussed<sup>13</sup> and are set out in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>14</sup>.

Case I: alternative accommodation not provided or arranged by housing authority.

1170. Case I: alternative accommodation not provided or arranged by housing authority.

A court may make an order for possession<sup>1</sup>, if it considers it reasonable to do so, where the court is satisfied that suitable alternative accommodation is available for the tenant<sup>2</sup>, or will be available for him when the order for possession takes effect<sup>3</sup>.

For these purposes, accommodation is deemed suitable if it consists of:

- 2423 (1) premises which are to be let as a separate dwelling such that they will then be let on a protected tenancy<sup>4</sup>; or
- 2424 (2) premises which are to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which will, in the opinion of the court, afford to the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security afforded by Part VII of the Rent Act 1977<sup>5</sup> in the case of a protected tenancy,

and, in the opinion of the court, the accommodation fulfils the specified conditions<sup>6</sup>.

The specified conditions are:

- 2425 (a) the accommodation must be reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards proximity to place of work and either:
60
- 72. (i) similar as regards rental and extent to the accommodation afforded by dwelling houses<sup>7</sup> provided in the neighbourhood by the housing authority concerned<sup>8</sup> for persons whose needs as regards extent are similar to those of the tenant and his family; or
- 73. (ii) reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant, and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent and character<sup>9</sup>;
- 2426 (b) if any furniture was provided by the landlord<sup>10</sup> for use under the tenancy, furniture must be provided for use in the alternative accommodation which is either similar, or is reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family<sup>11</sup>.

Accommodation is not deemed to be suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family if the result of their occupation of the accommodation would be that it would be<sup>12</sup> an overcrowded dwelling house<sup>13</sup>.

1171. Case II: alternative accommodation provided or arranged by housing authority.

A court may make an order for possession<sup>1</sup>, if it considers it reasonable to do so, where:

2427 (1) the housing authority concerned<sup>2</sup> has made an offer in writing to the tenant<sup>3</sup> of alternative accommodation which appears to the authority to be suitable, specifying the date when the accommodation will be available and the date, not being less than 14 days from the date of offer, by which the offer must be accepted; or

- 2428 (2) the housing authority concerned has given notice in writing to the tenant that it has received from a person specified in the notice an offer in writing to rehouse the tenant in alternative accommodation which appears to the housing authority concerned to be suitable, and the notice specifies both the date when the accommodation will be available and the date, not being less than 14 days from the date when the notice was given to the tenant, by which the offer must be accepted<sup>4</sup>.

The landlord<sup>5</sup> must show that the tenant:

- 2429 (a) accepted the offer, by the housing authority or other person, within the time duly specified in the offer; or 2430 (b) did not so accept the offer, and the tenant does not satisfy the court that he acted reasonably in failing to accept the offer<sup>6</sup>.

The accommodation so offered must in the opinion of the court fulfil the following conditions:

- 2431 (i) it must be reasonably suitable to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards proximity to place of work;
 2432 (ii) it must be reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant, and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent<sup>7</sup>.

If the accommodation offered is available for a limited period only, the housing authority's offer or notice must contain an assurance that other accommodation:

- 2433 (A) the availability of which is not so limited;
 2434 (B) which appears to the authority to be suitable; and 2435 (C) which fulfils the conditions in heads (i) and (ii) above, will be offered to the tenant as soon as practicable<sup>8</sup>.

1178. Case IX: dwelling house required by landlord as residence.

A court may make an order for possession<sup>1</sup>, if it considers it reasonable to do so, where the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is reasonably required by the landlord<sup>3</sup> for occupation as a residence for:

- 2436 (1) himself; or
- 2437 (2) any son or daughter of his over 18 years of age; or
- 2438 (3) his father or mother, or the father or mother of his spouse or civil partner;
- or
- 2439 (4) his grandfather or grandmother, or the grandfather or grandmother of his spouse or civil partner, and the landlord did not become landlord by purchasing the dwelling house, or any interest in it, after 12 April 1976<sup>4</sup>.

Having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including the question whether other accommodation is available for the landlord or tenant, the court must be satisfied that no greater hardship would be caused by granting the order than by refusing to grant it<sup>5</sup>.

Where in this Case a landlord obtains an order for possession of the dwelling house, and it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the order was obtained by misrepresentation or concealment of material facts, the court may order the landlord to pay to the former tenant<sup>6</sup> such sum as appears sufficient as compensation for damage or loss sustained by the tenant as a result of the order<sup>7</sup>.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> or licence of a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> entered into on or after 15 January 1989<sup>3</sup> is an assured agricultural occupancy if:

2448 (1) it is:

62

74. (a) an assured tenancy<sup>4</sup> which is not an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>5</sup>; or

75. (b) a tenancy which does not fall within head (a) above on specified grounds<sup>6</sup> and is not an excepted tenancy<sup>7</sup>; or

76. (c) a licence under which a person has the exclusive occupation of a dwelling house as a separate dwelling and which, if it conferred a sufficient interest in land to be a tenancy, would be a tenancy falling within head (a) or head (b) above; and

2449 (2) the agricultural worker condition is<sup>8</sup> for the time being fulfilled with respect to the dwelling house subject to the tenancy or licence<sup>9</sup>.

7 For these purposes, a tenancy is an excepted tenancy if it is (1) a tenancy of an agricultural holding within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act 1986 in relation to which that Act applies (see PARA 806 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 323); or (2) a farm business tenancy within the meaning of the Agricultural Tenancies Act 1995 (see PARA 807 ante; and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 302); Housing Act 1988 s 24(2A) (added by the Housing Act 1996 s 103(3)).

A tenancy which has been extended under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 14 (as amended) is not an assured agricultural occupancy: see s 16(1B) (as added); and PARA 1483 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/19. AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(2) ASSURED AGRICULTURAL OCCUPANCIES/1184. The agricultural worker condition.

1184. The agricultural worker condition.

The agricultural worker condition is fulfilled with respect to a dwelling house<sup>1</sup> subject to a relevant tenancy or licence if:

- 2450 (1) the dwelling house is or has been in qualifying ownership<sup>2</sup> at any time during the subsistence of the tenancy or licence, whether or not it was at that time a relevant tenancy or licence; and
- 2451 (2) the occupier<sup>3</sup> or, where there are joint occupiers, at least one of them is a qualifying worker<sup>4</sup> or has been a qualifying worker at any time during the subsistence of the tenancy or licence, whether or not it was at that time a relevant tenancy or licence, or is incapable of whole-time work in agriculture<sup>5</sup>, or was incapable of work in agriculture as a permit worker, in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease<sup>6</sup>.

The agricultural worker condition is also fulfilled with respect to a dwelling house subject to a relevant tenancy or licence if:

- 2452 (a) that condition was previously fulfilled with respect to the dwelling house but the person who was then the occupier or, as the case may be, a person who was one of the joint occupiers, whether or not under the same relevant tenancy or licence, has died; and
- 2453 (b) that condition ceased to be fulfilled on the death of the occupier referred to in head (a) above ('the previous qualifying occupier'); and
- 2454 (c) the occupier is either the qualifying surviving partner<sup>7</sup> of the previous qualifying occupier or the qualifying member of the previous qualifying occupier's family<sup>8</sup>.

The agricultural worker condition is also fulfilled with respect to a dwelling house subject to a relevant tenancy or licence if:

- 2455 (i) the tenancy or licence was granted to the occupier or, where there are joint occupiers, at least one of them<sup>9</sup> in consideration of his giving up possession of another dwelling house of which he was then occupier, or one of joint occupiers, under another relevant tenancy or licence; and
- 2456 (ii) immediately before he gave up possession of that dwelling house, as a result of his occupation the agricultural worker condition was fulfilled<sup>10</sup> with respect to it<sup>11</sup>.

Where:

- 2457 (A) the agricultural worker condition is fulfilled<sup>12</sup> with respect to a dwelling house subject to a relevant tenancy or licence ('the earlier tenancy or licence'); and
- 2458 (B) another relevant tenancy or licence of the same dwelling house ('the later tenancy or licence') is granted<sup>13</sup> to the person who, immediately before the grant, was the occupier or one of the joint occupiers under the earlier tenancy or licence and as a result of whose occupation the agricultural worker condition was fulfilled as mentioned in head (A) above, then, so long as a person as a result of whose occupation of the dwelling house the agricultural worker condition was fulfilled with respect to the earlier tenancy or licence continues to be the occupier, or one of the joint occupiers, under the later tenancy or licence, the agricultural worker condition is fulfilled with respect to the dwelling house<sup>14</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'the dwelling house', in relation to a relevant tenancy or licence, means the dwelling house which is let under the tenancy or, as the case may be, is occupied under the licence: Housing Act 1988 s 24(1)(b), Sch 3 para 1(2)(b). 'Relevant tenancy or licence' means a tenancy or licence of a description specified in s 24(2) (as amended) (see PARA 1183 ante at head (1) in the text): Sch 3 para 1(1). For the meaning of 'dwelling house' generally see PARA 1012 note 4 ante.

2 For these purposes, the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 1(5)(a), Sch 3 has effect to determine whether a dwelling house is in qualifying ownership (see PARA 1141 ante): Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 1(1), (3)(c).

3 For these purposes, 'the occupier', in relation to a relevant tenancy or licence, means the tenant or licensee: ibid Sch 3 para 1(2)(a). For the meaning of 'tenant' see PARA 1018 note 6 ante.

4 For these purposes, the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 has effect to determine whether a person is a qualifying worker (see PARA 1142 ante): Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 1(1), (3)(a).

5 For these purposes, 'agriculture' has the same meaning as in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 (see PARA 1136 ante): Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 1(1).

6 Ibid Sch 3 para 2. For these purposes, the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 Sch 3 has effect to determine whether a person is incapable of whole-time work in agriculture, or was incapable of work in agriculture as a permit worker, in consequence of a qualifying injury or disease (see PARA 1142 notes 3, 7, 11 ante): Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 1(3)(b).

7 For these purposes, (1) 'surviving partner' means widow, widower or surviving civil partner; and (2) a surviving partner of the previous qualifying occupier of the dwelling house is a qualifying surviving partner if that surviving partner was residing in the dwelling house immediately before the previous qualifying occupier's death: ibid Sch 3 para 3(2) (Sch 3 para 3(2), (5) substituted, and Sch 3 para 3(1)(c)(i), (3)(a), (6) amended, by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8, PARA 44(1)-(3)). As to whether a person is or is not residing with another cf para 843 note 7 ante. For the purposes of head (1) supra, (a) a person who, immediately before the previous qualifying occupier's death, was living with the previous occupier as his or her wife or husband is to be treated as the widow or widower of the previous occupier; and (b) a person who, immediately before the previous qualifying occupier's death, was living with the previous occupier as if they were civil partners is to be treated as the surviving civil partner of the previous occupier: Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 3(5) (as so substituted). If, immediately before the death of the previous qualifying occupier, there is, by virtue of Sch 3 para 3(5) (as so substituted), more than one person who falls within Sch 3 para 3(1)(c)(i) (as amended), such one of them as may be decided by agreement or, in default of agreement, by the county court is treated as the qualifying surviving partner for the purposes of Sch 3 para 3 (as amended): Sch 3 para 3(6) (as so amended). Cf the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 3(2) (as substituted), s 3(3A) (as added); and PARA 1145 ante. See also PARA 843 notes 11-12 ante.

8 Housing Act 1988 Sch 3 para 3(1) (as amended: see note 7 supra). For these purposes, a member of the family of the previous qualifying occupier of the dwelling house is the qualifying member of the family if (1) on the death of the previous qualifying occupier there was no qualifying surviving partner; and (2) the member of the family was residing in the dwelling house with the previous qualifying occupier at the time of, and for the period of two years before, his death: Sch 3 para 3(3) (as so amended). Not more than one member of the previous qualifying occupier's family may, however, be taken into account in determining whether the agricultural worker condition is fulfilled by virtue of Sch 3 para 3 (as amended) and, accordingly, if there is more than one member of the family who is the occupier in relation to the relevant tenancy or licence and who would otherwise be the qualifying member of the family by virtue of Sch 3 para 3(3) (as so amended), only that one of those members of the family who may be decided by agreement or, in default of agreement, by the county court, is the qualifying member: Sch 3 para 3(4). For the meaning of 'member of the family' cf para 846 ante. See also PARA 843 notes 11-12 ante.

9 For these purposes, the reference to a tenancy or licence granted to the occupier or at least one of joint occupiers includes a reference to the case where the grant is to him together with one or more other persons: ibid Sch 3 para 4.

10 Ie whether by ibid Sch 3 paras 2 or 3 (as amended): see the text and notes 1-8 supra.

11 Ibid Sch 3 para 4.

12 Ie by virtue of any of ibid Sch 3 paras 2-4 (as amended): see the text and notes 1-11 supra.

13 For these purposes, the reference to the grant of the later tenancy or licence to the person mentioned includes a reference to the case where the grant is to that person together with one or more other persons: ibid Sch 3 para 5(1).

14 Ibid Sch 3 para 5(1), (2). For the purposes of Sch 3 paras 3, 4 (as amended) and any further application of Sch 3 para 5, where Sch 3 para 5(2) has effect, the agricultural worker condition is to be treated as fulfilled so far as concerns the later tenancy or licence by virtue of the same paragraph of Sch 3 (as amended) as was applicable or, as the case may be, last applicable in the case of the earlier tenancy or licence: Sch 3 para 5(3).

1185. Security of tenure.

If a statutory periodic tenancy<sup>1</sup> arises on the coming to an end of an assured agricultural occupancy<sup>2</sup>, it is an assured agricultural occupancy as long as the agricultural worker condition is<sup>3</sup> for the time being fulfilled with respect to the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> in question<sup>5</sup>.

If the tenant<sup>6</sup> under an assured agricultural occupancy gives notice to terminate his employment, then, notwithstanding anything in any agreement or otherwise, that notice does not constitute a notice to quit as respects the assured agricultural occupancy<sup>7</sup>.

1187. Applications to housing authority concerned.

An application may be made by the occupier of land used for agriculture<sup>1</sup> to the housing authority concerned<sup>2</sup> ('the authority') on the ground that:

- 2459 (1) vacant possession is or will be needed of a dwelling house<sup>3</sup> which is subject to a protected occupancy<sup>4</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup> or an assured agricultural occupancy<sup>6</sup>, or which is let on or subject to any other specified tenancy<sup>7</sup>, in order to house a person who is or is to be employed in agriculture by the applicant, and that person's family;
- 2460 (2) the applicant is unable to provide, by any reasonable means, suitable alternative accommodation for the occupier of the dwelling house; and
- 2461 (3) the authority ought, in the interests of efficient agriculture, to provide the suitable alternative accommodation<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 1136 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'the housing authority concerned' see PARA 1139 note 7 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'dwelling house' see PARA 1137 note 2 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'dwelling house subject to a protected occupancy' see PARA 1145 ante; and for the meaning of 'protected occupancy' see PARAS 1144-1145 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'dwelling house subject to a statutory tenancy' see PARA 1146 ante; and for the meaning of 'statutory tenancy' see PARAS 1146-1149 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'assured agricultural occupancy' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1988 Pt I Ch III (ss 24, 25) (as amended) (see PARAS 1183-1186 ante): Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 27(3) (substituted by the Housing (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 4, Sch 2 para 33(1), (3); amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 26(b)).

7 Is any tenancy which is a protected or statutory tenancy for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 (see PARA 818 et seq ante) and which (1) if it were a tenancy at a low rent; and (2) if, where relevant, any earlier tenancy granted to the tenant, or to a member of his family, had been a tenancy at a low rent, would be a protected occupancy or statutory tenancy. For the meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent' see PARA 1167 note 8 ante.

8 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 27(1), (2) (amended by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 77; the Housing Act 1988 s 26(a)). For these purposes, references to the authority providing housing accommodation are references to its provision by any means open to the authority, whether direct or indirect: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 28(13).

1188. Duty of housing authority concerned.

An application to the housing authority concerned<sup>1</sup> must be in writing and, if the authority so directs, must be in such form as the authority directs<sup>2</sup>. The authority must, within seven days of its receiving the application, notify the occupier of the dwelling house<sup>3</sup> of which possession is sought ('the dwelling house') that the application has been made<sup>4</sup>.

The authority, or the applicant, or the occupier of the dwelling house, may obtain advice on the case made by the applicant concerning the interests of efficient agriculture<sup>5</sup>, and regarding the urgency of the application, by applying for the services<sup>6</sup> of an agricultural dwelling house advisory committee<sup>7</sup>. The committee must tender its advice in writing to the authority, and make copies of it available for the applicant and the occupier of the dwelling house<sup>8</sup>. In assessing the case made by the applicant and in particular the importance and degree of urgency of the applicant's need, the authority must take full account of any advice tendered to it by the committee; and in any legal proceedings relating to the duty so imposed on the authority, evidence is admissible of the advice so given<sup>9</sup>. The authority must notify its decision on the application in writing to the applicant, and to the occupier of the dwelling house, within three months of its receiving the application or, if an application is made for the services of a committee, within two months of its receiving the committee's advice<sup>10</sup>.

If the authority is satisfied that the applicant's case is substantiated<sup>11</sup>, it must use its best endeavours to provide the suitable alternative accommodation; and, in assessing the priority to be given to meet the applicant's case, the authority must take into account the urgency of the case, the competing claims on the accommodation which it can provide and the resources at its disposal<sup>12</sup>. The authority is not, however, obliged to provide suitable alternative accommodation if at the time when the accommodation becomes available the person for whom it is to be provided is employed by the applicant in the same capacity as that in which he was employed by the applicant at the time when the application was made, and he will continue to be so employed if provided with the alternative accommodation<sup>13</sup>.

Any material change of facts which have been stated to the authority, or to the committee, by the applicant or, in relation to the application, by the occupier of the dwelling house, must be notified to the authority as soon as practicable by the person making the statement unless before the change accommodation has been provided in accordance with the application, or the authority has decided that the applicant's case is not substantiated; and a person who fails without reasonable excuse to comply with that obligation is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>14</sup>.

An application lapses if the applicant ceases to be the occupier of the land used for agriculture, but without prejudice to the making of an application by any other person who is or becomes the occupier<sup>15</sup>.

If in or in connection with an application under the above provisions the applicant or any other person knowingly or recklessly makes a false statement for the purpose of inducing the authority to provide housing accommodation<sup>16</sup>, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'the housing authority concerned' see PARA 1139 note 7 ante.

2 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 28(1). There is a sufficient compliance with such a direction if the application is in a form substantially to the same effect as the form specified in the direction: s 28(1).

The notification must state (1) if the authority is satisfied that the applicant's case is substantiated in accordance with the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 27 (as amended) (see PARA 1187 ante), what action it proposes to take on the application; (2) if it is not so satisfied, the reasons for its decision: s 28(6A) (substituted by the Rent (Agriculture) Amendment Act 1977 s 1).

11 I.e. in accordance with the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 27 (as amended).

Without prejudice to any other means of enforcing the duty imposed by s 28(7), that duty is enforceable, at the suit of the applicant, by a claim against the authority for damages for breach of statutory duty: s 28(8). The authority errs in law if it treats the occupier as being in a better position than any other applicant on its general housing waiting list: R v East Hertfordshire District Council, ex p Dallhold Resources Management (UK) Pty Ltd (1989) 22 HLR 77, [1990] 1 EGLR 12.

13 Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 28(9). The continuance of the obligation imposed on the authority by s 28 (as amended) depends on compliance by the applicant with any reasonable request made by the authority for information about any change in circumstances which takes place after the making of the application, and which might affect the merits of the applicant's case: s 28(10).

1189. Agricultural dwelling house advisory committees.

In the area of each agricultural wages committee<sup>1</sup> there must be one or more agricultural dwelling house advisory committees ('committees') to perform the functions given<sup>2</sup> to them<sup>3</sup>.

An application for advice<sup>4</sup> may be made to the chairman of the agricultural wages committee for the area in question for the appointment or designation of a committee to give the advice<sup>5</sup>.

Each committee must be appointed by the chairman of the agricultural wages committee and he may include persons who are not members of the agricultural wages committee<sup>6</sup>; and each committee must be composed of an independent member, who is the chairman, a member representing employers and a member representing workers in agriculture<sup>7</sup>. The chairman of the committee must be appointed from a panel of persons approved by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>8</sup>. All three members of a committee must be present at any meeting of the committee; and no meeting may be held during a vacancy in the membership<sup>9</sup>.

In carrying out their functions committees must act in accordance with any directions, whether general or specific, given to them by the Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister<sup>10</sup>. The Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister may, if he or it thinks fit, make regulations contained in a statutory instrument regulating the procedure and meetings of committees, and may from time to time give directions, whether specific or general, regarding their procedure<sup>11</sup>. Subject to regulations, or any such direction, the procedure of any committee is such as the chairman of that committee may direct<sup>12</sup>.

The Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister may appoint a secretary for a committee, and there must be paid to the members of a committee, and to the person who appoints or designates a committee, such fees and allowances by way of compensation for expenses incurred and time lost by them in the performance of their duties as the Secretary of State may sanction with the consent of the Treasury, or as the Assembly or the relevant Welsh minister may sanction<sup>13</sup>. The Secretary of State or the Assembly or minister may, with the consent of the Treasury in the case of the Secretary of State, make payments to persons other than members of a committee by way of fees or compensation for expenses incurred and time lost by them in or in connection with their giving, at the request of the committee, any advice or information<sup>14</sup>.

1190. Information about housing accommodation.

The Minister<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may exercise the powers conferred on him or on it<sup>2</sup> for the purpose of obtaining information about the housing accommodation which is on, or held in connection with, or used for, agricultural or forestry land<sup>3</sup>. The Minister or the Assembly or minister may give information so obtained:

2462 (1) to the housing authority concerned<sup>4</sup> for any part of the area to which the information relates; and

2463 (2) where, since the giving of the information, other land has come into common ownership or occupation with the first-mentioned land, to the housing authority concerned for any part of the other land; and information so given may be transmitted to any other authority to whom the Minister or the Assembly or minister may so give it<sup>5</sup>.

The Minister or the Assembly or the relevant Welsh minister may also give the information so obtained to any agricultural dwelling house advisory committee which is to give advice<sup>6</sup> concerning any part of the area to which the information relates<sup>7</sup>.

No information relating to any particular land or business which has been obtained<sup>8</sup> may be published or otherwise disclosed without the previous consent in writing:

- 2464 (a) of the person giving the information; or
- 2465 (b) if different, of any person who at the time of the disclosure is the owner<sup>9</sup> or occupier<sup>10</sup> of the land, or as the case may be, the owner of the business<sup>11</sup>; and a person who contravenes this provision is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>12</sup>.

1 For these purposes, and for the purposes of the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 31 (as amended) (see PARA 1191 post), references to the Minister are expressed to be, in relation to England, references to the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (but see the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (Dissolution) Order 2002, SI 2002/794) and, so far as references relate to forestry land, to the Forestry Commissioners: Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976 s 30(8). The Minister or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>1</sup> may serve on any owner<sup>2</sup> or occupier<sup>3</sup> of agricultural<sup>4</sup> or forestry<sup>5</sup> land a notice requiring him to give such information as is specified in the notice concerning housing accommodation<sup>6</sup> on, or held in connection with, or used for, the land<sup>7</sup>. The notice must be complied with within such period, being not less than four weeks from service of the notice, as may be specified in the notice<sup>8</sup>.

The notice may in particular require information about:

- 2466 (1) the extent and nature of the accommodation;
- 2467 (2) the condition and location of the accommodation, including the state of the repair of any dwelling house<sup>9</sup>, and the means of access to it;

If the person served is not the owner or occupier of the land, the notice may require him to give any information in his possession which may identify the true owner or occupier and his address, or to state that he has no such information<sup>13</sup>.

The notice may be served either:

If any person without reasonable excuse fails in any respect to comply with a notice under the above provisions, or in purported compliance with such a notice knowingly or recklessly furnishes any information which is false in a material particular, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>15</sup>.

Where planning permission<sup>1</sup> as respects a dwelling house<sup>2</sup> is or has been granted subject to a condition that the occupation of the dwelling house is limited to a person employed in agriculture<sup>3</sup> or forestry<sup>4</sup>, then, if and so long as the dwelling house is subject to a protected occupancy<sup>5</sup> or statutory tenancy<sup>6</sup>, or is let on or subject to an assured agricultural occupancy<sup>7</sup> or any other specified tenancy<sup>8</sup>, the condition is suspended<sup>9</sup>.

1193. Notice requirements irrespective of date of creation of the tenancy.

Notwithstanding that the agricultural worker condition<sup>1</sup> is for the time being fulfilled<sup>2</sup> with respect to the dwelling house<sup>3</sup> subject to the tenancy, an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>4</sup> may be created<sup>5</sup> if, before it is entered into, a notice in such form as may be prescribed<sup>6</sup> and stating that the tenancy is to be a shorthold tenancy is served by the person who is to be the landlord<sup>7</sup> under the tenancy on the person who is to be the tenant<sup>8</sup> under it<sup>9</sup>. An assured shorthold tenancy cannot be created if the tenancy is an excepted tenancy<sup>10</sup>. ## (7) SPECIAL PROTECTION FROM EVICTION FOR AGRICULTURAL WORKERS

1194. Court's general discretionary power to postpone or suspend possession order.

The following provisions apply where the tenant under the former tenancy<sup>1</sup> occupied the premises under the terms of his employment as a person employed in agriculture<sup>2</sup> but is not a statutory tenant as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>3</sup>.

Without prejudice to any other power of the court<sup>4</sup> to postpone the operation or suspend the execution of an order for possession, if in proceedings by the owner<sup>5</sup> against the occupier<sup>6</sup> the court makes an order for the possession of the premises the court may suspend the execution of the order on such terms and conditions, including conditions as to the payment by the occupier of arrears of rent, mesne profits and otherwise as the court thinks reasonable<sup>7</sup>. In considering whether or how to exercise its powers under this provision, the court must have regard to all the circumstances and, in particular, to:

- 2475 (1) whether other suitable accommodation is or can be made available to the occupier;
- 2476 (2) whether the efficient management of any agricultural land or the efficient carrying on of any agricultural operations would be seriously prejudiced unless the premises were available for occupation by a person employed or to be employed by the owner; and
- 2477 (3) whether greater hardship would be caused by the suspension of the execution of the order than by its execution without suspension or further suspension<sup>8</sup>.

Where in proceedings for the recovery of possession of the premises the court makes an order for possession but suspends the execution of the order under the provisions set out above, it must make no order for costs, unless it appears to the court, having regard to the conduct of the owner or of the occupier, that there are special reasons for making such an order<sup>9</sup>. Where the court has so suspended the execution of an order for possession, it may from time to time vary the period of suspension or terminate it and may vary any terms or conditions imposed by virtue of the above provisions<sup>10</sup>.

AGRICULTURAL HOUSES/(7) SPECIAL PROTECTION FROM EVICTION FOR AGRICULTURAL WORKERS/1195. Circumstances in which suspension of possession order is mandatory.

1195. Circumstances in which suspension of possession order is mandatory.

Where the tenant under the former tenancy<sup>1</sup> occupied the premises under the terms of his employment as a person employed in agriculture<sup>2</sup> but is not a statutory tenant as defined in the Rent (Agriculture) Act 1976<sup>3</sup>, then where the order for possession is made within the period of six months beginning with the date when the former tenancy came to an end, the following provisions apply<sup>4</sup>. Without prejudice to any other powers of the court<sup>5</sup> to postpone the operation or suspend the execution of the order for a longer period, the court must suspend the execution of the order for the remainder of that period of six months unless the court:

2478 (1) is satisfied either:

77. (a) that other suitable accommodation is, or will within that period be made, available to the occupier<sup>6</sup>; or

78. (b) that the efficient management of any agricultural land or the efficient carrying on of any agricultural operations would be seriously prejudiced unless the premises are available for occupation by a person employed or to be employed by the owner<sup>7</sup>; or
79. (c) that greater hardship<sup>8</sup> would be caused by the suspension of the order until the end of that period than by its execution within that period; or
80. (d) that the occupier, or any person residing or lodging with the occupier, has been causing damage to the premises or has been guilty of conduct which is a nuisance or annoyance to persons occupying other premises; and
2479 (2) considers that it would be reasonable not to suspend the execution of the order for the remainder of that period<sup>9</sup>.

Where the court so suspends the execution of an order for possession, it must do so on such terms and conditions, including conditions as to the payment by the occupier of arrears of rent, mesne profits and otherwise as the court thinks reasonable<sup>10</sup>. A decision of the court not to suspend the execution of the order under the above provisions does not prejudice any other power of the court to postpone the operation or suspend the execution of the order for the whole or part of the period of six months mentioned above<sup>11</sup>.

Where, in the case of an order for possession of the premises to which the above provisions apply, the execution of the order is not so suspended or, the execution of the order having been so suspended, the suspension is terminated, then, if it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the failure to suspend the execution of the order or, as the case may be, the termination of the suspension was attributable to the provisions of head (1)(b) above and was due to misrepresentation or concealment of material facts by the owner of the premises, the court may order the owner to pay to the occupier such sum as appears sufficient as compensation for damage or loss sustained by the occupier as a result of that failure or termination<sup>12</sup>.

Where in proceedings for the recovery of possession of the premises the court makes an order for possession but suspends the execution of the order under the provisions set out above, it must make no order for costs, unless it appears to the court, having regard to the conduct of the owner or of the occupier, that there are special reasons for making such an order<sup>13</sup>. Where the court has so suspended the execution of an order for possession, it may from time to time vary the period of suspension or terminate it and may vary any terms or conditions imposed by virtue of the above provisions<sup>14</sup>.

20. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS

(1) THE

(i) Application of the Statutory Protection

1196. In general.

The provisions of Part I of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>1</sup> extend the protection of the Rent Act to certain tenants occupying residential property under long leases at low rents<sup>2</sup>. On the termination, in accordance with those provisions, of a tenancy<sup>3</sup> to which those provisions apply<sup>4</sup>, the tenant<sup>5</sup> is entitled<sup>6</sup> to the protection of the Rent Act<sup>7</sup> and becomes a statutory tenant<sup>8</sup>. Where, however, a new lease has been granted under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993<sup>9</sup>, none of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure for tenants apply to the lease; and after the term date of the lease the extension of Rent Act protection<sup>10</sup> does not apply to any sublease directly or indirectly derived out of the lease<sup>11</sup>.

Protection under the Rent Act is being phased out with the introduction of assured tenancies at market rents under the Housing Act 1988 and no new protected tenancies could be created after 14 January 1989 except in certain restricted circumstances<sup>12</sup>. It appears, however, that a new statutory tenancy may still be created after that date; but, where a long tenancy at a low rent was entered into on or after 1 April 1990<sup>13</sup>, otherwise than in pursuance of a contract made before that day, then on the termination of that tenancy the tenant will be entitled<sup>14</sup> to an assured periodic tenancy<sup>15</sup> and not to a statutory tenancy under the Rent Act<sup>16</sup>. Moreover, since 15 January 1999 the majority of long tenancies at a low rent have been governed by the protective provisions of Schedule 10 to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 regardless of when they were created<sup>17</sup>. The extension of Rent Act protection under Part I of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 now only applies in specified circumstances where a lease had come to the end of its term before that date<sup>18</sup>.

1 The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): see the text and notes 2-11 infra; and PARA 1197 et seq post. Part I (ss 1-22) (as originally enacted) applied only to such long tenancies as were at a low rent: see s 2(1) (as originally enacted). The Rent Act 1957 s 21(2) (repealed) excluded all long tenancies from the Rent Acts and brought them within the scope of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22); but this extension of Pt I (ss 1-22) was reversed by the Leasehold Reform Act 1967. ### 1197. Jurisdiction and procedure of the court.

Any jurisdiction conferred on the court by any of the provisions of Part 1 of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>1</sup> must be exercised by the county court<sup>2</sup>. The procedure is in some respects specifically provided for<sup>3</sup> and in other respects is governed by the ordinary rules of procedure in the county court<sup>4</sup>. In any proceedings where the county court so exercises jurisdiction, the powers of the judge of summoning one or more assessors<sup>5</sup> may be exercised notwithstanding that no application is made in that behalf by one or more party to the proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

Where any question falls to be determined<sup>7</sup> by the court with reference to the circumstances at a future date<sup>8</sup>, the court must have regard to all rights, interests and obligations under or relating to the tenancy as they subsist at the time of the determination and to all relevant circumstances as they then subsist and must assume, except in so far as the contrary is shown, that those rights, interests, obligations and circumstances will continue to subsist unchanged until that future date<sup>9</sup>.

AND TENANT ACT 1954/(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned/1201. Tenancies protected.

(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned

1201. Tenancies protected.

Protection<sup>1</sup> is given to any long tenancy<sup>2</sup> at a low rent<sup>3</sup> which is still subject to the Rent Act protection provided by Part I of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>4</sup> and as respects which for the time being the qualifying condition<sup>5</sup> is fulfilled<sup>6</sup>.

At any time before, but not more than 12 months before, the term date<sup>7</sup> application may be made to the court<sup>8</sup> as respects any long tenancy at a low rent, not being at the time of the application a tenancy as respects which the qualifying condition is fulfilled, for an order declaring that the tenancy is not to be treated<sup>9</sup> as a protected long tenancy at a low rent; and, where such an application is made:

2484 (1) the court, if satisfied that the tenancy is not likely<sup>10</sup>, immediately before the term date, to be a protected long tenancy at a low rent<sup>11</sup>, but not otherwise, must make the order;

2485 (2) if the court makes the order, the tenancy is not thereafter treated<sup>12</sup> as a protected long tenancy at a low rent<sup>13</sup>.

1202. Meaning of 'long tenancy'.

'Long tenancy' means<sup>1</sup> a tenancy<sup>2</sup> granted for a term of years certain exceeding 21 years, whether or not subsequently extended by act of the parties or by any enactment<sup>3</sup>.

Where on the coming to an end of a tenancy at a low rent<sup>4</sup> the person who was tenant thereunder immediately before the coming to an end thereof becomes, whether by grant or by implication of law, tenant of the whole or any part of the property comprised therein under another tenancy at a low rent, then, if the first tenancy was a long tenancy or is deemed<sup>5</sup> to have been a long tenancy, the second tenancy is deemed to be a long tenancy irrespective of its terms<sup>6</sup>.

In relation to a tenancy from year to year or other tenancy not granted for a term of years certain, being a tenancy which is to be so deemed<sup>7</sup> to be a long tenancy, the statutory provisions relating to protected long tenancies at a low rent<sup>8</sup> have effect subject to the specified modification<sup>9</sup>.

Where a long tenancy has been extended by the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 14 (as amended), then after the extended term date the protection does not apply to that tenancy nor to any subtenancy directly or indirectly derived out of the tenancy: see s 16(1)(c), (d), (6) (as amended); and PARA 1483 post. See also the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993 s 59(2); and PARA 1723 post. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned/1203. Meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent'.

1203. Meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent'.

- 2486 (1) where the tenancy was entered into before 1 April 1990 or, where the property comprised in the tenancy had a rateable value<sup>4</sup> on 31 March 1990, is entered into on or after 1 April 1990 in pursuance of a contract made before that date, is less than two-thirds of the rateable value of the property; and
- 2487 (2) where the tenancy is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the property comprised in the tenancy had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, is payable at a rate of £1,000 or less a year if the property is in Greater London<sup>5</sup> and £250 or less a year if the property is elsewhere<sup>6</sup>.

In determining whether a long tenancy<sup>7</sup> is, or at any time was, a tenancy at a low rent, there must be disregarded such part, if any, of the sums payable by the tenant as is expressed, in whatever terms, to be payable in respect of rates, council tax, services, repairs, maintenance or insurance, unless it could not have been regarded by the parties as a part so payable<sup>8</sup>.

1 le for the purposes of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1204 et seq post.

2 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante.

3 'Progressive rent' is not defined in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954. It was held that 'progressive rent', when used in the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act 1920 s 12(1)(a) proviso (repealed), included a rent to be increased in one step only or which might take effect at a time that was uncertain: Bryanston Property Co Ltd v Edwards [1944] KB 32, [1943] 2 All ER 646, CA; Tedman v Whicker [1944] KB 112, [1944] 1 All ER 26, CA; Wheeler v Wirral Estate Ltd [1935] 1 KB 294, CA.

4 For these purposes, the rateable value of the property is that which would be taken as its rateable value for the purposes of the Rent Act 1977 s 5(1) (as amended) (see PARA 861 ante): Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(5) (substituted by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 3). 6 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(5) (as substituted: see note 4 supra); s 22(1). The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order replace any amount referred to in s 2(5)(b) (as so substituted) (see head (2) in the text) by such amount as is specified in the order; and such an order must be made by statutory instrument which is subject, if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 2(8) (added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (as amended), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, to the Assembly see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'long tenancy' see PARA 1202 ante. The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(7) (added by the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 13; amended by the Local Government Finance (Housing) (Consequential Amendments) Order 1993, SI 1993/651, art 2(1), Sch 1 para 1) provides that 'in this section 'long tenancy' does not include a tenancy which is, or may become, terminable before the end of the term by notice given to the tenant'. It is, however, apprehended that 'in this section' means 'in this subsection'; cf the Rent Act 1977 s 5(5); and PARA 862 ante.

PARAS 1386-2000)/20. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned/1204. Meaning of 'the qualifying condition'.

1204. Meaning of 'the qualifying condition'.

The qualifying condition<sup>1</sup> is that the circumstances, as respects the property comprised in the tenancy<sup>2</sup>, the use of that property, and all other relevant matters, are such that, on the coming to an end of the long tenancy<sup>3</sup> at a low rent<sup>4</sup> at that time, the tenant would, if the tenancy had not been one at a low rent, be entitled by virtue of the Rent Act<sup>5</sup> to retain possession of the whole or part of the property comprised in the tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

The qualifying condition requires in particular that there should be a house let as a separate dwelling<sup>7</sup> within the limits of rateable value of the Rent Act<sup>8</sup> and not excluded from that Act by any circumstances other than that of low rent<sup>9</sup>. In order to fulfil the qualifying condition the tenant must reside on the premises<sup>10</sup>.

The qualifying condition must be fulfilled at the term date<sup>11</sup> if the tenancy is to be automatically continued<sup>12</sup>; but anything authorised or required to be done<sup>13</sup> is not to be treated as invalid, if done before the term date in relation to a long tenancy at a low rent, by reason only that at the time at which it was done the qualifying condition was not fulfilled as respects the tenancy<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the significance of the qualifying condition see PARA 1201 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'long tenancy' see PARA 1202 ante.

6 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(1) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15); Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 22(1). For the purpose only of determining whether the qualifying condition is fulfilled with respect to a tenancy which is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the property comprised in the tenancy had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, for the Rent Act 1977 s 4(4)(b), (5) (as added and amended) (see PARA 860 ante) there is to be substituted: '(b) on the date the contract for the grant of the tenancy was made (or, if there was no such contract, on the date the tenancy was entered into) R exceeded £25,000 under the formula:

$$R = \frac{P \times I}{1 - (1 + I)^{-T}}$$

where P is the premium payable as a condition of the grant of the tenancy (and includes a payment of money's worth) or, where no premium is so payable, zero; I is 0.06; and T is the term, expressed in years, granted by the tenancy (disregarding any right to terminate the tenancy before the end of the term or to extend the tenancy)': Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(1A) (added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule para 2). The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order replace any amount referred to in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 2(1A) (as so added) and the number in the definition of 'I' supra by such amount or number as is specified in the order; and such an order must be made by statutory instrument which is subject, if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 2(8) (added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, Schedule para 4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'house let as a separate dwelling' cf para 819 et seq ante. In determining, for the purposes of any provision of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1205 et seq post), whether the property comprised in a tenancy, or any part of that property, was let as a separate dwelling, the nature of the property or part at the time of the creation of the tenancy is deemed to have been the same as its nature at the time in relation to which the question arises; and the purpose for which it was let under the tenancy is deemed to have been the same as the purpose for which it is or was used at the last-mentioned time: s 22(3); and see Haines v Herbert [1963] 3 All ER 715, [1963] 1 WLR 1401, CA; Herbert v Byrne [1964] 1 All ER 882, [1964] 1 WLR 519, CA; Crown Lodge (Surbiton) Investments Ltd v Nalecz [1967] 1 All ER 489, [1967] 1 WLR 647, CA; Regalian Securities Ltd v Ramsden [1981] 2 All ER 65, [1981] 1 WLR 611, HL. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned/1205. Meaning of 'the landlord'.

1205. Meaning of 'the landlord'.

'The landlord' in relation to a tenancy<sup>1</sup> ('the relevant tenancy') means<sup>2</sup> the person, whether or not he is the immediate landlord, who is the owner of that interest in the property comprised in the relevant tenancy which for the time being fulfils the following conditions, that is to say:

2488 (1) that it is an interest in reversion expectant, whether immediately or not, on the termination of the relevant tenancy; and

and is not itself in reversion expectant, whether immediately or not, on an interest which fulfils those conditions<sup>4</sup>.

In relation to the premises constituting the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> where the Rent Act applies<sup>6</sup>, 'the landlord' means, as respects any time falling within the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup>, the person who, as respects those premises, is landlord of the tenant for the purposes of the Rent Act<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante.

2 le in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq ante; the text and notes 3-8 infra; and PARA 1206 et seq post) but subject to the provisions of s 21 (as amended) (see the text and notes 3-8 infra).

3 For these purposes, the question whether a tenancy ('the superior tenancy') is to be treated as having a duration at least five years longer than that of the relevant tenancy is to be determined as follows: (1) if the term date of the relevant tenancy has not passed, the superior tenancy is to be so treated unless it is due to expire at a time earlier than five years after the term date or can be brought to an end at such a time by notice to quit given by the landlord; (2) if the term date of the relevant tenancy has passed, the superior tenancy is to be so treated unless it is due to expire within five years or can be brought to an end within five years by notice to quit given by the landlord: ibid s 21(3). References to a notice to quit given by the landlord are references to a notice to quit given by the immediate landlord: s 21(2). For the meaning of 'term date' see PARA 1201 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'notice to quit' generally see PARA 704 note 19 ante.

4 Ibid ss 21(1), 22(1). Notwithstanding anything in s 21(1), if at any time the interest which would otherwise be the interest of the landlord is an interest not bound by Pt I (as amended) and is not the interest of the immediate landlord, then as respects that time 'the landlord' means in Pt I (as amended), subject to the provisions of s 21(2) (see note 3 supra), the person, whether or not he is the immediate landlord, who has the interest in the property comprised in the relevant tenancy immediately derived out of the interest not bound by Pt I (as amended): s 21(6). For these purposes, 'interest not bound by Pt I (as amended)' means an interest which belongs to Her Majesty in right of the Crown and is not under the management of the Crown Estate Commissioners or an interest belonging to a government department or held on behalf of Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department: s 21(6) (amended by the Housing Act 1980 s 73(4)(b)).

The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 21 (as amended) applies in relation to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186, Sch 10 (as amended) (see PARA 1237 et seq post) as it applies in relation to the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (as amended) subject to the following modification: (1) any reference to Pt I (as amended) is to be construed as a reference to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended); and (2) the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 21(4) (as amended) (see the text and notes 5-8 infra) is to be omitted: Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 19(1).

5 For these purposes, 'the dwelling house' means the premises agreed between the landlord and the tenant or determined by the court (1) if the agreement or determination is made on or after the term date of the former tenancy, to be the premises which as respects that tenancy are the premises qualifying for protection; (2) if the agreement or determination is made before the term date of the former tenancy, to be the premises which are likely to be the premises qualifying for the protection: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 ss 6(3), 22(1). 'The premises qualifying for protection' means the aggregate of the premises of which, if the tenancy in question were not one at a low rent, the tenant would be entitled to retain possession by virtue of the Rent Act after the coming to an end of the tenancy at the term date: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 ss 3(3), 22(1) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15). For the meaning of 'the tenant' see PARA 1208 post; for the meaning of 'the former tenancy' see PARA 1215 post; and for the meaning of 'the Rent Act' see PARA 1196 note 7 ante.

6 le by virtue of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 6(1) (as amended): see PARAS 1215-1217 post.

7 For these purposes, 'the period of the statutory tenancy' means the period beginning with the coming to an end of the former tenancy and ending with the earliest date by which the tenant, and any successor to his statutory tenancy, have ceased to retain possession of the dwelling house by virtue of the Rent Act: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 7(6) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15).

8 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 21(4) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15); Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 22(1). See also note 4 supra. In relation to the carrying out of initial repairs and to any payment for accrued tenant's repairs, 'the landlord', as respects any time falling within the period of the statutory tenancy, means the person whose interest in the dwelling house fulfils the following conditions, that is to say (1) that it is not due to expire within five years and is not capable of being brought to an end within five years by notice to quit given by the landlord; and (2) that it is not itself in reversion expectant on an interest which is not so due to expire or capable of being so brought to an end: ss 21(4) proviso, 22(1). For the meaning of 'initial repairs' see PARA 1219 post; and for the meaning of 'payment for accrued tenant's repairs' see PARA 1222 post.

1206. Acts of competent landlord binding on other landlords.

Any notice given<sup>1</sup> by the competent landlord<sup>2</sup>, any agreement made<sup>3</sup> between that landlord and the tenant<sup>4</sup> under the relevant tenancy, and any determination<sup>5</sup> of the court<sup>6</sup> in proceedings between that landlord and that tenant, bind the interest of every other landlord<sup>7</sup>, if any<sup>8</sup>.

If a notice is given<sup>9</sup> by the competent landlord, or an agreement<sup>10</sup> is made with the tenant by that landlord, without the written consent of every other landlord<sup>11</sup>, if any, any other landlord whose written consent has not been given thereto is entitled<sup>12</sup> to compensation<sup>13</sup> from the competent landlord for any loss arising in consequence of the giving of the notice or the making of the agreement<sup>14</sup>.

The competent landlord may serve on any other landlord a notice in the prescribed form<sup>15</sup> requiring him to consent to the giving or making of any such notice or agreement; and, if within one month after the service of such a notice:

2490 (1) the consent has not been given; or

2491 (2) conditions have been imposed on the giving of the consent which are in the opinion of the court unreasonable in all the circumstances, the court, on an application by the competent landlord, may, if it thinks fit, order that the other landlord shall be deemed to have consented, either without qualification or subject to such conditions, including conditions as to the modification of the proposed notice or agreement or as to the payment of compensation by the competent landlord, as may be specified in the order<sup>16</sup>.

1 le under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 4(1): see PARA 1212 post.

2 For these purposes, 'the competent landlord' means, in relation to a tenancy ('the relevant tenancy'), the person who in relation to the relevant tenancy is for the time being the landlord, as defined by ibid s 21 (as amended) (see PARA 1205 ante), for the purposes of Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): s 21(5), Sch 5 para 1(1).

3 le under ibid Pt I (as amended): see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1207 et seq post.

4 For the meaning of 'the tenant' see PARA 1208 post.

5 See note 3 supra.

6 As to the court having jurisdiction see PARA 1197 ante.

7 For these purposes, references to 'other landlords' are references to persons who are either mesne landlords or superior landlords: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 21(5), Sch 5 para 1(2).

'Mesne landlord' means a tenant whose interest is intermediate between the relevant tenancy and the interest of the competent landlord: and 'superior landlord', except in Sch 5 para 9 (see PARA 1234 post), means a person, whether the owner of the fee simple or a tenant, whose interest is superior to the interest of the competent landlord: Sch 5 para 1(1).

8 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Sch 5 para 2.

9 See note 1 supra.

10 See note 3 supra.

11 Where in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Sch 5 paras 4-7 (as amended) (see the text and notes 12-16 infra; and PARA 1219 post) reference is made to other landlords or to mesne landlords, the reference is to be taken not to include a mesne landlord whose interest is due to expire within the period of two months beginning with the relevant date or is terminable within that period by notice to quit given by his landlord: Sch 5 para 3(1). For these purposes, 'the relevant date' means: (1) if the term date of the relevant tenancy has not passed, that date; (2) if that date has passed, and no notice has been given under s 4(1) (see PARA 1212 post) to terminate the relevant tenancy, the earliest date at which that tenancy could be brought to an end by such a notice; (3) if such a notice has been given, the date of termination specified in the notice: Sch 5 para 3(2). For the meaning of 'term date' see PARA 1201 note 7 ante.

12 le subject to ibid Sch 5 para 5: see the text and notes 15-16 infra.

13 The amount of any such compensation must, in default of agreement, be determined by the court on the application of the person claiming it: ibid Sch 5 para 4(2).

14 Ibid Sch 5 para 4(1). As to the conditions which may be attached on the giving of such a consent see PARA 1219 post.

In accordance with the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186, Sch 10 para 19(1) (see PARA 1205 note 4 ante), the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Sch 5 (as amended) also applies for the purposes of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended), subject to the modifications set out in Sch 10 para 19(3). Those modifications are as follows:

- 159 (1) any reference to the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (as amended) is to be construed as a reference to the provisions of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended) other than Sch 10 para 19(3);
- 160 (2) any reference to the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 21 (as amended) (see PARA 1205 ante) is to be construed as a reference to s 21 (as amended) as it applies in relation to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended);
- 161 (3) any reference to the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 4(1) (see PARA 1212 post) is to be construed as a reference to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 4(1) (see PARA 1249 post);
- 162 (4) any reference to the court includes a reference to a rent assessment committee;
- 163 (5) the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Sch 5 paras 6-8 (as amended) (see PARAS 1218-1219 post) and Sch 5 para 11 (see PARA 1235 post) are to be omitted;
- 164 (6) any reference to a particular subsection of s 16 (see PARA 1232 post) is to be construed as a reference to that subsection as it applies in relation to the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended);
- 165 (7) any reference to a tenancy to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 1196 ante) applies is to be construed as a reference to a long residential tenancy; and
- 166 (8) expressions to which a meaning is assigned by any provision of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended), other than Sch 10 para 19(3), are to be given that meaning.

For the meaning of 'long residential tenancy' for these purposes see PARA 1244 post.

1207. Mortgage of reversion.

Anything authorised or required<sup>1</sup> to be done at any time by, to or with the landlord, or a landlord of a specified description, is deemed, if at that time the interest of the landlord in question is subject to a mortgage<sup>2</sup> and the mortgagee<sup>3</sup> is in possession or a receiver appointed by the mortgagee or by the court is in receipt of the rents and profits, to be authorised or required to be done by, to or with the mortgagee instead of that landlord<sup>4</sup>.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(ii) Tenancies Protected; Parties Concerned/1208. Meaning of 'the tenant'.

1208. Meaning of 'the tenant'.

In relation to the premises constituting the dwelling house<sup>1</sup>, 'the tenant' means<sup>2</sup> the tenant under the former tenancy<sup>3</sup> and, except as respects any payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>4</sup> not payable by instalments, includes any successor to his statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup>.

1     For the meaning of 'the dwelling house' see PARA 1205 note 5 ante.

2     le in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1209 et seq post.

3     For the meaning of 'the former tenancy' see PARA 1215 post.

4     For the meaning of 'accrued tenant's repairs' see PARA 1222 post. As to accrued tenant's repairs see PARAS 1222-1226 post.

5     Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 22(2). For these purposes, 'successor to his statutory tenancy', in relation to the tenant under the former tenancy, means a person who after the tenant's death retains possession of the dwelling house by virtue of the Rent Act: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 22(2) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15). For the meaning of 'the Rent Act' see PARA 1196 note 7 ante. As to the succession to a statutory tenancy see PARAS 843-844 ante; and as to the protection of subtenants see PARA 975 ante. Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/20. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(iii) Continuation and Termination of Contractual Tenancies/1209. Continuation of protected long tenancy.

(iii) Continuation and Termination of Contractual Tenancies

1209. Continuation of protected long tenancy.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which was current immediately before the term date<sup>2</sup> and is then a protected long tenancy<sup>3</sup> at a low rent<sup>4</sup> does not come to an end on that date except by being terminated under the provisions of Part I of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>5</sup> and, if not then so terminated, it continues until so terminated<sup>6</sup> and, while so continuing, is deemed, notwithstanding any change in circumstances, to be a protected long tenancy at a low rent<sup>7</sup>.

Where a tenancy is so continued after the term date, then:

2492 (1) if the premises qualifying for protection<sup>8</sup> are the whole of the property comprised in the tenancy, the tenancy continues at the same rent and in other respects on the same terms<sup>9</sup> as before the term date;

2493 (2) if the premises qualifying for protection are only part of the property comprised in the tenancy, the tenancy, while continuing after the term date, has effect as a tenancy of those premises to the exclusion of the remainder of the property, and at a rent to be ascertained by apportioning the rent payable before the term date as between those premises and the remainder of the property, and in other respects on the same terms, subject to any necessary modifications, as before the term date<sup>10</sup>.

Any question arising under head (2) above as to the premises comprised in a tenancy so continuing, as to the rent payable in respect of a tenancy so continuing, or as to any of the terms of such a tenancy, must be determined by agreement<sup>11</sup> between the landlord and the tenant or, on the application of either of them, by the court<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante.

2 For these purposes, the term date must have fallen before 15 January 1999: see PARA 1196 ante. For the meaning of 'term date' see PARA 1201 note 7 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'long tenancy' see PARA 1202 ante.

4 It is a tenancy to which the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 1 (as amended) applies: see PARA 1196 ante. For the meaning of 'tenancy at a low rent' see PARA 1203 ante.

5 It is ibid Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1210 et seq post. Section 3(1) continues the common law tenancy with a statutory variation as to the mode of termination; cf s 24 (as amended); and PARA 713 ante; and see HL Bolton (Engineering) Co Ltd v TJ Graham & Sons Ltd [1957] 1 QB 159, [1956] 3 All ER 624, CA. See further PARA 713 ante and the cases there cited. See also Byrne v Herbert [1966] 2 QB 121, [1965] 3 All ER 705.

6 Where a contractual tenancy of residential property on a long lease at a low rent expires by effluxion of time, a sole residing tenant is entitled to a continuation tenancy under the 1954 Act, notwithstanding that the contractual tenancy was originally granted to two or more tenants jointly: De Rothschild v Bell (a bankrupt) [2000] QB 33, [1999] 2 All ER 722, CA.

7 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 3(1). In relation to such a tenancy as is mentioned in s 19(2) (see PARA 1202 ante), Pt I (as amended) has the following effect: s 19(2), Sch 4 para 1. Where the tenancy is not terminated under the provisions of Pt I (as amended) at the term date thereof, then, whether or not it would have continued after that date apart from the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954, it is to be treated for the purposes of that Act as being continued by virtue of s 3(1): s 19(2), Sch 4 para 5.

Although the statutory protection now applies only to long tenancies at low rents, prior to the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 it applied to all long tenancies: see PARA 1196 ante. That Act contained transitional provisions (see s 39(2), Sch 5 paras 5-7) with the effect that if, in relation to a tenancy to which the special protection applied immediately before 27 November 1967 there was in force on that date a landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy and all the terms of the tenancy had been agreed or determined or an application for their determination had been made to the court, then the 1967 Act did not affect the position: see Sch 5 para 5. If, alternatively, on 27 November 1967 a long tenancy was continuing under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 3, then Pt I (as amended) applied as if that date were the term date of the tenancy and as if, if this was not the case, the tenancy were at a low rent: see the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 Sch 5 para 6(1), (2). Special transitional provisions applied where the reason that the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 would not apply after 27 November 1967 was the change in rateable value limits: see Sch 5 para 7 (as amended). These transitional provisions remain unaffected after the enactment of the Rent Act 1968 (repealed) and the Rent Act 1977: Rent Act 1968 s 117(3), Sch 16 para 26 (repealed); Rent Act 1977 s 155(3), Sch 24 para 32.

8 For the meaning of 'the premises qualifying for protection' see PARA 1205 note 5 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'terms' see PARA 706 note 27 ante. A covenant to reinstate at the end of the term is not a term that is continued: Byrne v Herbert [1966] 2 QB 121, [1965] 3 All ER 705.

10 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 3(2). In relation to such a tenancy as is mentioned in s 19(2), Pt I (as amended) has the following effect: Sch 4 para 1. Notwithstanding anything in s 3(2), where by virtue of s 3(1) (see the text and notes 1-7 supra) the tenancy is continued after the term date thereof, the provisions of Pt I (as amended) as to the termination of a tenancy by notice have effect in substitution for, and not in addition to, any such provisions included in the terms on which the tenancy had effect before its term date: Sch 4 para 4.

11 For the meaning of references to an agreement between the landlord and the tenant see PARA 1199 note 2 ante; for the meaning of 'the landlord' see PARA 1205 ante; and for the meaning of 'the tenant' see PARA 1208 ante.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(iii) Continuation and Termination of Contractual Tenancies/1210. Interim continuation pending application.

1210. Interim continuation pending application.

In any case where:

- 2494 (1) a notice to terminate a tenancy<sup>1</sup> has been given<sup>2</sup>; and
- 2495 (2) an application<sup>3</sup> to the court<sup>4</sup> has been made; and
- 2496 (3) the effect of the notice would otherwise<sup>5</sup> be to terminate the tenancy before the expiration of the period of three months beginning with the date on which the application is finally disposed of<sup>6</sup>, the effect of the notice is to terminate the tenancy at the expiration of that period of three months and not at any other time<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante.

2 Ie under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended): see PARA 1196 et seq ante, PARA 1211 et seq post. As to the giving of such a notice see PARA 1212 post.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(iii) Continuation and Termination of Contractual Tenancies/1211. Reversions.

1211. Reversions.

Where a tenancy<sup>1</sup> ('the inferior tenancy') is continued<sup>2</sup> for a period such as to extend to or beyond the end of the term of a superior tenancy, the superior tenancy is deemed<sup>3</sup>, so long as it subsists, to be an interest in reversion expectant upon the termination of the inferior tenancy and, if there is no intermediate tenancy, to be the interest in reversion immediately expectant upon the termination thereof<sup>4</sup>.

Where a tenancy ('the continuing tenancy') is continued<sup>5</sup> beyond the beginning of a reversionary tenancy which was granted<sup>6</sup> so as to begin on or after the date on which<sup>7</sup> the continuing tenancy would have come to an end, the reversionary tenancy has effect as if it had been granted subject to the continuing tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

Where a tenancy ('the new tenancy') is granted<sup>9</sup> for a period beginning on the same date as a reversionary tenancy or for a period such as to extend beyond the beginning of the term of a reversionary tenancy<sup>10</sup>, the reversionary tenancy has effect as if it had been granted subject to the new tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

In the case of a tenancy continuing by virtue of any provision of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 after the coming to an end of the interest in reversion immediately expectant upon the termination thereof, the Law of Property Act 1925 s 139(1) (effect of extinguishment of reversion: see PARAS 638-641 ante) applies as if references in s 139(1) to the surrender or merger of the reversion included references to the coming to an end of the reversion for any reason other than surrender or merger: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 65(2); and see PARA 714 ante. LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(iii) Continuation and Termination of Contractual Tenancies/1212. Termination by the landlord.

1212. Termination by the landlord.

The landlord<sup>1</sup> may terminate a protected<sup>2</sup> long tenancy<sup>3</sup> at a low rent<sup>4</sup> by notice given to the tenant<sup>5</sup> in the prescribed form<sup>6</sup> specifying the date at which the tenancy is to come to an end ('the date of termination'), being either the term date<sup>7</sup> of the tenancy or a later date<sup>8</sup>.

Such a notice does not have effect unless:

- 2497 (1) it is given not more than 12 nor less than six months before the date of termination specified therein<sup>9</sup>;
- 2498 (2) it specifies the premises which the landlord believes to be, or to be likely to be, the premises qualifying for protection<sup>10</sup>, and either:
- 66
81. (a) it contains proposals for a statutory tenancy<sup>11</sup>; or
82. (b) it contains notice that, if the tenant is not willing to give up possession at the date of termination of the tenancy of all the property then comprised in the tenancy, the landlord proposes to apply to the court<sup>12</sup>, on one or more of the specified grounds<sup>13</sup>, for possession of the property comprised in the tenancy, and states the ground or grounds on which he proposes to apply<sup>14</sup>.
- 67

Such a notice must invite the tenant, within two months after the giving of the notice, to notify the landlord in writing whether he is willing to give up possession as mentioned in head (2)(b) above<sup>15</sup>.

The date specified need not be the date on which the tenancy could have been brought to an end by a notice to quit at common law: Magdalen and Lasher Charity Trustees, Hastings v Shelower (1968) 19 P & CR 389, CA, applying Commercial Properties Ltd v Wood [1968] 1 QB 15, [1967] 2 All ER 916, CA (decided under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 25). The validity of a landlord's notice depends upon the facts and the exact nature of the tenant's rights, if any, which exist at the date of termination of the tenancy: St Ermins Property Co Ltd v Patel (1997) 75 P & CR 46, [1997] 2 EGLR 61, CA. If the premises qualifying for protection are the whole of the property comprised in the tenancy, then a landlord's notice of termination is effective only when he gives notice specifying when the tenancy of the whole property comes to an end, even though the tenant may be entitled to protection under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) in respect of only part of it: St Ermins Property Co Ltd v Patel (No 2) [2001] EWCA Civ 804, [2002] 1 P & CR 32, [2001] All ER (D) 337 (May), CA. The notice must be addressed to the tenant either expressly by name or implicitly by status as tenant: see R (on the application of Morris) v London Rent Assessment Committee [2002] EWCA Civ 276, [2002] 2 EGLR 13, [2002] All ER (D) 75 (Mar).

The Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 4(1) has effect subject to the provisions of Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1213 et seq post) as to the annulment of notices in certain cases and subject to the provisions of Pt IV (ss 51-70) (as amended) (see PARA 1210 ante) as to the interim continuation of tenancies pending disposal of applications to the court: s 4(1) proviso.

A notice under s 4(1) containing proposals such as are mentioned in s 4(3)(a) (see head (a) in the text) is referred to as a 'landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy'; and a notice under s 4(1) not containing such proposals is referred to as a 'landlord's notice to resume possession': ss 4(5), 22(1). A landlord's notice under s 4 is of no effect if given or served during the currency of a claim to exercise the right to collective enfranchisement under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993 or the right to acquire a new lease of a flat under that Act: see PARAS 1594, 1685 post.

The required periods are different in certain circumstances where a landlord serves a notice proposing a statutory tenancy after he has served a notice to resume possession: see s 14(3), (5); and PARA 1232 post. The periods are also different in certain circumstances where the tenant has made an ineffective claim to acquire the freehold or an extended lease: see PARAS 1434, 1591, 1683 post.

Any such proposals: (1) must be made, and be expressed to be made, on the assumption that the dwelling house will be the premises specified in the landlord's notice in accordance with the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 4(3); (2) are not to be treated as failing to satisfy the requirements of s 4(3) by reason only of a difference between the premises to which the proposals relate and the premises subsequently agreed to be the dwelling house; and, in the event of any such difference, the landlord is not bound by his proposals notwithstanding that they may have been accepted by the tenant: s 7(4). ### 1213. Record of state of repair.

A landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>1</sup> may contain a requirement that, if the tenant<sup>2</sup> retains possession<sup>3</sup>, a record shall be made of the state of repair of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup>. Where the landlord gives such a notice which does not contain such a requirement, then, if the tenant elects to retain possession<sup>5</sup>, his notification in that behalf may include a requirement that a record shall be made of the state of repair of the dwelling house<sup>6</sup>.

Where the tenant retains possession of the dwelling house<sup>7</sup> and either the landlord or the tenant has made a requirement that such a record of the state of repair shall be made<sup>8</sup>, the record must be made as soon as may be after the completion of any initial repairs<sup>9</sup> to be carried out or, in the absence of any agreement or determination requiring the carrying out of initial repairs, as soon as may be after the beginning of the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup>.

In default of agreement between the landlord and the tenant:

- 2499 (1) any record required to be so made must be made by a person appointed by the President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors<sup>11</sup>; and
- 2500 (2) the cost of making any such record must be borne by the landlord and the tenant in equal shares<sup>12</sup>.

A protected long tenancy<sup>1</sup> at a low rent<sup>2</sup> may be brought to an end at its term date<sup>3</sup> by not less than one month's notice in writing given by the tenant<sup>4</sup> to the immediate landlord<sup>5</sup>.

A tenancy continuing after its term date<sup>6</sup> may be brought to an end at any time by not less than one month's notice in writing given by the tenant to the immediate landlord, whether the notice is given after or before the term date of the tenancy<sup>7</sup>.

The fact that the landlord has given a notice to terminate the tenancy<sup>8</sup>, or that the tenant has elected to retain possession<sup>9</sup>, does not prevent the tenant from giving a notice terminating the tenancy at a date earlier than the date of termination<sup>10</sup> specified in the landlord's notice<sup>11</sup>.

(iv) Statutory Tenancy on Termination of Contractual Tenancy

A. NATURE AND TERMS OF STATUTORY TENANCY

1215. Nature of statutory tenancy.

Where a tenancy<sup>1</sup> is terminated by a landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>2</sup>, the Rent Act<sup>3</sup> applies<sup>4</sup> as if the tenancy ('the former tenancy'):

- 2501 (1) had been a tenancy of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup>; and
- 2502 (2) had not been a tenancy at a low rent<sup>6</sup> and, except as regards the duration of the tenancy and the amount of the rent, had been a tenancy on the terms<sup>7</sup> agreed or determined in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions<sup>8</sup> and no other terms<sup>9</sup>.

The Rent Act does not, however, so apply if at the end of the period of two months after the service of the landlord's notice the qualifying condition<sup>10</sup> was not fulfilled as respects the tenancy, unless the tenant<sup>11</sup> has elected to retain possession<sup>12</sup>.

If on the termination of the former tenancy the tenant so retains possession of the dwelling house, any liability, whether of the tenant or of any predecessor in title of his, arising under the terms of the former tenancy is extinguished; but this provision does not affect any liability:

- 2503 (a) for failure to pay rent<sup>13</sup> or rates<sup>14</sup> or to insure or keep insured<sup>15</sup>; or
- 2504 (b) in respect of the use of any premises for immoral or illegal purposes<sup>16</sup>; or any liability under the terms of the former tenancy in so far as those terms related to property other than the dwelling house<sup>17</sup>.

Some relief against liability for past dilapidations is also given by the provisions relating to initial repairs and accrued tenant's repairs<sup>18</sup>.

During the period of the statutory tenancy no order may be made for the recovery of possession of the dwelling house from the tenant in any of the circumstances specified in the Rent Act 1977 s 98(1), Sch 15 Pt I, Cases 1-3 (see PARAS 949-951 ante) by reason only of any act or default occurring before the date of termination of the former tenancy: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 10(2) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 Sch 15; the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 14). ### 1216. Settlement of terms other than rent.

The terms<sup>1</sup> on which the tenant<sup>2</sup> and any successor to his statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup> may retain possession of the dwelling house<sup>4</sup> during that period<sup>5</sup>, other than the amount of the rent, are such as may be agreed between the landlord<sup>6</sup> and the tenant<sup>7</sup> or determined by the court<sup>8</sup>.

A landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>9</sup> and anything done in pursuance of it cease to have effect if by the beginning of the period of two months ending with the date of termination<sup>10</sup> specified in the notice any of the following matters, that is to say:

- 2505 (1) what premises are to constitute the dwelling house;
- 2506 (2) as regards the rent of the dwelling house during the period of the statutory tenancy, the intervals at which instalments of that rent are to be payable, and whether they are to be payable in advance or in arrear<sup>11</sup>;
- 2507 (3) whether any, and if so what, initial repairs<sup>12</sup> are to be carried out on the dwelling house;
- 2508 (4) whether initial repairs to be so carried out are to be carried out by the landlord or by the tenant, or which of them are to be carried out by the landlord and which by the tenant; and
- 2509 (5) the matters required<sup>13</sup> to be agreed or determined in relation to repairs before the beginning of the period of the statutory tenancy, has not been agreed between the landlord and the tenant and no application has been made by the beginning of that period of two months for the determination by the court of such of those matters as have not been agreed<sup>14</sup>. This provision does not, however, have effect if at the end of the period of two months after the service of the landlord's notice the qualifying condition<sup>15</sup> was not fulfilled as respects the tenancy unless the tenant has elected to retain possession<sup>16</sup>.

AND TENANT ACT 1954/(iv) Statutory Tenancy on Termination of Contractual Tenancy/A. NATURE AND TERMS OF STATUTORY TENANCY/1217. Settlement and registration of rent.

1217. Settlement and registration of rent.

Subject to the statutory provisions relating to initial repairs<sup>1</sup> and subject to the operation, as regards the fixing of a fair rent<sup>2</sup> and otherwise, of the Rent Act 1977, the amount of the rent payable under a regulated tenancy arising by virtue of the statutory protection for long tenancies at low rents<sup>3</sup> is such amount as may be agreed between the landlord<sup>4</sup> and the tenant<sup>5</sup> or, in default of agreement, the same amount as the rent last payable under the long tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

In relation to a rent registered<sup>7</sup> or to be registered for a dwelling house<sup>8</sup> on an application made with reference to a regulated tenancy so arising, the Rent Act 1977 has effect subject to the following provisions<sup>9</sup>.

An application for the registration of a rent may be made by the landlord or the tenant, or jointly by the landlord and the tenant, before the commencement of the statutory tenancy, but not before the terms of that tenancy other than the amount of the rent have been agreed or determined<sup>10</sup> in accordance with the relevant statutory requirements<sup>11</sup>. Where a rent is registered in pursuance of an application so made, a notice<sup>12</sup> increasing the rent payable may, if the notice is given within four weeks after the date on which the rent is registered, specify as the date from which the increase is to take effect any date not earlier than the commencement of the tenancy nor earlier than the date from which the registration takes effect<sup>13</sup>.

Where initial repairs<sup>14</sup> remain to be carried out to the dwelling house, then, in determining what rent is or would be a fair rent, regard must be had<sup>15</sup> to the state of repair which may be expected to subsist after the completion of the initial repairs<sup>16</sup>.

Any entry in the register of a rent or of its confirmation by the rent assessment committee<sup>17</sup> must indicate that the rent is registered on an application made with reference to<sup>18</sup> a statutory tenancy<sup>19</sup>.

1218. Determination of terms by the court.

An application to the court<sup>1</sup> to settle the terms<sup>2</sup>, other than rent<sup>3</sup>, of a statutory tenancy must be made by the landlord<sup>4</sup>; and

- 2510 (1) must be made during the currency of the landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup> and not earlier than two months after the giving thereof but, if the tenant has elected to retain possession<sup>6</sup>, it may be made at a time not earlier than one month after the giving of the notice;

2511 (2) may not be made for the determination of any matter as to which agreement<sup>7</sup> has already been reached between the landlord and the tenant<sup>8</sup>.

Any obligations imposed by the court as to keeping the dwelling house<sup>9</sup> in repair during the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup> must not be such as to require the dwelling house to be kept in a better state of repair<sup>11</sup> than the state which may be expected to subsist after the completion of any initial repairs<sup>12</sup> to be carried out or, in the absence of any agreement or determination requiring the carrying out of initial repairs, in a better state of repair than the state subsisting at the time of the court's determination of what obligations are to be imposed<sup>13</sup>.

B. INITIAL REPAIRS AND ACCRUED TENANT'S REPAIRS

(A) INITIAL REPAIRS

1219. Terms as to initial repairs.

The landlord<sup>1</sup> and the tenant<sup>2</sup> may agree<sup>3</sup>, or the court<sup>4</sup> may determine, that the terms of the statutory tenancy are to include a term that specified repairs<sup>5</sup> ('initial repairs') be carried out<sup>6</sup>.

The landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup> must contain proposals as to what initial repairs, if any, are to be done and who is to do them<sup>8</sup>.

Where it falls to the court to determine what initial repairs, if any, should be carried out by the landlord, the court may not, except with the consent of the landlord and the tenant, require the carrying out of initial repairs in excess of what is required to bring the dwelling house<sup>9</sup> into good repair<sup>10</sup> or the carrying out of any repairs not specified by the landlord in his application as repairs which he is willing to carry out<sup>11</sup>.

The court does not have power<sup>12</sup> to determine that any initial repairs shall be carried out by the tenant except with his consent<sup>13</sup>.

It may be made a condition either of the giving of consent by a person whose consent is required<sup>14</sup> or of the making of an order dispensing with such a consent<sup>15</sup> that the initial repairs which the competent landlord<sup>16</sup> will agree to carry out or which, as the case may be, he will specify<sup>17</sup> as repairs which he is willing to carry out, shall include such repairs as may be specified in the consent or order<sup>18</sup>. In so far as any cost reasonably incurred by the competent landlord in carrying out such repairs is not recovered by way of payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>19</sup> and is not recoverable otherwise than by way of such payment, it is recoverable by the competent landlord from the person whose consent was or is deemed to have been given subject to the condition or, if he is dead, from his personal representatives as a debt due from him at the time of his death<sup>20</sup>.

Where the competent landlord is required by an agreement or by a determination of the court to carry out initial repairs to any premises, he may serve on any mesne landlord<sup>21</sup> a notice requiring him to pay to the competent landlord a contribution towards the cost reasonably incurred by the competent landlord in carrying out those repairs, if and in so far as that cost is not recovered by way of payment for accrued tenant's repairs and is not recoverable<sup>22</sup> otherwise than by way of such payment<sup>23</sup>. Where a notice has been so served, then, in default of agreement between the competent landlord and the mesne landlord on whom the notice was served, the court may order the mesne landlord to pay such a contribution<sup>24</sup>; and a contribution so ordered must be such as the court determines to be reasonable having regard to the difference between the rent under the relevant tenancy<sup>25</sup> and the rent which, if the tenant retains possession, will be recoverable during the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>26</sup>.

Any amount paid by a mortgagee<sup>27</sup> in respect of expenses incurred in carrying out initial repairs in accordance with an agreement or determination<sup>28</sup> is treated as if it were secured by the mortgage<sup>29</sup> with the like priority and with interest at the same rate as the mortgage money; but, without prejudice to the recovery of interest, any such amount is not recoverable from the mortgagor personally<sup>30</sup>.

1220. Landlord's failure to carry out initial repairs.

Where:

- 2512 (1) the tenant<sup>1</sup> retains possession<sup>2</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>3</sup>; and then, if on an application made by the tenant during the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>7</sup> the court is satisfied that the initial repairs have not been carried out within a reasonable time in accordance with the agreement or determination, the court may by order direct that, until the discharge of the order or the end of the period of the statutory tenancy, whichever first occurs, the rent payable in respect of the dwelling house shall be reduced to such amount specified in the order as the court thinks just having regard to the extent to which the landlord has failed to comply with the agreement or determination<sup>8</sup>.

Where the court so orders a reduction of rent, the court may further order that during the same period any instalments of a payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>9</sup> shall be suspended<sup>10</sup>. Such an order may include a provision that the reduction of rent shall take effect from a specified date before the making of the order, being such date as the court thinks just having regard to the landlord's delay in carrying out the initial repairs<sup>11</sup>.

Where such an order is in force, and on an application by the landlord the court is satisfied that the initial repairs have been carried out in accordance with the agreement or determination, the court must discharge the order<sup>12</sup>. If, while such an order is in force, it is agreed between the landlord and the tenant that the initial repairs in question have been carried out in accordance with the agreement or determination, the order is discharged by virtue of that agreement in the like manner as if it had been discharged by the court<sup>13</sup>.

Where, in consequence of the failure of the competent landlord<sup>14</sup> to carry out initial repairs, the amount of any payment of rent is so reduced, and the competent landlord is not the immediate landlord of the tenant, the person who is for the time being the immediate landlord is entitled to recover from the competent landlord the amount of the reduction<sup>15</sup>.

(B) ACCRUED TENANT'S REPAIRS

1222. Payment for accrued tenant's repairs.

Where it is agreed<sup>1</sup> between the landlord and the tenant, or determined by the court, that the terms of the statutory tenancy shall include the carrying out of specified repairs ('initial repairs'), and any of the initial repairs are required in consequence of the failure by the tenant to fulfil his obligations under the former tenancy<sup>2</sup>, the landlord is entitled to a payment (a 'payment for accrued tenant's repairs') of an amount equal to the cost reasonably incurred by the landlord in ascertaining what repairs are so required and in carrying out such of the initial repairs as are so required and as respects which it has been agreed or determined that they are to be carried out by the landlord, excluding any part of that cost which is recoverable by the landlord otherwise than from the tenant or his predecessor in title<sup>3</sup>.

A payment for accrued tenant's repairs may be made either by instalments or otherwise, as may be so agreed or determined<sup>4</sup>.

The landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>5</sup> must deal<sup>6</sup> with:

- 2514 (1) which of the initial repairs, if any, are required in consequence of failure by the tenant to fulfil his obligations under the former tenancy and, where there are any initial repairs so required, the amount to be included in the payment for accrued tenant's repairs in respect of the cost incurred by the landlord in ascertaining what initial repairs are so required;
- 2515 (2) the estimated cost of the repairs so required in so far as they are to be carried out by the landlord;
- 2516 (3) whether any payment for accrued tenant's repairs is to be payable by instalments or otherwise and, if by instalments, the amount of each instalment, subject to any necessary reduction of the last, the time at which the first is to be payable and the frequency of the instalments;
- 2517 (4) whether there are to be any, and if so what, obligations as respects the repair of the dwelling house<sup>7</sup> during the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>8</sup>, other than the execution of initial repairs<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions<sup>10</sup>, the obligations of the landlord and the tenant as respects the repair of the dwelling house during the period of the statutory tenancy are such as may be agreed between them or determined by the court<sup>11</sup>.

INITIAL REPAIRS AND ACCRUED TENANT'S REPAIRS/(B) Accrued Tenant's Repairs/1223. Payment in lump sum.

1223. Payment in lump sum.

A payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>1</sup> which is to be payable otherwise than by instalments becomes payable<sup>2</sup> when the relevant initial repairs<sup>3</sup> have been completed unless the landlord<sup>4</sup> and the tenant<sup>5</sup> agree<sup>6</sup> that it shall become payable wholly or in part at some other date<sup>7</sup>.

Where it is determined by the court that a payment for accrued tenant's repairs is to be payable otherwise than by instalments, the court may determine that any specified part of the payment shall become payable when any specified part of the relevant initial repairs has been completed<sup>8</sup>.

A payment for accrued tenant's repairs which is payable otherwise than by instalments, or any part of such a payment, is recoverable from the tenant<sup>9</sup>.

Where it has been agreed or determined that a payment for accrued tenant's repairs should be paid otherwise than by instalments, and the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>10</sup> ends before the relevant initial repairs have been begun, or at a time when they have been begun but not completed, the following provisions have effect<sup>11</sup>. If the relevant initial repairs have not been begun and are no longer required<sup>12</sup>, no payment for accrued tenant's repairs is<sup>13</sup> recoverable<sup>14</sup>. In any other case, the time for recovery of the payment for accrued tenant's repairs is the same as if all the relevant initial repairs had been completed immediately before the end of the period of the statutory tenancy, and the amount of the payment is:

- 2518 (1) if the relevant initial repairs have not been begun, the estimated cost of the repairs or of so much thereof as is still required;
- 2519 (2) if the relevant initial repairs have been begun but not completed, an amount equal to the expenses reasonably incurred by the landlord for the purposes of so much of the relevant initial repairs as has been carried out together, unless the remainder is no longer required, with the estimated cost of the remainder or of so much of it as is still required; but there must be disregarded so much, if any, of such expenses or estimated cost as is recoverable by the landlord otherwise than from the tenant or his predecessor in title<sup>15</sup>.

Any question arising under the above provisions<sup>16</sup> whether repairs are no longer required, whether any expenses were incurred, or reasonably incurred, by the landlord, or as to the amount of the estimated cost of any repairs must be determined by agreement between the landlord and the tenant or by the court on the application of either of them<sup>17</sup>.

In a case falling within Sch 1 para 4(1) where a payment for accrued tenant's repairs would otherwise include an amount in respect of cost incurred by the landlord in ascertaining what initial repairs are required in consequence of a failure by the tenant to fulfil his obligations under the former tenancy, the following provisions have effect: (1) that amount is recoverable notwithstanding anything in Sch 1 para 4(2); (2) in a case falling within Sch 1 para 4(3), such amount is recoverable in addition to the amount specified therein; (3) the time for recovery of such amount is, as well in a case falling within Sch 1 para 4(2) as in one falling within Sch 1 para 4(3), that mentioned in Sch 1 para 4(3): Sch 1 para 4(6). For the meaning of 'the former tenancy' see PARA 1215 ante.
- 12 For these purposes, initial repairs are deemed to be no longer required after the end of the period of the statutory tenancy if, and only if, it is shown that the dwelling house, in whatever state of repair it may then be, is at or shortly after the end of that period to be pulled down, or that such structural alterations are to be made in the dwelling house as would render those repairs valueless if they were completed: ibid Sch 1 para 4(5). For the meaning of 'the dwelling house' see PARA 1205 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of references to the state of repair see PARA 760 note 12 ante.
- 13 le notwithstanding anything in ibid s 8: see PARA 1222 ante.
- 14 Ibid Sch 1 para 4(2). See also note 11 supra. In relation to a case where the court exercises the power conferred by Sch 1 para 2, references in Sch 1 para 4 to the relevant initial repairs are to be construed as references to any such part of those repairs as is referred to in Sch 1 para 2, being a part which at the material time has not been begun or, as the case may be, has been begun but not completed; and references to the payment for accrued tenant's repairs are to be construed accordingly: Sch 1 para 5.

1224. Payment by instalments.

Where it is agreed or determined<sup>1</sup> that a payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>2</sup> is to be payable by instalments, the instalments become payable at the times so agreed or determined<sup>3</sup>. Any such instalment becoming payable at a time falling before the end of the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>4</sup> is payable by the tenant<sup>5</sup>.

Where the landlord<sup>6</sup> is not the immediate landlord<sup>7</sup> of the dwelling house, the landlord and the immediate landlord may serve on the tenant a notice in the prescribed form<sup>8</sup> requiring him to pay the instalments of the payment for the accrued tenant's repairs to the immediate landlord for transmission to the landlord<sup>9</sup>; and any such notice may be revoked by a subsequent notice given to the tenant by the landlord, with or without the concurrence of the immediate landlord<sup>10</sup>.

Any instalment becoming payable at a time when the landlord is the immediate landlord or when a notice<sup>11</sup> is in force is recoverable by the immediate landlord in the like manner and subject to the like provisions as the rent<sup>12</sup>.

If the period of the statutory tenancy comes to an end before all instalments of the payment for accrued tenant's repairs have been paid, the remaining instalments become payable immediately after the end of that period, are recoverable by the person who immediately before the end thereof was the landlord, and are so recoverable from the person who immediately before the end thereof was the tenant<sup>13</sup>.

Where, during the period of the statutory tenancy and before all instalments of the payment for accrued tenant's repairs have become payable, the interest of the landlord comes to an end or ceases to be a specified interest<sup>14</sup>, he is thereupon entitled to recover from the person who thereupon becomes the landlord such amount, if any, as is equal to so much of the expenses reasonably incurred by the landlord:

- 2520 (1) in ascertaining what initial repairs are required in consequence of failure by the tenant to fulfil his obligations under the former tenancy<sup>15</sup>; and
- 2521 (2) for the purposes of the relevant initial repairs, as is recoverable from the tenant and has not been recovered<sup>16</sup>.

1225. Variation of agreement or determination as to time for making payment.

The tenant<sup>1</sup> may apply to the court<sup>2</sup> for the variation, on the grounds and to the extent specified below, of any agreement or determination for the making of a payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>3</sup>.

The grounds on which an agreement or determination may be varied on such an application are the following:

- 2522 (1) that the expenditure reasonably incurred by the landlord<sup>4</sup> in carrying out the relevant initial repairs<sup>5</sup> substantially exceeded the estimated cost thereof; or
- 2523 (2) that the applicant is not the person who was the tenant at the time of the previous agreement or determination and that there are considerations arising out of the personal circumstances of the applicant which ought to be taken into account in determining the manner of making the payment<sup>6</sup>.

The extent to which an agreement or determination may be so varied on such an application is the following:

- 2524 (a) if the agreement or determination was for the making of the payment otherwise than by instalments, and the payment has not been fully made, by substituting therefor a determination that the payment or balance of the payment should be made by instalments;
- 2525 (b) if the agreement or determination was for the making of a payment by instalments, by substituting for the instalments agreed or determined instalments of such smaller amounts, payable at such times, as may be determined by the court<sup>7</sup>.

Where an agreement or determination is so varied, the statutory provisions as to the making of payments<sup>8</sup> thereafter apply with the necessary modifications<sup>9</sup>.

A. POSSESSION

1227. In general.

The grounds on which a landlord<sup>1</sup> may apply to the court<sup>2</sup> for possession of the property comprised in a protected long tenancy<sup>3</sup> at a low rent<sup>4</sup> are the following:

- 2526 (1) that for purposes of redevelopment after the termination of the tenancy the landlord proposes to demolish or reconstruct the whole or a substantial part of the relevant premises<sup>5</sup>;
- 2527 (2) the specified<sup>6</sup> statutory grounds<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>5</sup> Ibid s 12(1)(a). For these purposes, 'the relevant premises' means (1) as respects any time after the term date, the premises of which, if the tenancy were not one at a low rent, the tenant would have been entitled to retain possession by virtue of the Rent Act after the coming to an end of the tenancy at the term date; (2) as respects any time before the term date, the premises agreed between the landlord and the tenant or determined by the court to be likely to be the premises of which, if the tenancy were not one at a low rent, the tenant would be entitled so to retain possession: s 12(2) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 s 117(2), Sch 15). For the meaning of 'term date' see PARA 1201 note 7 ante; and for the meaning of 'the Rent Act' see PARA 1196 note 7 ante.

<sup>6</sup> I.e. the grounds specified in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 12(1), Sch 3: see PARA 1228 post at heads (1)-(4) in the text. Those grounds correspond, subject to the necessary modifications, to the Rent Act 1977 s 98, Sch 15 Pt I, Cases 1-9 (as amended) (see PARAS 949-956 ante) which specify circumstances in which the court may make an order for possession under the Rent Act 1977: Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 12(1)(b) (amended by the Rent Act 1968 Sch 15; the Rent Act 1977 s 155(2), Sch 23 para 15). This statement is, however, misleading. Where the grounds do not correspond, there are appropriate cross-references to the appropriate provisions of the Rent Act 1977.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(v) Possession; Relief against Enforcement of Covenants/A. POSSESSION/1228. Specified grounds for possession.

1228. Specified grounds for possession.

The grounds<sup>1</sup> on which the landlord<sup>2</sup> may apply to the court<sup>3</sup> for possession of the property comprised in the protected long tenancy<sup>4</sup> at a low rent<sup>5</sup> are:

- 2528 (1) that suitable alternative accommodation<sup>6</sup> will be available for the tenant<sup>7</sup> at the date of termination of the tenancy<sup>8</sup>;
- 2529 (2) that the tenant has failed to comply with any term<sup>9</sup> of the tenancy<sup>10</sup> as to payment of rent or rates or as to insuring or keeping insured any premises<sup>11</sup>;
- 2530 (3) that the tenant or a person residing or lodging with him or being his subtenant has been guilty of conduct which is a nuisance or annoyance to adjoining occupiers, or has been convicted of using any premises comprised in the tenancy or allowing such premises to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose and, where the person in question is a lodger or subtenant, that the tenant has not taken such steps as he ought reasonably to have taken for the removal of the lodger or subtenant<sup>12</sup>; and
- 2531 (4) that premises comprised in the tenancy, and consisting of or including the relevant premises<sup>13</sup>, are reasonably required by the landlord for occupation as a residence for himself, or any son or daughter of his over 18 years of age, or his father or mother, or the father or mother of his spouse or civil partner and, if the landlord is not the immediate landlord<sup>14</sup>, that he will be the immediate landlord at the date of termination<sup>15</sup>.

Where the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession specified in the landlord's notice was one mentioned in heads (1) to (4) above, then, if on an application to the court, the court is satisfied that the landlord has established that ground and that it is reasonable that the landlord should be granted possession, the court must order that the tenant shall, on the termination of the tenancy, give up possession of all the property then comprised in the tenancy<sup>16</sup>.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(1) THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT 1954/(v) Possession; Relief against Enforcement of Covenants/A. POSSESSION/1229. Possession on the ground of redevelopment.

1229. Possession on the ground of redevelopment.

Where the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession specified in the landlord's notice was that for the purposes of redevelopment after the termination of the tenancy the landlord proposes to demolish or reconstruct the whole or a substantial part of the relevant premises<sup>1</sup>, then, if on such an application the court<sup>2</sup> is satisfied that the landlord has established that ground as respects premises specified in the application, and is further satisfied:

2532 (1) that on that ground possession of the premises will be required by the landlord on the termination of the tenancy; and

2533 (2) that the landlord has made such preparations, including the obtaining or, if that is not reasonably practicable in the circumstances, preparations relating to the obtaining, of any requisite permission or consent, whether from any authority whose permission or consent is required under any enactment or from the owner of any interest in any property, for proceeding with the redevelopment as are reasonable in the circumstances, the court must order that the tenant<sup>3</sup> shall, on the termination of the tenancy, give up possession of all the property then comprised in the tenancy<sup>4</sup>.

Where in such a case the court is not so satisfied, but would be satisfied if the date of termination of the tenancy had been such date ('the postponed date') as the court may determine, being a date later, but not more than one year later, than the date of termination specified in the landlord's notice, then, if the landlord so requires, the court must, if the landlord so requires, make an order specifying the postponed date and otherwise to the following effect:

- 2534 (a) that the tenancy shall not come to an end on the date of termination<sup>5</sup> specified in the landlord's notice but shall continue thereafter, as respects the whole of the property comprised therein, at the same rent and in other respects on the same terms as before that date;
- 2535 (b) that, unless the tenancy comes to an end before the postponed date, the tenant shall on that date give up possession of all the property then comprised in the tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

1 Where the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession was that mentioned in the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 12(1)(a): see PARA 1227 ante. For the meaning of 'tenancy' see PARA 706 note 2 ante; for the meaning of 'the landlord' see PARA 1205 ante; and for the meaning of 'the relevant premises' see PARA 1227 note 5 ante.

The grounds on which a landlord may apply to the court for possession of property comprised in a tenancy, and which may accordingly under s 4 (see PARA 1212 ante) be specified in a landlord's notice to resume possession, in the case of applications made after 27 November 1967, do not include the ground mentioned in s 12(1)(a) except where the landlord seeking to obtain possession is a body to which the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 28 (as amended) (see PARA 1487 post) applies and the property is required for relevant development within the meaning of s 28 (as amended) (see PARA 1487 note 13 post); but on any application by such a body under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 13 (see PARA 1230 post) for possession on that ground a certificate by a Minister of the Crown as provided by the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 28(1) is conclusive that the property is so required: s 38(1).

2 As to the court having jurisdiction see PARA 1197 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'the tenant' see PARA 1208 ante.

4 Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 13(2). Nothing in s 13(2) or s 13(3) prejudices any power of the tenant under s 5 (see PARA 1214 ante) to terminate the tenancy; and s 13(2) applies where the tenancy is continued by an order of the court under s 13(3) as it applies where the tenancy is continued by virtue of s 3 (as amended: see PARA 1209 ante): s 13(5).

For similar provisions under Pt II (ss 23-46) (as amended) see PARAS 741-744 ante. Cases under those provisions must, however, be applied with care as there are differences in the respective language used, eg 'proposes to demolish or reconstruct' is less burdensome than 'intends': Magdalen and Lasher Charity Trustees, Hastings v Shelower (1968) 19 P & CR 389, CA.

1232. Effect of refusal of order.

The following provisions have effect where a landlord's notice to resume possession has been served and either:

- 2538 (1) the tenant elects to retain possession; or
- 2539 (2) at the end of the period of two months after the service of the landlord's notice the qualifying condition is fulfilled as respects the tenancy<sup>1</sup>, and the landlord does not obtain an order<sup>2</sup> for possession<sup>3</sup>.

If, at the expiration of the period within which an application<sup>4</sup> may be made, the landlord has not made such an application, the landlord's notice and anything done in pursuance thereof cease thereupon to have effect<sup>5</sup>. If, before the expiration of that period, the landlord has made an application, but the result of the application, at the time when it is finally disposed of<sup>6</sup>, is that no order is made, the landlord's notice ceases to have effect; but, if within one month after the application to the court<sup>7</sup> is finally disposed of the landlord gives a landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy<sup>8</sup>, the earliest date which may be specified therein as the date of termination<sup>9</sup> is<sup>10</sup> the expiration of three months from the giving of the subsequent notice<sup>11</sup>.

A landlord's notice to resume possession may be withdrawn at any time by notice in writing served on the tenant<sup>12</sup>; and, if within one month of the withdrawal of a landlord's notice to resume possession the landlord gives a landlord's notice proposing a statutory tenancy, the earliest date which may be specified therein as the date of termination is<sup>13</sup> the expiration of three months from the giving of subsequent notice or six months from the giving of the withdrawn notice, whichever is the later<sup>14</sup>.

B. RELIEF AGAINST ENFORCEMENT OF COVENANTS

1233. Relief for tenant where landlord proceeding to enforce covenants.

Where, in the case of a protected long tenancy<sup>1</sup> at a low rent<sup>2</sup>:

2540 (1) the immediate landlord<sup>3</sup> has brought proceedings to enforce a right of re-entry or forfeiture or a right to damages in respect of a failure to comply with any terms<sup>4</sup> of the tenancy<sup>5</sup>;

2541 (2) the tenant has made application in the proceedings for relief; and

2542 (3) the court<sup>6</sup> makes an order for the recovery from the tenant of possession of the property comprised in the tenancy or for the payment by the tenant of such damages, and the order is made at a time earlier than seven months before the term date<sup>7</sup> of the tenancy, the operation of the order is suspended for a period of 14 days from the making thereof; and, if before the end of that period the tenant gives notice in writing to the immediate landlord that he desires the following provisions<sup>8</sup> to have effect, and lodges a copy of the notice in the court:

2543 (a) the order does not thereafter have effect except if and in so far as it provides for the payment of costs; and

2544 (b) the tenancy thereafter has effect, and the statutory provisions relating to the security of tenure of occupying tenants of residential properties under long leases at low rents<sup>9</sup> have effect in relation thereto, as if it had been granted for a term expiring at the expiration of seven months from the making of the order<sup>10</sup>.

In any case falling within heads (1) and (2) above, the court may not make any such order as is mentioned in head (3) above unless the time of the making of the order falls earlier than seven months before the term date of the tenancy; but this does not prevent<sup>11</sup> the making of an order for damages in respect of a failure, as respects any premises, to comply with the terms of a tenancy if, at the time when the order is made, the tenancy has come to an end as respects those premises<sup>12</sup>.

The above provisions do not have effect in relation to a failure to comply with:

- 2545 (i) any term of a tenancy as to payment of rent or rates or as to insuring or keeping insured any premises<sup>13</sup>; or
- 2546 (ii) any term restricting the use of any premises for immoral or illegal purposes<sup>14</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions prejudices any right to apply for relief under any other enactment<sup>15</sup>.

the tenant<sup>7</sup> is not required to give up possession unless he has been a party to the proceedings or has been given notice of the order; and the following provisions<sup>8</sup> have effect where he has been such a party or has been given such a notice<sup>9</sup>. Where, however, the tenant has been a party to the proceedings, the following provisions do not apply unless he has at any time before the making of the order made application in the proceedings for relief<sup>10</sup>.

1236. Covenants in superior leases.

Where the tenant<sup>1</sup> obtains a statutory tenancy so that his liability on the covenants in the original lease is extinguished and thereafter he holds on the terms<sup>2</sup> of the statutory tenancy<sup>3</sup>, any terms of any tenancy owned by the competent landlord<sup>4</sup> or by any other landlord<sup>5</sup>, whether to be performed during that tenancy or on or after the expiration or determination thereof<sup>6</sup>, cease to have effect in so far as they relate to the premises constituting the dwelling house; and any liability of the competent landlord or any mesne landlord<sup>7</sup> or of any predecessor in title of the competent landlord or any mesne landlord, under any such terms, is deemed, in so far as it related to those premises and was a liability subsisting at the termination of the relevant tenancy<sup>8</sup>, to have been extinguished on the termination of that tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

Where in such a case the competent landlord satisfies the court<sup>10</sup>:

- 2558 (1) that the obligations under the tenancy which in relation to him is the immediate mesne tenancy<sup>11</sup> differ from the obligations under the relevant tenancy; and
- 2559 (2) that, if the obligations under the relevant tenancy had been the same as those under the first-mentioned tenancy, he would have been entitled to recover any amount by way of payment for accrued tenant's repairs<sup>12</sup> which he is not entitled to recover, he is entitled to recover that amount from the tenant under the first-mentioned tenancy or, if that tenancy has come to an end, from the person who was the tenant under it immediately before it came to an end<sup>13</sup>.

If, however, the interest of the competent landlord, being a tenancy, or the interest of any mesne landlord, has not come to an end by the end of the period of the statutory tenancy<sup>14</sup>, and the terms on which that interest was held included an obligation to repair or maintain the dwelling house or the dwelling house and other premises, then as from the end of the statutory tenancy the instrument creating the interest of the competent landlord or mesne landlord is deemed to contain a covenant with the grantor of the interest that the grantee of the interest will at all times maintain the dwelling house in a state of repair no less good than that in which it was after the completion of any initial repairs<sup>15</sup> to be carried out thereon in accordance with the statutory provisions<sup>16</sup> and will yield up possession of the dwelling house in such a state on the coming to an end of the interest of that landlord<sup>17</sup>.

(2) THE

(i) Application of the Statutory Protection

1237. In general.

The provisions of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 relating to long residential tenancies<sup>1</sup> have effect<sup>2</sup> to confer security of tenure on certain tenants under long tenancies and, in particular, to establish assured periodic tenancies when such long tenancies come to an end<sup>3</sup>. Those provisions apply<sup>4</sup> to a tenancy of a dwelling house which is:

- 2560 (1) a long tenancy<sup>5</sup> at a low rent<sup>6</sup>; and
- 2561 (2) entered into on or after 1 April 1990<sup>7</sup> otherwise than in pursuance of a contract made before that day<sup>8</sup>.

If a tenancy:

- 2562 (a) was in existence on 15 January 1999; and
- 2563 (b) does not fall within heads (1) and (2) above; and
- 2564 (c) immediately before that date was, or was deemed to be, a long tenancy at a low rent for the purposes of Part I of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954<sup>9</sup>, then, on and after that date, and so far as concerns any notice specifying a date of termination on or after that date and any steps taken in consequence thereof, the relevant provisions of that Act<sup>10</sup> ceased to apply to it and the relevant provisions of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989<sup>11</sup> apply to it unless, before that date, the landlord had served a notice<sup>12</sup> specifying a date of termination which was earlier than that date<sup>13</sup>.

Where, however, a new lease has been granted under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993<sup>14</sup>, none of the statutory provisions relating to security of tenure for tenants apply to the lease, and after the term date of the lease the statutory protection for long residential tenancies<sup>15</sup> does not apply to any sublease directly or indirectly derived out of the lease<sup>16</sup>.

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(2) THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND HOUSING ACT 1989/(i) Application of the Statutory Protection/1241. Agreements as to the grant of new tenancies.

1241. Agreements as to the grant of new tenancies.

In any case where, prior to the date of termination<sup>1</sup> of a long residential tenancy<sup>2</sup>, the landlord<sup>3</sup> and the tenant<sup>4</sup> agree for the grant to the tenant of a future tenancy of the whole or part of the property let<sup>5</sup> under the tenancy at a rent other than a low rent<sup>6</sup> and on terms and from a date specified in the agreement, the tenancy continues until that date but no longer; and, in such a case, the statutory provisions relating to long residential tenancies<sup>7</sup> cease to apply in relation to the tenancy with effect from the date of the agreement<sup>8</sup>.

1    For these purposes, 'the date of termination' has the meaning assigned by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 4(4) (see PARA 1250 note 8 post): Sch 10 para 2(1), (6).

2    For the meaning of 'long residential tenancy' see PARA 1244 post.

3    For these purposes (1) 'landlord' is to be construed in accordance with the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 19(1) (see PARA 1238 ante at head (1) in the text) (Sch 10 para 2(1), (6)); (2) except where the context otherwise requires, (a) 'landlord' includes any person from time to time deriving title under the original landlord and also includes, in relation to a dwelling house, any person other than a tenant who is or, but for the existence of an assured tenancy would be, entitled to possession of the dwelling house; and (b) where two or more persons jointly constitute the landlord in relation to a tenancy, any reference to the landlord is a reference to all the persons who jointly constitute the landlord (Housing Act 1988 s 45(1), (3) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 2(1), (2)). For the meaning of 'tenant' see note 4 infra; for the meaning of 'tenancy' see note 5 infra; and for the meaning of 'assured tenancy' see PARA 1018 ante.

4    For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'tenant' includes a subtenant and any person deriving title under the original tenant or subtenant; and, where two or more persons jointly constitute the tenant in relation to a tenancy, any reference to the tenant is a reference to all the persons who jointly constitute the tenant: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1), (3) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 2(1), (2)).

5 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'let' includes 'sublet': Housing Act 1988 s 45(1) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 2(1), (2)). In determining for the purposes of any provision of Sch 10 (as amended) whether the property let as a tenancy was let as a separate dwelling, the nature of the property at the time of the creation of the tenancy is deemed to have been the same as its nature at the time in relation to which the question arises; and the purpose for which it was let under the tenancy is deemed to have been the same as the purpose for which it is or was used at the last-mentioned time: Sch 10 para 1(7). Except where the context otherwise requires, 'tenancy' includes a subtenancy and an agreement for a tenancy or subtenancy: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 2(1), (2)).

Any power to make regulations conferred by any relevant statutory provision<sup>1</sup> is exercisable by statutory instrument<sup>2</sup>. 1     I.e. any provision of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989: see PARA 1237 et seq ante; the text and notes 2-3 infra; and PARA 1244 et seq post.

2     Ibid s 190(2). A statutory instrument containing regulations under s 186(1), Sch 10 (as amended) (see PARA 1238 et seq ante, PARA 1244 et seq post) is not, however, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 190(2).

3     Ibid s 190(1). Where any provision of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 which extends to England and Wales confers, directly or by amendment of another Act, a power on the Secretary of State to make regulations, orders, rules or determinations or to give directions or specify any matter, the power may be exercised differently for England and Wales, whether or not it is exercised separately: s 191(1). Section 191 is without prejudice to s 190(1) and to any other provision of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 or of any Act amended thereby by virtue of which powers may be exercised differently in different cases or in any other circumstances: s 191(2). As to the transfer of functions of the Secretary of State under ss 190, 191, Sch 10 (as amended) so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante; and as to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante.

The Local Government and Housing Act 1989 applies to the Isles of Scilly subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as the Secretary of State may by order direct; and the power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 193(1), (2). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made.

(ii) Qualification for Protection

1244. The qualifying condition.

The statutory provisions relating to long residential tenancies<sup>1</sup> apply to a long tenancy<sup>2</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>3</sup> at a low rent<sup>4</sup> as respects which for the time being the following condition ('the qualifying condition') is fulfilled, that is to say that the circumstances, as respects the property let<sup>5</sup> under the tenancy, the use of that property and all other relevant matters, are such that, if the tenancy were not at a low rent, it would at that time be an assured tenancy within the meaning of Part I<sup>6</sup> of the Housing Act 1988<sup>7</sup>. A tenancy to which those statutory provisions<sup>8</sup> apply is referred to as a long residential tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

Anything authorised or required to be done<sup>10</sup> in relation to a long residential tenancy, if done before the term date<sup>11</sup> in relation to a long tenancy of a dwelling house at a low rent, is not to be treated as invalid by reason only that at the time at which it was done the qualifying condition was not fulfilled as respects the tenancy<sup>12</sup>.

1     I.e. the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 (as amended): see PARA 1238 et seq ante; the text and notes 2-12 infra; and PARA 1245 et seq post.

2     For the meaning of 'long tenancy' see PARA 1245 post.

3 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'dwelling house' may be a house or part of a house: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 2(1), (2)).

For the purpose only of determining whether the qualifying condition is fulfilled: (1) with respect to a tenancy, the Housing Act 1988 s 1, Sch 1 (as amended) (tenancies which cannot be assured tenancies: see PARA 1024 et seq ante) has effect with the omission of Sch 1 para 1 (exclusion of tenancies entered into before, or pursuant to contracts made before, 15 January 1989) (Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 1(2)); (2) with respect to a tenancy which is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the dwelling house had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, for the Housing Act 1988 Sch 1 para 2(1)(b), (2) (as substituted) there is to be substituted: '(b) where (on the date the contract for the grant of the tenancy was made or, if there was no such contract, on the date the tenancy was entered into) R exceeded £25,000 under the formula:

where P is the premium payable as a condition of the grant of the tenancy (and includes a payment of money's worth) or, where no premium is payable, zero; I is 0.06; T is the term, expressed in years, granted by the tenancy (disregarding any right to terminate the tenancy before the end of the term or to extend the tenancy)': Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 1(2A) (Sch 10 paras 1(2A), (8) added by the References to Rating (Housing) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/434, reg 2, Schedule paras 31, 32). The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister may by order replace the number in the definition of 'I' in the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 1 (2A) (as so added) and any amount referred to therein by such number or amount as is specified in the order; and such an order must be made by the statutory instrument which is subject' if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Sch 10 para 1(8) (as so added). 11 For these purposes, 'term date', in relation to a tenancy granted for a term of years certain, means the date of expiry of that term: ibid Sch 10 para 2(1), (6). In relation, however, to any such tenancy as is mentioned in Sch 10 para 16(2) (see PARA 1245 post), 'term date' means the first date after 1 April 1990 on which the tenancy could, apart from Sch 10 (as amended), have been brought to an end by notice to quit given by the landlord: Sch 10 para 2(6) (substituted for these purposes by Sch 10 para 16(3)). LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(2) THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND HOUSING ACT 1989/(ii) Qualification for Protection/1245. Meaning of 'long tenancy'; tenancies granted in continuation of long tenancies.

1245. Meaning of 'long tenancy'; tenancies granted in continuation of long tenancies.

'Long tenancy' means a tenancy<sup>1</sup> granted for a term of years certain exceeding 21 years, whether or not subsequently extended by act of the parties or by any enactment, but excluding any tenancy which is, or may become, terminable before the end of the term by notice given to the tenant<sup>2</sup>.

Where on the coming to the end of a tenancy at a low rent<sup>3</sup> the person who was the tenant immediately before the coming to an end thereof becomes, whether by grant or by implication of the law, the tenant under another tenancy at a low rent of a dwelling house<sup>4</sup> which consists of the whole or any part of the property let<sup>5</sup> under the previous tenancy, then, if the previous tenancy was a long tenancy or is deemed<sup>6</sup> to have been a long tenancy, the new tenancy is deemed<sup>7</sup> to be a long tenancy, irrespective of its terms<sup>8</sup>.

In relation to a tenancy from year to year or other tenancy not granted for a term of years certain, being a tenancy which is so deemed<sup>9</sup> to be a long tenancy, the statutory provisions relating to long residential tenancies<sup>10</sup> have effect subject to certain modifications<sup>11</sup>.

1246. Meaning of 'low rent'.

- 2573 (1) no rent is payable; or
- 2574 (2) where the tenancy is entered into on or after 1 April 1990, otherwise than, where the dwelling house<sup>2</sup> had a rateable value<sup>3</sup> on 31 March 1990, in pursuance of a contract made before 1 April 1990, the maximum rent payable at any time is payable at a rate of:
  - 68
  - 83. (a) £1,000 or less a year if the dwelling house is in Greater London<sup>4</sup>; and
  - 84. (b) £250 or less a year if the dwelling house is elsewhere; or
  - 69
- 2575 (3) where the tenancy was entered into before 1 April 1990 or, where the dwelling house had a rateable value on 31 March 1990, is entered into on or after 1 April 1990 in pursuance of a contract made before that date, the maximum rent payable at any time is less than two-thirds of the rateable value of the dwelling house on 31 March 1990<sup>5</sup>.

3 The Housing Act 1988 s 1, Sch 1 Pt II (paras 14-16) (see PARA 1027 ante) applies to determine the rateable value of a dwelling house for these purposes: Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 2(1), (5), (6).

1247. Application that tenancy be excluded from protection.

At any time within the period of 12 months ending on the day preceding the term date<sup>1</sup>, application may be made to the court<sup>2</sup> as respects any long tenancy<sup>3</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>4</sup> at a low rent<sup>5</sup>, not being at the time of the application a tenancy as respects which the qualifying condition<sup>6</sup> is fulfilled, for an order declaring that the tenancy is not to be treated as a long residential<sup>7</sup> tenancy<sup>8</sup>. Where an application is so made, the court must make the order if satisfied that the tenancy is not likely<sup>9</sup> immediately before the term date to be a long residential tenancy<sup>10</sup> but not otherwise<sup>11</sup>. If the court makes the order, then the tenancy is not thereafter to be treated<sup>12</sup> as a long residential tenancy<sup>13</sup>.

Continuation of long residential tenancies.

(iii) Continuation and Termination of Long Residential Tenancies

A. CONTINUATION

1248. Continuation of long residential tenancies.

A tenancy<sup>1</sup> which, immediately before the term date<sup>2</sup>, is a long residential tenancy<sup>3</sup> does not come to an end on that date except by being terminated<sup>4</sup> under the relevant statutory provisions<sup>5</sup>. If not then so terminated, the tenancy continues<sup>6</sup> until so terminated and, while so continuing, is deemed to be a long residential tenancy notwithstanding any change in circumstances<sup>7</sup>.

The above provisions do not, however, apply in the case of a former 1954 Act tenancy<sup>8</sup> the term date of which falls before 15 January 1999 but if, in the case of such a tenancy:

2576 (1) the tenancy was continuing immediately before that date<sup>9</sup>; and

2577 (2) on that date the qualifying condition<sup>10</sup> was fulfilled, then the tenancy continues<sup>11</sup> until terminated under the relevant statutory provisions<sup>12</sup> and, while so continuing, is deemed to be a long residential tenancy notwithstanding any change in circumstances<sup>13</sup>.

Where a tenancy continues after the term date by virtue of these provisions, the tenancy continues at the same rent and in other respects on the same terms as before the term date<sup>14</sup>.

Where Sch 10 (as amended) has effect in relation to a former 1954 Act tenancy the term date of which fell before 15 January 1999, any reference, however expressed, to the dwelling house or the property let under the tenancy has effect for these purposes as a reference to the premises qualifying for protection within the meaning of the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954: Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 21(1). Notwithstanding that at any time the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 s 1 (as amended) does not, and the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 (as amended) does, apply to a former 1954 Act tenancy, any question of what are the premises qualifying for protection or, in that context, what is the tenancy is to be determined for these purposes in accordance with the Landlord and Tenant Act 1954 Pt I (ss 1-22) (as amended) (see PARA 1196 et seq ante): Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 21(2).

Notwithstanding anything in Sch 10 para 3(3), where by virtue thereof the tenancy is continued after the term date, the provisions of Sch 10 (as amended) as to the termination of a tenancy by notice have effect, subject to Sch 10 para 16(5), in substitution for and not in addition to any such provisions included in the terms on which the tenancy had effect before the term date: Sch 10 para 16(4). The minimum period of notice referred to in Sch 10 para 8(1) (see PARA 1252 post) is one month or such longer period as the tenant would have been required to give to bring the tenancy to an end at the term date: Sch 10 para 16(5).

Termination of tenancy by the landlord.

B. TERMINATION BY THE LANDLORD

1249. Termination of tenancy by the landlord.

The landlord<sup>1</sup> may terminate a long residential tenancy<sup>2</sup> by a notice in the prescribed form<sup>3</sup> served on the tenant<sup>4</sup>:

- 2578 (1) specifying the date at which the tenancy is to come to an end, being either the term date<sup>5</sup> or a later date; and
- 2579 (2) so served not more than 12 nor less than six months before the date so specified<sup>6</sup>.

In any case where:

- 2580 (a) a landlord's notice<sup>7</sup> has been served; and
- 2581 (b) an application has been made<sup>8</sup> to the court<sup>9</sup> or a rent assessment committee<sup>10</sup>; and
- 2582 (c) the effect of the notice would otherwise be to terminate the tenancy before the expiry of the period of three months beginning with the date on which the application is finally disposed of<sup>11</sup>, the effect of the notice is to terminate the tenancy at the expiry of that period of three months and not at any other time<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1241 note 3 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'long residential tenancy' see PARA 1244 ante.

3 For these purposes, except where the context otherwise requires, 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, by the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister by statutory instrument; and regulations so made may make different provision with respect to different cases or descriptions of case, including different provision for different areas: Housing Act 1988 s 45(1), (5) (applied by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 2(1), (2), (6)). For the prescribed forms of notice see the Long Residential Tenancies (Principal Forms) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/3008, reg 3(a), (b), Schedule Forms 1, 2 (amended in relation to England by SI 2002/2227 and in relation to Wales by SI 2003/233). A form substantially to the same effect may be used: see the Long Residential Tenancies (Principal Forms) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/3008, reg 2. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'term date' see PARA 1244 note 11 ante.

6 Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 4(1). As to the service of notices see PARA 1238 ante at head (6) in the text; and as to the additional information which may need to be included see PARA 716 note 3 ante. The periods are different in certain circumstances where the tenant has made an ineffective claim to acquire the freehold or an extended lease: see PARAS 1434, 1591, 1683 post.

7 For these purposes, 'landlord's notice' means a notice under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 4(1); and such a notice is (1) a 'landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy' if it contains such proposals as are mentioned in Sch 10 para 4(5)(a) (see PARA 1250 post at head (1) in the text); and (2) a 'landlord's notice to resume possession' if it contains such proposals as are referred to in Sch 10 para 4(5)(b) (see PARA 1250 post at head (2) in the text): Sch 10 para 2(1), (6). A landlord's notice is of no effect if served during the currency of a claim (a) made in respect of the tenancy to acquire the freehold or an extended lease of the property under the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 Pt I (ss 1-37) (as amended) (see PARA 1434 post); or (b) to exercise the right to collective enfranchisement under the Leasehold Reform, Housing and Urban Development Act 1993 or the right to acquire a new lease of a flat under that Act (see and PARAS 1594, 1685 post).

8 Ie under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 paras 4(3)-(7), 5 et seq (as amended) (see PARA 1250 et seq post) other than Sch 10 para 6 (see PARA 1253 post).

9 As to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1238 ante at head (4) in the text.

10 As to rent assessment committees see PARA 910 ante.

11 The reference to the date on which the application is finally disposed of is to be construed as a reference to the earliest date by which the proceedings on the application, including any proceedings on or in consequence of an appeal, have been determined and any time for appealing or further appealing has expired, except that, if the application is withdrawn or any appeal is abandoned, the reference is to be construed as a reference to the date of withdrawal or abandonment: Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 4(3).

1250. Contents of effective landlord's notice.

A landlord's notice<sup>1</sup> does not have effect unless:

- 2583 (1) it proposes an assured monthly periodic tenancy<sup>2</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>3</sup> and a rent for that tenancy, such that it would not be a tenancy at a low rent<sup>4</sup>, and states<sup>5</sup> that the other terms of the tenancy are to be the same as those of the long residential tenancy<sup>6</sup> immediately before it is terminated ('the implied terms')<sup>7</sup>; or
- 2584 (2) it gives notice that, if the tenant is not willing to give up possession at the date of termination<sup>8</sup> of the property let<sup>9</sup> under the tenancy, the landlord proposes to apply to the court<sup>10</sup>, on one or more of the specified grounds<sup>11</sup>, for the possession of the property let under the tenancy and states the ground or grounds on which he proposes to apply<sup>12</sup>.

A landlord's notice must invite the tenant<sup>13</sup>, within the period of two months beginning on the date on which the notice was served, to notify the landlord in writing whether:

- 2585 (a) in the case of a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy<sup>14</sup>, the tenant wishes to remain in possession; and
- 2586 (b) in the case of a landlord's notice to resume possession<sup>15</sup>, the tenant is willing to give up<sup>16</sup> possession<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'landlord's notice' see PARA 1249 note 7 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'assured periodic tenancy' is to be construed in accordance with the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 9(4) (see PARA 1254 note 6 post): Sch 10 para 2(1), (6).

terms; and any reference to the terms of the tenancy specified in the landlord's notice is a reference to the implied terms or, if the implied terms are varied by virtue hereof, to the implied terms as so varied: Sch 10 para 4(6). For the meaning of 'landlord' see PARA 1241 note 3 ante.

8 For these purposes, in relation to a tenancy in respect of which a landlord's notice is served: (1) 'the date of termination' means (a) where the tenancy is continued as mentioned in ibid Sch 10 para 4(2) (see PARA 1249 ante), the last day of the period of three months referred to therein; and (b) in any other case, the specified date of termination (Sch 10 paras 2(1), (6), 4(4)); and (2) 'specified date of termination' means the date specified in the notice as mentioned in Sch 10 para 4(1)(a) (see PARA 1249 ante) (Sch 10 para 2(1), (6)).

2588 (2) the ground that, for the purposes of redevelopment after the termination of the tenancy, the landlord<sup>6</sup> proposes to demolish or reconstruct the whole or a substantial part of the premises<sup>7</sup>; and

2589 (3) the ground that the premises or part of them are reasonably required by the landlord for occupation as a residence for himself, any son or daughter of his over 18 years of age, his father or mother, or the father or mother of his spouse or civil partner, and, if the landlord is not the immediate landlord, that he will be at the specified date of termination<sup>8</sup>.

5    Ibid Sch 10 para 5(1)(a).

6    The ground mentioned in ibid Sch 10 para 5(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) may not be specified in a landlord's notice to resume possession unless the landlord is a body to which the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 28 (as amended) (see PARA 1487 post) applies and the premises are required for relevant development within the meaning of s 28 (as amended); and, on any application by such a body under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 13 (see PARA 1261 post) for possession on that ground, a certificate given by a Minister of the Crown as provided by the Leasehold Reform Act 1967 s 28(1) is conclusive evidence that the premises are so required: Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 10 para 5(4). ### C. TERMINATION BY THE TENANT

1252. Termination of tenancy by the tenant.

A long residential tenancy<sup>1</sup> may be brought to an end at the term date<sup>2</sup> by not less than one month's notice in writing given by the tenant<sup>3</sup> to his immediate landlord<sup>4</sup>. A tenancy which is continuing<sup>5</sup> after the term date may be brought to an end at any time by not less than one month's notice in writing given by the tenant to his immediate landlord, whether the notice is given before or after the term date of the tenancy<sup>6</sup>.

The fact that the landlord has served a landlord's notice<sup>7</sup> or that there has been an election by the tenant to retain possession<sup>8</sup> does not prevent the tenant from giving notice<sup>9</sup> terminating the tenancy at a date earlier than the specified date of termination<sup>10</sup>.

D. INTERIM RENT

1253. Interim rent.

On the date of service of a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy<sup>1</sup>, or at any time between that date and the date of termination<sup>2</sup>, the landlord<sup>3</sup> may serve a notice on the tenant<sup>4</sup> in the prescribed form<sup>5</sup> proposing an interim monthly rent<sup>6</sup> to take effect from a date specified in the notice, being not earlier than the specified date of termination<sup>7</sup>, and to continue while the tenancy<sup>8</sup> is continued<sup>9</sup> by virtue of the relevant statutory provisions<sup>10</sup>.

Where a notice has been so served:

2590 (1) the tenant may, within the period of two months beginning on the date of service, refer the interim monthly rent proposed in the notice to a rent assessment committee<sup>11</sup>; and 2591 (2) if the notice is not so referred, the interim monthly rent proposed in the notice is the rent under the tenancy with effect from the date specified in the notice or, if it is later, the expiry of the period mentioned in head (1) above<sup>12</sup>.

Where the rent specified in a landlord's notice is so referred to a rent assessment committee, the committee must determine the monthly rent at which the committee considers<sup>13</sup> that the premises let<sup>14</sup> under the tenancy might reasonably be expected to be let on the open market by a willing landlord under a monthly periodic tenancy:

2592 (a) which begins on the day following the specified date of termination;

2593 (b) under which the other terms are the same as those of the existing tenancy at the date on which the landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy was given; and 2594 (c) which affords the tenant security of tenure equivalent to that afforded<sup>15</sup> in the case of an assured tenancy<sup>16</sup>, other than an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>17</sup>, in respect of which possession may not be recovered under any of Grounds 1 to 5<sup>18</sup> in the Housing Act 1988<sup>19</sup>.

Where a reference has been so made to a rent assessment committee, then the rent determined by the committee is to be<sup>20</sup> the rent under the tenancy with effect from the date specified in the notice served by the landlord<sup>21</sup> or, if it is later, the expiry of the two-month period mentioned in head (1) above<sup>22</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions:

- 2595 (i) affects the right of the landlord and the tenant to agree the interim monthly rent which is to have effect while the tenancy is continued<sup>23</sup> and the date from which that rent is to take effect; and in such a case that rent is to be<sup>24</sup> the rent under the tenancy with effect from that date and no steps or, as the case may be, no further steps, may be taken<sup>25</sup> by the landlord or the tenant under those provisions<sup>26</sup>;
- 2596 (ii) requires a rent assessment committee to continue with a determination<sup>27</sup> if the tenant gives notice in writing that he no longer requires such a determination or if the long residential tenancy has come to an end on or before the specified date of termination<sup>28</sup>.

Notwithstanding that a tenancy in respect of which an interim monthly rent has effect<sup>29</sup> is no longer at a low rent<sup>30</sup>, it continues to be regarded as a tenancy at a low rent and, accordingly, continues to be a long residential tenancy<sup>31</sup>.

(iv) Assured Periodic Tenancy on Termination of Former Tenancy

A. NATURE AND TERMS OF TENANCY

1254. The assured periodic tenancy.

Where a long residential tenancy<sup>1</sup> ('the former tenancy') is terminated by a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy<sup>2</sup>, the tenant<sup>3</sup> is entitled<sup>4</sup> to remain in possession of the dwelling house<sup>5</sup> and his right to possession depends upon an assured periodic tenancy<sup>6</sup> arising by virtue of these provisions<sup>7</sup>.

The assured periodic tenancy is one:

- 2597 (1) taking effect in possession on the day following the date of termination<sup>8</sup>;
- 2598 (2) deemed to have been granted by the person who was the landlord<sup>9</sup> under the former tenancy on the date of termination to the person who was then the tenant under that tenancy<sup>10</sup>;
- 2599 (3) under which the premises let<sup>11</sup> are the dwelling house;
- 2600 (4) under which the periods of the tenancy, and the intervals at which rent is to be paid, are monthly beginning on the day following the date of termination;
- 2601 (5) under which the rent is determined in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions<sup>12</sup>; and
- 2602 (6) under which the other terms are determined in accordance with those provisions<sup>13</sup>.

If, however, at the end of the period of two months beginning on the date of service of the landlord's notice, the qualifying condition<sup>14</sup> was not fulfilled as respects the tenancy, the tenant is not entitled to remain in possession<sup>15</sup> unless there has been an election by the tenant to retain possession<sup>16</sup>; and, if at the specified date of termination<sup>17</sup> the qualifying condition is not fulfilled as respects the tenancy, then, notwithstanding that there has been such an election, the tenant is not entitled<sup>18</sup> to remain in possession<sup>19</sup>.

1255. Initial rent under and terms of assured periodic tenancy.

Where a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy<sup>1</sup> has been served on the tenant<sup>2</sup> the tenant may, within the period of two months beginning on the date of service of the notice, serve on the landlord<sup>3</sup> a notice in the prescribed form<sup>4</sup> (a 'tenant's notice') proposing either or both of the following, that is to say:

- 2603 (1) a rent for the assured periodic tenancy<sup>5</sup> different from that proposed in the landlord's notice; and
- 2604 (2) terms of the tenancy different from those specified in the landlord's notice<sup>6</sup>.

If a tenant's notice is not so served, then with effect from the date on which the assured periodic tenancy takes effect in possession:

- 2605 (a) the rent proposed in the landlord's notice is the rent under the tenancy; and
- 2606 (b) the terms of the tenancy specified in the landlord's notice<sup>7</sup> are the terms of the tenancy<sup>8</sup>.

Where a tenant's notice has been so served on the landlord, the landlord may, within the period of two months beginning on the date of service of the notice, by an application in the prescribed form<sup>9</sup> refer the notice to a rent assessment committee<sup>10</sup>.

If the notice is not so referred, then, with effect from the date on which the assured periodic tenancy takes effect in possession:

- 2607 (i) the rent, if any, proposed in the tenant's notice or, if no rent is so proposed, the rent proposed in the landlord's notice, is the rent under the tenancy; and
- 2608 (ii) the other terms of the tenancy, if any, proposed in the tenant's notice and, in so far as they do not conflict with the terms so proposed, the terms specified in the landlord's notice are the terms of the tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

B. DETERMINATION BY RENT ASSESSMENT COMMITTEE

1256. Procedure on reference to rent assessment committee.

Where a reference is made to a rent assessment committee<sup>1</sup>, the committee must serve on each party a notice specifying a period of not less than seven days from the service of the notice during which either representations in writing or a request to make oral representations may be made by that party to the committee<sup>2</sup>. A notice so served on the party who did not make the reference must be accompanied by a copy of the reference<sup>3</sup>.

Where a party makes a request to make oral representations within the specified period or such further period as a committee may allow, the committee must give him an opportunity to be heard in person or by a person authorised by him, whether or not that person is of counsel or a solicitor<sup>4</sup>.

The committee must make such inquiry, if any, as it thinks fit and consider any information supplied or representation so made to it<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> ie under the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 186(1), Sch 10 para 6(2) (see PARA 1253 ante) or Sch 10 para 10(2) (see PARA 1255 ante).

LONG RESIDENTIAL TENANCIES AT LOW RENTS/(2) THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND HOUSING ACT 1989/(iv) Assured Periodic Tenancy on Termination of Former Tenancy/B. DETERMINATION BY RENT ASSESSMENT COMMITTEE/1257. Reference to rent assessment committee; in general.

1257. Reference to rent assessment committee; in general.

Where a tenant's notice<sup>1</sup> is referred<sup>2</sup> to a rent assessment committee<sup>3</sup>, the committee, having regard only to the contents of the landlord's notice<sup>4</sup> and the tenant's notice, must decide:

- 2609 (1) whether there is any dispute as to the terms, other than those relating to the amount of the rent<sup>5</sup>, of the assured periodic tenancy<sup>6</sup> ('disputed terms') and, if so, what the disputed terms are; and
- 2610 (2) whether there is any dispute as to rent under the tenancy, and, where the committee decides that there are disputed terms and that there is a dispute as to the rent under the tenancy, it must make a determination as to the disputed terms<sup>7</sup> before it makes a determination<sup>8</sup> as to the rent<sup>9</sup>.

Where a reference has been made to a rent assessment committee<sup>10</sup>, then:

- 2611 (a) if the committee decides that there are no disputed terms and that there is no dispute as to the rent, the statutory provisions relating to the rent and terms of the tenancy<sup>11</sup> apply as if the notice had not been so referred;
- 2612 (b) where head (a) above does not apply, then, so far as concerns the amount of the rent under the tenancy, if there is a dispute as to the rent, the rent determined by the committee<sup>12</sup> and, if there is no dispute as to the rent, the rent specified in the landlord's notice or, as the case may be, the tenant's notice<sup>13</sup> is the rent under the tenancy; and
- 2613 (c) where head (a) above does not apply and there are disputed terms, then, so far as concerns the subject matter of those terms, the terms determined by the committee<sup>14</sup> are the terms of the tenancy and, so far as concerns any undisputed terms<sup>15</sup>, those terms are<sup>16</sup> also terms of the tenancy, with effect from the date on which the assured periodic tenancy takes effect in possession<sup>17</sup>.

DETERMINATION BY RENT ASSESSMENT COMMITTEE/1258. Determination of disputed terms.

1258. Determination of disputed terms.

If the rent assessment committee<sup>1</sup> decides that there are disputed terms<sup>2</sup>, the committee must determine whether the terms in the landlord's notice<sup>3</sup>, the terms in the tenant's notice<sup>4</sup>, or some other terms dealing with the same subject matter as the disputed terms are such as, in the committee's opinion, might reasonably be expected to be found in an assured monthly periodic tenancy<sup>5</sup> of the dwelling house<sup>6</sup>, not being an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>7</sup>:

2614 (1) which begins on the day following the date of termination<sup>8</sup>;

2615 (2) which is granted by a willing landlord on terms which, except so far as they relate to the subject matter of the disputed terms, are the undisputed terms<sup>9</sup>; and

2616 (3) in respect of which possession may not be recovered under any of the specified grounds<sup>10</sup>;

and the committee must, if it considers it appropriate, specify an adjustment of the undisputed terms to take account of the terms so determined and must, if it considers it appropriate, specify an adjustment of the rent<sup>11</sup> to take account of the terms so determined and, if applicable, so adjusted<sup>12</sup>. In so making a determination or specifying an adjustment of the rent or undisputed terms, there must be disregarded any effect on the terms or the amount of rent attributable to the granting of a tenancy to a sitting tenant<sup>13</sup>.

C. EXPRESS AGREEMENT; VARIATION BY AGREEMENT ETC

1260. Power to agree and vary terms by agreement; withdrawal of reference to committee.

Nothing in the statutory provisions relating to long residential tenancies<sup>1</sup> affects the right of the landlord<sup>2</sup> and the tenant<sup>3</sup> under the assured periodic tenancy<sup>4</sup> to vary by agreement any term of the tenancy, including a term relating to rent<sup>5</sup>.

Nothing in the statutory provisions relating to the initial rent and terms of the assured periodic tenancy and the determination of disputes<sup>6</sup> affects the right of the landlord and the tenant to agree any terms of the assured periodic tenancy, including a term relating to the rent, before the tenancy takes effect in possession ('the expressly agreed terms'); and, in such a case:

2621 (1) the expressly agreed terms are the terms of the tenancy in substitution for any terms dealing with the same subject matter which would otherwise<sup>7</sup> be the terms of the tenancy; and

2622 (2) where a reference has already been made to a rent assessment committee<sup>8</sup> but there has been no determination by the committee<sup>9</sup>:

72

87. (a) the committee must have regard to the expressly agreed terms, as notified to it by the landlord and the tenant, in deciding<sup>10</sup> what the disputed terms<sup>11</sup> are and whether there is any dispute as to the rent; and

88. (b) in making any determination<sup>12</sup> the committee may not make any adjustment of the expressly agreed terms as so notified<sup>13</sup>.

Nothing in the statutory provisions relating to the determination of disputes<sup>14</sup> requires a rent assessment committee to continue with a determination thereunder if the long residential tenancy has come to an end, or if the landlord serves notice in writing on the committee that he no longer requires such a determination<sup>15</sup>.

1263. Additional mandatory ground.

Where the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession specified in the landlord's notice<sup>1</sup> is that for the purposes of redevelopment after the termination of the tenancy the landlord proposes to demolish or reconstruct the whole or a substantial part of the premises<sup>2</sup>, then, if on an application duly made<sup>3</sup> the court<sup>4</sup> is satisfied that the landlord<sup>5</sup> has established that ground and is further satisfied:

2627 (1) that on that ground possession of those premises will be required by the landlord on the date of termination<sup>6</sup>; and

2628 (2) that the landlord has made such preparations, including the obtaining or, if that is not reasonably practicable in the circumstances, preparations relating to the obtaining, of any requisite permission or consent, whether from any authority whose permission or consent is required under any enactment or from the owner of any interest in any property, for proceeding with the redevelopment as are reasonable in the circumstances, the court must order that the tenant<sup>7</sup> shall, on the date of termination, give up possession of the property then let<sup>8</sup> under the tenancy<sup>9</sup>.

Where the court is not so satisfied but would be satisfied if the date of termination of the tenancy had been such date ('the postponed date') as the court may determine, being a date later, but not more than one year later, than the specified date of termination<sup>10</sup>, the court must, if the landlord so requires, make an order by which it specifies the postponed date and orders:

- 2629 (a) that the tenancy shall not come to an end on the date of termination but shall continue thereafter, as respects the whole of the property let under the tenancy, at the same rent and in other respects on the same terms as before that date; and
- 2630 (b) that, unless the tenancy comes to an end before the postponed date, the tenant shall on that date give up possession of the property then let under the tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

Where the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession specified in the landlord's notice<sup>1</sup> is<sup>2</sup>:

- 2631 (1) any of Grounds 9 to 15 under the Housing Act 1988<sup>3</sup>; or
- 2632 (2) the ground that the premises or part of them are reasonably required by the landlord for occupation as a residence for himself or certain members of his family<sup>4</sup>, then, if on an application duly made<sup>5</sup> the court<sup>6</sup> is satisfied that the landlord<sup>7</sup> has established that ground and that it is reasonable that the landlord should be granted possession, the court must order that the tenant<sup>8</sup> shall, on the date of termination<sup>9</sup>, give up possession of the property then let<sup>10</sup> under the tenancy<sup>11</sup>.

Where, however, the ground or one of the grounds for claiming possession so specified is that mentioned in head (2) above, the court may not make the order<sup>12</sup> on that ground if it is satisfied that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including the question whether other accommodation is available for the landlord or the tenant, greater hardship would be caused by making the order than by refusing to make it<sup>13</sup>.

Where the landlord<sup>1</sup> is entitled to make an application for possession<sup>2</sup> but does not obtain an order for possession<sup>3</sup>, the following provisions apply<sup>4</sup>.

If:

2634 (2) before the expiration of that period the landlord has made such an application but the result of the application, at the time when it is finally disposed of<sup>7</sup>, is that no order is made, the landlord's notice to resume possession ceases to have effect<sup>8</sup>.

In any case where head (2) above applies, then, if within the period of one month beginning on the date that the application to the court<sup>9</sup> is finally disposed of the landlord serves on the tenant<sup>10</sup> a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy<sup>11</sup>, the earliest date which may be specified in the notice as the date of termination<sup>12</sup> is<sup>13</sup> the day following the last day of the period of four months beginning on the date of service of the subsequent notice<sup>14</sup>.

A landlord's notice to resume possession may be withdrawn at any time by notice in writing served on the tenant<sup>15</sup>; and in any such case, then, if within the period of one month beginning on the date of withdrawal of the landlord's notice to resume possession the landlord serves on the tenant a landlord's notice proposing an assured tenancy, the earliest date which may be specified in the notice as the date of termination is<sup>16</sup> the day following the last day of the period of four months beginning on the date of service of the subsequent notice or the day following the last day of the period of six months beginning on the date of service of the withdrawn notice, whichever is the later<sup>17</sup>.

A structure falling within heads 3(a) and 3(b) above is not, however, treated as not being, or as not having been, a mobile home by reason only that it cannot lawfully be so moved on a highway when assembled<sup>7</sup>.

A motor vehicle is not a mobile home unless it has been designed, or physically altered so as to adapt it, for human habitation<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Mobile Homes Act 1975 and the Mobile Homes Act 1983: see PARA 1268 et seq post. 'Mobile home' has the same meaning as 'caravan' in the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 Pt I (ss 1-30) (as amended) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1032 et seq); Mobile Homes Act 1975 s 9(1); Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1). A motor vehicle is not a caravan unless it has been designed, or physically altered so as to adapt it, for human habitation: Backer v Secretary of State for the Environment [1983] 2 All ER 1021, [1983] 1 WLR 1485.

A houseboat moored to a caravan site could not be said to be a 'caravan': Roy Crimble Ltd v Edgecombe (1981) 131 NLJ 928, CA.

The word 'caravan' is to be construed in accordance with the statutory definition in the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 29(1) and not in accordance with its ordinary and natural meaning: Wyre Forest District Council v Secretary of State for the Environment [1990] 2 AC 357, [1990] 1 All ER 780, HL (a chalet lacking wheels but capable of being moved is a mobile home), disapproving Hammond v Horsham District Council (1989) 58 P & CR 410, DC.

2 Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 29(1) (applied by the Mobile Homes Act 1975 s 9(1); the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1)).

3 To satisfy the 'construction' test, there should be two sections separately constructed which are then designed to be assembled on site: Byrne v Secretary of State for the Environment and Arun District Council (1997) 74 P & CR 420 at 424.

4 The words 'when assembled' require mobility to be tested by reference to the circumstances of where and how the structure has been assembled and do not simply mean 'in its assembled state': Byrne v Secretary of State for the Environment and Arun District Council (1997) 74 P & CR 420. Whether the addition of a porch extension to a caravan changes its character as a mobile home was treated at first instance as a question of fact and degree; but if the structure was a mobile home at the commencement of the agreement permitting occupation of a plot on a protected site, the question is more likely to be whether the agreement has been validly terminated: see Howard v Charlton [2002] EWCA Civ 1086, [2003] 1 P & CR 343, sub nom Charlton v Howard [2002] All ER (D) 367 (Jul). A structure comprising four units bolted together on site has been held not to be a mobile home: see Carter v Secretary of State for the Environment [1994] 1 WLR 1212, [1994] 2 EGLR 194, CA.

5 The prescribed limits are: (1) length, exclusive of any drawbar, in England, 65.616 feet (20 metres) or in Wales 60 feet (18.288 metres); (2) width, in England 23.309 feet (6.8 metres) or in Wales 20 feet (6.096 metres); (3) overall height of living accommodation measured internally from the floor at the lowest level to the ceiling at the highest level, in England 10.006 feet (3.05 metres) or in Wales 10 feet (3.048 metres): Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 13(2)(a)-(c) (amended in relation to England by the Caravan Sites Act 1968 and Social Landlords (Permissible Additional Purposes) (England) Order 2006 (Definition of Caravan) (Amendment) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/2374, art 2; applied by the Mobile Homes Act 1975 s 9(1); the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1)). The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister, may by order made by statutory instrument, after consultation with such persons or bodies as appear to him or to it to be concerned, substitute for any figure mentioned in the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 13(2) such other figure as may be specified in the order: ss 13(3), 16 (as so applied). Any statutory instrument so made by the Secretary of State is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 13(4) (as so applied). As to the exercise of this power by the Secretary of State see the Caravan Sites Act 1968 and Social Landlords (Permissible Additional Purposes) (England) Order 2006 (Definition of Caravan) (Amendment) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/2374, art 2. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the transfer of functions under the Caravan Sites Act 1968 ss 13, 16 so far as exercisable in relation to Wales see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

UPDATE

1267 Meaning of 'mobile home'

NOTE 5--Head (2) for '23.309 feet' read '22.309 feet': SI 2006/2374, art 2 (modified by correction slip). In relation to Wales, heads (1) for '60 feet (18.288 metres)' read '65.616 feet (20 metres)'; (2) for '20 feet (6.096 metres)' read '22.309 feet (6.8 metres)'; and (3) for '10 feet (3.048 metres)' read '10.006 feet (3.05 metres)': 1968 Act s 13(2)(a)-(c) (amended by SI 2007/3163).

1268. Duty of site owners to give written statements.

Before making an agreement<sup>1</sup> to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies<sup>2</sup>, that is to say, any agreement under which a person ('the occupier')<sup>3</sup> is entitled to station a mobile home<sup>4</sup> on land forming part of a protected site<sup>5</sup> and to occupy the mobile home as his only or main residence<sup>6</sup>, the owner of the protected site ('the owner')<sup>7</sup> must give to the proposed occupier under the agreement a written statement<sup>8</sup> which:

- 2639 (1) specifies the names and addresses of the parties;
- 2640 (2) includes particulars of the land on which the proposed occupier is to be entitled to station the mobile home that are sufficient to identify that land;
- 2641 (3) sets out the express terms to be contained in the agreement;
- 2642 (4) sets out the terms to be implied by statute<sup>9</sup>; and
- 2643 (5) complies with such other requirements as may be prescribed by regulations made by the appropriate national authority<sup>10</sup>.

The written statement so required must be given:

- 2644 (a) not later than 28 days before the date on which any agreement for the sale of the mobile home to the proposed occupier is made; or
- 2645 (b) if no such agreement as is mentioned in head (a) above is made before the making of the agreement to which the 1983 Act applies, not later than 28 days before the date on which the agreement to which the Act applies is made<sup>11</sup>.

If, however, the proposed occupier consents in writing to that statement being given to him by a date ('the chosen date') which is less than 28 days before the date mentioned in head (a) or head (b) above, the statement must be given to him not later than the chosen date<sup>12</sup>.

If the owner has failed to give the occupier a written statement in accordance with the above provisions, the occupier may, at any time after the making of the agreement, apply to the court<sup>13</sup> for an order requiring the owner:

- 2646 (i) to give him a written statement which complies with heads (1) to (5) above, read with any modifications necessary to reflect the fact that the agreement has been made; and
- 2647 (ii) to do so not later than such date as is specified in the order<sup>14</sup>.

If any express term is contained in an agreement<sup>15</sup> but was not set out in a written statement given to the proposed occupier in accordance with the statutory requirements<sup>16</sup>, the term is unenforceable by the owner or any successor in title or person claiming through or under the owner or successor<sup>17</sup>; but this is subject to any order made by the court under its statutory power<sup>18</sup> to vary or delete terms or to provide that such a term is to have full effect<sup>19</sup>.

The court has jurisdiction to determine any question arising under the 1983 Act or any agreement to which it applies, and to entertain any proceedings brought under that Act or any such agreement<sup>20</sup>.

1 As to whether 'agreement' includes a wholly gratuitous arrangement see Balthasar v Mullane (1985) 51 P & CR 107, 17 HLR 561, CA.

2 Any reference in the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 1 (as substituted) to the making of an agreement to which that Act applies includes a reference to any variation of an agreement by virtue of which the agreement becomes one to which that Act applies: s 1(8) (s 1 substituted by the Housing Act 2004 s 206(1); for transitional provisions see s 206(4)).

3 For these purposes, but subject to the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 3(4) (see PARA 1269 post), any reference to the occupier includes a reference to any person who is entitled to the benefit of and bound by the agreement by virtue of s 3(2) or (3) (as amended) (see PARA 1269 post): s 5(2)(b).

4 For the meaning of 'mobile home' see PARA 1267 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'protected site' does not include any land occupied by a local authority as a caravan site providing accommodation for gypsies but, subject to that, has the same meaning as in the Caravan Sites Act 1968 Pt I (ss 1-5) (as amended) (see PARA 1281 post): Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1). Cf the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 1(2) (as amended), for the purposes of which such a local authority site is protected; and PARA 1281 post. See also Greenwich London Borough Council v Powell [1989] AC 995, [1989] 1 All ER 65, HL. 'Protected site' does not include a site for which planning permission is required but has not been granted: Balthasar v Mullane (1985) 17 HLR 561, 51 P & CR 107, CA; Adams v Watkins (1989) 88 LGR 576, [1990] 2 EGLR 185, CA. If a site licence is required, the site is a protected site even if no site licence has been obtained: National By-Products Ltd v Brice (1983) 81 LGR 652, 46 P & CR 281, CA (decided under the Mobile Homes Act 1975).

6 For the meaning of 'only or main residence' cf the Rent Act 1977 s 2(1)(a) ('occupation as a residence'); and PARAS 832-836 ante; the Housing Act 1988 s 1(1)(b) ('only or principal home'); and PARA 1018 note 8 ante. See also Omar Parks Ltd v Elkington, Ron Grundy (Melbourne) Ltd v Boneheyo [1993] 1 All ER 282, [1992] 1 WLR 1270, CA (cited in PARA 1272 note 13 post).

7 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'owner' means, in relation to a protected site, the person who, by virtue of an estate or interest held by him, is entitled to possession of the site or would be so entitled but for the rights of any persons to station mobile homes on land forming part of the site (Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1)); and any reference to the owner includes a reference to any person who is bound by and entitled to the benefit of the agreement by virtue of s 3(1) (see PARA 1269 post) (s 5(2)(a)).

8 A statement required to be given to a person under ibid s 1 (as substituted) may be either delivered to him personally or sent to him by post: s 1(7) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

9 The terms implied by ibid s 2(1): see PARAS 1271-1278 post.

10 Ibid s 1(1), (2) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). 'The appropriate national authority' means in relation to England, the Secretary of State and in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales: s 5(1) (definition added by the Housing Act 2004 s 206(3)). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; as to the Assembly see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS; and as to the exercise of functions in relation to Wales by the Assembly or the relevant Welsh minister see PARA 27 note 4 ante.

Such regulations (1) must be made by statutory instrument; (2) if made by the Secretary of State, are subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament; and (3) may make different provision with respect to different cases or descriptions of case, including different provision for different areas: s 1(9) (as so substituted). Head (2) supra does not affect the continuing validity of any regulations made under s 1 before the passing of the Housing Act 2004 (ie 18 November 2004): s 206(5). For the regulations so made in relation to England, see the Mobile Homes (Written Statement) (England) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2275, which came into operation on 1 October 2006 (reg 1(1) and apply in relation to every written statement given after that date with respect to an agreement (a) for the stationing of a mobile home on a protected site; and (b) to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 will apply (Mobile Homes (Written Statement) (England) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2275, reg 1(2)). The requirements with which a written statement must comply for the statutory purposes, in addition to the requirements of the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 1(2)(a)-(d) (as so substituted) are (i) that it must contain the note preceding the Mobile Homes (Written Statement) (England) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2275, Schedule Pt 1 and the particulars mentioned in Schedule Pt 1 (so far as not required by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 1(2)(a)-(d) (as so substituted) and the Mobile Homes (Written Statement) (England) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/2275, Schedule Pts 2 and 4; and (ii) that it must be in the form set out in that Schedule or a form substantially to the same effect: reg 3. In relation to Wales, the Mobile Homes (Written Statement) Regulations 1983, SI 1983/749, which came into operation on 20 May 1983 (see reg 1) and which are revoked in relation to England, continue to apply and provide that the written statement must be in the prescribed form or a form substantially to the like effect (reg 2). For the prescribed form of agreement see reg 2, Schedule.

11 Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 1(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). As to agreements to which the 1983 Act applies see note 2 supra.

12 Ibid s 1(4) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

13 For these purposes, unless the context otherwise requires, 'the court' means the county court for the district in which the protected site is situated or, where the parties have agreed in writing to submit to arbitration any question arising under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 or, as the case may be, any agreement to which that Act applies, the arbitrator: s 5(1).

No special procedure is laid down for appealing or challenging such an arbitrator's award and the Arbitration Act 1996 will thus apply: see generally ARBITRATION.

1268 Duty of site owners to give written statements

NOTE 10--SI 1983/749 replaced, in relation to Wales, by the Mobile Homes (Written Statement) (Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/3164.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/21. MOBILE HOMES/(1) IN GENERAL/1269. Successors in title.

1269. Successors in title.

An agreement to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies<sup>1</sup> is binding on and enures for the benefit of any successor in title of the owner<sup>2</sup> and any person claiming through or under the owner or any such successor<sup>3</sup>.

Where such an agreement is lawfully assigned<sup>4</sup> to any person, the agreement enures for the benefit of and is binding on that person<sup>5</sup>.

Where a person entitled to the benefit of and bound by such an agreement dies at a time when he is occupying the mobile home<sup>6</sup> as his only or main residence<sup>7</sup>, the agreement enures for the benefit of and is binding on:

- 2648 (1) any person residing with that person ('the deceased') at that time being:
76
- 91. (a) the widow, widower or surviving civil partner of the deceased; or
- 92. (b) in default of a widow, widower or surviving civil partner so residing, any member of the deceased's family<sup>8</sup>; or
- 77
- 2649 (2) in default of any such person so residing, the person entitled to the mobile home by virtue of the deceased's will or under the law relating to intestacy<sup>9</sup>.

- 9 Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 3(3) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 261(1), Sch 27 para 87). Such an agreement does not, however, enure for the benefit of, nor is it binding on, a person by virtue of the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 3(3)(b) (see head (2) in the text) in so far as it would otherwise enable or require that person to occupy the mobile home, or it includes terms implied by virtue of s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 5 or Sch 1 Pt I para 9 (as amended) (see PARAS 1272-1273 post): s 3(4).

1270. Power to prescribe minimum standards.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>2</sup> may<sup>3</sup> prescribe by order<sup>4</sup> minimum standards with respect to the layout of, and the provision of facilities, services and equipment for, protected sites<sup>5</sup> on which there are mobile homes<sup>6</sup> occupied as an only or main residence<sup>7</sup>. Any such order may apply generally or to a particular area or to protected sites in a particular category, and may prescribe different minimum standards in relation to protected sites in different categories<sup>8</sup>.

Any power to make an order under any provision of s 7 includes a power to make an order varying or revoking any order previously made under that provision: s 7(5). ### 1270 Power to prescribe minimum standards

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/21. MOBILE HOMES/(2) TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT/(i) In general/1271. Terms of the agreement.

(2) TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT

(i) In general

1271. Terms of the agreement.

In any agreement to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies<sup>1</sup> specified terms are to be implied<sup>2</sup> notwithstanding any express term of the agreement<sup>3</sup>.

On the application of either party made within the relevant period<sup>4</sup>, the court<sup>5</sup> may:

- 2650 (1) order that there shall be implied into the agreement terms concerning specified<sup>6</sup> matters<sup>7</sup>;
- 2651 (2) make an order:
- 78
- 93. (a) varying or deleting any express term of the agreement;
- 94. (b) in the case of any express term which would otherwise be unenforceable<sup>8</sup>, provide for the term to have full effect or to have such effect subject to any variation specified in the order<sup>9</sup>.
- 79

On any such application the court must make such provision as it considers just and equitable in the circumstances<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the agreements to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies see PARA 1268 ante.

2 I.e. the terms set out in ibid s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt I (paras 1-29) (as amended); see PARA 1272 et seq post. However, whether a caravan site owner is entitled to terminate an agreement permitting occupation of a plot on the site because the occupier has altered his home so that it is no longer a mobile home is to be determined by interpreting the agreement between the parties in accordance with the ordinary principles of contract rather than in accordance with the terms implied by statute: Howard v Charlton [2002] EWCA Civ 1086, [2003] 1 P & CR 343, sub nom Charlton v Howard [2002] All ER (D) 367 (Jul).

3 Ibid s 2(1).

4 For these purposes, 'the relevant period' means the period beginning with the date on which the agreement is made and ending (1) six months after that date; or (2) where a written statement relating to the agreement is given to the occupier after that date (whether or not in compliance with an order under s 1(6) (as substituted: see PARA 1268 ante)), six months after the date on which the statement is given; and s 1(8) (as substituted: see PARA 1268 ante) applies for these purposes as it applies for the purposes of s 1 (as substituted): s 2(3A) (s 2(3), (3A) substituted by the Housing Act 2004 s 206(2)(b); for transitional provisions see s 206(4)).

A statement given voluntarily but late brings s 2(2), (3) (as amended) (see the text and notes 5-9 infra) into operation: Barton and Barton v Care and Care (1992) 24 HLR 684, [1992] 2 EGLR 174, CA.

7 Ibid s 2(2) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 206(2)(a); for transitional provisions see s 206(4)).

8 le any term to which the Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 1(6) (as substituted) applies: see PARA 1268 ante.

MOBILE HOMES/(2) TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT/(ii) Terms Automatically Implied/1272. Duration of agreement; termination by occupier or owner.

(ii) Terms Automatically Implied

1272. Duration of agreement; termination by occupier or owner.

Notwithstanding any express term of the agreement<sup>1</sup>, the following terms must be implied therein:

2653 (2) if the owner's<sup>5</sup> estate or interest is insufficient to enable him to grant the right for an indefinite period, the period for which the right subsists does not extend beyond the date when the owner's estate or interest determines<sup>6</sup>;

2654 (3) the occupier<sup>7</sup> is entitled to terminate the agreement by notice in writing<sup>8</sup> given to the owner not less than four weeks before the date on which it is to take effect<sup>9</sup>;

2655 (4) the owner is entitled to terminate the agreement forthwith if, on the application of the owner, the court<sup>10</sup> is satisfied that the occupier has breached a term of the agreement and, after service of a notice to remedy the breach<sup>11</sup>, has not complied with the notice within a reasonable time, and the court considers it reasonable for the agreement to be terminated<sup>12</sup>;

2656 (5) the owner is entitled to terminate the agreement forthwith if, on application of the owner, the court:

95. (a) in England, is satisfied that the occupier is not occupying the mobile home as his only or main residence and considers it reasonable for the agreement to be terminated;

96. (b) in Wales, is satisfied that the occupier is not occupying the mobile home as his only or main residence<sup>13</sup>;

2657 (6) the owner is entitled to terminate the agreement:

82

97. (a) in England, forthwith if, on the application of the owner, the court is satisfied that, having regard to its condition, the mobile home is having a detrimental effect on the amenity of the site and the court considers it reasonable for the agreement to be terminated;

98. (b) in Wales, at the end of a relevant period<sup>14</sup> if, on the application of the owner, the court is satisfied that, having regard to its condition, the mobile home is having a detrimental effect on the amenity of the site or is likely to have such an effect before the end of the next relevant period<sup>15</sup>;

83

- 2658 (7) where the agreement is terminated as mentioned in head (3), head (4), head (5) or head (6) above, the occupier is entitled to recover from the owner so much of any payment made by him in pursuance of the agreement as is attributable to a period beginning after the termination<sup>16</sup>.

1 le any agreement to which Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies: see PARA 1268 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'mobile home' see PARA 1267 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'protected site' see PARA 1268 note 5 ante.

4 Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 1. Sch 1 Pt I para 1 is subject to Sch 1 Pt I para 2 (see head (2) in the text): Sch 1 Pt I para 1.

5 For the meaning of 'owner' see PARA 1268 note 7 ante.

6 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 2(1). If planning permission for the use of the protected site as a site for mobile homes has been granted in terms such that it will expire at the end of a specified period, the period for which the right subsists does not extend beyond the date when the planning permission expires: Sch 1 Pt I para 2(2). If before the end of a period so determined there is a change in circumstances which allows a longer period, account is to be taken of that change: Sch 1 Pt I para 2(3). For these purposes, 'planning permission' means permission under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 213 et seq): Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 5(1) (definition amended by the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 4, Sch 2 para 59).

7 For the meaning of 'occupier' see PARA 1268 the text and note 3 ante.

8 There is no prescribed form for notice of termination.

9 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 3.

10 For the meaning of 'the court' see PARA 1268 note 13 ante.

11 There is no prescribed form for notice of remedy of a breach. The ordinary principles of contract law are to be applied to determine whether or not there has been a breach: Howard v Charlton [2002] EWCA Civ 1086, [2003] 1 P & CR 343, sub nom Charlton v Howard [2002] All ER (D) 367 (Jul).

12 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 4; and see Loveridge v Healey [2004] EWCA Civ 173, (2004) Times, 27 February, [2004] All ER (D) 359 (Feb) (notice of termination not served but defendant admitted that claimants had given him a notice calling on him to remedy the fact that the weight and condition of the mobile home rendered it immovable; held that the court was not bound as a matter of law to hold that the notice had not been served). Quaere to what extent this provision would, in the case of a tenancy, interrelate with the law of forfeiture and the Law of Property Act 1925 s 146 (as amended). As to forfeiture see PARA 603 et seq ante.

A claim under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I paras 4, 5 or 6 (as amended) (see heads (4)-(6) in the text) may be brought using the procedure set out in CPR Pt 55 s 1 (CPR 55.1-CPR 55.10A) (see PARA 660 et seq ante) if the claim is started in the same claim form as a claim enforcing the rights referred to in the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(1)(b) (see PARA 1283 post at head (2) in the text): Practice Direction--Possession Claims PD 55 para 1.8.

13 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 5 (amended in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (2)); and see note 12 supra. For these purposes, 'only or main residence' should be given its ordinary meaning and accordingly refers to the nature of the occupation at the time of the hearing and not at the time when the site owner makes an application to the court: see Omar Parks Ltd v Elkington, Ron Grundy (Melbourne) Ltd v Boneheyo [1993] 1 All ER 282, [1992] 1 WLR 1270, CA. See also PARA 1268 note 6 ante.

14 For these purposes, 'relevant period' means the period of five years beginning with the commencement of the agreement and each succeeding period of five years: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 6(2) (repealed in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (3)(b)).

15 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 6(1) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 ss 207(1), (2)(a), 266, Sch 16; for transitional provisions see s 207(6), (7)(a); further amended in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (3)(a)). See also note 12 supra. If, on such an application by the owner, the court (1) in England considers that, having regard to the present condition of the mobile home, head (6)(a) in the text applies to it, but the court also considers that it would be reasonably practicable for particular repairs to be carried out on the mobile home that would result in that head not applying to it; or (2) in Wales, considers that, having regard to the present condition of the mobile home, either limb of the condition set out in head (6)(b) in the text applies to it, but the court also considers that it would be reasonably practicable for particular repairs to be carried out on the mobile home that would result in neither of those limbs of that condition applying to it and, in both England and Wales, the occupier indicates that he intends to carry out those repairs, then in such a case the court may make an order adjourning proceedings on the application for such period specified in the order as the court considers reasonable to allow the repairs to be carried out: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 6(3), (4) (Sch 1 Pt I para 6(3)-(5) added by the Housing Act 2004 s 207(1), (2)(b); for transitional provisions see s 207(6), (7)(a); further amended in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (3)(c)). The repairs must be set out in the order: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 6(4) (as so added). If the court makes such an order, the application must not be further proceeded with unless the court is satisfied that the specified period has expired without the repairs having been carried out: Sch 1 Pt I para 6(5) (as so added).

1272-1278 Terms Automatically Implied

1983 Act Sch 1 Pt I amended in relation to Wales: SI 2007/3151.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/21. MOBILE HOMES/(2) TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT/(ii) Terms Automatically Implied/1273. Sale or gift of mobile home and assignment of agreement.

1273. Sale or gift of mobile home and assignment of agreement.

Notwithstanding any express term of the agreement<sup>1</sup>, the following terms must be implied therein:

- 2659 (1) the occupier<sup>2</sup> is entitled to sell the mobile home<sup>3</sup>, and to assign the agreement, to a person approved of by the owner<sup>4</sup>, whose approval must not be unreasonably withheld<sup>5</sup>;
- 2660 (2) the occupier is entitled to give the mobile home, and to assign the agreement, to a member of his family<sup>6</sup> approved by the owner, whose approval must not be unreasonably withheld<sup>7</sup>.

1 le any agreement to which Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies: see PARA 1268 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'occupier' see PARA 1268 the text and note 3 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'mobile home' see PARA 1267 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'owner' see PARA 1268 note 7 ante.

5 Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1). For the meaning of 'unreasonably withheld' see Lee v Berkeley Leisure Group Ltd (1995) 73 P & CR 493, sub nom Berkeley Leisure Group v Lee 29 HLR 663, CA; cf the Landlord and Tenant Act 1927 s 19(1); and PARA 486 ante. The occupier may serve on the owner a request for the owner to approve a person for these purposes: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1A) (Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1A)-(1G) added by the Housing Act 2004 s 207(2), (3)(a); for transitional provisions see s 207(6), (7)(b)). Where the owner receives such a request, he must, within the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which he received the request (1) approve the person, unless it is reasonable for him not to do so; and (2) serve on the occupier notice of his decision whether or not to approve the person: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B) (as so added).

In England, the owner may not give his approval subject to conditions and if the approval is withheld, the notice under Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B) (as so added) must specify the reasons for withholding it: Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1C), (1D) (substituted in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (4)(a), (b)). As to the application of these amendments see further PARA 1274 note 2 post.

In Wales, the notice given by the owner must specify: (a) if the approval is given subject to conditions, the conditions; and (b) if the approval is withheld, the reasons for withholding it: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1C) (as so added). The giving of approval subject to any condition that is not a reasonable condition does not satisfy the requirement in head (2) supra: Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1D) (as so added).

If the owner fails to notify the occupier as required in England by Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B) (as added) and, if applicable, Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1D) (as substituted) or in Wales by Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B), 8(1C) (as so added), the occupier may apply to the court for an order declaring that the person is approved for the purposes of head (1) in the text; and the court may make such an order if it thinks fit: Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1E) (as so added; amended in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (4)(a), (c)).

It is for the owner: (i) if he served a notice in England as mentioned in the Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B) (as so added) and, if applicable, Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1D) (as substituted) or in Wales as mentioned in Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B), 8(1C) (as so added) and the question arises whether he served the notice within the required period of 28 days, to show that he did; (ii) in Wales, if he gave his approval subject to any condition and the question arises whether the condition was a reasonable condition, to show that it was; (iii) in England and Wales if he did not give his approval and the question arises whether it was reasonable for him not to do so, to show that it was reasonable: Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1F) (as so added; amended in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (4)(a), (d)). A request or notice under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8 (as amended) must be in writing and may be served by post: Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1G) (as so added).

Where the occupier so sells the mobile home and assigns the agreement, the owner is entitled to receive a commission on the sale at a rate not exceeding such rate as may be specified by an order made by the appropriate national authority: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(2) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 207(1), (3)(b)). Such an order must be made by statutory instrument which is subject, if made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament, and may make different provision for different areas or for sales at different prices: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(3) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 207(1), (3)(c)). For the meaning of 'the appropriate national authority' see PARA 1268 note 10 ante; to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante; and as to the Assembly see PARA 27 note 4 ante; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. As to the exercise of this power see the Mobile Homes (Commissions) Order 1983, SI 1983/748, which came into force on 20 May 1983 (see art 1) and provides that the maximum rate of commission to which an owner is entitled on the sale by an occupier of a mobile home is 10% (see art 2). In England, except to the extent mentioned in the Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(2) (as so amended), the owner may not require any payment to be made (whether to himself or otherwise) in connection with the sale of the mobile home, and the assignment of the agreement, as mentioned in Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1) (as amended): Sch 1 Pt I para 8(2A) (added in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (4)(a), (e)).

The following provisions apply to a request by the occupier for the owner to approve a person for the purposes of head (1) or head (2) in the text: Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 2(5), Sch 1 Pt III para 1(1) (s 2(5), Sch 1 Pt III added by the Housing Act 2004 ss 265(1), s 207(5), Sch 15 para 9). If a person ('the recipient') receives such a request and he, though not the owner, has an estate or interest in the protected site, and believes that another person is the owner (and that the other person has not received such a request), the recipient owes a duty to the occupier to take such steps as are reasonable to secure that the other person receives the request within the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the recipient receives it: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt III para 1(2) (as so added). In Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1B) (as added), as it applies to any such request, any reference to the owner receiving such a request includes a reference to his receiving it in accordance with Sch 1 Pt III para 1(2): Sch 1 Pt III para 1(3) (as so added). A claim that a person has broken the duty under Sch 1 Pt III para 1(2) (as added) may be made the subject of civil proceedings in like manner as any other claim in tort for breach of statutory duty; and the right so conferred is in addition to any right to bring proceedings, in respect of a breach of any implied term having effect by virtue of Sch 1 Pt I para 8 (as amended) (see head (1) in the text) or Sch 1 Pt I para 9 (as amended) (see head (2) in the text), against a person bound by that term: Sch 1 Pt III para 2(1), (2) (as so added).

6 For these purposes, a person is a member of another's family if (1) he is his spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, child, grandchild, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, nephew or niece, treating (a) any relationship by marriage or civil partnership as a relationship by blood, any relationship of the half blood as a relationship of the whole blood and the stepchild of any person as his child; and (b) an illegitimate person as the legitimate child of his mother and reputed father; or (2) if they live together as husband and wife or as if they were civil partners: ibid s 5(3) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 261(1), Sch 27 para 88).

7 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 9(1) (numbered as such, and Sch 1 Pt I para 9(2) added, by the Housing Act 2004 s 207(1), (4)). The Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(1A)-(1G) (as added) applies in relation to the approval of a person for these purposes as it applies in relation to the approval of a person for the purposes of head (1) in the text: Sch 1 Pt I para 9(2) (as so added). See note 5 supra. In England, the owner may not require any payment to be made (whether to himself or otherwise) in connection with the gift of the mobile home, and the assignment of the agreement, as mentioned in Sch 1 Pt I para 9(1) (as so amended): Sch 1 Pt I para 9(3) (added in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (5)). As to the application of these amendments see further PARA 1274 note 2 post.

1276. Pitch fee.

Notwithstanding any express term of the agreement<sup>1</sup>, the following additional terms must be implied therein in relation to England only<sup>2</sup>:

- 2667 (1) the pitch fee<sup>3</sup> can only be changed in accordance with head (2) below, either with the agreement of the occupier<sup>4</sup> or if the court<sup>5</sup>, on the application of the owner<sup>6</sup> or the occupier, considers it reasonable for the pitch fee to be changed and makes an order determining the amount of the new pitch fee<sup>7</sup>;
- 2668 (2) the pitch fee must be reviewed annually as at the review date<sup>8</sup> and in accordance with the statutory procedure<sup>9</sup>;
- 2669 (3) when determining the amount of the new pitch fee particular regard must be had to any sums expended by the owner since the last review date<sup>10</sup> on specified improvements<sup>11</sup>, to any decrease in the amenity of the protected site<sup>12</sup> since the last review date and to the effect of any enactment<sup>13</sup> which has come into force since the last review date<sup>14</sup>;
- 2670 (4) when determining the amount of the new pitch fee, any costs incurred by the owner in connection with expanding the protected site are not to be taken into account<sup>15</sup>;
- 2671 (5) there is a presumption that the pitch fee is to increase or decrease by a percentage which is no more than any percentage increase or decrease in the retail prices index<sup>16</sup> since the last review date, unless this would be unreasonable having regard to head (3) above<sup>17</sup>.

1 In any agreement to which Mobile Homes Act 1983 applies: see PARA 1268 ante.

2 As to the application of these provisions see PARA 1274 note 2 ante.

3 'Pitch fee' means the amount which the occupier is required by the agreement to pay to the owner for the right to station the mobile home on the pitch and for use of the common areas of the protected site and their maintenance, but does not include amounts due in respect of gas, electricity, water and sewerage or other services, unless the agreement expressly provides that the pitch fee includes such amounts: Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 2(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 29 (Sch 1 Pt I paras 10-29 substituted in relation to England by the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 2(1), (6), with effect from 1 October 2006: see art 1(1)). See also note 2 supra. For the meaning of 'pitch' see PARA 1274 note 6 ante; and for the meaning of 'mobile home' see PARA 1267 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'occupier' see PARA 1268 the text and note 3 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'the court' see PARA 1268 note 13 ante; and as to the jurisdiction of the court see PARA 1268 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'owner' see PARA 1268 note 7 ante.

7 Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 16 (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

8 Ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 17(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). 'Review date' means the date specified in the written statement as the date on which the pitch fee will be reviewed in each year, or if no such date is specified, each anniversary of the date the agreement commenced; and 'written statement' means the written statement that the owner of the protected site is required to give to the occupier by s 1(2) (as substituted): Sch 1 Pt I para 29 (as substituted: see note 3 supra). If the review date in 2006 fell on the relevant date (ie 1 October 2006), or fell after that date but before 30 October 2006, then for the purposes of Sch 1 Pt I para 17(2), (5) (as substituted) (see note 9 infra) the review date was deemed to be 30 October 2006, but any written notice served on the occupier by the owner before the relevant date and setting out the owner's proposals in respect of the new pitch fee payable as from the review date in 2006 were as effective for the purposes of Sch 1 Pt I para 17(2) (as substituted) as one served on the relevant date: Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 4(5).

9 At least 28 clear days before the review date the owner must serve on the occupier a written notice setting out his proposals in respect of the new pitch fee: Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 17(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). See also note 8 supra. If the occupier agrees to the proposed new pitch fee, it is payable as from the review date: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(3) (as so substituted). If the occupier does not agree to the proposed new pitch fee (1) the owner may apply to the court for an order under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted) determining the amount of the new pitch fee; (2) the occupier must continue to pay the current pitch fee to the owner until such time as the new pitch fee is agreed by the occupier or an order determining the amount of the new pitch fee is made by the court under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted); and (3) the new pitch fee is payable as from the review date but the occupier is not to be treated as being in arrears until the twenty-eighth day after the date on which the new pitch fee is agreed or, as the case may be, the twenty-eighth day after the date of the court order determining the amount of the new pitch fee: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(4) (as so substituted). An application under head (1) supra may be made at any time after the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the review date: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(5) (as so substituted).

If the owner (a) has not served the notice required by Sch 1 Pt I para 17(2) (as substituted) by the time by which it was required to be served; but (b) at any time thereafter serves on the occupier a written notice setting out his proposals in respect of a new pitch fee, the following provisions apply: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(6) (as so substituted). If (at any time) the occupier agrees to the proposed pitch fee, it is payable as from the twenty-eighth day after the date on which the owner serves the notice under head (b) supra: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(7) (as so substituted). If the occupier has not agreed to the proposed pitch fee: (i) the owner may apply to the court for an order under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted) determining the amount of the new pitch fee; (ii) the occupier must continue to pay the current pitch fee to the owner until such time as the new pitch fee is agreed by the occupier or an order determining the amount of the new pitch fee is made by the court under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted); and (iii) if the court makes such an order, the new pitch fee is payable as from the twenty-eighth day after the date on which the owner serves the notice under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted): Sch 1 Pt I para 17(8) (as so substituted). Such an application may be made at any time after the end of the period of 56 days beginning with date on which the owner serves the notice under Sch 1 Pt I para 16(b) (as substituted): Sch 1 Pt I para 17(9) (as so substituted). The occupier is not to be treated as being in arrears (A) where Sch 1 Pt I para 17(7) (as substituted) applies, until the twenty-eighth day after the date on which the new pitch fee is agreed; or (B) where head (ii) supra applies, until the twenty-eighth day after the date on which the new pitch fee is agreed or, as the case may be, the twenty-eighth day after the date of the court order determining the amount of the new pitch fee: Sch 1 Pt I para 17(10) (as so substituted).

10 In a case where the pitch fee has not been previously reviewed, references in head (3) in the text to the last review date are to be read as references to the date when the agreement commenced: ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 18(3) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

11 The improvements (1) which are for the benefit of the occupiers of mobile homes on the protected site; (2) which were the subject of consultation in accordance with ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 22(e) and (f) (as substituted) PARA 1278 post); and (3) to which a majority of the occupiers have not disagreed in writing or which, in the case of such disagreement, the court, on the application of the owner, has ordered should be taken into account when determining the amount of the new pitch fee: Sch 1 Pt I para 18(1)(a) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). When calculating what constitutes a majority of the occupiers for the purposes of head (3) supra each mobile home is to be taken to have only one occupier and, in the event of there being more than one occupier of a mobile home, its occupier is to be taken to be the occupier whose name first appears on the agreement: Sch 1 Pt I para 18(2) (as so substituted). In the case of improvements begun on the relevant date (ie 1 October 2006), or after that date but before 30 October 2006, regard may be had to any sums expended on such improvements when determining the amount of a new pitch fee in accordance with Sch 1 Pt I para 18 (as substituted) even if the consultation requirements mentioned in head (2) supra have not been complied with by the owner in relation to the improvements: Mobile Homes Act 1983 (Amendment of Schedule 1) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1755, art 4(6).

12 For the meaning of 'protected site' see PARA 1268 note 5 ante.

13    le other than an order under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 8(2) (as amended): see PARA 1273 ante.

14    Mobile Homes Act 1983 Sch 1 Pt I para 18(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

15    Ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 19 (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

16    'Retail prices index' means the general index (for all items) published by the Office for National Statistics or, if that index is not published for a relevant month, any substituted index or index figures published by that Office: ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 29 (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

17    Ibid Sch 1 Pt I para 20(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). Schedule I Pt I para 18(3) (as substituted) (see note 3 supra) applies for these purposes as it applies for the purposes of Sch 1 Pt I para 18 (as substituted): Sch 1 Pt I para 20(2) (as so substituted).

5 No order may be so made by the Secretary of State unless a draft of the order has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament: Mobile Homes Act 1983 s 2A(6) (as added: see note 4 supra). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 27 note 3 ante.

6 Ibid s 2A(2) (as added: see note 4 supra). Without prejudice to the generality of s 2A(1), (2) (as added), an order under s 2A (as added) may: (1) make provision for or in connection with the determination by the court of such questions, or the making by the court of such orders, as are specified in the order; (2) make such amendments of any provision of the 1983 Act as the authority making the order considers appropriate in consequence of any amendment made by the order in Sch 1 Pt I (as amended) or Sch 1 Part II: s 2A(3) (as so added).

(3) PROTECTION FOR RESIDENTIAL OCCUPIERS

1281. Application of protective provisions.

The statutory protection for residential occupiers of caravans<sup>1</sup> applies in relation to any licence or contract ('a residential contract'), whether made before or after 26 July 1968<sup>2</sup>, under which a person ('the occupier') is entitled to station a caravan<sup>3</sup> on a protected site and occupy it as his residence, or to occupy as his residence a caravan stationed on any such site<sup>4</sup>. For the purposes of that protection, a protected site is any land in respect of which a site licence is required under Part I of the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960<sup>5</sup> or would be so required if the provisions of that Act exempting gypsy and other local authority sites<sup>6</sup> were omitted, not being land in respect of which the relevant planning permission<sup>7</sup> or site licence:

- 2696 (1) is expressed to be granted for holiday use only; or
- 2697 (2) is otherwise so expressed or subject to such conditions that there are times of the year when no caravan may be stationed on the land for human habitation<sup>8</sup>.

1 ie the Caravan Sites Act 1968 Pt I (ss 1-5) (as amended): see the text and notes 2-7 infra; and PARAS 1282-1284 post.

2 ie whether made before or after the passing of the Caravan Sites Act 1968: see s 1(1).

3 For these purposes, 'caravan' has the same meaning as in the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 Pt I as amended by the Caravan Sites Act 1968 (see PARA 1267 ante; and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1033): Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 16.

4 Ibid s 1(1).

5 le under the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 Pt I (ss 1-32) (as amended): see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1032 et seq.

6 le ibid Sch 1 para 11 or Sch 1 para 11A (as added): see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1036 at heads (11)-(12) in the text. Note that sites for gypsies and travellers may also be provided in England by registered social landlords: see the Social Landlords (Permissible Additional Purposes) (England) Order 2006, SI 2006/1968, art 2; and HOUSING. As to registered social landlords see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARAS 11, 66 et seq.

7 For these purposes, 'planning permission' means permission under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt III (ss 55-106B) (as amended) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 217 et seq): Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 16 (definition amended by the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 4, Sch 2 para 21(2)). The site must be one in respect of which planning permission has been granted for the stationing of one or more caravans: Balthasar v Mullane (1985) 17 HLR 561, 51 P & CR 107, CA. The land may, however, be a protected site where the reason that there is no site licence is the defendant's fault in not having acquired planning permission: Hooper v Eaglestone (1977) 76 LGR 308, 34 P & CR 311, DC.

8 Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 1(2) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 209(1), (2) with effect from 18 January 2005). That amendment does not affect the operation of: (1) the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 2 (minimum length of notice: see PARA 1282 post) in relation to any notice given before 18 January 2005; or (2) s 3 (protection from eviction: see PARA 1283 post) in relation to any conduct occurring before that day; or (3) s 4 (suspension of eviction orders: see PARA 1284 post) in relation to any proceedings begun before that day: Housing Act 2004 s 209(3). In head (2) supra, the reference to the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3 is to that section whether as amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 210 or otherwise: s 209(4). As to the previous position see Stoke-on-Trent City Council v Frost (1991) 64 P & CR 135, 24 HLR 290, CA.

1282. Minimum length of notice.

In any case where a residential contract<sup>1</sup> is determinable by notice given by either party to the other, a notice so given is to be of no effect unless it is given not less than four weeks before the date on which it is to take effect<sup>2</sup>. Nothing in this provision, however, affects the operation of the provisions of the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965<sup>3</sup> relating to the delivery of possession of land which the acquiring authority under that Act is authorised to enter and of which it is authorised to acquire possession<sup>4</sup>.

1281-1284 Protection for Residential Occupiers

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/21. MOBILE HOMES/(3) PROTECTION FOR RESIDENTIAL OCCUPIERS/1283. Protection of occupiers against eviction and harassment.

1283. Protection of occupiers against eviction and harassment.

- 2698 (1) during the subsistence of a residential contract<sup>5</sup>, he unlawfully deprives the occupier<sup>6</sup> of his occupation on a protected site of any caravan which the occupier is entitled by the contract to station and occupy, or to occupy, as his residence thereon; or
- 2699 (2) after the expiration or determination of a residential contract, he enforces, otherwise than by proceedings in the court<sup>7</sup>, any right to exclude the occupier from the protected site or from any such caravan, or to remove or exclude any such caravan from the site; or
- 2700 (3) whether during the subsistence or after the expiration or determination of a residential contract, with intent to cause the occupier to abandon the occupation of the caravan or remove it from the site, or to refrain from exercising any right or pursuing any remedy in respect thereof, he does acts likely to<sup>8</sup> interfere with the peace or comfort of the occupier or persons residing with him, or persistently withdraws or withholds services or facilities reasonably required for the occupation of the caravan as a residence on the site<sup>9</sup>. In proceedings for an offence under head (1) or head (2) above it is a defence to prove that the defendant believed, and had reasonable cause to believe, that the occupier of the caravan had ceased to reside on the site<sup>10</sup>.

Further, the owner of a protected site<sup>11</sup> or his agent is guilty of an offence if, whether during the subsistence or after the expiration or determination of a residential contract:

- 2701 (a) he does acts likely to interfere with the peace or comfort of the occupier or persons residing with him; or
- 2702 (b) he persistently withdraws or withholds services or facilities reasonably required for the occupation of the caravan as a residence on the site, and (in either case) he knows, or has reasonable cause to believe, that that conduct is likely to cause the occupier to do any of the things mentioned in head (3) above<sup>12</sup>. In proceedings for such an offence<sup>13</sup> it is a defence to prove that the defendant had reasonable grounds for doing the acts or withdrawing or withholding the services or facilities in question<sup>14</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence<sup>15</sup> is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine, or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months, or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or to both<sup>16</sup>.

Nothing in the provisions set out above affects the operation of the provisions of the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965<sup>17</sup> relating to the delivery of possession of land which the acquiring authority under that Act is authorised to enter and of which it is authorised to acquire possession<sup>18</sup>.

1     le the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 (protection against harassment and eviction without due process of law): see PARAS 214, 653, 1194 ante; and CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 608-609.

2     For the meaning of 'caravan' see PARA 1281 note 3 ante.

3     Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 5(5) (amended by the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 12, Sch 1 para 3). For the meaning of 'protected site' see PARA 1281 ante.

4     Nothing in the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3 (as amended) (see the text and notes 5-16 infra) applies to the exercise by any person of a right to take possession of a caravan of which he is the owner, other than a right conferred by or arising on the expiration or determination of a residential contract, or to anything done pursuant to the order of any court: s 3(5). For the purposes of Pt I (ss 1-5) (as amended) (see PARAS 1281-1282 ante; the text and notes 1-3 supra, 5-18 infra; and PARA 1284 post), references to the owner of a protected site are references to the person who is or would apart from any residential contract be entitled to possession of the land: s 1(3).

5     For the meaning of 'residential contract' see PARA 1281 ante.

6     'Occupier' includes the person who was the occupier under a residential contract which has expired or been determined and, in the case of the death of the occupier (whether during the subsistence or after the expiration or determination of the contract), includes any person then residing with the occupier being the widow, widower or surviving civil partner of the occupier, or, in default of a widow, widower or surviving civil partner so residing, any member of the occupier's family: Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(2) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 81, Sch 8 para 8).

7     'The court' means the county court: Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 5(1). As to the court's power to suspend an order enforcing the rights described in head (2) in the text see s 4(1); and PARA 1284 post. A claim to enforce the rights set out in head (2) in the text must be brought under CPR Pt 55 s 1 (CPR 55.1-CPR 55.10A) (see PARA 665 et seq ante): Practice Direction--Possession Claims PD 55 para 1.8.

8     In a similar context 'calculated to' has been construed as meaning 'likely to': R v AMK (Property Management) Ltd [1985] Crim LR 600, CA (Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(3), amended by the substitution of 'likely to' by the Housing Act 1988 s 29(1)). The word 'calculated' required that there had to be proved the element of calculated acts or of persistent withdrawal or withholding of services, as the case might be: Westminster City Council v Peart (1968) 19 P & CR 736, DC; R v Abrol [1972] Crim LR 318, CA (both decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)).

9     Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(1) (amended by the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (2)). Where an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate or any person who is purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 14(1).

10    Ibid s 3(4).

11    For these purposes, references to the owner of a protected site include references to a person with an estate or interest in the site which is superior to that of the owner: ibid s 3(1B) (added by the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (3)).

12    Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(1A) (added by the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (3); the amendments made by s 210 do not apply in relation to any conduct occurring before 18 January 2005: s 210(1), (6)).

13 le under the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(1A) (as added: see note 12 supra).

14 Ibid s 3(4A) (added by the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (5); and see note 12 supra).

15 le an offence under the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(1) (as amended) or s 3(1A) (as added).

16 Ibid s 3(3) (substituted by the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (4)). In the case of an offence committed before the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) comes into force, however, the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction is six months by virtue of the Housing Act 2004 s 210(1), (7). At the date at which this title states the law, the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) was not in force. The 'statutory maximum', with reference to a fine or penalty on summary conviction for an offence, is the prescribed sum within the meaning of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32 (as amended; prospectively amended): see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. The 'prescribed sum' means £5,000 or such sum as is for the time being substituted in this definition by order under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 143(1) (as substituted): see s 32(9) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(2)); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

The Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3(3) (as so substituted) is without prejudice to any liability or remedy to which a person guilty of an offence may be subject in civil proceedings: s 3(3) (as so substituted). Proceedings for any such offence may be instituted by any local authority: Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 14(2). For these purposes, 'local authority' means a council of a London borough or a district, the Common Council of the City of London and the Council of the Isles of Scilly but, in relation to Wales, means the council of a Welsh county or county borough: Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 29(1) (definition amended by the London Government Act 1963 s 83(1), Sch 17 para 21(1); the Greater London Council (General Powers) Act 1976 s 11; and the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 66(6), Sch 16, PARA 16(3); applied by the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 16). As to the London boroughs see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 30; as to the Common Council of the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 51 et seq; and as to the Council of the Isles of Scilly see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 36.

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/21. MOBILE HOMES/(3) PROTECTION FOR RESIDENTIAL OCCUPIERS/1284. Provision for suspension of eviction orders.

1284. Provision for suspension of eviction orders.

If in proceedings by the owner<sup>1</sup> of a protected site<sup>2</sup> the court<sup>3</sup> makes an order for enforcing in relation thereto any right, after the expiration or determination of a residential contract<sup>4</sup>, to exclude the occupier<sup>5</sup> from the protected site or from any caravan<sup>6</sup>, or to remove or exclude any caravan from the site<sup>7</sup>, the court may, without prejudice to any other power to postpone the operation or suspend the execution of an order, and subject to the following provisions, suspend the enforcement of the order for such period not exceeding 12 months from the date of the order as the court thinks reasonable<sup>8</sup>. It must not, however, suspend the enforcement of an order by virtue of these provisions if no site licence<sup>9</sup> is in force in respect of the site and the exemptions for gypsy and other local authority sites<sup>10</sup> do not apply<sup>11</sup>.

Where the court suspends the enforcement of an order by virtue of these provisions, it may impose such terms and conditions, including conditions as to the payment of rent or other periodical payments or of arrears of such rent or payments, as the court thinks reasonable<sup>12</sup>.

The court may from time to time, on the application of either party, extend, reduce or terminate the period of suspension so ordered, or vary any terms or conditions so imposed, but must not extend the period of suspension for more than 12 months at a time<sup>13</sup>.

In considering whether or how to exercise its powers under the above provisions, the court must have regard to all the circumstances, and in particular to the questions:

- 2703 (1) whether the occupier of the caravan has failed, whether before or after the expiration or determination of the relevant residential contract, to observe any terms or conditions of that contract, any conditions of the site licence, or any reasonable rules made by the owner for the management and conduct of the site or the maintenance of caravans thereon;
- 2704 (2) whether the occupier has unreasonably refused an offer by the owner to renew the residential contract or make another such contract for a reasonable period and on reasonable terms;
- 2705 (3) whether the occupier has failed to make reasonable efforts to obtain elsewhere other suitable accommodation for his caravan or, as the case may be, another suitable caravan and accommodation for it<sup>14</sup>.

Where the court makes such an order as is mentioned above but suspends the enforcement of that order<sup>15</sup>, the court must make no order for costs unless it appears to the court, having regard to the conduct of the owner or of the occupier, that there are special reasons for making such an order<sup>16</sup>.

Local housing authorities<sup>1</sup> and other social landlords have the following statutory powers<sup>2</sup> to deal with anti-social behaviour<sup>3</sup> by tenants, their families or visitors:

2706 (1) a local housing authority or housing action trust may elect to operate an introductory tenancy regime<sup>4</sup>; under an introductory tenancy the tenant will not become a secure tenant<sup>5</sup> until 12 months after the start of the tenancy and the landlord can recover possession if it believes that the tenant's conduct is unsatisfactory<sup>6</sup>;

2707 (2) the right of local authorities and other social landlords to recover possession in cases of anti-social behaviour is extended; in particular, nuisance as a possession ground applies to behaviour in the locality of a tenant's home and to misbehaviour by the tenant's visitors<sup>7</sup> and landlords may start proceedings as soon as a notice of possession proceedings has been issued where nuisance or other anti-social behaviour is alleged<sup>8</sup>;

2708 (3) provision is made for the demotion of tenancies as an additional measure for dealing with anti-social behaviour; a demoted tenancy becomes a secure tenancy only at the end of the period of one year (the demotion period) starting with the day on which the demotion order takes effect<sup>9</sup>;

2709 (4) a power of arrest may be sought when applying for an injunction to prevent anti-social behaviour; such an injunction may be obtained to restrain a breach of the tenancy agreement or to prevent the commission of anti-social behaviour on housing estates or the use of housing accommodation for unlawful purposes<sup>10</sup>.

1285 Background to the legislation

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LANDLORD AND TENANT (VOLUME 27(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-700; VOLUME 27(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 701-1385; VOLUME 27(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1386-2000)/22. INTRODUCTORY, SECURE AND DEMOTED TENANCIES/(1) INTRODUCTORY TENANCIES/(i) Tenancies which are Introductory Tenancies/1286. Election to operate introductory tenancy regime.

1286. Election to operate introductory tenancy regime.

A local housing authority<sup>1</sup> or a housing action trust<sup>2</sup> may elect to operate an introductory tenancy regime<sup>3</sup>. Such an election may be revoked at any time, without prejudice to the making of a further election<sup>4</sup>.

When such an election is in force, every periodic tenancy<sup>5</sup> of a dwelling house<sup>6</sup> entered into or adopted<sup>7</sup> by the authority or trust must, if it would otherwise be a secure tenancy<sup>8</sup>, be an introductory tenancy<sup>9</sup>. However, this is not the case if:

- 2710 (1) immediately before the tenancy was entered into or adopted the tenant or, in the case of joint tenants, one or more of them, was either a secure tenant of the same or another dwelling house or an assured tenant<sup>10</sup> of a registered social landlord<sup>11</sup> (otherwise than under an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>12</sup>) in respect of the same or another dwelling house<sup>13</sup>; 2711 (2) a tenancy was entered into or adopted in pursuance of a contract made before the election was made<sup>14</sup>.

It is important to emphasise that the use of introductory tenancies is not mandatory and each local housing authority or housing action trust can decide whether or not it wishes to introduce such a regime<sup>15</sup>. When considering the introduction of such a regime, landlords may have to consider consulting their secure tenants under the statutory procedures laid down in the Housing Act 1985<sup>16</sup>.

2 For these purposes, 'housing action trust' has the same meaning as in the Housing Act 1988 (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 319 et seq): Housing Act 1996 s 230.

5 For these purposes of the Housing Act 1996, 'lease' and 'tenancy' have the same meaning; and both expressions include (1) a sublease or subtenancy; and (2) an agreement for a lease or tenancy, or sublease or subtenancy: s 229(1), (2). The expressions 'lessor and 'lessee' and 'landlord' and 'tenant', and references to letting, to the grant of a lease or to covenants or terms, are to be construed accordingly: s 229(3). He alone knows whether he does or does not understand his obligations. There are numbers of agencies who would assist him, not least the letting department of the housing authority. When the housing authority write to him, he is not entitled to disregard the letters nor to assume that they are merely circulars. There is no justification for such an assumption. If he has difficulty understanding what is written, that is a matter singularly within his knowledge. It is for him to take steps to discover what the letters contain. If he fails to fulfil his obligation, because of his failure to understand correspondence the failure is his').

1287. Duration of introductory tenancy.

Unless proceedings for possession are begun<sup>1</sup>, a tenancy<sup>2</sup> remains an introductory tenancy<sup>3</sup> until the end of the trial period, unless one of the events specified in heads (a) to (d) below occurs before the end of that period<sup>4</sup>. The 'trial period' is, subject to the statutory power to extend it for six months<sup>5</sup>, the period of one year beginning with:

- 2712 (1) in the case of a tenancy which was entered into by a local housing authority<sup>6</sup> or housing action trust<sup>7</sup>, the date on which the tenancy was entered into, or, if later, the date on which a tenant<sup>8</sup> was first entitled to possession under the tenancy; or
- 2713 (2) in the case of a tenancy which was adopted<sup>9</sup> by a local housing authority or housing action trust, the date of adoption<sup>10</sup>.

Where the tenant under an introductory tenancy<sup>11</sup> was formerly a tenant under another introductory tenancy, or held an assured shorthold tenancy<sup>12</sup> from a registered social landlord<sup>13</sup>, any period or periods during which he was such a tenant is or are to count towards the trial period, provided that if there was one such period, it ended immediately before the date specified in head (1) or head (2) above, and if there was more than one such period, the most recent period ended immediately before that date and each period succeeded the other without interruption<sup>14</sup>.

A tenancy ceases to be an introductory tenancy if, before the end of the trial period:

- 2714 (a) the circumstances are such that the tenancy would not otherwise be a secure tenancy<sup>15</sup>;
- 2715 (b) a person or body other than a local housing authority or housing action trust becomes the landlord under the tenancy;
- 2716 (c) the election in force when the tenancy was entered into or adopted is revoked; or
- 2717 (d) the tenancy ceases to be an introductory tenancy by virtue of certain statutory provisions<sup>16</sup> relating to succession<sup>17</sup>.

A tenancy does not come to an end merely because it ceases to be an introductory tenancy, but a tenancy which has once ceased to be an introductory tenancy cannot subsequently become an introductory tenancy<sup>18</sup>. Thus if a tenant gives up possession, he ceases to be an introductory tenant and will not later become an introductory tenant by returning to the dwelling.

In the case of a joint introductory tenancy, one of the tenants may give notice to quit without the consent of the other and this will bring the introductory tenancy to an end<sup>19</sup>.

This is subject to the Housing Act 1996 s 125(3), (4): see the text and notes 11-14 infra: s 125(2) (as so amended).

INTRODUCTORY, SECURE AND DEMOTED TENANCIES/(1) INTRODUCTORY TENANCIES/(i) Tenancies which are Introductory Tenancies/1288. Extension of introductory tenancy.

1288. Extension of introductory tenancy.

If both of the following conditions are met in relation to an introductory tenancy<sup>1</sup>, the trial period<sup>2</sup> is extended by six months<sup>3</sup>. The first condition is that the landlord<sup>4</sup> has served a notice of extension on the tenant<sup>5</sup> at least eight weeks before the original expiry date<sup>6</sup>, and the second condition is that either:

- 2718 (1) the tenant has not requested a review of the landlord's decision<sup>7</sup>; or
- 2719 (2) if he has, the decision on the review was to confirm the landlord's decision to extend the trial period<sup>8</sup>.

A notice of extension is a notice stating that the landlord has decided that the period for which the tenancy is to be an introductory tenancy should be extended by six months, and complying with the following provisions<sup>9</sup>. It must set out the reasons for the landlord's decision, and inform the tenant of his right to request a review of the landlord's decision and of the time within which such a request must be made<sup>10</sup>.

A request for review of the landlord's decision that the trial period for an introductory tenancy should be extended must be made before the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the day on which the notice of extension is served<sup>11</sup>. On a request being duly made to it, the landlord must review its decision<sup>12</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>13</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the relevant Welsh minister<sup>14</sup> may make provision by regulations as to the procedure to be followed in connection with such a review<sup>15</sup>. Provision may be made by regulations requiring the decision on review to be made by a person of appropriate seniority who was not involved in the original decision, and as to the circumstances in which the person concerned is entitled to an oral hearing, and whether and by whom he may be represented at such a hearing<sup>16</sup>.

The landlord<sup>17</sup> must give to the tenant<sup>18</sup> at least ten clear days' notice of the date of a review and, in the case of a review by way of oral hearing<sup>19</sup>, the time and place of the review<sup>20</sup>. The review must be carried out by a person who was not involved in the decision to extend the trial period<sup>21</sup>; and where the review is of a decision made by an officer of the landlord and is to be carried out by another officer, the officer reviewing the decision must occupy a position within the organisation of the landlord which is senior to that of the officer who made the decision<sup>22</sup>.

The tenant may make written representations to the landlord in connection with the review<sup>23</sup>. Any such representations must be received by the landlord at least two clear days before the date of the review<sup>24</sup> and the landlord must consider any written representations which are submitted by that date<sup>25</sup>.

Subject to the provisions of the relevant regulations, the procedure at review by way of oral hearing is to be determined by the person who carries it out<sup>26</sup>. The tenant who has requested a hearing has the right:

- 2720 (a) to be heard and to be accompanied or to be represented by another person, whether that person is professionally qualified or not;
 2721 (b) to call any person to give evidence; and 2722 (c) to put any question to any person who gives evidence at the hearing<sup>27</sup>; and any representative who attends the hearing has the rights and powers which the tenant has under those regulations<sup>28</sup>.

Where the landlord has given notice<sup>29</sup> of a review by way of an oral hearing and neither the tenant nor the tenant's representative attends on the date, and at the time and place notified, the person carrying out the review may either proceed with the hearing or make any other directions with a view to the conduct of the review that he considers appropriate, taking into account all relevant circumstances including any explanation offered for the absence<sup>30</sup>. Where the landlord has so given notice of a review by way of an oral hearing and the tenant requests a postponement, the landlord may grant or refuse the request as he sees fit<sup>31</sup>; and if the landlord agrees to postpone the hearing, the landlord must give reasonable notice to the tenant of the time, date and place of the reconvened hearing<sup>32</sup>.

The person carrying out a review by way of an oral hearing may adjourn it at any time on his own initiative, at the request of the tenant, his representative or the landlord<sup>33</sup>. If such a review is being carried out by more than one person and any of those persons are absent, the hearing must be adjourned, unless the tenant or his representative gives his consent to the continuation of the hearing<sup>34</sup>. If such a review is adjourned part-heard and the person conducting the reconvened hearing is not the person who carried out the previously adjourned hearing, then a complete rehearing must be conducted unless the tenant or his representative gives his consent to the continuation of the hearing<sup>35</sup>. If such a review is adjourned, the tenant must be given reasonable notice of the date, time, and place of the reconvened hearing<sup>36</sup>.
